Reagan may restrict public files

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's new restrictive policy on opening its files to citizens is a far cry from what the Reagan administration had promised. The new policy, which was more indicative of its predecessor to press for broad changes in the Freedom of Information Act, was necessitated by the Carter administration’s first attorney general, Griffin Bell.

Four years ago, Bell told Congress not to use technical exemptions to obscure the truth. For instance, the administration was more inclined to the heads of all federal agencies Monday rescinding a freedom of information request.

For example, the Freedom of Information Act is to disclose documents but not make any formal proposal or offer made.

He said the cost of administering the act has reached almost $54 million a year. At the FBI alone, 300 employees work on Freedom of Information requests at a cost of about $10 million a year, he said.

The Carter administration was studying possible changes in the act, but did not make any formal proposals before leaving office.

Jeers greet evangelist in UU

BY MICHAEL WINTERS

Cal Poly's University Union plaza became the scene of an evangelistic fervor Thursday afternoon as members of the Universal Gospel Mission of Portland, Ore., lambasted curious students with Cinco de Mayo festivities set.

Resident Director Dave Ashby said that at approximately 7 p.m. Thursday he was startled by a student that one of the lights was leaking. He said he immediately called Public Safety, who came and closed off the area by putting up "contaminated area" signs in the entrance to the lounge, which is located off the main lobby on the first floor.

According to Larry Wright, a maintenance man from Plant Operations who worked on the light Thursday night, it has become standard procedure to quarantine the area until the light is fixed. A similar light leak occurred in the Santa Lucia residence hall during Winter Quarter, as reported by the Mustang Daily Feb. 27, and the substance contained PCB (polychlorinated biphenyl), a known carcinogen.

Wright said he would take a sample from the leaky ballast so it could be tested for PCB.

Leak puts dorm lounge off limits for 24 hours

The TV lounge of Trinity Hall was off limits to residents Thursday night and most of Friday after a substance was seen leaking from a fluorescent light fixture.

Cinco de Mayo festivities set

BY MAURA THURMAN

In the town of Puebla, Mexico, 4,000 ill-equipped Mexican soldiers defeated 60,000 well-trained French soldiers in 1862 to become the first Christian nation in the New World.

Cinco de Mayo today is an opportunity for Chicanos throughout the United States to celebrate their culture.

Festivities sponsored by the Chicano student group M.E.C.H.A. will begin at 10 a.m. today in the University Union Plaza with a performance by the professional Orzech theater group, Industrias El Teatro de la Tierra, a guitar playing duo from Fresno, will sing Mexican folk music and the product of perverse Eastern literature.

Introducing herself as a Buddhist, Magata said, "How can you say Christianity is right and Buddhism is wrong?"

"A little overzealous" is how business major John Meyer described Bone. "You're heading toward a cliff" due to lack of adherence to the teachings of the Gospel's prescription to "cry out loud" and "declare publically" one's faith.

"There is a lot to be done," Villasenor said. "A door will open for the advancement of our people, and then bam! The door shuts again and we have to try and reopen it."

Many of Cal Poly's Chicano students are the first in their family to attend college. Villasenor said, and some are the family's first American citizen. Villasenor said these facts make M.E.C.H.A.'s annual bilingual graduation ceremony "an important chance to link the educational system and the community."

This year's fourth annual ceremony will be held after Cal Poly's regular ceremony on June 13. It will be funded in part by profits from tickets sales for a Cinco de Mayo lunches, to begin at noon today in the West University Dining Room.

Cal Poly Financial Manager Tony Flores, the leader of the campus Chicano Coordinating Committee, will address the graduates at the luncheon. Representatives from Chicano student groups will also speak, and professor David Sanchez M.E.C.H.A.'s advisor will give a guitar performance.

ASI Senate Candidates

Editor's Notes: The ASI senate statements printed below are written by the candidates themselves. Statements were edited due to space limitations.

Ag. and Natural Resources

Dave Copely

As a senior for the school of Ag, I would do my best to represent the students of our school and achieve these goals:

- Make sure the money derived from the fee increase is implemented properly.
- Keep students informed on the uses and amounts of ASI spendings.

Make ASI more aware of the students' wants and needs.

Encourage more student voice in government.

Promote more student involvement in school activities.

Salvador Villasenor

My experience and interest in the No. 1 industry in the nation, Agriculture, has encouraged me to run for senator of students of our school and achieve these goals.

- Promote more student involvement in the School of Agriculture and Natural Resources.
- Make sure the money derived from the fee increase is implemented properly.

Knowing the importance of and necessity for out field, we can see the need for preservation of our school's participation in student government. The Associated Students Incorporated must strive for a higher degree of realism in the courses and curriculum offered, and that it should reflect more accurately the realities of the agricultural industry in California.

I am a strong supporter of balanced research which means a more even balance between research and teaching than presently exists.

Cynda Clary

We in the school of Agriculture & Natural Resources represent a significant percentage of the Cal Poly population. Any change in policy affects our school in large numbers. This is why our voice must be heard. In order to be heard, it is important that individuals who will represent that voice be elected to the Student Senate.

Throughout my three years in the school of Ag & NR, I have gained the experience necessary to efficiently represent you.

Knowing the importance of an effective voice for our school, we can see the need for preservation of our school's high reputation.

Jeff Grivelli

As a Student Senator, I would be an aggressive voice in the senate and get action on our issues. I also would like to see less ASI involvement in club activities, especially at Poly Royal. I believe the ASI has alienated itself from those with whom it is supposed to be serving: the students. In short, a vote for me would be a vote for less but better government for our school in that government.

Jeff Sanders

Representing the members of our Student Senate for Interhall Council has provided me with widespread knowledge of the ASI and its workings through taking an active role in participating in both local and statewide issues. I took a stand against increasing the General Education and Breadth requirements because I believe in Cal Poly's "learn by doing" philosophy; and, over spring break, lobbed with the California State Student Association in Sacramento against tuition and dealt with other issues directly affecting students. If elected to the Student Senate for the School of Agriculture and Natural Resources, I will rely on past leadership experience to help the ASI work more effectively as a corporation that represents the students' point of view in our university.

Allen C. Petters

By being involved in the School of Agriculture and Natural Resources' Council, and attending student senate meetings, I've become aware of the concerns of clubs in this school. Some concerns include keeping the School of Agriculture and Natural Resources aware of the happenings in ASI, the possibility of tuition and fee increase. I'm glad the fee increase passed since that enables judging and redeems teams to continue competition.

Sean Brennan

As a member of the student senate, I plan to convey the opinions and concerns of my fellow students in the School of Agriculture and Natural Resources by actively participating in the Agricultural Student Council and club leadership.

Following the passage of the ASI fee increase, I would exercise my responsibilities of growing funds to campuses and clubs, and organizations accordingly, while attempting to cut back on administrative costs.

Ron Lee

The school of Agriculture and Natural Resources is a large, active and diverse group which needs and demands dedicated, responsible, and concerned leaders.

I am willing and able to provide the effective, consistent and strong leadership which our school need to represent its best interests.

Through working with agriculture clubs on campus, and the School of a regional and state level, I have developed sound, strong leadership qualities.

Q. The Navy Officer Qualification Test (NOOT) is a
A. Not necessarily.

If you're majoring in engineering or another technical field, you do better on the test than an average student. The NOOT is an aptitude exam designed for entry into the Navy, and it's a test of your general knowledge, your ability to think, your ability to solve problems, and your ability to handle mathematics, science, and mechanical reasoning. It's a test of how you would perform in aviation training. There is an extra section dealing with aircraft orientation.

Tests will be scored immediately and an Officer will be available to discuss your results. Any questions or concerns you may want to consider.

Taking the exam in no way obligates you to the Navy, but it may just tell you something about yourself. Come in and give it a shot - you might even pass!
Writing contest opened to budding Shakespeares

BY NANCY LEWIS

The eleventh annual Cal Poly Creative Writing Contest is now accepting manuscripts until May 11 from officially enrolled Poly students.

Three prizes each will be awarded to the winners in two divisions: short story and poetry. First prize is $50, second is $30, and third is $20.

The contest, headed by English professor Alfred W. Landwehr, first began in spring of 1971 when he first came to Poly. Originally funded by Publishers Board, the Michael Gambrer Memorial Fund has funded it for the last few years.

The number of contestants, said Landwehr, is up to about 100 from the original 65 in 1971.

Landwehr noted that in previous years there were more poetry entries than stories.

The winners are chosen by three judges in each division. Each judge reads all the material and picks division. Each judge reads that.

The professor noted that the campus-wide contest draws contestants from about 20 different majors, a fair number coming from English and journalism.

"I can't remember one year when there wasn't a winner outside of Communicative Arts and Humanities," he said.

"I've heard that," said
a Poly Royal publication committee member.

"I occasionally come across a winner and they usually win with their story and poetry."

"It's good to have an outlet of creativity," he affirmed.

"I encourage creativity not just among those who win, but among the others too."

A disadvantage of the contest, according to Landwehr, is that many creative students just don't get around to entering.

"There is no personal gain," noted Landwehr.

A short story is limited to no more than 35 pages.

A contestant must use a pseudonym on his/her manuscript and include a sealed envelope with the pseudonym on the outside and the actual name, address and phone number on the inside.

The publication was funded by club donations.

Delia Signa Pi, the American Marketing Association, the Society for the advancement of Management and the American Accounting Club each donated $50. Each club was able to print up whatever article they wanted to appear in the paper.

The paper was available,
free of charge, on the Friday and Saturday of Poly
Royal's Business Department and at Business sponsored booths.

Leslie Bogard, a member of the Business Council, said there were 1200 copies left over out of the 3000 printed. She said this was probably due to the out of the way location of the Business department and to ineffective distribution.

Fledgling campus paper does business

BY KIM BOGARD

Staff Writer

The Poly Street Journal, a Poly Royal publication with the purpose of exposing everything that the School of Business is, was the first ever printed by the Business Council, said Meg Harrington, chairman of the Internal Affairs Committee.

The eight-page publication is a description of the departments and clubs within the School of Business. It was printed for the benefit of parents, students and alumni, said Harrington.

The committee members did the "cutting" and page layout before they sent the "galleys" to the Telegraph Tribune
office.

"I hope it will be a valuable addition to the school," said Harrington.

The publication was
funded by club donations.
ASI Senate Candidates

Mark Fisk

I'm a third year industrial engineering student. As a senator, I would be a liaison between the students and the faculty, and a means to accomplish:* a weekly "office hour" to explain issues, listen to student opinions,* a senate newsletter to inform students of bills before the senate.* an open forum of intramural teams for anyone.* I'd ensure that students would benefit from the recent ASI fee increase. Further, I believe that clubs should be more self-sufficient and would opt for such programs. Being a board of director (senator) is a time-consuming job, I'm willing to spend it time to be an effective student senator.

Donald Erickson

Many issues face students today: tuition, proposed financial aid cuts, and application of the new G.E. requirements to name a few. Experienced, motivated, and dedicated student leaders are needed to handle these issues. I believe I have met these qualifications and have proven such as a senator. In this capacity, I feel I have well represented the students in the School of Engineering and Technology as chairman of the Ad Hoc committee in dealing with legislation such as the Fee Increase, changing the election process, and endorsing affirmative action.

Remember, re-elect Donald Erickson May 6 & 7.

Jim Georgiou

My name is Jim Georgiou and as a third year Electronic Engineering student here at Cal Poly I feel that a good understanding of the students' needs, expectations, and current concerns, especially those relevant to the School of Engineering and Technology students. These include the issues of outdated lab equipment, an increase in General Engineering requirements, and the schools' ability to compete for faculty.

My strong leadership abilities will allow me to be an effective representative to the Student Senate and to those many leadership positions in school and civic activities that I have held as WOW Board Chairman. My responsibilities include leading the WOW Board through the planning and execution of a University Orientation Program.

If you want fair representation, I urge you to vote for me, Jim Georgiou, on May 6 and 7.

Raymond Yee

By working with other senators, I hope to ensure that the Senate becomes an agile and responsive body that fairly reflects the wishes, in terms of policy, of the students in the School of Engineering and Technology, as well as the University.

As a senator, it is not good enough to just be accessible. It is necessary to ef­fect an efficient system of communication so that we can use the accessibility, that should already exist, to its fullest potential.

I am quite aware of the important issues that concern students, such as the Fee Increase, changing the fee allocation, and the complete student parking system.

Tim Martin

There are three goals I would like to accomplish if elected senator for the School of Eng. and Tech.

1. The first thing I would like to do when elected is to immediately set up a communication line between the ASI and the School of Eng. and Tech. My job would be to relay the views and needs of the students in my school to the ASI.

2. I would like to set up a board of students and faculty to objectively examine the teacher evaluation forms.

3. The third item I would like to accomplish while in office is to bring research to Cal Poly. This would bring more money to the university from private industry.

Jose Mesquita

I would encourage more student participation into the functioning of student government, by keeping in touch with the separate groups in the School of Engineering and Technology. The legislature will need to be responsible for their actions and also relevant to the needs of their constituents. Student government must serve and not control students. I hope also to encourage cultural awareness on campus, by vocal and visual participation by all students.

Science, Math

Susan Smith

A good student senator is one who will listen to the students, and get the student body involved. The ASI is here for the students, and they should have every opportunity to make the most of it. The students deserve a stronger voice in their classes, professors, government, and administration. They have a right to know what's going on and how it may affect them. They also have the right to effect the changes they see necessary. These, and many others, constitute a basic right to information, input, and results.

As a student, I recognize and app­preciate the rights. As a Student Senator, I will do my best to help us get what we deserve.

Cam Bauer

Hi, I'm Cam Bauer. I'm a freshman math major from Napa. My involve­ment at Cal Poly so far has been on the university Long Range Planning Com­mittee, the Student Academic Council, and the junior varsity football team.

My major concerns for next year are improving the faculty evaluations, mak­ing Cal Poly more energy efficient, and working to prevent tuition from being imposed.

This has been my first year here and I hope to stay involved for the next three years.

Charles Dickey

The passage of the ASI fee increase proposal, though relating many of the financial problems of the ASI, raises the issue of the guidelines to be used for the allocation of the increased revenue over the next 4 years. Next year's increase of $90,000 is presently being allocated without any student input. I believe it is essential that the guidelines be made public, and according to such questionable factors the percentage of student input and such dependent factors such as the percentage of student interest is to what extent people within the ASI feel a group contributed to the passage of the fee increase proposal.

A comprehensive budget survey of student opinion, funding for which was dropped from next year's proposed budget, is a necessary source of student input and should serve as a primary guideline for a ASI funding.

Mike Meeke

I am a Biochemistry major and a former member of the ASI Senate. I am in favor of establishing student residence halls as a new SLO City voting precinct. I think research should be upgraded the faculty and bring in new money and equipment to the school, and an experimental program to evaluate in­structors in terms of how much knowledge their students retain after some time. I am against the SLO three-year unrelated-person occupancy rule, the Cal Poly tendency towards over­regulation of dormitory activities, and tui­tion in any form or amount.

Kirk Robertson

I am Kirk Robertson. I believe that my experience is an indication of what you can expect. I have been a member of the Academic Council, Student Academic Council, and the Student Senate for three years. I have been involved in a variety of activities including: WOW, music, Special Olympics, and CAHPERD. I am a Physical Education major working towards my teaching degree.

I believe that representation is the key to good government. If elected I will do my best to mirror the views of my constituents and fellow students.
ELECT MIKE JEZBERA
A.S.I. PRESIDENT

"The Associated Students should be a group dedicated to seeing that student interests in the University, City, and State Governments are well represented."

Right now we are faced with rapidly rising student rents, cutbacks in student loans, and the possibility of tuition in the near future at Cal Poly. To deal with these and other problems requires experience, knowledge of the A.S.I., City, State government and the Administration here at Cal Poly.

Michael Grennier
Michael Grennier is an English major in his junior year at Cal Poly. He is concerned with the representation of the student body students and senators and how the Senate can work for the betterment of the University campus has been and will continue to be an institution based on diversification. The University must be based on an open forum of ideas and opinions. Architecture, Environ. Design
John M. Hopkins
My basic concern for our A.S.I. are it's symptoms of bureaucratic self-perpetuation. The recent fee increases so enthusiastically promoted by our student body senators and officers is a reflection of spendthrift attitudes prevailing in our government. I feel that extreme care should be taken in the administration and appropriation of our fees. We must not be tempted as many candidates may be, to just spend money for the sake of spending it.

Mark Heptig
I am a junior political science major looking forward to representing you, in the Student Senate. Working on the Senate will provide me with the opportunity to maintain and improve existing programs, implement new ones, and give me valuable experience for the future. Some of my goals for the coming year include:

- Circularizing a petition as soon as possible opposing financial aid cuts
- Revamping the budget to ensure each club and organization a fair allocation of funds
- Drafting programs to make the campus more energy independent
- Instituting fines and minuses into the grading system and supporting a teacher's evaluation program

Beth Zigenman
Students need to be more informed on what actually goes on in the Student Senate and how the Senate can work for them. There are only two of the many reasons Beth Zigenman is running for Student Senate from the School of Communicative Arts and Humanities. She served as the Chair of the School of CA & H faculty representative, 1980-81. Beth has been involved with the School Council of Communicative Arts and Humanities. She served as the Chairman of the Senate's Academic Committee this year. I have drawn the Senate's attention to several issues of significant importance.

In researching CAR and seeking a more flexible registration process, I initiated direct, active student participation in the administration of the system for the first time ever. In addition, I have sought to establish a campus-wide uniform add procedure to cut down on the confusion and frustration of the first week of classes. The Senate also adopted my resolution calling for a halt to the flood of multimatics that students are frequently besieged with the last week of classes when they are busy trying to prepare for finals. I hope you will cast your vote to elect us.

Christopher Hartley
As a Communicative Arts and Humanities Senator and Chairman of the Senate's Academic Committee, I believe the Senate must continue to be an institution based on diversification. The University must be based on an open forum of ideas and opinions. Architecture, Environ. Design
John M. Hopkins
My basic concern for our A.S.I. are it's symptoms of bureaucratic self-perpetuation. The recent fee increases so enthusiastically promoted by our student body senators and officers is a reflection of spendthrift attitudes prevailing in our government. I feel that extreme care should be taken in the administration and appropriation of our fees. We must not be tempted as many candidates may be, to just spend money for the sake of spending it.

I believe that if efforts are taken to conserve our budget, then our government can be returned to a manageable servent rather than a self-perpetuating giant.

Randy Reynolds
Lack of communication between people causes misunderstandings. My feeling is that an intense cultural awareness is needed to dispel these differences and harmful attitudes that stem from a life-time of segregation and exposure to cultural bias. It's sad to see so many culturally deprived students on this campus. There is a lack of social consciousness here and an abundance of self-consciousness. Discrimination is an abstract word, used by dissatisfied minorities and women to disguise the "underprivileged" White majority.

The University campus has been and must continue to be an institution based on diversification. The University must be based on an open forum of ideas and opinions.
Poll catches students unaware of current events

From page 1
"Bomb the Wall" Haig. Chief Maniac Haig. King Alexander Haig and Alexander the Not So Great.
Caspar Weinberger, the U.S. defense secretary, baffled the most students. Only 21 percent identified him, half as many as could identify Awer Sadat.

Among geographical locations, Belfast is most familiar to students. The capital of Northern Ireland has seen intense fighting recently between the British Army and IRA supporters, and expects to see more violence after Bobby Sands' death.

British Army and IRA.

The students were ignorant of events halfway around the world, they were better able to identify events south of the border.

The, civil war in El Salvador is one well-known event on the survey. Nearly 77 percent correctly said that the United States sent money, weapons and military advisors to help the Duarte government resist a leftist guerilla uprising in the Central American country. One student said that the U.S. sent "military advisers... like in Vietnam!"

The El Salvadoran civil war isn't so well known among majors in the School of Human Development and Education. Indeed, majors from this school—hopeful teachers—scored considerably lower than any other majors.

Political science and journalism majors highest on the survey, just over 50 percent. Social science and engineering majors followed close behind.

Seniors, showing their experience, finished significantly higher than other classes at 59 percent. Freshmen could manage only 45 percent in correct answers.

Males answered 62 percent of the questions correctly; females correctly answered 43 percent.

He ran after studying ASI.

Fox also wants to obtain outside subsidies from corporations by approaching certain types of corporations and asking them to fund a project related to their field.

By obtaining these funds, Fox hopes to have more money for neglected programs and bring up the funding levels of all programs.

He also wants to restructure the committee meetings to make the students more responsible for what is going on.

The Administrative council and committee should meet together and make each student's voice count.

Old, worn gas line springs leak

A clamp put around the hole for temporary measure, said Johnson, because the pipes in the area are due to be replaced soon.

Two police officers responded to the call to direct traffic around the area for a short time.

According to Don Morris, associate dean and professor of Extended Education, an odor was detected Friday morning and he asked to have the gas turned off.

When the leak was discovered, it was further up the line from where the gas has been shut off, said Morris.

Groundsmen in the area discovered the leak and then confirmed it by water ing the asphalt in the area for a short time.

For bubbles.

Four firemen, one supervisor, and four maintenance men responded to the call.

Even with the home field advantage, the Cal Poly baseball team could only win one in a three-game series this past weekend with Cal Poly Pomona.

The Mustangs dropped to fourth place with a record of 16-10, UC Riverside 14-12, and with a CCAA record of 13-12-1. Keeping their second place title is Cal State Northridge 14-12, and with a record of 16-10, UC Riverside is in first place.

In a 13-inning decision, the Mustangs lost 5-3 in the first of a three-game series with Cal Poly Pomona. According to coach Berdy Harr, "we were hitting.

There was just a lack of defensively and we pitched well. The Mustangs dropped to fourth place with a record of 16-10, UC Riverside 14-12, and with a CCAA record of 13-12-1. Keeping their second place title is Cal State Northridge 14-12, and with a record of 16-10, UC Riverside is in first place.

In a 13-inning decision, the Mustangs lost 5-3 in the first of a three-game series with Cal Poly Pomona. According to coach Berdy Harr, "we were hitting. There was just a lack of hitting. The score was tied until the 13th inning when Pomona's catcher Eric Stewart hit his seventh home run of the season and brought in the winning run. The Mustangs had a chance to tie the score and bring in the winning run in the bottom of the 13th as the bases were loaded and no one was out. Pomona relief pitcher Rich Bruner struck out three Mustang batters to win the game. Harr said, "our batters just didn't make adjustments to his pitches."

Left fielder Eric Peyton was taken to the campus hospital during the ninth inning after he had made a diving catch. He had a "possible kidney bruise" and remained in the hospital overnight, keeping him out of coach Harr's starting lineup of Saturday's double header. Harr said Peyton's absence made a big difference in the remainder of Friday's game and the double run in.

Mustang women claim first SCAA title

The Cal Poly women’s track team should be serving a life sentence for the crime they committed at the Southern California Athletic Association conference championships. It was first degree, premeditated murder. The Mustangs, under coach Lance Harter, walked all over their conference foes and rewrite the record books in the process as they claimed their first SCAA track crown.

Cal Poly racked up a new conference scoring record with 235 points. The next closest team was U.C. Irvine with 84 points. Santa Barbara and defending SCAA champion Cal State Northridge at 63 each, Cal State Los Angeles 56 and Cal Poly Pomona 49.

Whatever happened at Northridge caught coach Harter by complete surprise. He was expecting a tooth and nail struggle from the first gun. What he got was a rout.

Four school records fell by the wayside in the process which highlighted a string of personal records as the Mustangs rewrote the record books in the process as they claimed their first SCAA track crown.

BY ANDY BERGER

A journey to the national title championship begins with the first meet, and Cal Poly took a giant step to the title track this past weekend in Fresno. The Mustangs broke down a strong Fresno State team in winning the dual, 83-80.

The mile relay team clipped the old school record to 3:50.6 Kristine Allyne, Cathy Jones, Held and Douglas teamed for the new mark.

The final mark to fall came in the heptathlon as sophomore Chris Dubeus piled up 4847 points to win the event.

Other highlights from the conference meet included sophomore Dana Henderson defending her conference title rom last year in the shot put with a 43'-9" throw.

Cal Poly picked up a clean sweep in the 1,500 meters with a 4:32.3 average, third baseman Pat Croft, Mr. Sanchez, R. Sallaz (infection). Sallaz tossed a complete game with a 6-0 record. Mark Bersano went the distance for the Mustangs in the first game.

Poly ends season with split as women stun league

Liz Carroll and Kathy Jakobsen picked one-two finish in the 100-meter hurdles at 14.3 and 15.1. Kramer doubled to win the 5,000 at 15:57 to lead a Cal Poly push for state Northridge.

The Cal Poly women's tennis team won its second match of the season this past weekend against Cal State Long Beach, 9-0.

The Mustangs swept all nine matches as No. 1 player Reese Wegandt started the rout by defeating Sandra Rodriguez 6-0, 6-0. Other winning singles for the Mustangs were Nancy Edwards over Stacey Dunn 6-0, 6-2; Kristin Edwards-Wilkins defeated Wey You-Patti Dunn 6-0, 6-2.

Poly, 2-7 in the Southern California Athletic Association, will host U.C. Santa Barbara today and Cal State Northridge on Friday as it finishes out the regular season. Both matches have been scheduled to start at 2 p.m. at the San Luis tennis Club in Avila Beach.

Opinion

Mike Jezbera

Though ASI presidents come and ASI presidents go, the chronic problems which plague student government, such as a weak university influence upon the affairs of the city of San Luis Obispo and the state and poor ASI visibility among the students, remain as unwanted house guests.

These problems have been allowed to develop and to go on because no ASI president, at least in recent years, has been brave enough to throw down the gauntlet and battle these problems.

But Mike Jezbera, junior political science major running for ASI president, has perceived that the ASI has for too long relied on the watchful eye of the city, state and national government and try to whip up support or opposition on decisions affecting students. Jezbera would try to place an internal affairs committee which would lobby the issues which most affect students.

Jebera correctly identifies that such issues as whether to pay an extra 50 cents for a campus movie or an extra $6 to ASI are petty compared to the prospect of sharp increases in student rent due to condominium conversions, tuition and reductions in the availability of student loans. A student external affairs committee could prove an effective lobby against such programs and decisions which would adversely impact students, especially if such decisions were made on the local level.

But if the student external affairs committee is ever to become an effective lobbying organization it must have the support of the Cal Poly student body. To achieve that, the ASI must inform the students what it is doing and receive feedback from students about what needs aren't being met.

Jebera has promised to come out of the protective cocoon of the ASI Activities Center and talk to the students about their needs. He has pledged to print a student newsletter to inform the campus what ASI is doing. Jezbera has in the past championed the idea of informing students by chairing the committee which conducted the student evaluation surveys of faculty in the political science, philosophy and history departments. He would seek student evaluations of all faculty members.

Jebera has promised to lead an open student government which would lobby the issues which most affect students. That is why the Mustang Daily editorial board endorses Mike Jezbera for ASI president.

Stephanie Nelson

Editor:

Once again Cal Poly finds itself in the midst of its annual two weeks of politics. Unlike last year, the students are being offered a much larger choice of candidates (four for president). This unprecedented amount of names on the ballot will mean a greater responsibility to the voters to investigate the candidates. It is my belief that when you have examined the experience and accomplishments of all the candidates, you will discover yourself voting for Stephanie Nelson on May 6 and 7.

Dennis Hawk

Editor:

I feel strongly that Dennis Hawk deserves your vote for president of the ASI here at Cal Poly. This year has brought about some major changes in student government at Cal Poly. Some of the major philosophical and policy changes that the current administration has initiated include, general revenue sharing, an increase in ASI fees that will be used to enhance our educational experience here at Cal Poly, the beginning of a thorough evaluation of current and future ASI programs, and most importantly, the creation of an open door policy between the students and university officials.

Not only does Dennis realize the impact of these programs on the quality of life for students here at Cal Poly, but also the need to search for new and more effective ways to deal with such problems as, current add-drop procedures, intramurals which is not adequately funded to meet the demand, the threat of tuition for us all and many other problems needing the attention of student government. Dennis Hawk is the person capable of providing the type of innovative leadership necessary to guide the mechanisms of student government along a course that will be both effective and responsive to student needs.

A vote for Dennis Hawk means a move in the right direction toward responsible, effective student government organization.

John Schouten

Editor:

I believe John Schouten is the best choice for the next vice president. As vice chair of Senate he has been an active and concerned senator. In my opinion, Mike Carr has had an interest in student affairs for many years now and has experience in many areas of the ASI. His sensitivity to student opinion and knowledge of the operational mass of student government makes him an invaluable person for the leadership position of vice president. After knowing Mike for many years and serving a term on the student senate with him, I have found that Mike considers the problems before him with clarity of mind. In other words, Mike can sift out the serious conflicts from the bull that is too often taken seriously. Carr has been on the student senate long enough to be able to handle the primary job of the vice president, acting as chairman of the student senate, capably and I'm confident that he will be a superior leader. I hope you all will vote May 6 or 7 and I hope you will too.
