Impoundment not for dogs only

Cut chains last resort for bike safety

by Lisa Shidler

If you walk out of class a week from next Monday and find your locked bicycle gone, have no fear. The livestock judging team will be on the case.

Beginning a week from Monday, the campus Bike Safety Patrol of the Public Safety Department will begin cutting the cables of bikes locked to handicapped ramp railings and impound the bicycles. No ruling yet on dogs.

Polv Ag judging teams compete in Oregon

by Lisa Shidler

Two Cal Poly agricultural judging teams which have gone their separate ways in the past are together again in Portland, Ore., this week.

The dairy judging and livestock judging teams traveled together to Portland Wednesday to compete at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition Friday.

For the dairy judging team, seven schools from seven western states will compete in the regional competition, according to Les Ferreira, one of the team's coaches. Although it is not a regional competition for the livestock judging team, they will be competing with students from twelve schools from various states, said Bill Jacobs, head coach of the livestock judging team.

The judging contests for both teams are run the same except that the livestock judging team works with more animals because they judge hogs, beef cattle, sheep and horses while the dairy judging team judges only dairy cattle.

At the competitions, college students who are judged by a professional on how they rank classes of animals, and the reasons for their ratings.

Both teams' judging members lose their eligibility for collegiate judging if they fail to perform according to their ratings.

Both dairy and livestock judging are taught in agricultural classes at Cal Poly but are not required courses. Some students who are majoring in agriculture may choose to take the courses but they are not required.

The dairy judging team's most important time of practice is before school at the end of August. Team members practice daily, sometimes as much as twelve hours a day, said Ferreira. Dairy practice continues until the end of October when the season closes.

Members of the livestock judging team practice every weekend during fall and winter quarters and sometimes during the spring, said Jacobs.

Both teams receive money for traveling costs from the Instrumentation Related Activities fund of the ASI but none of the traveling costs are paid for by donations from people in the cattle industry. The livestock judging team also receives money from activities held by the Cal Polyier Club, which include a contest between steers donated by cattle owners and selling bull semen, which is also donated at the annual sale.

Although the teams are together in Portland, they usually compete separately. The dairy judging team usually competes in around five shows a year from September to the end of October, and one in the spring. The livestock judging team competes throughout the year in about eight shows.

A major competition for the dairy judging team was the World Dairy Exposition in Madison, Wisc., on September 28. Joey Fernandez, a Cal Poly agriculture business management senior, received a $2,000 scholarship for being named high individual out of 134 competitors in the dairy judging contest from 34 schools.

The season for the dairy judging team will end at the Western International Dairy Exposition in October.

After the Portland competition, the livestock judging team will compete at the Cow Palace in San Francisco Oct. 30. The season will end at the national competition in Louisville, Ky., in November. The livestock judging team is coached by Les Ferreira, the livestock judging team, according to Jacobs. Fifty teams will compete for the title, according to Jacobs. Fifty teams will be competing, but Jacobs believes the main competition will come from Texas A&M and Purdue universities. The team is coached by one in anticipation of the nationals and the team's qualifications used there, said Jacobs.

Draft registration stirs up trouble

by Peter Hass

The Student Senate still had draft registration on its mind Wednesday night, but the stand its members took changed only slightly.

William Neill, representing the School of Engineering and Technology, moved to rescind Business Student Tim Jones' motion of last week, which put Cal Poly on record as opposing the California State Student Association resolution which condemns draft registration.

Jones' motion was unanimously approved at last week's meeting, instructing CSSA Representative Kevin Moses to vote against the resolution at the organization's meeting this weekend.

Senate Chair Moses asked for a roll call vote. Neill's motion failed 21-1, with Moses and Neill casting the only affirmative votes.

Neill said he made the motion to rescind after reading letters to the editors in Mustang Daily, and seeing the concern students had toward the registration issue.

"I know many students who do not like the draft, we voted. We have a certain responsibility to the students," said Neill, adding, "I don't think we're doing too much. I think we should rescind the motion, then vote on the issue again.

Some senators said the press' handling of the issue left something to be desired. Of the Tuesday Telegram-Archie article titled "Poly student's anti-draft stand," ASI Special Projects Coordinator John DeAngelis said, "People are seeing we're against the draft, not seeing we're against the CSSA discussing this issue.

Architecture and Environmental Design Senator Tom Kinshel said the media misinterpreted the issue and was upset that a reporter from Mustang Daily had attended the Senate's Monday workshop, but no story had been written.

"I won't change my vote due to press pressure," Kimbrell said.

Neill's aim in moving to rescind was to vote a second time on the CSSA draft registration resolution. However, the majority stood firm by refusing to rescind their opposition to the resolution, which opposes the implementation of the draft, not seeing we're against the CSSA discussing this issue.

In a related matter, Brian Reynolds, senator from the School of Communications and Cultural Studies read a letter he has written to Mustang Daily Editor Robin Lewis, which states his opinion on the ineffectiveness of the CSSA's ability to represent the California State University students' views on social issues.

"It is my opinion that the CSSA social issues policy is inappropriate," said Reynolds, adding he would prepare a resolution on the subject for next week's meeting.

Beginning a week from Monday, the campus Bike Safety Patrol of the Public Safety Department will begin cutting the cables of bikes locked to handicapped ramp railings and impound the bicycles. No ruling yet on dogs.

Polv Ag judging teams compete in Oregon

by Lisa Shidler

Two Cal Poly agricultural judging teams which have gone their separate ways in the past are together again in Portland, Ore., this week.

The dairy judging and livestock judging teams traveled together to Portland Wednesday to compete at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition Friday.

For the dairy judging team, seven schools from seven western states will compete in the regional competition, according to Les Ferreira, one of the team's coaches. Although it is not a regional competition for the livestock judging team, they will be competing with students from twelve schools from various states, said Bill Jacobs, head coach of the livestock judging team.

The judging contests for both teams are run the same except that the livestock judging team works with more animals because they judge hogs, beef cattle, sheep and horses while the dairy judging team judges only dairy cattle.

At the competitions, college students who are judged by a professional on how they rank classes of animals, and the reasons for their ratings. Both teams' judging members lose their eligibility for collegiate judging if they fail to perform according to their ratings.

Both dairy and livestock judging are taught in agricultural classes at Cal Poly but are not required courses. Some students who are majoring in agriculture may choose to take the courses but they are not required.

The dairy judging team's most important time of practice is before school at the end of August. Team members practice daily, sometimes as much as twelve hours a day, said Ferreira. Dairy practice continues until the end of October when the season closes.

Members of the livestock judging team practice every weekend during fall and winter quarters and sometimes during the spring, said Jacobs.

Both teams receive money for traveling costs from the Instrumentation Related Activities fund of the ASI but none of the traveling costs are paid for by donations from people in the cattle industry. The livestock judging team also receives money from activities held by the Cal Polyier Club, which include a contest between steers donated by cattle owners and selling bull semen, which is also donated at the annual sale.

Although the teams are together in Portland, they usually compete separately. The dairy judging team usually competes in around five shows a year from September to the end of October, and one in the spring. The livestock judging team competes throughout the year in about eight shows.

A major competition for the dairy judging team was the World Dairy Exposition in Madison, Wisc., on September 28. Joey Fernandez, a Cal Poly agriculture business management senior, received a $2,000 scholarship for being named high individual out of 134 competitors in the dairy judging contest from 34 schools.

The season for the dairy judging team will end at the Western International Dairy Exposition in October.

After the Portland competition, the livestock judging team will compete at the Cow Palace in San Francisco Oct. 30. The season will end at the national competition in Louisville, Ky., in November. The livestock judging team is coached by Les Ferreira, the livestock judging team, according to Jacobs. Fifty teams will compete for the title, according to Jacobs. Fifty teams will be competing, but Jacobs believes the main competition will come from Texas A&M and Purdue universities. The team is coached by one in anticipation of the nationals and the team's qualifications used there, said Jacobs.

Beginning a week from Monday, the campus Bike Safety Patrol of the Public Safety Department will begin cutting the cables of bikes locked to handicapped ramp railings and impound the bicycles. No ruling yet on dogs.

Polv Ag judging teams compete in Oregon

by Lisa Shidler

Two Cal Poly agricultural judging teams which have gone their separate ways in the past are together again in Portland, Ore., this week.

The dairy judging and livestock judging teams traveled together to Portland Wednesday to compete at the Pacific International Livestock Exposition Friday.

For the dairy judging team, seven schools from seven western states will compete in the regional competition, according to Les Ferreira, one of the team's coaches. Although it is not a regional competition for the livestock judging team, they will be competing with students from twelve schools from various states, said Bill Jacobs, head coach of the livestock judging team.

The judging contests for both teams are run the same except that the livestock judging team works with more animals because they judge hogs, beef cattle, sheep and horses while the dairy judging team judges only dairy cattle.

At the competitions, college students who are judged by a professional on how they rank classes of animals, and the reasons for their ratings. Both teams' judging members lose their eligibility for collegiate judging if they fail to perform according to their ratings.

Both dairy and livestock judging are taught in agricultural classes at Cal Poly but are not required courses. Some students who are majoring in agriculture may choose to take the courses but they are not required.

The dairy judging team's most important time of practice is before school at the end of August. Team members practice daily, sometimes as much as twelve hours a day, said Ferreira. Dairy practice continues until the end of October when the season closes.

Members of the livestock judging team practice every weekend during fall and winter quarters and some during the spring, said Jacobs.

Both teams receive money for traveling costs from the Instrumentation Related Activities fund of the ASI but none of the traveling costs are paid for by donations from people in the cattle industry. The livestock judging team also receives money from activities held by the Cal Polyier Club, which include a contest between steers donated by cattle owners and selling bull semen, which is also donated at the annual sale.

Although the teams are together in Portland, they usually compete separately. The dairy judging team usually competes in around five shows a year from September to the end of October, and one in the spring. The livestock judging team competes throughout the year in about eight shows.
When the party is BYOB (Bring Your Own Brush), you find out who your friends are.

Friends aren't hard to find when you're out to share a good time. But the crowd sure thins out when there's work to do. And the ones who stick around deserve something special. Tonight, let it be Löwenbräu.

Löwenbräu. Here's to good friends.
Phone volunteers wanted

Hotline is looking for caring persons interested in serving the community. Hotline, a 24-hour crisis intervention, information and referral service for San Luis Obispo County will be conducting a weekend training course for new volunteers.

The training will be held Nov. 5, 6, and 7 to teach empathic listening skills, telephone communication techniques and how to handle crisis situations. All types of calls are handled through Hotline. Many calls come from lonely people who just need someone to talk to. Callers are frequently under a lot of stress and need to express their feelings to someone they can trust to keep it confidential. Other callers might just be looking for the phone number of a local agency or referral for such things as pregnancy testing, counseling, housing, or food.

Interested students, staff, and faculty must be at least 18 years of age and willing to make a commitment of six months. Hotline volunteers are asked to give three hours per week to staff the Hotline phones. Applications are available by calling Hotline at 544-6162.

Bicycle Safety Patrol cracks down on bicyclists

The Adventures of Captain Pig

From page 1

would not have to weave in and out of pedestrians if the bike lanes were kept clear and the likelihood of accidents would also be reduced, said McCown.

The patrol also takes surveys and writes reports to try to acquire more bike racks where they are needed. They also go door to door in the dorms, offering bicycle safety information and registration slips.

Students' attitudes toward McCown and Keller are often negative, according to Keller. Many people are resentful when they are asked to park their bikes somewhere besides the handrails or to not walk in the bike lanes, and many react defensively by yelling and saying obscenities. Many people don't know who they are, and believe that the patrol workers are just other students telling them what to do, said McCown.

However, Keller said they are trying to do their job and make the campus safer for both pedestrians and bicycle riders. They work of talking to people and placing tags on bicycles has helped make the campus safer, but drastic measures in the form of impounding taken to gain more bicycles now have to be cooperation, said McCown.

The national president of Promotion for Higher Education will be in Room 219 of the University Union today at 1:00 p.m. Mark Kershner, the president, is interested in beginning a subcommittee of the organization at Cal Poly.

The training will be held Nov. 5, 6, and 7 to teach empathic listening skills, telephone communication techniques and how to handle crisis situations. All types of calls are handled through Hotline. Many calls come from lonely people who just need someone to talk to. Callers are frequently under a lot of stress and need to express their feelings to someone they can trust to keep it confidential. Other callers might just be looking for the phone number of a local agency or referral for such things as pregnancy testing, counseling, housing, or food.

Interested students, staff, and faculty must be at least 18 years of age and willing to make a commitment of six months. Hotline volunteers are asked to give three hours per week to staff the Hotline phones. Applications are available by calling Hotline at 544-6162.

Bicycle Safety Patrol cracks down on bicyclists

The Adventures of Captain Pig

From page 1

would not have to weave in and out of pedestrians if the bike lanes were kept clear and the likelihood of accidents would also be reduced, said McCown.

The patrol also takes surveys and writes reports to try to acquire more bike racks where they are needed. They also go door to door in the dorms, offering bicycle safety information and registration slips.

Students' attitudes toward McCown and Keller are often negative, according to Keller. Many people are resentful when they are asked to park their bikes somewhere besides the handrails or to not walk in the bike lanes, and many react defensively by yelling and saying obscenities. Many people don't know who they are, and believe that the patrol workers are just other students telling them what to do, said McCown.

However, Keller said they are trying to do their job and make the campus safer for both pedestrians and bicycle riders. They work of talking to people and placing tags on bicycles has helped make the campus safer, but drastic measures in the form of impounding taken to gain more bicycles now have to be cooperation, said McCown.

The national president of Promotion for Higher Education will be in Room 219 of the University Union today at 1:00 p.m. Mark Kershner, the president, is interested in beginning a subcommittee of the organization at Cal Poly.
The new vice president for academic affairs at Cal Poly has been elected to membership on the board that directs operations of the university's auxiliary foundation.

Tommilson Fort Jr., Ph.D., was elected to fill the term vacated by Hazel J. Jones, who retired on Aug. 31 from her duties as vice president for academic affairs at the university and as a member of the Cal Poly Foundation's Board of Directors.

Prior to assuming his new assignment at Cal Poly, Fort was provost of University of Missouri-Rolla for two years and head of the Chemistry Department at Carnegie-Mellon University, Pittsburgh, Pa., for eight years. Fort, whose term as a member of the board will expire in May 1984, was also elected vice chairman for the foundation board through May 1983.

The nine-member board of directors provides policy direction for operations of the Cal Poly Foundation, a separate legal entity that operates as part of the university under procedures established by the Trustees of the California State University.

A non-profit corporation, the foundation operates the university's food services program: El Corral Bookstore, Communications/Media Productions, which publishes educational materials for secondary schools and community colleges, and enterprise activities associated with the university's educational programs. It also provides support services for the university's research and fund-raising activities.

Poly vice president elected to board

Instructor training for the highly popular cardiovascular resuscitation (CPR) is available this month through the American Red Cross. A few openings are still available for the course, which runs through Oct. 25 at Sierra Vista Hospital Auditorium. Those who complete the instructor course will be certified to teach the technique of combining mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and external cardiac compression to restore breathing and heart beat in cardiac arrest victims.

This course is open to anyone holding a current CPR certificate. Register at the Red Cross office, 1216 Morro, San Luis Obispo, weekdays between noon and 4 p.m.

Red Cross to train in CPR

The School of Agriculture and Natural Resources will be holding its Equipment Operator Safety Training program October 26-28, 1982.

CAL-OHSA requires that all operators of farm equipment be instructed in safe operation through an initial safety program session followed by a yearly update session.

All employees and students who operate farm equipment (tractors, loaders, forklifts, etc.) from the Farm Shop are required to attend one of the Interim Training Sessions October 26, 27, or 28, 1982, 8 to 10 p.m. in Ag Engineering Room 103. Sign up for a session and pick up an application blank in AE 110.

You must pre-register. There will be no additional sessions held until spring 1983.

Ag school program to hold

The new executive officer for academic affairs at Cal Poly has been elected to membership on the board that directs operations of the university's auxiliary foundation.

Tommilson Fort Jr., Ph.D., was elected to fill the term vacated by Hazel J. Jones, who retired on Aug. 31 from her duties as vice president for academic affairs at the university and as a member of the Cal Poly Foundation's Board of Directors.

Prior to assuming his new assignment at Cal Poly, Fort was provost of the University of Missouri-Rolla for two years and head of the Chemistry Department at Carnegie-Mellon University, Pittsburgh, Pa., for eight years. Fort, whose term as a member of the board will expire in May 1984, was also elected vice chairman for the foundation board through May 1983.

The nine-member board of directors provides policy direction for operations of the Cal Poly Foundation, a separate legal entity that operates as part of the university under procedures established by the Trustees of the California State University.

A non-profit corporation, the foundation operates the university's food services program: El Corral Bookstore, Communications/Media Productions, which publishes educational materials for secondary schools and community colleges, and enterprise activities associated with the university's educational programs. It also provides support services for the university's research and fund-raising activities.

Poly vice president elected to board

Instructor training for the highly popular cardiovascular resuscitation (CPR) is available this month through the American Red Cross. A few openings are still available for the course, which runs through Oct. 25 at Sierra Vista Hospital Auditorium. Those who complete the instructor course will be certified to teach the technique of combining mouth-to-mouth resuscitation and external cardiac compression to restore breathing and heart beat in cardiac arrest victims.

This course is open to anyone holding a current CPR certificate. Register at the Red Cross office, 1216 Morro, San Luis Obispo, weekdays between noon and 4 p.m.

Red Cross to train in CPR

The School of Agriculture and Natural Resources will be holding its Equipment Operator Safety Training program October 26-28, 1982.

CAL-OHSA requires that all operators of farm equipment be instructed in safe operation through an initial safety program session followed by a yearly update session.

All employees and students who operate farm equipment (tractors, loaders, forklifts, etc.) from the Farm Shop are required to attend one of the Interim Training Sessions October 26, 27, or 28, 1982, 8 to 10 p.m. in Ag Engineering Room 103. Sign up for a session and pick up an application blank in AE 110.

You must pre-register. There will be no additional sessions held until spring 1983.

Ag school program to hold

Some desk jobs are more exciting than others.

As a Navy pilot or flight officer, your desk can be a sophisticated combination of supersonic jet aircraft and advanced electronic equipment. But you can handle it. Because Navy flight training gives you the navigation, aerodynamics and other technical know-how that you need.

In return, Navy aviation demands something of you as an officer: Leadership.

Your path to leadership starts with officer training that's among the most demanding in the military. It's intensive training. And it's all geared to prepare you and other college students who operate farm equipment from the Farm Shop are required to attend one of the Interim Training Sessions October 26, 27, or 28, 1982, 8 to 10 p.m. in Ag Engineering Room 103. Sign up for a session and pick up an application blank in AE 110.

You must pre-register. There will be no additional sessions held until spring 1983.

Ag school program to hold

The School of Agriculture and Natural Resources will be holding its Equipment Operator Safety Training program October 26-28, 1982.

CAL-OHSA requires that all operators of farm equipment be instructed in safe operation through an initial safety program session followed by a yearly update session.

All employees and students who operate farm equipment (tractors, loaders, forklifts, etc.) from the Farm Shop are required to attend one of the Interim Training Sessions October 26, 27, or 28, 1982, 8 to 10 p.m. in Ag Engineering Room 103. Sign up for a session and pick up an application blank in AE 110.

You must pre-register. There will be no additional sessions held until spring 1983.
The San Francisco Moving Company, the spirited dance troupe which sold out its last Cal Poly performance two years ago, will return with new dance pieces on Friday, Oct. 15. Set for the Cal Poly Theatre with an 8 p.m. curtain, the performance is open to the public.

Student tickets are 85 cents in advance at the University Union Ticket Office, are 84 in advance at the door, and the price is 86 cents. Public tickets are 85 in advance at Boo Boo Records in San Luis Obispo and all Cheap Thrills stores. Door admission is 87 cents.

Three dance pieces will be performed. Two are new, and one is a revival.

"Crayons," by Artistic Director Rhonda Martyn, will be set to an original score by company member Duncan Macfarland. The pieces will combine improvisation, drawing and dancing to create a "fresh, upbeat look at the dancers' personalities and the choreographer's interpretation of their colors." Based on the classic tale, "1001 Arabian Nights," the dancers will perform the local premiere of Emily Keeler's "A Tale Told," set to a score by Bay Area composer Victor Spiegel. The revival is the company's hit, "Rainmaker," based on the long-running play by Richard Nash. Originally performed in 1977, the "Rainmaker" dance has been in the repertory of the Jeffrey II Company since 1980.

The company is well respected by critics. Dance magazine commented, "the dancers are strong and alluring performers with an air of tough sexiness." In the San Francisco Chronicle, the review read, "as usual, the repertory blend is refreshingly eclectic, and the dancing superior."

Lewis Segal, writing in the Los Angeles Times: "San Francisco Moving Company is a disciplined, attractive modern dance troupe. Full of fine dance invention, highly promising...."

The Cal Poly performance is cooperatively presented by two Program Board Committees, Fine Arts and Special Events.
Sports

Football vs. Northern Colorado St.

Davis (24-0) was tough, Colorado may be tougher

Out of the toaster oven into the microwave. Although the Cal Poly football team will finally return to the friendly confines of Mustang Stadium this Saturday night after three weeks on the road, the homecoming may not turn out to be such a party for the Mustangs. Coming off their 24-0 humiliation at Davis last week, the Mustangs entertain the University of Northern Colorado Saturday night after three weeks on the road, the homecoming may not turn out to be such a party for the Mustangs. Coming off their 24-0 humiliation at Davis last week, the Mustangs entertain the University of Northern Colorado Saturday, proud owners of a 4-0-1 record and currently ranked fifth in Division II. If the Mustangs are to win, or even keep the contest close, their offense will have to do an about-face compared to last week’s performance. Against the Aggies last week, the Mustangs could mount only one scoring threat, resulting in a missed 47-yard field goal attempt by kicker David Croswana. Of course, you can’t plan on scoring too often if your team gains only a total of 157 yards, as the Mustangs did.

In Northern Colorado, the Mustangs don’t have the type of opponent on offense easily gets well on. The Bears are surrendering a mere 216 yards per game, including a measly 202 yards through the air. This poses an enormous task for the Mustang’s passing game, which has resembled a wounded duck through most of the season, averaging barely 130 yards each contest, last in the Western Football Conference. Tracy Biler, the Mustangs’ starting quarterback, completed just six of 22 passes for 90 yards against Davis. Although they haven’t worn out the turf this year, the Mustangs do have a bright spot on offense in their rushing attack, second in the WFC, averaging 90 yards per game. A surprise leader who has emerged in the offensive backfield is fullback Luis Obispo. The 6-2, 205-pound junior from San Luis Obispo made his first start of the season against the Aggies and was the Mustang’s leading rusher, gaining 73 yards on 20 carries.

The WFC, allowing 286 yards per game. The Mustangs have allowed a blow against Davis as Tom Gilmartin went down with a knee injury and is out for the season. That line will be severely tested against Northern Colorado, which has the top runner in their history in Jim Bright.

Bright gained 532 yards.

Page 6

Cross country awaits homecoming win

Amy Harper and her cross country teammates will try to get back on the winning track, so to speak. Saturday morning in the 2nd Annual Cal Poly-SLO Cross Country Invitational, which is to start and finish by the Crop Science Unit. After easily running past teams at the Riverside (Sept. 25) and Aztec (San Diego State, Oct. 2) Invitations, the women dropped to second last week at the Stanford Invitational. But that was no disgrace.

The Mustangs placed second to the host Cardinals, who are ranked No. 1 in the nation in Division II. The Mustangs’ starting backfield is fullback Rick Cramer. The 6-2, 205-pound junior from San Luis Obispo made his first start of the season against the Aggies and was the Mustang’s leading rusher, gaining 73 yards on 20 carries.

The WFC, allowing 286 yards per game. The Mustangs have allowed a blow against Davis as Tom Gilmartin went down with a knee injury and is out for the season. That line will be severely tested against Northern Colorado, which has the top runner in their history in Jim Bright.

Bright gained 532 yards.

Page 6

Cross country awaits homecoming win

Amy Harper and her cross country teammates will try to get back on the winning track, so to speak. Saturday morning in the 2nd Annual Cal Poly-SLO Cross Country Invitational, which is to start and finish by the Crop Science Unit. After easily running past teams at the Riverside (Sept. 25) and Aztec (San Diego State, Oct. 2) Invitations, the women dropped to second last week at the Stanford Invitational. But that was no disgrace.

The Mustangs placed second to the host Cardinals, who are ranked No. 1 in the nation in Division II. The Mustangs’ starting backfield is fullback Rick Cramer. The 6-2, 205-pound junior from San Luis Obispo made his first start of the season against right now,” Harper said. The other teams are going to really run well to beat us. The other four teams ahead of us in the Division I rankings aren’t here.

Poly will be challenged by UC Berkeley, UC Santa Barbara, Cal Poly Pomona and Northridge. The Matadors are ranked No. 3 in the country in Division II. Also in the race will be former Mustangs who are leading individuals from the Nature Track club in Los Angeles. Harper set course records in Riverside and San Diego and set a Mustang record with the fourth-place run at Stanford. Her 16:58 time replaced Maggie Reyes as the top Poly runner on the Stanford course.

Running for the team will be Harper, Jennifer Dunn, Carol Gleason, Marilyn Nicholas, Lori Lopez, Inga Thompson, Robyn Dubach.

For the men and coach Tom Henderson, this will be the first time the Mustangs run that the first seven will run intact. Sickness has been the major factor in the men not running with their top seven performers since Sept. 25.

The men, who initiate the competition at 10:15 Saturday morning, will be challenged by Northridge, Santa Barbara, the Aggie Running Club, the San Luis Obispo Distance Club and the Cal Poly Track Alumni.

For the men and coach Tom Henderson, this will be the first time the Mustangs run that the first seven will run intact. Sickness has been the major factor in the men not running with their top seven performers since Sept. 25.

Running for the team will be Harper, Jennifer Dunn, Carol Gleason, Marilyn Nicholas, Lori Lopez, Inga Thompson, Robyn Dubach.

For the men and coach Tom Henderson, this will be the first time the Mustangs run that the first seven will run intact. Sickness has been the major factor in the men not running with their top seven performers since Sept. 25.

The men, who initiate the competition at 10:15 Saturday morning, will be challenged by Northridge, Santa Barbara, the Aggie Running Club, the San Luis Obispo Distance Club and the Cal Poly Track Alumni.

For the men and coach Tom Henderson, this will be the first time the Mustangs run that the first seven will run intact. Sickness has been the major factor in the men not running with their top seven performers since Sept. 25.

The men, who initiate the competition at 10:15 Saturday morning, will be challenged by Northridge, Santa Barbara, the Aggie Running Club, the San Luis Obispo Distance Club and the Cal Poly Track Alumni.

For the men and coach Tom Henderson, this will be the first time the Mustangs run that the first seven will run intact. Sickness has been the major factor in the men not running with their top seven performers since Sept. 25.

The men, who initiate the competition at 10:15 Saturday morning, will be challenged by Northridge, Santa Barbara, the Aggie Running Club, the San Luis Obispo Distance Club and the Cal Poly Track Alumni.

For the men and coach Tom Henderson, this will be the first time the Mustangs run that the first seven will run intact. Sickness has been the major factor in the men not running with their top seven performers since Sept. 25.

The men, who initiate the competition at 10:15 Saturday morning, will be challenged by Northridge, Santa Barbara, the Aggie Running Club, the San Luis Obispo Distance Club and the Cal Poly Track Alumni.

For the men and coach Tom Henderson, this will be the first time the Mustangs run that the first seven will run intact. Sickness has been the major factor in the men not running with their top seven performers since Sept. 25.

The men, who initiate the competition at 10:15 Saturday morning, will be challenged by Northridge, Santa Barbara, the Aggie Running Club, the San Luis Obispo Distance Club and the Cal Poly Track Alumni.

For the men and coach Tom Henderson, this will be the first time the Mustangs run that the first seven will run intact. Sickness has been the major factor in the men not running with their top seven performers since Sept. 25.

The men, who initiate the competition at 10:15 Saturday morning, will be challenged by Northridge, Santa Barbara, the Aggie Running Club, the San Luis Obispo Distance Club and the Cal Poly Track Alumni.
The Mustangs, though, are putting their record at 7-4, the remainder of their games, almost be forced to win the playoBs wouW be dim.

Northern Colorado stresses balance, and 124 yards a game through the air. Bears are rushing 2,468 yards in his career at Northern Colorado. Aa a team, the Mustangs lo s e . to 'th e Bears, hopes of getting in the non-eonference game

Field shows, now new and shape, Asking $2500. Lawn or Cindi, rooms all day Sun. 238-2009 (10-15)

Surplus jeep, cars and trucks available. Many set for under $200. Call 312-742-1143 Ext 8653 for info on how to pur- chase (10-15)

Garage sale beds, houseware, collectables & more. Sat. the 14th 8:30am til 11:00. Lake San Luis (10-15)

Motor Vehicles

In order to license your vehicle, you must do the following:

1. Register your vehicle with the Department of Motor Vehicles
2. Have a current license plate
3. Pay the appropriate fees
4. Complete an application form
5. Take the vehicle to a testing center for inspection

If you are new to California or have recently moved to another county, you may need to renew your driver's license as well. This can be done at any local DMV office or through their website.

A.S.I. fine Arts Committee

Room in house for rent. Laguna Lake. Own room washer dryer dishwasher $155. 544-6665 (10-15)

Female roommate needed. 318, Share room ASAP. Close to Poly. Call 549-1910. (10-19)

Rential Housing

Female Roommate Needed! a bedroom house—share room Reasonable rent call 544-7753 (TIM 10-18)

Home for Sale

By Owner 4 bedroom 2 bath. 2900 sq. ft. 4 car garage. Barn. 14,000 sq. ft. of living space. On center double lot house. brick. Lots of living space. A sunroom add to enjoy- ment. Only 1 block from Poly No assumable loan $250,000. Call 544-1267 (10-18)

Motor Vehicles

Complete Engine Diagnostic and Tune Up with Certified Auto Engine Tune Up Specialists on All Makes and Models. Only $39.95 plus parts & labor. $50.00 guarantee call 314-3800 after 5 P.M. (10-15)

Help Wanted

Do you qualify for work study? Do you want an opportunity to work in sales or the mailroom of the Student Personnel -- "The Mustang Daily" office on campus? We are looking for hard working students who are willing to work part time, and who are interested in learning about student personnel and advising. Contact 544-6789 for more information. (10-15)

BY OWNER 4 bedroom 2 bath. 2900 sq. ft. 4 car garage. Barn. 14,000 sq. ft. of living space. On center double lot house. brick. Lots of living space. A sunroom add to enjoy- ment. Only 1 block from Poly No assumable loan $250,000. Call 544-1267 (10-18)

Motor Vehicles

Complete Engine Diagnostic and Tune Up with Certified Auto Engine Tune Up Specialists on All Makes and Models. Only $39.95 plus parts & labor. $50.00 guarantee call 314-3800 after 5 P.M. (10-15)

Help Wanted

Do you qualify for work study? Do you want an opportunity to work in sales or the mailroom of the Student Personnel -- "The Mustang Daily" office on campus? We are looking for hard working students who are willing to work part time, and who are interested in learning about student personnel and advising. Contact 544-6789 for more information. (10-15)
Outrage

Last week, Gary Arnold, Republican congressional candidate in the nearby 18th District of California, challenged President Reagan's record as a conservative during a White House meeting. There was an exchange, heated on both sides, and Reagan told Arnold to shut up.

Last Monday, the Monterey County Republican Central Committee, led by Arnold as its candidate, its chairman, Howard Bowden, calling him a “rabblerouser.” The committee instead chose to support Ann Nixon Ball of Pebble Beach whom Arnold beat in the primaries, and who has now reentered the race as a write-in candidate because of the disqualification with Arnold. The committee may even give her a $1,000 donation of Republican money to help in her campaign.

Well, so much for Republican representation in Monterey County. Even if the Mustang Daily Editorial Board disagrees with most (if not all) of Arnold’s beliefs, we are outraged that the voters are being so callously kicked aside by their central committee. Arnold received the nomination of his party to face Leon Panetta in his bid for reelection from the majority of Republican voters in Monterey County. Ball did not. It is the committee’s job to support the choice made, not make one of its own.

But the reason the central committee believes it can get away with this is because Arnold has committed a sin. He is supporting the Republican party platform, not Ronald Reagan as is big now in Republican politics. In last spring’s California Republican senate primary, for example, the candidates were falling all over each other trying to prove who had supported Ronald Reagan the longest. It is the Republican ideal to which Republicans should be loyal, not a man presently in power.

We are therefore pleased that someone is showing some guts and loyalty to an ideal, qualities lacking in much of American politics. No small wonder, Arnold showed some and now he’s a “rabblerouser” and his party brags (not voters) has yanked the party’s support. It appears the Republican party itself no longer has an ideal. It has a figurehead, Ronald Reagan, who should not be subjected to criticism from his own ranks, especially in public, and deserves unquestioning reverence.

Arnold sees this problem, and deserves recognition for not allowing himself to be sucked into a campaign of mindless praise for Ronald Reagan in order to get elected. He is cuting through the idolatry surrounding Reagan and question­ing his actions.

But while Arnold deserves support as a man of principle, the Monterey County Republican Central Committee ‘ought to be run out of its office by the voters it has snubbed. Its flagrant refusal to support a candidate chosen by its own in an election borders on oligarchy. Now, Ronald Reagan, the man who remembers it all the way it used to be, has become the beneficiary of a denial of voter representation by his own party.

But it is doubtful any uproar questioning the moral viola­tions the move entails will arise. After all, the figurehead has been served, the thorn removed, and Arnold, the choice of the voters and who stood little chance against Panetta, now stands even less of one. He is the victim of the sterile conformity to the views of Ronald Reagan that rules the Republican party. With the cut-off of Arnold, a signal has been sent out: it is a conformity that will stay.

Obvioulsy a Radical Left-Winger Set Out to Undermine the U.S.A.