Cal Poly Graphic Communication Institute Offers Spring Workshops

SAN LUIS OBISPO – Cal Poly's Graphic Communication Institute is offering two workshops on Saturdays in March for professionals or anyone interested in sharpening their web and multimedia software and design skills.

Topics for the workshops are "InDesign CS5 Jumpstart," and "Deconstructing Web Pages." Workshops are offered on two consecutive Saturdays.

The programs will run on March 19 and 26. "InDesign CS5 Jumpstart" will be from 9 a.m. to noon, while "Deconstructing Web Pages" will be 1-4 p.m.

Graphic Communication faculty members Lorraine Donegan and Ken Rothmuller will lead the workshops.

Registration is $195 for each workshop, with a discount of $19.50 off each class for registering for both. The workshops are open to the public.

Cal Poly's Graphic Communication Institute is an outreach effort of the university's Graphic Communication Department, created to provide industry professionals with access to Cal Poly's state-of-the-art resources.

Register or get details on the institute's spring workshop offerings at: www.grci.calpoly.edu or call 756-2645.
