WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter, citing a "grave threat" to Middle East oil supplies, vowed Wednesday night that any Soviet effort to seize control of the Persian Gulf region "will be repelled by use of any means necessary."

In a nationally broadcast State of the Union address to a joint session of Congress, Carter also announced that he wants to "begin registration" of draft-age youths, but expressed hope that "it will not be necessary to reimpose the draft."

In an overture to Islamic nations in the vital oil producing Persian Gulf region, the president said he hoped "to shape a cooperative security framework that respects differing values and religious beliefs, yet enhances the independence, security and prosperity of all."

Declaring that "the state of our union depends on the state of the world," Carter said the seizure of American hostages in Iran and Soviet intervention in Afghanistan confront the United States with a broad challenge that includes military force.

Pressing for "further strengthening political and military ties with other nations," around the Persian Gulf, Carter said: "We believe that the two superpowers must pay a concrete price for the response in Afghanistan will be costly to both men and women."

"Carter may use draft against Soviets" is the title of the article. The article discusses Carter's announcement of a proposal to begin registration of draft-age youths, but hopes that it will not be necessary to reimpose the draft. The article also mentions the seizure of American hostages in Iran and the Soviet intervention in Afghanistan.
Our intentions

A puppy learns with a slap on the nose. Its owner cannot teach the dog not to do wrong by stroking it admiringly. If the pet fails, the master should punish it until the animal gets it right. A confused dog is one who gnaws on the couch, gets whipped for his mischievement and soon after, receives a loving embrace. The puppy will chew furniture until the owner drills his intent into the dog's head.

Soviet imperialism in Afghanistan needs a symbolic "slap on the nose."

Americans disfavor the U.S.S.R. spilling into foreign Middle East countries and President Carter said he will show the Soviets his anger. The Soviets must know our feelings concerning their invasion and takeover or Afghanistan, Carter said.

That requires steps to cut off relations—even peaceful ones if we have to. Carter said the U.S. will back Pakistan if U.S.S.R. invades that country.

Grain embargos have begun and now the President is asking participating countries to boycott the Moscow Olympics. But before we plead to gain external support, domestic factions have to agree to back our president.

Carter needs patriotic unity before the Russians realize our intentions. Like a puppy, the U.S.S.R. won't realize our intentions unless we implement a full embargo and Olympic boycott.

Farmers chip in whenever we want to halt agricultural exports. They lose money, but when called upon, farmers hop on the bandwagon. For once, we need athletes to give.

Athletes are the sole beneficiaries of Olympic participation. They feel proud to be in the Olympics. They rightly deserve to feel honored with an achievement such as qualifying or winning a gold medal in these games.

A boycott, however, will benefit all of us. Diplomatically, a united stand against the Soviets has to be taken—to be taken by all Americans and not only farmers.

If the President cannot gain a boycott support abroad, let's at least have support from within. We cannot implement an embargo and allow athletes go to Moscow at the same time.

Like teaching an animal, the U.S. must punish in full. If athletes choose to participate at Moscow, the Soviets will not realize our seriousness. It becomes an exercise in futility.

Surely he jests

Why does President Baker persistently refuse to publicly give his opinion on the licensing of the Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant? In his opening statements at the pre-nuclear symposium last quarter which featured Edward Teller, Baker said merely that both sides of the nuclear question should be carefully considered.

True, but hardly inspiring.

Then, on Jan. 11, in his first question-and-answer open forum, Baker repeated his advice and shrugged off the issue with a somewhat casual, "It's pretty." Dubious aesthetic judgements aside, this reply fails to consider the far from pretty ecological changes the Diablo complex could cause or the sincere anxiety felt by those opposed to it.

Of course, we all know Baker is not qualified to make an expert assessment of the pros and cons of a nuclear plant being licensed anywhere, let alone in our own backyard. But as president of a university so uncommonly close-knit with the community, he should make his views known.

Author Andrew Jowers is a senior journalism major and Mustang Daily reporter.

Cal Poly and the city of San Luis Obispo are financially and socially fused and both will experience the results of Diablo. As president, Baker has a responsibility not only to the students, but to the public as well. Whether he says yes or no we should know how he feels.

Baker said the university should not take sides. Why not? The plant will affect Cal Poly as much as it would any community in the area. So far this campus has had little political influence in the county or city—many students don't vote.

It's our right to voice support or opposition to Diablo. Perhaps Cal Poly is called "the jewel" of the CSUC system because of our lazy indifference or unwillingness to make waves is gladly taken for a preoccupation with good academic marks.

Much of Baker's work is public relations and fund raising. If Baker thinks stating his opinion on a delicate issue will alienate a potential benefactor, he should at least have the public's fortitude to give that as his reason for skipping the issue.

His "it's pretty" remark might have been a whopping under pressure and he may fear his opinion will be taken as representative of everyone on campus. But Diablo is a big issue—one which the vague and uncommitted will be ignored, and one not to be treated casually.

Daily policy

The policy of Mustang Daily regarding letters and submitted material such as letters and press releases outside of the newspaper staff is as follows:

Letters should be submitted to the Mustang Daily office in Graphic Arts building 226, 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. weekdays. Letters for length, style, and libel. Letters should be kept as brief as possible. Inordinately long letters will not be published. All letters submitted will be answered. Mustang Daily encourages reader comments on news stories, opinions, and editorials.
Parking

From page 1 of the signs," said Vilk. "They think that the permit required is the same one they have been using from the university. Also, there was no information given out at registration or in the newspaper to students about the new regulations.

"We never thought that there would be this confusion over permits," said Doug Gerard, executive director of Cal Poly. "I have talked to the city and they didn't think either," said Gerard.

The parking permit students buy on campus pertains only to university parking lots he emphasized.

Gerard said, "Surprisingly, we have not had too many complaints about the resident-only parking area." Vilk said some students have complained to her. "This is difficult, we can do it," she explained. "I tell students to go to court and talk to the judge about it.

"Actually, students get a break even when they do receive a ticket. Ticket fines have gone up from $6 to $10, but the new fines will not be enforced until the old tickets have been added.

To help solve the parking problem, Gerard's office, the Facilities Planning Center, is encouraging parking alternative transportation.

"We have purchased new bike racks, developed bike lanes, and have substituted the city bus system," said Gerard.

"The answer is not more parking lots," he said. "Ninety-nine percent of the time there are vacant parking spaces on the campus. It is not right next to the academic core but they are out there."

Gerard said the parking lots across the street from Yosemite Hall usually has some vacant spaces.

According to a study done by Gerard's office, only 200 cars have been affected by the new residential restriction zone.

The zone exists on a trial basis. No more zones will be created until the city has completed a study on the effects of having residential preferred parking, according to Gerard.

Residents are completely happy with the new restrictions. "It doesn't look like a used car lot anymore," said Duba Gott.

"It is wonderful. There have been so many times we haven't been able to get out of our driveway," said E.J. Block, who lives on Kentucky Street. "Everybody is happy about it. I just wish they didn't charge so much to park on campus," she said. C.T. Haskell said it has been very nice since the beginning of January.

There have been no problems, said Haskell, a math professor at Cal Poly. "It just seems as if the cars have moved further down the block.

"The people who used to park in the restricted zone have just moved further out," said Bill Scheibe, an industrial technology major.

"It really bums me out right by my apartment and there is no place for me to park," he said.

"Apartment dwellers Mary Thonet said, "There isn't enough parking space in my complex," said Mary,

"so none of us have to park in the street. If you come back in the afternoon there is no parking and it is getting to be a hassle. I am parking my car at my sister's place now."

Market strike nearing settlement

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Both sides in the strike against some San Francisco Bay area supermarkets prepared Wednesday for a meeting with federal mediators as the dispute moved into its fourth day.

A lockout of clerks at four supermarket chains which were not being arbitrated went into effect Wednesday.

Curb asks for disaster relief

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Lt. Gov. Mike Curb said Wednesday he will ask President Carter to declare portions of three counties a disaster area as a result of the worst San Joaquin River delta flooding in 42 years.

Curb signed a proclamation declaring that a "state of emergency" exists in flooded portions of Contra Costa, Sacramento and San Joaquin counties, clearing the way for the disaster area request later this week.

The lieutenant governor, who acted because Gov. Edmund Brown Jr. was out of the state, said the emergency was a "result of severe flooding due to torrential rains."

Diablo security under scrutiny

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—An attorney who claims security at Diablo Canyon Nuclear Power Plant is inadequate argued Wednesday that he was wrongfully denied a plant tour by the Atomic Safety and Licensing Board.

Andrew Baldwin, representing Mothers for Peace, a group opposing the plant, told the three-member Atomic Safety and Licensing Appeal Board that, under Nuclear Regulatory Commission rules, he was qualified to tour the plant with Pacific Gas & Electric officials in February 1979.

Baldwin said he notified the licensing board that he planned to appear at a hearing shortly before the tour and testify "whether the security plan will work—and I don't believe it will—and whether the security plan contains aspects that are illegal or unconstitutional."

Reading from NRC transcripts, Baldwin said officials denied him a chance to testify or tour the plant because they considered him "a stranger to us. We have no knowledge of him...He comes to us at the last minute saying he's representing the Mothers of Peace."

An editorial opinion

Today in the House of Representatives there will be a vote that will decide whether President Jimmy Carter has the support of Congress in his move to boycott or postpone the Olympics. There has been great speculation as to what other countries might do, but the drift is that the U.S. would stand alone, that the House vote will decide if the U.S. would boycott or postpone the Games.

President Robert J. Kane

Amidst all of the "spor­posing" no one seems to have taken into account the feelings of our athletes. For one week in the winter and summer Americans rally around their TV sets like cheerleaders. Mick King, Mark Spitz, Bruce Jenner and a host of others have brought home gold, but more importantly, pride.

Coly Poly sprinter Bart Williams could be one of those people if he had the chance. After years of extra hard training, Williams stands a good chance of losing the race without even getting to the blocks.

Williams still feels that the Olympic team shouldn't go until the Afghan situation clears up. Americans have been weaned on competition. Our excellence in the Olympics is evidence of that. The only other time the Olympics have been cancelled was during WWII. I'd like to think that we're not that close.

What could be better than beating the Russians in their own backyard after they kicked sand in the world's face in Afghanistan.

Olympic boycott

WASHINGTON (AP) - The head of the U.S. Olympic Committee, Wednesday the Carter administration's suggest­ed boycott of the 1980 Summer Olympic Games in Moscow is in effect, go-it-alone stance is unpopular around the world.

Testifying before the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Olympic Committee President Robert J. Kane asserted, "We're out there alone, swaying in the wind."

Kane was testifying on a House resolution aimed at giving congressional support to President Carter's threat of a U.S. boycott of the Olympic Games.

Carter said Sunday he will ask U.S. athletes to boycott the Olympics if by Feb. 80 the Soviet troops still are in Afghanistan and the International Olympic Committee has refused Carter's request to move on.

The Soviet invasion endangers independent countries +shoring Afghanistan and endangers two to a major source of the world's oil supplies, the resolution says.

"So," it adds, "the security of the United States, of the region encompassing Afghanistan and of the entire world is threatened."

Kane testified that he does not oppose Carter's idea of exploring a transfer of the Games from Moscow. A proposal to delay the Games until 1981 and send them out of Moscow is one option the U.S. Olympic Committee's executive board will consider at a meeting this weekend.
