Academic Senate views emergency preparedness plan

by Scott Swanson

The Cal Poly Academic Senate is planning to take a close look at the emergency preparedness plan for the University passed by the Campus Evacuation Preparedness Task Force on October 21.

According to Academic Senate President Jim Simmons, the senate never thought the plan was in good shape in the first place, despite the fact that it went on to the task force.

"When the disaster plan was written last year, the Senate looked at it and judged it to be inadequately developed," Simmons said. "The Senate advised President Baker of this and recommended that he not accept it. They thought it needed more work."

The task force studied the plan this year and voted 10-4 to pass it. According to Simmons, the majority of those who approved the plan were connected with Public Safety, Public Safety Chief Richard Brug chiared the task force.

The dissenters were faculty members Carl Lutrin and Ann Morgan, and ASI student representatives Skip Moss and Susan Fugin.

They pointed out a variety of weaknesses and inadequacies in the plan, they passed a motion to go back and look at the plan to see if it is any better than it was when they first saw it.

Lutrin said that he felt the plan did not guarantee the safety of the faculty and students, but that he would vote for the plan if the reservations in the letter were addressed.

Now the senate wants to look at the plan and see if it is any better than it was when they first saw it.

"We talked about it at Tuesday’s meeting of the Senate Executive Committee," Simmons said. "We haven’t taken action yet, but we will probably get to it in the near future."

Ag Conference planned Saturday

Cal Poly’s Third Annual Agriculture Leadership Conference will be held Saturday, Nov. 6 beginning at 9 a.m. in Room 204 of the University Union. Registration begins at 8:45 a.m.

A workshop on parliamentary procedures will be held from 9 a.m. to noon and will be facilitated by Dr. Larry Rathbun, associate dean of the School of Agriculture and Natural Resource Management.

A panel discussion on the role of agriculture leadership and how it pertains to governance and politics will also be held. A diversified farmer in the Fresno area will speak on the role of agriculture leadership and how it pertains to governance and politics.

The conference is put on every year for the 33 agriculture-related clubs on campus by the school’s student council, according to Eileen Fischer, vice-chairman of the council. Although the seminar is held for members of the clubs, everyone is welcome and admission is free, said Fischer.
Election breeds discontent

WASHINGTOB (AP) — The talk is of compromise but the outlook for confrontation as President Reagan and House Speaker Thomas P. O'Neill Jr. lead partisan analyses of a midterm election that offer a mix of triumph and loss for Republicans and Democrats alike.

The White House signaled it was ready for confrontation when spokesman Larry Speakes said today the election outcome did not change Reagan's mandate from the voters in 1980. "We do not think the 26-seat gain by the Democrats . . . will give them a mandate to raise taxes to the American people and weaken the nation's defense," he said.

Democratic National Chairman Charles Manatt told reporters his party's chances of regaining the White House in 1984 were "vastly improved."

"The momentum is ours," he said.

Meanwhile, votes were being counted in the race for governor of Illinois between incumbent James Thompson and Democratic challenger Adlai Stevenson III.

Thompson clung to a 171-vote lead today, with returns still awaited from more than 100 suburban precincts where the governor was expected to do well. A result was not expected until the vote is officially certified on Nov. 22.

"The momentum is ours," he said.

Democratic spokesman John Murphy. said coroner's spokesman Bill Gold.

"Miss Dunne's ex-boyfriend, John Sweeney, has been charged with attempted murder and assault, but a prosecutor said Thursday the charges should be filed.

"We will be evaluating the case to see if any additional charges should be filed," Assistant District Attorney Phil Wynn said in Beverly Hills.

Sweeney and Miss Dunne had lived together but separated recently. Sheriff's Deputy Ralph Martin said they argued when Sweeney wanted to move back into the actress' house.

A chief at the posh Ma Maison restaurant, Sweeney pleaded innocent to the attempted murder and assault charges on Wednesday and was jailed in lieu of $75,000 bail set by Municipal Court Commissioner John Murphy.

In "Poltergeist," the chilling story of a home haunted by a ghost-like creature, Miss Dunne had a co-starring role as Dana, the eldest of the Freelings' children. The movie was released for Halloween.

"Poltergeist" co-star JoBeth Williams was filming "The Big Chill" on location in South Carolina. Her agent, Michael Livingston, said, "She feels terrible and asked me to keep her up-to-date. I know she was very fond of her."

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Dominique Dunne, the dark-haired actress who made her movie debut in "Poltergeist," died Thursday without regaining consciousness after a choking attack, a hospital spokesman said.

Miss Dunne, 22, had been comatose on life-support systems since she was found unconscious in the driveway of her West Hollywood home Saturday. Her ex-boyfriend, quoted by investigators as saying "I killed my girlfriend," has been charged in the attack.

She died at 11 a.m. in the intensive care unit at Cedars-Sinai Medical Center, said spokesman Larry Baum. A hospital source told The Associated Press Miss Dunne's heart had stopped beating before life-support systems were discontinued.

"No respirator was pulled until she actually died . . . her heart had stopped," said the source, who asked not to be identified by name.

An autopsy has been ordered. Los Angeles County Coroner's office, said coroner's spokesman Bill Gold.

Miss Dunne's ex-boyfriend, John Sweeney, 26, has been charged with attempted murder and assault, but a prosecutor said Thursday the charges would be upgraded to murder.

"We will be evaluating the case to see if any additional charges should be filed," Assistant District Attorney Phil Wynn said in Beverly Hills.

Sweeney and Miss Dunne had lived together but separated recently. Sheriff's Deputy Ralph Martin said they argued when Sweeney wanted to move back into the actress' house.

The above is a compilation of election statistics from precinct consolidations that have a high level of student population. Consolidations 115 and 119 have all-student populations, 115 consists totally of Woodside and Stenner Glen Apartments and Mustang Village. 119 is Cal Poly's dorms. Consolidation 105's polling place was the Veterans Hall on Grand Ave., as was 117's. Polling place of 115 and 109 was Zion Baptist Church on the corner of Santa Rosa and Foothill Blvd. Tropicana Village was the polling place of consolidation 114, Pacheco Elementary School was that of 116.

Statistics where more than two percentage points apart were rounded off to the nearest whole number. Precinct 117 has the lowest percentage of student population and is the most conservative. Tom Bradley, who lost his race for governor and is presently calling for a recount, garnered a majority of votes, as did Lt. Governor loser Carol Hallett, a former local assemblywoman. Kurt Kupper, who lost in his bid for the 29th Assembly seat to Erk Seastrand, received a majority of votes in all consolidations except 117.

Proposition 11, which lost statewide, received large support in San Luis Obispo, as did Proposition 12, which won statewide. Cal Poly dorm student voters passed Proposition 15 by a comfortable margin, while those students off campus in 115 were less comfortable with limiting handguns in California. Where it lost, Prop. 15 did so by less than 2 percentage points, and won in two additional areas by slightly larger margins.

Some desk jobs are more exciting than others. As a Navy pilot or officer, your desk can be a sophisticated combination of supersonic jet aircraft and advanced electronic equipment. But you can handle it. Because Navy flight training gives you the navigation, aerodynamics and other technical know-how you need.

In return, Navy aviation demands something of you as an officer: Leadership. Your path to leadership starts with officer training that’s among the most demanding in the military. It’s intensive leadership and professional schooling combined with rigorous Navy flight training. And it’s all geared to prepare you and other college graduates for the unique challenge of Navy aviation. The program is tough but rewarding.

One important reward for Navy officers is decision-making authority. In the air, and on the ground, you have management responsibility from the beginning. And your responsibility grows as you gain experience.

No company can give you this kind of leadership responsibility this fast. And nothing beats the sheer excitement of Navy flying.

The salary is exciting, too. Right away, you’ll earn about $18,000 a year. That’s better than the average corporation salary will soar to $30,400 after four years. That’s on top of a full package of benefits and privileges.

Before you settle down to an earth-bound desk job, reach for the sky. Reach for the coupon. Find out what it takes to be part of the Naval Aviation Team. You could have a desk that flies at twice the speed of sound.

Remembering how much work you had as a child, Parsons said she modified her project to include an extra element for dexterity.

Students also got the opportunity to learn new skills. Dwyer added. Parsons agreed, saying “I’ve learned woodworking skills while a guy I know has learned to sew for his project.”

The required project, stipulated by Dwyer, began five years ago after Cal Poly design instructors realized projects of importance were those that gave students contributions and resulted in emotional involvement, Dwyer said.

Projects like this are probably the kind of thing a university like Cal Poly can do best, because of its emotionalism and technology involved,” he said. “Students have to think, feel, and do.”

Workshop to be held

A parliamentary procedure workshop will be held by Toastmasters on Monday, Nov. 8 at 7 p.m. in Ag Room 226. This workshop is designed to give students a basic understanding of parliamentary procedure. The program includes a brief explanation of the procedure and topic for debate. Students will have the opportunity to participate in the debate.

Topics for the debate include mandatory financial aid registration before obtaining financial aid, bicycle parking, teaching prerequisites and the quarter system.

Wahines whip Mustangs in an hour's time

by Mike Mathieun
Staff Writer

WESTWOOD — The Cal Poly women's volleyball team is preparing to take on Arizona State University this morning at 10:30 at the 24-team National Invitational Volleyball Tournament here at UCLA, and let's hope the Mustangs are better prepared for the Sundevils than they were for the University of Hawaii Wednesday night in Cal Poly's main gym.

In front of the largest crowd to witness a volleyball match in the main gym, 1,743 packed the stands, the visiting and No. 1 ranked Wahines whipped the host club 15-1, 16-12, 15-8. The match took just 65 minutes.

"You can call that one a good old-fashioned choke job," head coach Mike Wilson said before his team was ready to depart for Los Angeles. "There were only two people who looked like they wanted to be out on the floor — Jolene (Huffman) and Stacy (Stowell) when she finally got in there late. But when you look at the state, neither one of them did anything." Wilson said.

"If the team would have been half as ready as the crowd was, it would have been a different match. But nobody feels worse about the match than the girls do." Wilson added. "If we're playing our best and Hawaii is playing their best, I really don't know who would win. I'd sure like to be a part of that match, though."

The loss put the Mustangs to 19-5 on the year while Hawaii stayed perfect at 16-0. Not only must Cal Poly combat Arizona State this morning, but the Wahines have to come back tonight at 6 p.m. to face the host Bruins. At 9 p.m. Poly meets Lamar University, Saturday morning at 9 Poly plays Montana State, then takes on the University of Washington at 1:20 p.m. There are four six-team pools in the two-day affair. The top two teams from each pool reach the quarterfinals.

"The other three pools are: (1) Arizona, Texas, Hawaii, UC Berkeley, Cal State Fullerton and Tennessee; (2) Northwestern, Pepperdine, USC, Penn State, Stanford and BYU; and (4) Oregon, UC Santa Barbara, Pacific, Texas A&M, San Diego State and New Mexico. All matches are best two-of-three, except for third-place which is only one game. The quarterfinals are set for 3:15 p.m. Saturday. The semifinals go at 6 p.m., third-place at 7:15 and the championship finals at 8.

"For any team to get a decent seed in the playoffs, they need to do a job this weekend," Wilson said. "Like the saying goes, 'Good teams do good at the end of the year.'"

Wednesday night the Wahines were far from a good team. Before everybody found a seat in the gym Hawaii had won the first game 15-1. And when the Wahines opened a 5-0 lead in game two, it appeared folks would be home in time to watch Happy Days. But Cal Poly came back to serve up 11 straight points and a 11-6 lead. Hawaii called a time out.

"When I got back to the bench after the time out I saw our girls go from taking it to them to just trying to hold them in the tank we had them in," Wilson said. "Hawaii did clinch out of the tank for the 15-12, 16-8 win in the final two games."

"We try to have the girls paint a mental picture of what the environment is going to be out on the floor," Wilson said. "If we go down to USC we tell the girls the lights are bad, there will be people in the stands and the band will be there. We told the girls the stands were going to be packed and there was going to be some noise. The girls were just very uncomfortable out there."

If that's the case, then if Cal Poly wins the bid to hold the Northwest Regionals, there will be more folks packed in the same stands.

Soccer reunion

Fresnoans, uh, beat Fresno

by Mark Gang
Staff Writer

Wednesday night's soccer match between Cal Poly and Fresno State could have been called "Fresno State vs. Fresno West." All three Mustang goals were either scored or set up by former Fresno residents. Nine of the 22 FSMU players were also from Fresno. Another possible billing could have been "Cal Poly vs. the World." FSMU had a starting lineup of 11 from every state in the union (with the exception of Hawaii) plus players from nine foreign countries.

Football team hosts Boise State
It’s non-conference, but it’s still big

by Scott Swanson
Staff Writer

The Cal Poly football team will take a break from its quest for the first Western Football Conference championship Saturday night when it takes on Boise State University at Mustang Stadium.

Even though the game won't count in the race for the WFC title, it will be a game the Mustangs have to take seriously, judging from past performances. The two teams have met 12 times since 1969 and Cal Poly has come out on the short end of the series with the Broncos with a 8-8-1 record after last year’s loss in Boise.

The Mustangs will take a 4-4 season record into the game, including back-to-back thrashings of Simon Fraser and Santa Clara and a close loss to Northern Colorado. Boise is 5-3 after losing to Idaho last week.

The Poly defensive unit lengthened its lead over WFC closest competitor Santa Clara to 98 yards in the total defense category with the Mustangs' victory over that team. Poly has allowed its opponents only 222 yards on the average in total offense per game.

Key to the Mustangs' defensive success have been their linebackers. Jerry Schmidt, a 6-3, 230-pound senior outside linebacker was credited with 6 1/2 quarterback sacks last week that pinned Santa Clara with 41 yards in losses. Schmidt was named WFC defensive player of the week for his efforts, which included a fumble recovery, a deflected pass, and 10 total tackles.

Also slated to play Saturday are inside linebackers Steve Booker and Gary Swanson. Booker has scored touchdowns in both of his last two games on pass interception returns, putting him on the beam to outscore both of the other teams. Swanson leads the Mustangs in tackles with 63, 33 of them solo.

"The Boise game is going to be a real test for our entire defense," Sanderson said. "It’s a critical game for us right now, and if we can play well and win, it will be a tremendous lift for us."

Sanderson sees a particular threat in Boise tailback Rodney Webster and split end Kim Metcalf. Webster, a 5-10, 185-pound junior with 427 yards on 113 carries, is "an above average runner" according to Sanderson. But Webster can also catch, and the pass is the Broncos' main offensive weapon. While they have only averaged 87 yards on the ground per game, the Broncos passed 46 percent of the time and have averaged 210 yards in the air. Cal Poly has yielded a mere 135 yards per game thus far.

players from five countries on their roster, including Canada, France, Norway and Iran.

But the Mustangs didn’t care what languages the FSU players spoke. They proved actions speak louder than words by notching the "biggest win ever in the history of Cal Poly soccer," according to coach Wolfgang Gartner. The final score, 3-1.

Fresno State came into the match billed as the 88th best Division I team in the nation and couldn’t score until Poly practically gave them a goal with six minutes left in the game. After Poly committed a foul inside its penalty box, FSU forward Randy Prescott tried a penalty kick. Striking the ball from 12 yards out with only the goalie in the way shouldn’t be hard and for Prescott — 8-for-8 on the year on penalty kicks — it seemed like it wouldn’t be. It was.

Poly keeper Randy Smith guessed right and blocked the shot, adding a little salt to the FSU wound. The Bulldogs saved face, though, as Reza Chamanzad put the rebound past Smith.

Smith’s block was typical of the entire match. Poly’s defense was stingier than Ebenezer Scrooge and the offense could do no wrong.

Tom Gleason, who scored two first-half goals to break the single-season Mustang scoring mark set by Brett Rosenthal last year, lauded the defense, saying "our defense played our best match of the year tonight." Jeff LaGate said the defensive unit was jelling and peaking for the end of the year.

The offense, meanwhile, played exactly like they wanted to. "I went to a couple of Fresno’s matches this year and saw how they played," said Gleason. Their outside fullbacks weren’t as good as the mid-due on some to work the ball to the outside. Their style of play suited us.

Mustang captain Alex Crozier, the first bigname Fresno high school player to come to Poly and the best athlete on the team according to Gartner, said, "We finally played the way we were supposed to." For Gleason, Crozier and Curtis Apsey, the win was particularly sweet. All three starred in high school soccer in Fresno, were recruited by Fresno State and chose Poly instead. In the last three years, Poly hasn't beaten FSU and Crozier still remembers the last loss. "We lost to 'em with six seconds left in overtime last year."

Gleason, and Apsey played at Hoover High in Fresno while Crozier competed for Bullard High. The two schools are rivals and all three saw old teammates and opponents. It wasn't reunion time, though, it was time to renew old rivalries.

One rivalry that got out of hand was between Apsey and Bulldog Mike Ribbons, who attended Bullard High. With nine minutes left in the match, the two began pushing and shoving and were warned yellow cards. Apsey was pulled by Gartner in favor of Tom Moore. The win proved what Gartner has been saying all along - that his team is better than their 9-6-2 record indicates. "Tonight we showed we could play with anyone. Hey, this is a good team."

Apsey, who scored his eighth goal of the year Wednesday, chimed in, "We beat them. We proved good. We could build a top team."

Suspicious actions

From its outset, the reopening of the investigation by the Department of Labor into allegations of sex discrimination at Cal Poly has been a model of incompetence, unfaithfulness or both. Cal Poly's administration has been unfaithful to the students, staff and faculty of this school, and the DOL has been incompetent in its notification and inclusion of complainants in decisions affecting the case.

While seeing our reporters, for which we thank it, the administration has refused to comment to the Mustang Daily on the most minmal and general of information supposed to be public record. On October 26, the Daily ran an article on the reopening of the investigation. The Labor Department already had been on campus for two weeks, and we would have never known if not for a tip. We might as well not have been told, considering the information and cooperation the administration, or rather, did not give us.

Smiley Wilkins, Cal Poly's affirmative action coordinator, would not comment on any specific or general facts in the case, or the reasons for reopening it. He would not even confirm that Joanne Ruggles and Nell Langford were the two complainants dropped from the case (which they were) or that Sharon Shane was the remaining complainant (which she was). He refused to say if any other complaints had been added to the investigation, a possible reason for its reopening, information also public record. We must thank Wilkins, however, for being willing to let us into Labor's presence that it would not be commenting either, saving our reporter from further wasting her time.

This whole episode was so frustrating that the editor called the San Luis Obispo County Telegraph-Tribune and gave it the story in hopes it would be able to get more information, not to mention respect. Students, it seems, do not need to know their present status. Fortunately, we were able to talk to Joanne Ruggles and her attorney Margaret Stone, for their side of the story, and Nell Langford called one of our reporters on Tuesday.

Enter now, the Department of Labor's incompetence. Neither Ruggles nor Langford were informed by the DOL that their exclusion from the case was imminent. They were subsequently informed in a meeting in August between President Baker and the DOL of which neither was informed. Thus, no dissenting reasons against the exclusion were brought before the DOL. Ruggles and Stone received a letter two months later in October informing her Ruggles and Langford had been dropped from the investigation. Nell Langford, however, is not Stone's client and so did not know she had been excluded until she read the Telegram-Tribune's article on the investigation. That was five days ago on Monday, three weeks after the Labor Department came on campus and three months after the reopening meeting took place.

The Labor Department reported because it regularly has notified the DOL of which neither was informed. But with only three complainants in this case the Department of Labor should have done the notification itself. One sick irony here is that Ruggles and Langford were on Poly on the basis of findings made by the DOL in September of 1981. Now the investigation has been reopened, and both complaints that became part of the Labor Department's report because it regularly has notified the DOL of which neither was informed.

Thus, no dissenting reasons against the exclusion were subsequently dropped in a meeting in August between President Baker and the DOL of which neither was informed. We might as well not have had it all been on campus for two weeks, and we would have never known if not for a tip. We might as well not have been told, considering the information and cooperation the administration, or rather, did not give us.

During the KCPR 500 Sports Report, Wednesday Nov. 3, the announcer reported several interesting stories. He included a very good piece about basketball star Bernard King. After the broadcast, I consulted the Wednesday morning San Francisco Chronicle. I was astonished to see that the KCPR announcer's story on Bernard King was a reading, verbatim, from C. W. Nevius' bylined article on the front page of the Sporting Green. Further still, the announcer did not even mention C. W. Nevius or the Chronicle.

What does this mean? Does KCPR just read the newspaper to its listeners? As a mechanical engineer I have a limited background in journalism. I can, however, recognize plagiarism.

More importantly, the Chronicle writer deserves credit for his published story. I challenge the Journalism Department to provide the Daily readers with an explanation for this highly unprofessional and discourteous act.

I have been using the Daily for the last few months I have read and heard many complaints from President Reagan supporters regarding the somewhat abusive political cartoons published in the Mustang Daily poking fun at Reagan's various domestic and foreign policy difficulties. As a strong and active democrat I must admit that I find their indignant whining and complaining a little amusing and vindictive grading. I remember how upset I was two years ago when President Jimmy Carter was, in my opinion, unfairly blamed and ridiculed for the hostage crisis, inflation, budget deficits, and so on by the Daily cartoonists. One small consolation of Carter's unfortunate defeat to our beloved President Reagan is that I can now enjoy these comic cartoon comments without feeling defensive or politically paradigm.

So come on all you Reaganites! You laughed so loudly when you were digging it out, so you should be able to take it well enough. Besides, what are political cartoons for anyway? Perhaps some of these cartoons aren't very funny, but that probably means you're taking this all too seriously.

I would say, "When it (this great accident) happens it is not as important as if it happens. Let's keep Diablo closed," in your editorial column yesterday. Immediately it came to me that you had stumbled upon a brilliant point; indeed, it is the crux of the entire matter over what to do about the safety of Diablo Canyon. A theory is proved even more brilliant when it can be applied to analogous situations. Let us prove your theory by applying it to the very same analogous situation you mentioned in your column: the future great San Francisco earthquake. Substituting, we get this: When the great quake happens it is not as important as if it happens; let's keep San Francisco closed. It is easy to see that this situation is applicable when any great accident has the chance in all of occurring. It is a blameless, practical solution. Why didn't I think of it?
