Editorial/Opinion

Caution is the key

Four rapes have occurred near Cal Poly in the past two months. Four have been published, at least, but more go unreported. The incidence of forcible rape is increasing faster than any other violent crime in America. An FBI report estimated that for every reported rape, five go unreported.

One of the most effective weapons to the reduction of rape is the willingness of victims to report the crimes. Unfortunately, women fear the reaction of their associates and remain silent.

Their reluctance to report to police is also directly related to society's conception of rape. There is an age-old myth that women secretly want to be raped, that deep down they are somehow asked for it. For centuries, women have been treated as though they somehow asked for rape. There is an old myth that women fear the revelation of their fantasies, that if revealed, they excite them. Women who are raped are often treated as though they somehow asked for it. This reduction of rape in the willingness of victims to report to police is one of the most effective weapons to the reduction of rape.

The previous lack of reported rapes in San Luis Obispo was deceptive low, and it gave women a false sense of security. In the recent rapes, the attacker entered through unlocked doors or windows. It's uncomfortable and unfair, but when rape is considered, women face a danger that they may not see, and they must take added precautions. It may cramp their style not to go walking or jogging alone at night, but there are precautions they can take.

San Luis Obispo has a low crime rate and up until now it had a low rape rate. However, comforting statistics don't just happen. Women are simply easy targets for rapists.

All women can benefit from learning self-defense, and all should familiarize themselves with rape prevention techniques offered by the Cal Poly Department of Public Safety, the Rape Crisis Center, and the rape prevention presented by the university's Student Affairs Division.

Rape is a violent act of aggression, often accompanied by brutal beatings and murder, and so women have reason to fear it. It's rape doesn't mean having physical scars, it can mean permanent mental scars, and it can ruin the shelter of a woman ever having normal sexual relationships again.

A rape is a private matter to which it can be referred, and the victim can be protected. But we have to be more supportive of a rape conscious and not compound if we want woman's cooperation in reporting rapes. Police and private organizations exist for making the victim feel she is the guilty party.

It's up to the police to catch a rapist after he has committed the crime, but rape prevention is the responsibility of every woman.

Selecting a pope

With the death of Pope Paul VI, the Roman Catholic Church is faced with the task of selecting its new leader. This is going to be a difficult task. With 500 million members worldwide, the church is looked to by many for leadership. However, in the past few years the church has not provided the leadership needed in today's world. It is still giving advice that is unrealistic for a modern world.

With a growing population, widespread terrorism, loss of faith in governments, and a declining number of church-going families, the Church must find a leader who is adaptable. A leader who is not afraid to go against church traditions will be the only one who can re-form and respect the church has lost.

The new leader must change his attitude toward the role of women in the church. Women should be ordained. They should be allowed to be more than nuns; they are just as capable of being priests as men.

It is also time to allow priests to marry. With the change in attitudes toward religion, most people see nothing wrong with the idea.

The Christian attitude toward birth control has equalled conflict in the past. Its restrictions on the method of birth control caused many families to turn away from the Church. In a modern world the church must keep up or it may find itself without followers. The College of Cardinals have the opportunity to bring the church out of the dark age and into the 20th century when they meet on Aug. 31 to elect the next pope.

They must listen to the people. They can pick a leader who can lead the church back to its greatness. If they don't, the church will continue to lose its following.

Their choices may mean the birth of a new potent and respected leadership or the continual decline of the Roman Catholic Church.

Author Jiff Hendrickson is a senior journalism major.

Earthquake prompts look

At 3:54 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 13, the Richter scale reacted and woke Santa Barbara. It registered 5.1 on the Richter scale and was felt by many San Luis Obispo residents.

The quake was centered a quarter mile from Point Conception, near California's largest natural gas terminals.

Looking For Housing That's Close to Campus?

Jenner glen

A Student Community

1050 Foothill Blvd. 544-4540

Oak Wood Barbecue
Continued for the Quarter
Monday Night Special
Beef Ribs only 84.95 regularly 99.95
Dinner including rilled potatoes fresh peas garlic bread short ribs

Selecting a pope

With the death of Pope Paul VI, the Roman Catholic Church is faced with the task of selecting its new leader. This is going to be a difficult task. With 500 million members worldwide, the church is looked to by many for leadership. However, in the past few years the church has not provided the leadership needed in today's world. It is still giving advice that is unrealistic for a modern world.

With a growing population, widespread terrorism, loss of faith in governments, and a declining number of church-going families, the Church must find a leader who is adaptable. A leader who is not afraid to go against church traditions will be the only one who can re-form and respect the church has lost.

The new leader must change his attitude toward the role of women in the church. Women should be ordained. They should be allowed to be more than nuns; they are just as capable of being priests as men.

It is also time to allow priests to marry. With the change in attitudes toward religion, most people see nothing wrong with the idea.

The Christian attitude toward birth control has equalled conflict in the past. Its restrictions on the method of birth control caused many families to turn away from the Church. In a modern world the church must keep up or it may find itself without followers. The College of Cardinals have the opportunity to bring the church out of the dark age and into the 20th century when they meet on Aug. 31 to elect the next pope.

They must listen to the people. They can pick a leader who can lead the church back to its greatness. If they don't, the church will continue to lose its following.

Their choices may mean the birth of a new potent and respected leadership or the continual decline of the Roman Catholic Church.

Author Jiff Hendrickson is a senior journalism major.

Earthquake prompts look

At 3:54 p.m. Sunday, Aug. 13, the Richter scale reacted and woke Santa Barbara. It registered 5.1 on the Richter scale and was felt by many San Luis Obispo residents.

The quake was centered a quarter mile from Point Conception, near California's largest natural gas terminals.

Looking For Housing That's Close to Campus?
PUBLIC SAFETY Dir. discusses rape

The bill, SB 1479 by Sen. George Deukmejian, R-Long Beach, a candidate for attorney general in November’s election, went to the Assembly on a 32-2 vote. The Assembly is acknowledged as a more liberal branch of the legislature, and passage of the bill is expected to be a formality. According to Brug, California public defenders are united against passage of the bill.

Some predictions could be observed, according to Brug, and it is doubtful that any of the amendments proposed to cover half the cost of the tenants would be adopted. Brug added that the Rafa Crime Center, it might be better to carry weapons because they can be used against the victim. However, some women advocate carrying a plastic squeaky lemon filled with ammunition and aiming at the attacker’s eyes.

Summertime's Great...

...when you're equipped for it. Come to Hurley for nearly anything you might need. Whether it be sunglasses, lotions or our popular 24 hour film processing. Be sure to stop by and stock up for the weekends.
ENTERTAINMENT

Gospel trio plays

The Second Chapter of Acts, one of the nation’s most popular contemporary gospel recording groups, will perform in a free concert at Cal Poly on Thursday, August 24, at 8 p.m.

The concert, to be held in Chumash Auditorium, will be sponsored by the Cal Poly Naranjate Student Mission Corps.

A soft-rock trio consisting of Matthew Ward and his sisters, Annie Herring and Nely Orelien, 2nd Capt of the band, has recorded an album, "The Price of Freedom." In concert, they will sing their new album "Through a Child’s Eye" and "Kids of the Kingdom."

In 1977, The Second Chapter of Acts toured Australia and New Zealand in addition to performing 30 concerts in the United States.

Currently with Sparrow Records, the trio recently released a new album, "Mission Builder," which has been steadily climbing up the gospel music charts.

Although the concert at Cal Poly will be free to all who wish to attend, donations will be accepted to defray costs.

Local entertainment

Performances of the California Puppet Theater will continue through August 31 with exciting shows at the Cal Poly Theater including "Jack and the Beanstalk" on August 17, "One To Lunch" on August 18, and "All Birth and the Forty Thieves" on August 21 to 23.

Every performance, whether evening or matinee, will be full length. The curtain time is 8 p.m., and 2 p.m. for Sunday matinees. All seats are $3.00. For more information call 546-3030 or 546-3481.

The History Club is presenting free films each Thursday at 6 a.m. in the Graphic Arts building, room 104.

"Painted" and "Ray of Gold" will be shown August 17, "Haiti," August 24, and "The Korean War" on August 31.

A Summer Concert will be presented by the New Riders of the Purple Sage on August 20 at the Old Pismo Theater, 290 Pomarkey, Pismo Beach. Two shows at 5 p.m. and 8 p.m. will be presented.

Theater, tickets are $5.00 in advance, and $7.00 the night of the show. They will be available at Waterfront Market, Ramond Park; 800 BOD Records, BLO and Grover City; Cheap Thrills Records, BLO and Santa Maria.

In concert at Chumash Auditorium on Thursday August 24, at 8:00 p.m. will be The Second Chapter of Acts.

Protest follow-up

Five hundred protesters have been arrested and are being prosecuted or attempted prosecution of the Diablo Canyon Nuclear Reactor. The local coast to the county is still uncannily.

"If it’s going to be quite costly," said L. Parch, supervisor of the sheriff’s department. He expects to have exact figures by the end of the month.

Only 35 of the protesters, who are currently in jail, were from out of county. "That’s 93 percent," Parch said. "That’s 93 percent from out of town."

New Zealand in addition to Australia and the United States.

The Department of Animal Regulation wishes to announce a new service and new hours. Effective July 3, 1978, a new telephone recording listing all stray dogs picked up within the last 24 hours will be available by calling 546-3058 (413-5647).

Also effective Aug. 7, 1978, the hours of the Department of Animal Regulation will change from 1 a.m. to 9 a.m. on Monday through Thursday, to 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

The line will be available 24 hours a day and will be updated daily.

This change was necessary because of decreased funding and staff reductions imposed by recent reductions in County spending.

Family planning

EOC Family Planning is now providing an opportunity for men to become more involved in birth control.

They extend a warm and inviting welcome and staff reductions imposed by recent reductions in County spending.

In response to community and student concerns two public panel discussions on rape will be presented at Cal Poly. For more information call 546-3471.

Admission to both presentations will be free.

Another Daydream Presentation in association with KXOS STEREO FM 93

the New Riders of the PURPLE SAGE

Sunday August 20
2 shows 7@10
$6.50 ADV $7.00 DAY OF SHOW
CENTRAL COAST THEATRE
PISMO BEACH
formerly the Pismo Theatre
TICKETS AVAILABLE AT
Waterfront Liquor, Servando Park
Confesses Bookstore, Morro Bay
Book East Records, BLO & Shaver City
Cheap Thrills Records, BLO & Santa Maria
Students suckered by bogus petition

P.T. Barnum's old adage "There's a sucker born every minute" rang true last Tuesday, Aug. 15, when a group of Cal Poly students from a 21-student initiated drive of people in the University Union into signing a petition that, in effect, was a garage of nonsense.

Five members of the Speech 214 class at Cal Poly set up a table outside the book store soliciting signatures for their "Push For Pedalogue Petition." The group members, Richard Price, Debbie Raye, Mary Reardon, and Debbie O'Quin were the enrolled members of the Push For Pedalogue Committee.

"No one knew what the petition was for," said Price, but the petition was purposely worded so that no one could understand it.

"We were conducting an experiment for the speech class to find out whether or not people would sign a petition they knew nothing about. We were right, many people signed the petition without even asking.

"One Japanese guy walked by and paused to look at his American dictionary. He just stretched his head and walked away."

A group of people gathered in the plaza. Finally one girl came over to ask for a copy of the information sheet that was being handed out about Pedalogues. The group backed into the rest of the people sitting there and they all discussed the subject for about 10 minutes.

"We were surprised at the number of people who read the description of the Pedalogue and seemed to understand it completely," said Mary Reardon.

Many signed their names to a ridiculous petition they couldn't possibly comprehend. The whole thing was made up, added Reardon.

By James E. Pye

Summer Staff Writer

Everyone needs someone to talk to about their original goals in life and begin to wonder if the career they have been proper*

Counseling Center staff for Career Development may be able to help through group or individual meetings, which utilize surveys such as Holland's "Self Directed Search" and the Strong-Campbell Vocational Interest Inventory.

For some students, choosing a career poses a real problem. After standing college for two or three years, they begin to question their original goals in life and begin to wonder if the career they have been preparing for is for what they really want.

The Counseling Center staff for Career Development may be able to help through group or individual meetings, which utilize surveys such as Holland's "Self Directed Search" and the Strong-Campbell Vocational Interest Inventory.

For the student who is having trouble with classes, the Learning Assistance Center, room 216A in the library, offers assistance in the following areas: General Academic, which entails textbook study, testing and non-testing, test preparation, test taking and test anxiety.

The Center also gives assistance in reading, comprehension and spelling with special emphasis on correcting the problem as soon as discovered by the freshman or student living away from home for the first time, said Dr. George Malden, director of counseling and testing. "The beautiful thing about working with the problem is it's raliable."

Experiencing the same of the problems, encountered by the freshman or student living away from home for the first time, said Malden. "There are some students who are having minor problems or hassles with their majors.

For the student who has trouble with classes, the Learning Assistance Center, room 216A in the library, offers assistance in the following areas: General Academic, which entails textbook study, testing and non-testing, test preparation, test taking and test anxiety.

The Center also gives assistance in reading, comprehension and spelling with special emphasis on correcting the problem as soon as discovered by the freshman or student living away from home for the first time, said Dr. George Malden, director of counseling and testing. "The beautiful thing about working with the problem is it's raliable."

Experiencing the same of the problems, encountered by the freshman or student living away from home for the first time, said Malden. "There are some students who are having minor problems or hassles with their majors.

For some students, choosing a career poses a real problem. After standing college for two or three years, they begin to question their original goals in life and begin to wonder if the career they have been proper*
Summer Thursday, August 24, 1978

Editorial/Opinion

Prop. 5: Airing an issue

Which should the law defend, the right to smoke or the right to breathe smokeless air?

This is the issue behind Proposition 5. The Clean Air Act, an initiative measure sponsored by the Californians for Clean Indoor Air. If Proposition 5 is approved by the voters in November, smoking would become illegal in most indoor public places, including markets, places of employment, hospitals and schools. Exceptions would permit smoking in separate smoking sections, bars, hotel rooms, pool halls, race courses, and several other areas. Violators could be fined $50.

Whether the proposition passes or not, an individual will not be able to choose what kind of air he breathes in a public place. Without Proposition 5, the decision is made for him by the person smoking and not him by the law.

Only one in three adults still smokes, the Los Angeles Times reported March 9. But smoke afflicts anyone who breathes it, whether he is smoking or not.

The particular menace in cigarette smoke classified as tar causes cancer and irritates respiratory systems. Nicotine raises the blood pressure and heart rate, so the heart requires more oxygen. Carbon monoxide, which composes one to five percent of smoke, decreases the amount of oxygen in the blood, so in combination with nicotine it increases the risk of heart attacks.

"Sidestream" smoke, inhaled by the person near a smoker, contains even higher concentrations of tar, nicotine, and carbon monoxide than the "mainstream" smoke inhaled by the smoker, according to a leaflet distributed by the Foundation for Lung Laws.

One hazard from other people's smoke was illustrated in a study published in the June 13 issue of the New England Journal of Medicine. Angina sufferers who sit where other people were smoking experienced increased heart rates, higher blood pressure, and in some cases precordial ventricular heart beats, which are associated with sudden death.

Restricting the right to smoke in public places would reduce one group's freedom, but would endanger no one's health. Continuing to permit smoking in most public places would reduce another group's freedom, and endanger the health of people who do not choose the risks of smoking.

Since the question cannot be decided on the basis of individual rights, it should be decided in favor of people from having their health hazarded without their consent. Proposition 5 should be passed.

Author Melanie Hutton is a junior journalism major

LETTERS

Editor:

There are few things worse than a human being inflicting his will, by force, on another. Yet with all the talk of the recent rapes, I see an evil taking shape that is at least as destructive as the rapes. That is fear.

Fear is a poisonous gas that spreads until it poisons an entire community. It leaves in its path broken friendships, hurt feelings, and emotional pain.

Though we certainly need to act with deliberate caution, this only in preventing rape, but also with crossing the street, we should not become zombies, afraid to say hello to each other or go on a date.

I was disappointed in our school paper in reading its last edition. The cartoon left the suggestion that every man you might come in contact with has this evil lurking in his heart. I also felt it was a poor choice to print these encouraging statistics to any potential rapists telling him exactly what to do and not to do, and practically assuring him of no conviction even in the event of an arrest. After all, the overwhelming majority of men in our town are not rapists.

Let's not let the one or two sick animals who committed these sick crimes destroy our community, our school, our market, our minds. Be deliberate, be careful. But fight the one thing that could destroy all of us.

PEABODY James

Editor: As a travel agent and adult school teacher of a travel agent training course, I would like to comment on the article, "Prize Flashes Found in Center," by Paula Chambers in the Mustang newspaper July 13 issue. I feel that Mr. Nester's statement, "that a student will get a better deal in the Center than if they went to a travel agency," was completely unfounded and quite erroneous.

Most travel agents have knowledge of and sell the same charters and cruises at the same rates as those at the Cal Poly Travel Center. The only difference between what one travel agency offers over the other is product knowledge, experience, training and service.

Responsible travel agents, with their many years of experience, can help their clients select a reliable tour or charter operator who will guarantee their price and service so the client can get the most for her travel dollars. Travel agents continually screen the "better deals" in order to serve their client's better and maximize benefits.

A legitimate travel agency must at least have one person with two or more years of experience in the travel industry. This in turn assures the public that the agency has at least the minimal qualifications of a functioning travel agency. At the Cal Poly Travel Center, not one person has over six months of travel agency experience and, therefore, does not meet the criteria for a duly appointed travel agency.

The same travel agent must receive through-schooling and proper job training in order to select the best fare for her client and to know how to inform the client of the rates, regulations and pitfalls of each fare. Again, at the Cal Poly Travel Center, not one person has completed a travel agency training program.

The Student Center should be involved in only providing student travel information, such as where to obtain youth hostels cards, student discount cards, etc. Since the Center is not a legitimate travel agency but continues to handle travel arrangements in which they have no expertise, it would seem that they would bring harm to their clients and definitely impinge the integrity of the travel agency industry.

I feel that Mr. Nester's comments on what the future travel Center can do over what a duly appointed and approved agency can do, are totally unfounded due to his lack of knowledge.

Mary Victorio-Costa, Office Manager, Res. Life Travel

COUPON

$1.00 OFF ANY 2ND Chapter of Aota
Album or Tape
No Limit
at the store with Yawah Music

JAN'S BIBLE BOOKSTORE
873 Higuera St
Phone: 805-543-6146

Bring this Coupon In with you
Offer expires on August 31, 1978

Looking For Housing That's Close to Campus?

Stanen Glen
A STUDENT COMMUNITY

1050 Foothill Blvd. 544-4540
Internship to job

Mary Burden
Summer Staff Writer
Cal Poly internship program has made it possible for students on their way into the "real world." Financial aid for students is available.

Lorna Bevler, 22, a Poly Child Development major, has found a rewarding summer as a counselor at the Juvenile Development Center in San Luis Obispo.

It is all true and it is only a matter of time before Bevler is working there full time.

"It's quite a rewarding job," said Bevler. There are so many children with problems that need someone to listen to for guidance.

The juvenile hall is responsible for any children under the age of two who have run into problems with the police. Such problems may be anything from family problems at home to arson and murder.

According to Bevler, the children also have behavioral problems they are dealt with at juvenile hall.

"We talk with the kids and try to get them to want to go back home. We then encourage the family to seek counseling. This is a cool down period for both the child and the adult."

Poly student averts disaster

The Juvenile Center does not have the resources to provide counseling to these children. The children who are awaiting court hearings are transported down to the juvenile facilities in Santa Barbara.

"We must be ready to transport some kids at all hours of the day or night," said Bevler.

No facilities are available to house the juveniles in San Luis Obispo, although there is an acknowledged need for one.

Bevler, whose concentration is family studies at Cal Poly, is pleased with the internship program requirements.

"I wish to associate with someone experienced," said Bevler that we were required to speak with various children during the day and also participate in private counseling for other individuals. Bevler hopes to continue with the Cambridge House after the end of summer.

"This has been an excellent summer project and I realistically feel that my four years of schooling is finally been put to use. This is the week I will do for my career and I feel very fortunate to have had the opportunity to actually work in my field, while I'm still in school."

"I'm not a hero," insisted Roger Genschel, a Cal Poly physics major. "I'm just a person with technology. Genschel saved two people from a fire that destroyed a house at 275 Pinto St. early on July 31.

A girl calling "Firemen, firemen, come quick" Genschel heard from her house at 1419 Mission St. at 2:00 a.m.

I thought, God, that's a weird name for a city," Genschel said. Instead, he went outside and found the girl wandering in the street.

"I saw the house, the front of it was on fire," Genschel recalled. "I ran across the street and threw the fire alarm at Ramirez School. Then finished back and yelled to bring out anyone inside the house. A man who came to the back door was not sure there were any inside, so he searched the three of them searched part of the house.

"The fire was in the front room," Genschel said. "It had two glass doors. We could see a large body of flames in there. Genschel decided that a person had to be in the room, he could not have survived, so he ran, shouting, to the door.

"We were at the back door when we realized the girl was still in there," Genschel said. "I carried her out. She was on a table and had her feet beneath the smoke. I reached into the smoke and grabbed her ankle and pulled her out the back door.

The fire department arrived a few minutes later. The fire caused $3,000 in damages to the house and its contents, but no one was injured, thanks to Roger Genschel.

SUMMERTIME'S GREAT...

...when you're equipped for it. Come to Hurleys for nearly anything you might need. Whether it be sunglasses, lotions or our popular 8 hour film processing. Be sure to buy and drop by for a weekend's worth.

HURLEY'S pharmacy
896 FOOTHILL
University Square
543-5860

ENJOY, ENJOY...

The Outside Inn
San Luis Obispo
Railroad Ave.

What Better Way To Spend A Warm Summer Night with Your Friends At The OUTSIDE INN. Enjoy One Of Our Delicious Pasta Dinners And A Frosty Cold Beverage Of Your Choice.

Enjoy, Enjoy.
Gov't committee positions open

By Bob Hendrickson

Positions on a wide range of student government committees are open for fall year.

Cheryl Russell, ASI president, announced that a committee of about four will interview students at the beginning of fall quarter in an effort to match interests and abilities to the right committees.

Students government services as a training ground for people who are unsure of their abilities, said Russell, who has been on different committees for three years.

"You learn skills of speaking, writing, reporting, and getting up in front of people and not falling apart. Overall, the point is to let you learn and grow while helping students. It's a good experience no matter what field you go into," she said. "Something you learn about the bureaucratic process, and frustrating," she said. "The wider range of students we get, the more students are represented.

Most committee members are appointed for one academic year, but graduate students may join if they have at least a 2.0 grade point average.

Applications are available in the Activities Planning Center, and the ASI Officers' office, rooms 311 and 311w of the University Union.

Tax credit plans

By John Kister

Summer Staff Writer

A bill which would provide college students tax credits on tuition costs awaits a final decision from Congress, as President Carter has threatened to veto.

The Senate and the House both approved the bill in different clauses. The Senate bill, which passed by a vote of 65 to 34, would provide a tax credit of 30 percent of college tuition and fees, up to a maximum of $320 per student. The House bill, which would be raised to $500 per student on October 1, 1980.

The bill approved by the House earlier would allow a credit of 25 percent of college tuition up to a maximum of $100 in 1979, $200 in 1980, and $300 in 1981. In addition, the House bill credits elementary and secondary school charges by 25%, with a maximum of $100 this year and $150 in 1979.

Either bill, if passed, raises substantial concerns for those who feel wealthy families would benefit from the tax relief, said Jorgensen. If passed, he said, the relief would benefit the well-to-do, and the bill grants tax credits to all college students regardless of need, said Jorgensen.

The president has threatened to veto any tax credit bill on tuition because it would be unconstitutional and too costsy.

Lockers clean-out

All students having lockers and baskets in Crandell Gym or upper P.E. Building locker rooms are reminded to remove personal locks, clothing, towels, and to remove personal locks and items on or before the last day of classes, no later than Friday August 28th.

Failure to do so will result in a fine or a hold on permit to register for future quarters.

Rape discussion

Grant Roots II will host a "Rape Rap," Monday-Aug. 28 at 8 p.m.

A spokesperson from the community aid group said there has been a lot of concern about the recent rapes in San Luis Obispo, and many people were unable to attend the rape discussions at Cal Poly.

Monday's session will feature a guest speaker from the Rape Crisis Center who will discuss ways of preventing rape, and what to do in the event it occurs.

The meeting will take place in the Grant Roots II Inc.

office 711 B Pacific Street. Information call 544-3333.

Energy auditing

A three-person team representing Energy Management Consultants is currently on campus for a three-week period to audit energy consumption in offices, classrooms, labs and other spaces in state-financed buildings.

The campus audit is part of a CRUC contract with Energy Management Consultants to study ten of the system's un-colleges in order to determine and recommend ways in which energy can be conserved.

The team will be looking at lighting, power, mechanicals, and plumbing systems and installing personal responsi-sible for the systems.