Students WOWed in first week

BY CATHY SPEARNAK

When David Copley came to Cal Poly two weeks ago, he didn’t know what it meant to be a "WOWie." But after experiencing the school’s orientation program—Week of Welcome—the 18-year-old animal science major said he is proud to have been a "good sport" (2007-10)

For this year’s WOW program, Greene will be in the Poly theatre. From a large library lawn crowd during performing a magic show this Sunday in Hanging in there...

According to Dr. David Grant, Poly’s associate dean of academic planning, the Trustees told the administration that freshman and sophomore’s tests will continue to be mandated by the Poly administrators. There are some things Holmgren said he would like to see changed about the program.

"My counselor reminded me when she stepped a t m e a n g r e a v e m e n t " he remembered.

Despite the seemingly hardships of surviving WOW, Copley said the program helped him prepare for campus life.

"When WOW ended I was scared of losing my group—but now I think everyone’s a big WOW group," said Copley.

Holmgren and his co-counselor, Berni Brownlee, were two counselors who took that opportunity. The 21-year-old said the sewer tour was his group’s favorite WOW activity.

On the other hand, Harrington. "They mandated it, but they didn’t fund it."

Galerie’s map exhibition is a pleasant surprise

Like an expensive gift wrapped in brown paper, the premier showing in the U.C. Gallery this fall is an unexpected surprise.

The dry title, “What’s in a Map?” may discourage non-map readers. But now it’s like everyone’s a big WOW group," said the enthusiastic freshman.

The display’s beauty lies in its integration of history, Smithsonian Institution than immediately meets the eye.

The Trustees did this in a difficult way," said Harrington, "it would be impractical to take the exam or to enroll in the necessary courses.

"There isn’t any catch-up for students built in."

"It was in the last catalog," said Grant, "but we haven’t implemented it yet. It hasn’t been something that’s sneakied up on us."

Preparing the English placement test, said Grant, did not leave Poly administrators enough time to develop the proficiency exam.

The expectation was that as soon as we got that under way (the placement exam), then we’d pick up this junior-level exam," said Grant.

"The counselors took the opportunity to be involved with me," Holmgren said. He and Brownlee had their share of fun during WOW, Holmgren said he was exhausted after the week. He said he averaged four and a half hours of sleep per night during WOW.

"I don’t like the fact that we have to buy our own sweatshirts. Also, I lost my meat ticket and had to pay $2 to get a new one," said the couple.

Holmgren isn’t the only counselor who lost money during WOW. One counselor who asked her name not be used because she didn’t want to embarrass her WOWies said she lost over $60 entertaining her WOWies.

"These meat tickets don’t provide all their meals, and when we had a few dinners over at my house I was embarrassed to ask for donations," she said.

Writing exam

Test is required

The exam most Cal Poly students have to take to graduate will probably be ready Jan. 17, said English Instructor Dr. John Harrington.

Harrington and others representing Cal Poly’s seven schools and one division are working on a writing proficiency exam that freshmen, sophomores and juniors will need to take and pass before graduating.

Students with at least 90 units but no more than 134 units at the end of summer quarter 1979, have to pass the test to graduate, said Harrington, unless they take junior-level composition or literature courses listed as satisfying proficiency requirements as mandated by the CSUC system’s board of trustees. Students must get a “C” or better in these courses to qualify, said Harrington.

Pesticide Invasion

Cancer-causing amounts of a pesticide called DBCP have been found in at least eight California counties. Meanwhile, Atascadero Assemblywoman Carol Hallett warns against further regulations on pesticide use.

Hallett, at a hearing by the Department of Food and Agriculture Sept. 4, said additional limits on pesticide use in California could spell "disaster" for farmers. She warned the state against "tinkering with the state's food production machine," and said it was wrong to require farmers to register before using pesticides.

The reason, according to the assemblywoman, was because proposed regulations "represent the height of vagueness, ambiguity, uncertainty, duplication and poor draftsmanship."

Regardless of the regulations, Californians need a watchdog to make sure pesticides do not seep into our waters and kill.

DBCP, a chemical banned in California two years ago when scientists linked it to sterility and low sperm counts among male workers in the plant where it was made, turned up in 12 California counties including San Luis Obispo.

A story published in the Los Angeles Times Sept. 24, said, "the longer the workers were exposed to DBCP, the greater was the chance that their ability to father children would be impaired."

An additional consequence to the situation regards the length of time the pesticide lingers in the environment. State experts say the pesticide remains for a long time—and no one knows how long.

To prevent more disaster to our environment, the DFA must know the amount of chemicals the California farmers are dumping on their crops. The largest industry in the state is agriculture and the chaotic results of DBCP exemplify the need of government assistance in patrolling pesticide use.

Obviously, as Hallett said, regulations cannot be vague, uncertain and confusing. But finding hazardous levels of DBCP two years after it was banned in California proves we do need the regulations.

How long can we avoid drinking contaminated water? Locally, the levels were determined to be 33 times as safe as the amount scientists have set as an unsafe amount. In the San Joaquin Valley, though, the DFA has found water with 32 times as much DBCP above the health limit borderline.

And again, who knows how long the pesticide will linger in the California waters?

Disco trouble

Editor's note: The name of the disco was withheld to avoid libel actions.

Editor:

I am a Black female who used to frequent the local disco. Two of the main reasons were because of the clientele, which was not always predominantly Black, and because of the music. Although the name of the disco was not mentioned in my article of August 23, 1979, it is apparent to me.

As the beginning of summer I had heard that the disco was going to change its musical format, as the management was tired of the white female/Black male situation, and they figured if the music was changed not as many Blacks would go there. They were right about that! A friend of mine was working at the disco at the time, and I asked if what I had heard about the white female/Black male situation was true. After hesitating, he conceded that it was true and added that they were thinking about changing the musical format anyway. He then said, "this place is really racist."

Apparently, the management has been upset because of all the racially mixed couples, alleging that the white girls were being harasses and/or bothered by the Black males. Having witnessed this "harassment," it was quite clear to me that these women were anything but bothered.

Personally, if I were being bothered, I wouldn't be walking around for some Black guy to come in and bother me, nor would I turn down a dance with a white guy so I could dance with a Black man that was bothering me. Furthermore, I wouldn't even think of saving them a place at my table where they could really make me hot and bothered!

I am not saying that all white girls have to go to the disco behave in this manner, but there are enough to be noticed. The management has to realize that the main reason these girls were there was because of the large number of Black men there. They must also realize that they cannot change racial preference; these girls are going to be with Black men so matter what.

This is not to say that some women have not been harassed or approached by both Black and white males that don't care to deal with; when a female goes out, being bothered is one of the risks she takes. I've been bothered myself by both white and Black males, and I doubt the management would go through all these changes for me and I wouldn't expect them to do so.

This whole situation is reminiscent of the South. A white woman, in effect, creeps up and the whole white male population rushes to her aid to save her from the big Black man who supposedly is going to force himself on her. What they fail to realize is that, in most cases, the white man neither wants or needs salvation of any kind.

Wow groups spent Monday Sept. 17 in downtown San Luis Obispo as part of a contest for "SLO Days"—put on by the WOW counselors. The contest entailed gathering statistics on downtown businesses. Winners—those who gathered the most accurate information—were given prizes at a WOW dance later that night.

Fathead's progressive jazz

BY LEISA PORCHER

Daily Bander

In a world of touring musicians, San Luis Obispo is just another sprinkling of neon lights along a dark highway—another-—more--another chance to be recognized.

It's an unrelenting life, but musician David "Fathead"

Newman and the three other men that comprise the quartet say they like it. To them, traveling means the time to spread their own particular brand of rhythm and blues, a sound the group described as "fusent and funky.

Newman plays saxophone and flute, David Leon bass, drums are played by Ted

Wasser and Claude Johnson is on piano. The group was a part of the KCRB benefit concert series and they toured on the most recent Thursday night. There were two sessions with a total of 245

jazz fans there to enjoy.

They played some jazzed up popular songs like "I Won't Last a Day Without

You" and some of their original songs. An especially good progressive jazz one was called the "The Dog." It's most impressive was

Johnson on piano. The best way to describe him is

"booo."

All ten fingers, all 88

piano keys and a countless number of sweat beads was swinging when Johnson was on the keyboard.

Johnson, 40 years old, said he had been playing professionally for 25 years.

He grew up in Dallas and says the older musicians took care of him. They made sure he learned what was good and bad music and ever helped him out of a few tricks he had learned to secure. Johnson was adorning

the subject of discjockey music. He called it a comonal commodity, the kind of music

Jimi Hendrix and Fleetwood

Mac play to appeal to jazz which he feels is a true

art form.

Newman was after good music and funk, although not up to all the bomb up he had received. Newman, 24 years old, began playing with Ray Charles in 1974 and is staying with Charles until next year.

Messina: Jammin' and rockin' at the Graduate

BY JIM HENDRY

Daily Entertainment Writer

Without the stage last Sunday night, the scene was all too typical to anyone who has wandered into one of San Luis Obispo's most popular college bars—the Graduate. Crows of Cal Poly students gathered on the dance floor as the rest of the bar patrons found a place on the beer-soaked picnic tables that line the bar.

But what made that night atypical to any of the dozens of last weekends this bar has witnessed was the evening's premier attraction—Jimmy Messina.

State funds

Child center seeks help

BY PIPER PARRY

The Cal Poly Children’s Center submitted a bid Thursday for $12,500 to the state Office of Child Development in response to the recent allocation of $4.5 million for the expansion of child care programs.

The campus child care center request would finance the creation of an infant toddler program to meet the growing demands of families with children two years of age and under in San Luis Obispo.

If granted, the money would fund the program for winter and spring quarters in 1980. The half day program, which would include breakfast and lunch, would be open from 7:30 am to 1:30 pm.

Final decision by the state on the Children’s Center proposal will come in late October, according to Missy Dannenburg, the director of the center and author of its proposal.

The proposed state funded program would augment the current program which services families with 3 to 6 year old children. The center, created in January of 1972, provides care for the children of 18 families of Cal Poly students, faculty and staff.

The state program, which is located in Poly Grove creates a yearly plan for each child based on the level of development established by an ongoing assessment system.

The waiting list for enrollment at the center is long. It sometimes takes close to a year to be accepted because of the demand for child care by Cal Poly students, faculty and staff, according to Dannenburg.

This photograph, taken during the summer quarter, shows these Cal Poly Child Care Center children on a tour of Cal Poly.

These children will have something to make a face about if the campus child care center does not get the funds they need.

Armed with a plethora of obscure historical facts, Dr. Josef A.A. ben-Jochannan, internationally recognized expert on religious and African history, managed to shake up some theories on the history of the Western World in a sitting address to the African Origins of Western Civilization Wednesday evening in Chumash auditorium.

The announcement of a Nigerian native charged the Juda-Christian foundations of Western written history as not only inaccurate, but are rip-offs of more ancient African writings.

The lecture was sponsored by the Cal Poly Educational Opportunity Program under the aegis of Drs. Locksley Geohagan and Donald Cheek—both Cal Poly counselors. Geohagan traveled throughout Africa with ben-Jochannan last summer, studying the African version of written history. He brought his traveling partner to Cal Poly so students would have an opportunity to become less culturally deprived.

Increase in electric, gas bills due by December

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Californians face a $1.4 billion annual increase in their gas and electric bills as a result of higher oil and natural gas costs.

The warning sounded Wednesday by state Public Utilities Commission President John Bryson in urging Californians to be prepared for the massive hikes by December.

The increases average about 51 percent above earlier rates for natural gas and 10 percent for electricity.

Currently the PUC is studying five requests for fuel cost increases totaling $794.9 million for natural-gas and five totaling $635 million for electric rates.

In addition, the PUC will decide soon on its only pending general rate case—a request by Pacific Gas and Electric Co. for $198.7 million more annually in electric rates and $13.8 million in gas costs.

Increases to offset higher fuel costs are normally approved every six months after review.

Bryson said Californians are heavily dependent upon foreign and out-of-state fuel sources and this winter’s costs will reflect a 60 percent crude oil price hike by OPEC.

Also contributing to the hikes are a 22 percent increase for Canadian natural gas and the beginning of federal gas deregulation.

In PG&E’s 48-county service, a typical family of four, with gas heat, had a bill last December of $17.72 for 100 therms of gas and $184.43 for 500 kilowatt hours of electricity.

But by December, he said, the gas bill will likely be up to $37.16 and the electric bill up to $18.43. That’s $45.61 compared with $36.15 a year earlier.

In the Los Angeles area, a family served by Southern California Gas Co. can expect to see a natural gas bill of $26.92 by December, compared with $18.09 a year earlier.

The electric bill from Southern California Edison would be $26.69, up from $23.06.

A similar family served by San Diego Gas and Electric Co. would have an electric bill of $31.86 in December, up from $20.90.

The increases totaling $794.9 million for natural gas and $56 million for electric rates are needed to offset a $638 million increase in electric rates and 584 million for electric rates.

Check into Bank of America. Our College Plan is made for students.

Let's begin at the beginning.
The last thing every student needs is a no-nonsense checking account. And in that category, our College Plan Checking Account is pretty tough to beat.

For just $1 a month for the nine-month school year, you get unlimited checkwriting, with no minimum balance required. There's no service charge at all for June, July, August, or for any month you maintain at least a $300 minimum balance. You get our Timesaver Statement every month. And your account stays open through the summer, even with a zero balance, saving you the trouble of having to close it at the end of the school year, and re-open it in the fall. Complimentary personalized regular checks are available, or premium checks may be purchased.

To shed a little more light on the subject, all our branches also offer an array of free Consumer Information Reports. Including "A Guide to Checks and Checking," which explains what you need to know about cashing and depositing checks, holds and stop-payment procedures.

Now, that's not all the bank you'll ever need. And it's certainly not all the bank we offer. But it does make for a good start.

We also offer a wide variety of other banking services you might find useful, both in school and after. So why not check in with us. You may never have to check anywhere else.

eirih, ben-Jochannan hardly looked the part of a scholar who has written over 20 books and lectured in major universities around the world. Yet, he delivered his talk almost free of notes and was able to list names and dates with the ease of a schoolboy reciting his ABC's.

Even the classical Greeks did not escape charges of plagiarism by ben-Jochannan. "Greek authors are not the authors of philosophy," he said. "They all came to Egypt, Ethiopia and Nubia to learn philosophy. I guess they were stealing it from us."

"The man whose responsibility it was to stop garbage disposal is interacting with students as head of the Home Economics department has been named associate dean of the School of Human Development and Education.

Dr. Harry J. Busselen, 42, will work with Dean Carl C. Cummins in administering the five departments, six master's degree programs, and three master's degree programs as the new associate dean. The school has approximately 2500 undergraduate and graduate students.

Busselen estimates 80 percent of the students in the School of Human Development and Education are women—the largest percentage of female students in the university. But, Busselen expects the percentage of women will no longer be stereotyped by sex.

"There will be changes all over in major fields," he said. "As a whole, the changes will be as great as anywhere else."

Busselen will coordinate the finance and program curriculum of the school. Most importantly, Busselen said, he will deal with students who are having problems with academics and disabilities.

"I am really an extension of the dean, rather than an independent agent," he explained.

A lot of time is spent gathering background information on students and their problems for Dean Cummins to make a final decision.

"I don't just throw a pair of dice to decide what to do," he said. "I go out and confer with the heads of other departments to gather more information before making a decision."

Busselen went into home economics for the purpose of higher education. He already had a business degree and a master's degree in anthropology.

"Some people go into a major for the name," he said. "For instance, people go into engineering to be called an engineer, but I didn't go into home economics to be called a home economist."

Before studying home economics at Florida State University, Busselen was a professor of sociology at Southern Oregon College. The author of several professional papers published in national journals, Busselen has participated in conferences on home economics, family relations, gerontology, and education.

"I'm a subject matter specialist in the area of child development," Busselen said. "I couldn't tell you, since I'd probably buy frozen anyway.

Busselen succeeds Dr. Mary Lou White, who had been on the job for two years.
Brown denies opposing nukes

SACRAMENTO (AP) - Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. says he never promised a group of union leaders that he would drop his opposition to the Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant.

The Democratic governor's comments Wednesday directly contradicted statements by Dean Cofer, business manager of Electrical Workers Local 1245 in Walnut Creek, and Cofer's assistant, Meron Walters.

But Cofer and Walters stood by their account of a three-hour private meeting Aug. 21 in the governor's office in which they said Brown promised he would not try to prevent the opening of the $1.6 billion PG&E plant near San Luis Obispo.

"That's not true," Brown said of Cofer's remarks, adding that his legal affairs secretary, Tony Kline, "is actively preparing the legal papers" to try to stop the opening of Diablo Canyon.

Guardsmen seize tritium

TUCSON, Ariz. (AP) - Acting on Gov. Bruce Babbit's orders, National Guardsmen have entered the American Atomic Corp. plant and seized radioactive tritium in an action the company called "absolutely crazy."

The company said Babbit's order for guardsmen to pack and remove the radioactive substance could endanger Tucson residents.

The plant, which used tritium to make luminous watch dials and signs, was shut down in June after over $300,000 worth of food intended for school children was found to be exposed to radiation.

Deepsea mining encouraged

LOS ANGELES (AP) - The United States should act now to reduce its dependence of imported minerals by promoting deepsea mining, says Hawaiian Sen. Spark Matsunaga.

The Democratic senator predicted Congress would soon pass the Deep Sea Mineral Resources Act to encourage commercial investment in deepsea mining operations. He said the act would "protect American companies who have the initiative and commitment to embark on major investments leading to the harvesting and processing of strategic deep ocean minerals."

The offshore oil drilling industry would help the nation's balance of payments problem and provide thousands of new jobs domestically, primarily in its home state.

Student hostages released

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (AP) - A student armed with a pistol and threatening to kill himself kept about 50 fellow students at bay for about an hour Thursday in a classroom at Knoxville Business College before they were safely evacuated, police said.

Police dispatcher Bruce Dyer said two police negotiators were in the third-floor room trying to persuade the unidentified man to surrender, but he still held the gun to his head. There were no reports of shots being fired.

The three-story school with a flagstone facade is directly across from the Knoxville News-Sentinel, an afternoon newspaper, in the city's downtown area.

City editor Larry Jackson said the gunman was ready at one point to surrender, but when he saw a television cameraman outside a window, Jackson said, he put the pistol back to his head and said he was ashamed and didn't want his picture taken.

Western airlines looks smart

LOS ANGELES (AP) - Western Airlines, still smarting from the Civil Aeronautics Board's denial of its proposed merger with Continental, now has its eyes on Europe.

WAL President Dominic Renda says the Los Angeles-based carrier is seeking new routes to London and finalizing plans to drop several money-losing cities in South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and Idaho.

"The merger would have supplied the answer to our belief that there's got to be growth in our system," the 65-year-old Renda said. "Now that we're looking at going it alone we want to place particular emphasis on expanding into the European market, with London having a high priority."

"We have a choice of going one of two ways—the European or Pacific markets," he said. "We think the Pacific markets are being pretty well served and we think the European markets—London and beyond—present a better opportunity."

Pope's plea for peace

VATICAN CITY - Pope John Paul II said Thursday "permanence and effective peace will be a theme of his upcoming Irish-U.S. tour. He also issued guidelines aimed at solving a boundary dispute between Argentina and Chile.

The 59-year-old pope, who leaves Saturday on his third international voyage in the first year of his pontificate, has characterized the Irish leg of his trip as a "pilgrimage of peace and reconciliation."

John Paul, working as a mediate between the predominantly Roman Catholic nations of Chile and Argentina, summoned delegates from those countries and told them he was "on the eve of starting a trip in which there will be no lack of chances to proclaim the interests of the Holy See for peace and its firm will of contributing to its effective and permanent consolidation."

Defections cancel symphony

MOSCOW (AP) - Guuskwiet, the Soviet concert-scheduling agency, said Thursday an American tour by the Moscow State Symphony orchestra canceled and gave no reason. Western diplomats linked the cancellation to recent defections by five prominent Soviet performers.

The diplomats said the Soviets were not convinced sufficient security would be provided for the orchestra during the tour, but would not say if security meant protection for the 17-member orchestra or assurances musicians would not be granted asylum should they seek to defec.

Booter ten Bosch leads ten mates

BY BOB BERGER

From the dirt-track sidelines of the Cal Poly Soccer team practice field, the constant hails sounds like the rumble of distant thunder. At first glance, Rich ten Bosch hardly seems like one of the team's big guns. But coach Wolfgang Gartner considers ten Bosch one of his best players. The 19-year-old Agricultural Engineering major has been a starting mid-fielder for Poly for two years. Altogether ten Bosch has played soccer for eight years on various youth league teams and in high school in Fremont, California—his home town. “I’ve got a lot of confidence in myself, but I know I have to work hard,” said ten Bosch. “It’s taken a lot of time. It took a lot of years, but its been paying off.”

After a heart-breaking loss to perennial powerhouse U.C. Santa Barbara and a sound thrashing of Cal State Sonoma, ten Bosch feels that the game against defending league champs, Chapman College will be a good test. In the Santa Barbara game ten Bosch scored the tying goal that sent the game into overtime. “We should have won that game,” said ten Bosch. “It was just a few costly mistakes that we can’t afford to make later on in the season.”

The team has been working hard in preparation for the Chapman game. “We’ve got our problems,” said ten Bosch, “but we’ve been working hard at ironing them out.”

“Chapman is a physical team, but they’ve got good players,” ten Bosch said. “They recruit and we don’t.”

Last year, ten Bosch got thrown out of the game against Chapman. He said he feels that he has matured enough as a player so there will be no repeat performance. “We’re playing better now,” said ten Bosch. “You never know he’s there, but it always seems like you’re getting a pass from him.”

Rich ten Bosch will need a net around his feet to hold him back from an all out effort tonight against Chapman College. The Cal Poly soccer team plays Chapman, last years league champs, in Mustang Stadium at 7 p.m.

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—If you believe the “Woolly Bear,” a fat caterpillar whose fur coat portends the winter weather ahead, better be braced for a rough one.

“A lot of misery with very little letup,” is the way Herbert R. Krone, king of the Woolly Bear fur readers, summed it up Wednesday from a hospital bed in the living room of his home here. Krone, 85, has been bedridden for more than a year. So his wife. Martha, and some relatives living nearby fetched him a plate of the hairy wigglers to study.

“These Woolly Bears,” said Krone, “are as black as your hat from one end to the other. I don’t believe I’ve ever seen them that black. That kind of color means wind, cold, sleet, snow...

Skill takes the place of violence

BY GREGOR ROBIN

It is not unusual in the course of a soccer game to see a player writhing in pain on the field after he suffers a head-on collision with the opposition.

Since protection for soccer players consists of a couple of knee pads and an athletic supporter, coach of the Mustang soccer team, Wolfgang Gartner, is teaching his team a skilled, controlled style of play instead of brutality and violence.

"Soccer should center around movement of the ball," Gartner said. "We will use the European style of play which is very skilled and controlled. It isn't as physical as the English style. Movement and skill are what we stress."

Gartner, a 1969 graduate of San Luis Obispo High School, is a member of the Sacramento Gold professional soccer team of the American Soccer League. He has implemented new offenses and defenses tailored to this style.

The first year coach and his assistant, Terry Mott, hope to turn around their 1-2 schedule tonight when they play Chapman College at 7:00 in Mustang Stadium.

Assistant coach Mott said he thinks the team can gel in the winning lane when they learn the new offenses and defenses.

The team as it lines up from goalie to the offensive front:

Ward Garrett
Manny Magana
Alex Crozier
Randy Cutting
Doug Shaw
Rich Ten Bosch
Jaime Sacucedo
Jeff Brown
John Becker
Steve Strohl

A goal is scored over Ward Garrett in a practice session on the lower field. Practices have been stressing skill and control in movement of the ball.
The Cal Poly cross country team is readying for a 10,000 meter cross country run this weekend at the Fresno State Invitational. The team ran the City to Port Run—from the Cigar Factory to Olde Port Inn—last weekend, but coach Steve Miller thinks the 11.3 mile run was not a true test of his runners. Miller also told the team to use the City to Port Run as a race. The Fresno to Port Run as a workout, State Invitational will be although most of his runners their real test. Miller said.

Women netters go to courts

Sonja Murray, coach of the women's tennis team is on the lookout for girls interested in trying out for the team. "I've had 22 girls out so far but any other girls interested should contact me in room 210 in the PE building," she said Wednesday. "Round-robin play will continue through fall quarter. From the scores accumulated, the team will be chosen."

Stacy Craig will return as the number one player on the team, said Murray. "I think she learned a lot about herself last season and it's going to be a successful season for her. Last season was a tough season and it gets tougher every year in this conference."

The learn will officially start tryouts on Monday. They will be from three to five in the afternoon.

President Jon Bern, coach of the men's tennis team is looking for boys interested in trying out for the team. "If you have or are about to receive a degree in engineering or computer science, you should contact us on campus at your Placement Office. SLO bike race may break 40 mph

BY ANDREW JOWERS

Daily Times Writer

Some of the top cyclists in the country will speed through downtown San Luis Obispo this Sunday competing in the seventh annual Tour of the Central Coast. So if you are near the Mission Mall, ride slowly—speeds may exceed 40 mph.

The race—sponsored by San Luis Obispo Bicycle Club, Inc.—is the third and final stage in the “two-day event. The first two races are on Saturday.

“This country is ideal for these races because of the climate, the empty country roads and Cal Poly provides a large potential audience,” said Robert Alice, the main organizer of the tour. He said Robert Alice, the main organizer of the tour. He helped raise the $3,500 necessary to put on the race, of which $2,000 is prize money.

The event is designed to test different aspects of cycling skills: speed, endurance, head and team strategy.

The race will go through the streets of the city and observers are warned to stay clear of the speeding bikes.

Starting at Lopez Drive and Orcutt Road, near Lopez Lake, at 9 a.m. Saturday, the first race is on a steep 7.3 mile course.

Stage two is 80 miles of rolling hills. The starting time is 1:30 p.m. Sunday, on the corner of Chorro and Higuera. Emphasizing speed, nimble bike handling and explosive sprinting power, the 42 mile, 70-lap race demands a cool head and team strategy.

“Team tactics usually determine the winner,” said Alice.
