Rape crisis line expands services

BY LOREN SCHNEIDERMAN

What began as simply a rape emergency center is now the San Luis Obispo Rape Crisis Center, a 24-hour help center located at 550 Footbowl Blvd.

The Rape Crisis Center provides emergency assistance, counseling and housing for sexual assault victims throughout San Luis Obispo County.

Mary Raetz is the director of the center, which employs ten trained volunteer counselors. These counselors also act as record keeping assistants.

The Rape Crisis Center is funded by a $13,000 grant of the California Department of Social Services. Raetz said that this money pays for the center's rent and the salary of the sole clerical employee.

Tahoe conference

One hundred and five dollars may seem like a drop in the near-million-dollar ASI bucket. Unfortunately 20 such drops total over $2,000 and were collectively taken from Cal Poly students to pay for a weekend seminar.

Mustang Daily reported Tuesday, Oct. 30, that 10 students and two staff members from the University Union Board of Governors, and five students and three staffers from the ASI Program Board will attend a conference in Lake Tahoe this weekend. Students are picking up the $105 per person tab.

Holley Smith, advisor to the Program Board, said Tuesday the students will benefit from the conference. The event will provide them with invaluable knowledge and experience in dealing with programs, she said.

Undoubtedly, it will.

Nick Forestiere, chairman of the Finance Board, said ASI budgeted the Program Board for, at most, eight people to attend the conference. Advisor Smith said the funds for the additional five riders will be taken from the Program Board reserve fund.

Reserve funds, by definition, can be used for whatever is stipulated by the organization. The Program Board, by using its funds, sidesteps the wishes of ASI—that the group only send eight people to Tahoe.

Students seem to have lost direct control. Just because a campus organization has build a reserve does not mean it should have unlimited say over how that money is spent any more than would city council if extra funds were found.

Also, because ASI distributes student money to campus organizations, it has the right to know how and why reserve funds are used.

Forestiere said this is only the tip of the iceberg. He said ASI has never received a breakdown of reserve fund expenditures by any campus club or organization. Such quarterly breakdowns were mandated by a Student Senate Bill passed two years ago. Forestiere said he hopes a memorandum sent to campus organizations recently will rectify the situation. We applaud the chairman’s efforts and hope his Proposition 13 fever spreads to other ASI members.

Crude realities

Editor:

I am writing a rebuttal to the article Pork Prison Loop reprinted in your Oct. 25 issue.

I was shocked by the naive attitude of the author. But more than shocked, quite angry, because sadly enough this attitude prevails among a large majority of Cal Poly students. Not to say that I was never naive about the realities of our world, because I was. I lived in a world untouched by crime. Everything had happened to “someone else.” Some make-believe people were being killed, raped, etc., in some other world. Mine was never touched by that.

The author made the comment, “Who wants to talk about something so distant from our lives?” Nothing could be farther from the truth. The fact is that no matter how unblemished the town, the crime is still there—it just isn’t brought to the surface.

But it is a reality for me and two of my closest friends. I was one of three Cal Poly women who were held hostage for nine hours by John House, an escapee from the California Men’s colony.

The naive attitude continues to prevail and I have gotten to the point where I want to scream. Wake-up people! Reality is here, not somewhere else.

The author went on to describe his visit to the Men’s Colony and the compassion he felt for his guide, a young man sentenced to 22 years in prison for murder. I wonder if the author would feel the same compassion if his girlfriend had been raped or murdered by this man? I wonder how many of you would feel compassion for a man who had bound and tortured two innocent women and described to them in detail how he would brutally maim their bodies and genitals, and then kill them?

I wonder if the same compassion would be felt if one of those three women was your friend? Or if you had been one of those three? I am one of those women and many of you reading this are my friends—but you did not know this happened to me.

Further compassion was expressed for the long-suffering the young man would have to serve for murdering someone. The question was asked, “Is it right, though, to put this guy away and change his life so violently that when he does get out at 46, he will probably be more harmful to society than he was before?”

What about the victims and friends of the family? Aren’t their lives changed wonderfully? John House got 19 years for what he did. But how many years did we get sentenced to? How long will we have to live with that night of terror—and remember it again and again? We’re prisoners just the same—living time for a crime we did not commit. Our only crime was being victims to an animal.

Open your eyes, people.

I am not trying to paint an ugly picture of reality so that you will live in fear. I am just trying to say be aware, please. It does happen to people like you and me—and not in some far-off world.

Editors’ note: the name of the writer is being withheld due to the nature of the crime.

Pork prison loop

Editor:

Gregor Robin’s “Pork Prison Loop” editorial last Thursday, which dealt with the sad and brutal irony of our prison system, really hit home.

Too many of us refuse to give thought to the wretched hypocrisy of this country’s “correctional” institutions. We turn our backs on the fact that often within hours after someone is admitted (to be “rehabilitated”) into these crime factories, they are gang-raped, beaten and demoralized.

We turn our backs on the facts that 75 percent of inmates parole are back in prison within five years.

For those of you interested in learning a little about the horrendous, less-publicized facts of prison life, read “Terror in the Prison” by Weisz and Frier. These two penologists reveal very graphically the systematic corruption that exists within our tax-supported “correctional” institutions.

No doubt we should keep the true-hearted people locked up, away from society. But it is the abominable way the system is organized that bothers me. It serves no justice in its judges, callous and impersonal officers transformed as easily into killers.

You’re right, Gregor—we did make them.

DC-10 crash in Mexico kills 63

MEXICO CITY (AP)—A Western Airlines DC-10 jetliner inbound from Los Angeles with 88 or 89 persons aboard landed on a closed-for-repairs runway at fog-shrouded Mexico City airport today and crashed, killing at least 63 persons, officials said.

The plane plowed into two airport buildings and burst apart into hundreds of pieces. A survivor said he thought the plane may have also hit a house before landing.

The U.S. consul said 19 survivors, all injured, were taken to three hospitals. The fate of the others was not known. Nor was it known how many Americans were aboard. Many of the names were Hispanic.

In New York, ABC said Ken Lucoff, 31, one of its news producers, was killed in the crash. He was en route to El Salvador to cover the rioting there.

Crew member Eduard Valencia walked out of the crash with minor injuries.

A Mexican aviation official said the plane touched down on a runway that was closed for repairs and that it struck a parked truck and killed its driver.

Red Cross and other officials said 63 bodies had been recovered from the wreckage.

Sheriffs deputy Douglas Tiffany confirmed that a group of Indians had moved on to the site 30 miles west of Santa Barbara about 5 a.m.

Fraternity throws Halloween party at Jespersen

With the help of Lambda Chi Alpha fraternity members, the handicapped children at Chris Jespersen School all took home a jack-o-lantern for Halloween.

"Mainly we just have a good time with the kids," said fraternity member Steve Troehler. "It's more rewarding than a beer party."

Ghosts, clowns, cowboys and a variety of other costumed children—many in wheelchairs—helped to carve the more than 50 pumpkins donated from the Cal Poly Crop Science Department.

The children ate cookies, drank apple cider and gave directions on how they wanted their pumpkins to be cut to the 20 or so fraternity members and little sisters.

Lambda Chi Alpha wants to be involved in helping the community, said Vice President Bob Shriner. The fraternity has been active at Cal Poly for about a year and a half.

Besides this second annual Halloween party for the handicapped, the fraternity has sponsored two chicken barbeques for the March of Dimes, a tennis marathon to help cancer, and a blood drive.

Shriner said the party was not only for the school children but for all the members working at the party.

"It makes you appreciate what you have," he said.

There is a current movement to involve handicapped children more with non-handicapped people, said Diana Schroeder, a teacher at Chris Jespersen School. Before the party, the children attended a costume parade at Pacheco Elementary School next door.

Schroeder said that the 40 to 50 people, ages three to 21, attending the school have classes in daily living skills, self-help programs, and academic subjects.

"We enjoy holidays," said Schroeder, dressed as an exotic bird with feathers and yarn and purple eyelashes on her glasses.

Snoopy and Woodstock made a guest appearance at the party and handed out balloons to the children who quickly surrounded them. "I love Snoopy," whispered one girl standing next to a costume that looked like a giant dog.

Shriner said the fraternity hopes to continue such Halloween parties for the handicapped.

ROTC: Pinnacles a peak experience

BY DOUG HUCKINS

Hiking, nature study and photography were on the agenda of a campus group's camping trip to Pinnacles National Monument last weekend.

Army ROTC cadets and orienteering class members traveled to the Pinnacles Saturday morning and returned Sunday afternoon. The outing was the second adventure day scheduled this fall by the military science department.

The park, about 34 miles south of Hollister, can be reached from the south through King City. The west entrance from U.S. 101 at Salinas is not a through road.

According to Matt Gam, a National Park Service ranger who has been at the park for two years, the park is predominantly a weekend use area.

Although people visit the park year-round, Gam said the ideal time is during April and May when winter rains have turned the landscape green and wildflowers are in bloom. Wildlife is also most abundant at that time of year.

Hiking and rock climbing are the most popular kinds of physical recreation in the park. Climbing registration isn't required, but those planning to attempt difficult climbs in remote areas should check with a ranger before and after the climb.

Hikers should stay on established trails and avoid crossing the many switchbacks. That practice encourages erosion during the rainy season and can also offer treacherous footing.

Visitors must walk the many trails that face the monument to really see the area.

Nine trails vary in length from the .7-mile Moss Spring trail, which originates at the east entrance visitor center, to the 5.5-mile Loop trail which goes right along the eastern boundary of the park. Climbing registration is required for the Loop trail.

According to Gam, a popular trail that allows hikers to view most areas of the park in the High Peaks area.

Visitors start the 10-mile route on the Juniper Canyon trail at Chaparral campground, take the High Peaks trail at Scout Peak and return along the Balconies trail. The Balconies Caves, which aren't as extensive as the Bear Gulch Caves, are along the return route.

Conservation

BY DOUG HUCKINS

Daily Gusher Staff

From time to time, bits and pieces of information relevant to conservation amount to more than the annual budget of some states, yet the amount is so large it may be difficult to put into perspective. Broken down into smaller figures, the amounts may be easier to relate to.

For example: An hour's pay from a whaling ship earns $5,083.40 for conservation.

In 1976, 3,000 sport whalers each paid $1,370,000. The Dallas Cowboys won the 1978 Super Bowl, sportsmen pay $57,060 for conservation.

When the Int'l. Whaling Commission met in July, there were mixed results for the world's whales. Some good results were a limited quota was increased by about 1,200 or 4%. The quota was reduced by 10% from 1980.

W.C. Andrews, a biologist with tough hides, and young hearts backed a ramp into a natural water tank in the Mojave Desert near the east Chocolate Mountains of Imperial County. Mountain bigmen frequently drowned while trying to get a drink of water in a 12-foot deep basin that had no escape. The two men flew a helicopter, used a jackhammer and an air compressor to help do the job. Funds for the project were partially provided by five money from fish and game violations in that country.

There is a feeling in Washington that gun registration would be so more effective than the registration of 100 lawyers. For example, the licensing department lost track of some 217,000 vehicles last year. After reissuing the figures there, there have been almost 3.5 million registrations. Yet, there were 216,942 missing autos. The declaration of some of the states, yet that amount is how much money is set aside to buy whale products from whalers who ignore the IWC quotas. The quota was reduced by about 10% from 1980.

If something as large as a car can be lost, how can they keep track of a gun?—$500 million dollars is more than the annual budget of some states, yet that amount is how much money is set aside to buy whale products from whalers who ignore the IWC quotas. The quota was reduced by about 10% from 1980.

Water polo players dive into the last game of the year

BY KAREN LUDLOW

Judo club holds a "fast speed"

Cal Poly's water polo team added 2 victories to its win column last weekend by stopping Loyola University, 2-0, and taking a forfeit from De Anza College. The team will end the 1979 season. The home game against Fresno State will complete the water polo careers for four seniors, Paul Beldon, Skip Neville, Jeff Rhodes, and Matt White, who have used up their four years of athletic eligibility.

Jeff Rhodes transferred here from a junior college, but the other three have seen over the past years. According to Neville the team is not getting the strong shooters they once had. He said that they have accurate shooters, but not too many who can pound the ball in.

"We've lost a lot of talented players, and it all relates back to the coaching," Rhodes said. "How can we get the new players here when we didn't even know who the coach was going to be?"

Water polo has also lost support from Cal Poly over the years. Rhodes said. This year, team members are paying for their expenses out of their own pocket. The team does not have team shirts, or sweats. The school however, does give them five new water polo balls a year.

Judo club flips out

BY KAREN LUDLOW

Judo Club Club

As she watched Cal Poly's water polo team on Tuesday night, Coach Kathy Carlisle was impressed with the displays of stamina her athletes exhibited.

Club Director Freddy Flores also promoted the club a "fine bunch of athletes that is progressing at a fast speed."

Flores, a world class judo fighter himself, said the inner club matches were a preview of the season's matches to come.

The results of the matches for the lighter weight division were: first place John Smith, second place Will Taylor, placing third place Charles Brown. For the heavyweight division, first place went to Frank Olivera, second place was Eric Kachadorian and third was Dennis T. M. The overall champion was John Smith. In the girls division Holly Williams placed first and Vicky Armstrong and Tammy Cooper tied for second.

Flores said the team is progressing at such a fast rate that right of the club members will be participating in the AAU tournaments November 9 and 10 in Las Vegas. There will be another inner club match, on December 4 and it is open to the public.

"It's hard to get motivated when you have so many coaches," Beldon said. "It will really help next year's team knowing that Jim will be here."

The coaches aren't the only changes that the players have seen over the past years. According to Neville the team is not getting the strong shooters they once had. He said that they have accurate shooters, but not too many who can pound the ball in.

"We've lost a lot of talented players, and it all relates back to the coaching," Rhodes said. "How can we get the new players here when we didn't even know who the coach was going to be?"

Water polo has also lost support from Cal Poly over the years. Rhodes said. This year, team members are paying for their expenses out of their own pocket. The team does not have team shirts, or sweats. The school however, does give them five new water polo balls a year.

"When you have played a game for that long a time, it's hard to give up," Rhodes said.
