On-campus housing request refused by CSU chancellor

A proposal which would have permitted on-campus student organizational housing was defeated during spring break by the California State University Board of Trustees.

The 11-7 vote on Tuesday, March 22, affected special interest groups, including fraternities and sororities with hopes for an on-campus Greek Row.

Dean of Students Russell Brown said, "The proposal before the trustees was to allow campuses to develop small group living facilities if a particular campus wanted to. Now campuses will not be able to make that determination."

He said the proposal had the support of President Warren Baker, the San Luis Obispo City Council, and the ASI. Several sites on the Cal Poly campus had been considered for organizational housing, but the first step was to have the proposal accepted.

"All of us are disappointed with the decision," said Brown. "One trustee who opposed the proposal, Celia Ballestero, said her objections were based on practicality. "If we did have on-campus organizational housing, I don't think the university could adequately control the activities of the group. And even if we could control them, it would be another level of administration which we just can't afford right now." she said.

"The intent is good, and I don't deny that we need more housing, but in this case the burden outweighs the potential benefits," said Ballestero.

The trustee also said that to allow a particular group to come inexpensively onto expensive university land is to discriminate against the rest of the university population.

A study group was appointed by the Board of Trustees to look into the problem.

Folsom Prison offers the last word in teaching

by Frank Van Brocklin

Staff Writer

Though certain limitations are placed on education in prison, it differs little from university education, according to a visiting professor at Cal Poly.

Robert Thompson, who taught political science at Folsom Prison during spring semesters of 1979 and 1981, said inmate students are serious, high quality students with a normal concern for grades.

"Many were extremely sensitive students who wrote excellent papers. Their sensitivity was hard to juxtapose with what they had done," Thompson said. "One of my brightest students had killed four people in a supermarket heist."

Like university students, inmates learn to use their education to their best advantage. Thompson recalled one inmate who had to go before the prison psychiatrist to discuss the possibility of parole. When Thompson wanted him good luck, the inmate replied that the interview would not be any problem. He said he would just figure out whether the psychiatrist was a Freudian or an experimentalist and then tell him what he wanted to hear.

Earning a degree which will help them find future employment is a primary educational objective for inmates. "They are very hopeful that a degree will help them within the limited opportunities they have to get a job," Thompson said.

Professional relationships between the instructors and inmates parallel those between instructors and university students. Any common interest between Thompson and his inmate students was based on the course subject matter. Though he tried to confine his relationships to the classroom, Thompson did form long-term friendships with two students to whom he now sends books and letters.

"Some differences between the atmosphere of prison education and university education were apparent to me," he said. "The interview would not be any problem. He said he would just figure out whether the psychiatrist was a Freudian or an experimentalist and then tell him what he wanted to hear."

Folsom Prison offers the last word in teaching
Race remains Chicago issue

CHICAGO (AP) - Harold Washington stumped at a briskneck pace Monday to shore up support among white liberals, while opponent Bernard Epton coasted to the finish line in the city's most bitter mayoral contest in decades.

Washington, a two-term Democratic congressman who hopes the election Tuesday will make him Chicago's first black mayor, returned Monday to a North Side lakefront area where he had rolled with hundreds of white liberal supporters over the weekend.

"I don't like the word battleground, but this is the focus," he said during one of about 10 stops in a hectic campaign day.

He also invited Democratic Mayor Jane M. Byrne and Democratic leaders supporting Epton to join Washington in a unity ceremony after the election. But he warned them they would be working with an "aggressive, progressive mayor." Mrs. Byrne endorsed Washington immediately after losing the Democratic primary to him, then briefly considered a write-in campaign and has remained silent about him since.

Meanwhile, Epton, a millionaire lawyer hoping to become the city's first Republican mayor in more than 50 years, met with aides and scheduled a final radio appearance and only three public appearances, two of them with his volunteers.

"That was his will and desire," said Judy Kington, an Epton aide. "We're trying to calm down the intensity.

In recent days, both candidates have zeroed in on the liberal lakefront area, considered a critical battle ground in a contest in which racial tensions have frequently surfaced.

Race remains Chicago issue

CHICAGO (AP) - Harold Washington stumped at a briskneck pace Monday to shore up support among white liberals, while opponent Bernard Epton coasted to the finish line in the city's most bitter mayoral contest in decades.

Washington, a two-term Democratic congressman who hopes the election Tuesday will make him Chicago's first black mayor, returned Monday to a North Side lakefront area where he had rolled with hundreds of white liberal supporters over the weekend.

"I don't like the word battleground, but this is the focus," he said during one of about 10 stops in a hectic campaign day.

He also invited Democratic Mayor Jane M. Byrne and Democratic leaders supporting Epton to join Washington in a unity ceremony after the election. But he warned them they would be working with an "aggressive, progressive mayor." Mrs. Byrne endorsed Washington immediately after losing the Democratic primary to him, then briefly considered a write-in campaign and has remained silent about him since.

Meanwhile, Epton, a millionaire lawyer hoping to become the city's first Republican mayor in more than 50 years, met with aides and scheduled a final radio appearance and only three public appearances, two of them with his volunteers.

"That was his will and desire," said Judy Kington, an Epton aide. "We're trying to calm down the intensity.

In recent days, both candidates have zeroed in on the liberal lakefront area, considered a critical battle ground in a contest in which racial tensions have frequently surfaced.

Race remains Chicago issue

CHICAGO (AP) - Harold Washington stumped at a briskneck pace Monday to shore up support among white liberals, while opponent Bernard Epton coasted to the finish line in the city's most bitter mayoral contest in decades.

Washington, a two-term Democratic congressman who hopes the election Tuesday will make him Chicago's first black mayor, returned Monday to a North Side lakefront area where he had rolled with hundreds of white liberal supporters over the weekend.

"I don't like the word battleground, but this is the focus," he said during one of about 10 stops in a hectic campaign day.

He also invited Democratic Mayor Jane M. Byrne and Democratic leaders supporting Epton to join Washington in a unity ceremony after the election. But he warned them they would be working with an "aggressive, progressive mayor." Mrs. Byrne endorsed Washington immediately after losing the Democratic primary to him, then briefly considered a write-in campaign and has remained silent about him since.

Meanwhile, Epton, a millionaire lawyer hoping to become the city's first Republican mayor in more than 50 years, met with aides and scheduled a final radio appearance and only three public appearances, two of them with his volunteers.

"That was his will and desire," said Judy Kington, an Epton aide. "We're trying to calm down the intensity.

In recent days, both candidates have zeroed in on the liberal lakefront area, considered a critical battle ground in a contest in which racial tensions have frequently surfaced.

Race remains Chicago issue

CHICAGO (AP) - Harold Washington stumped at a briskneck pace Monday to shore up support among white liberals, while opponent Bernard Epton coasted to the finish line in the city's most bitter mayoral contest in decades.

Washington, a two-term Democratic congressman who hopes the election Tuesday will make him Chicago's first black mayor, returned Monday to a North Side lakefront area where he had rolled with hundreds of white liberal supporters over the weekend.

"I don't like the word battleground, but this is the focus," he said during one of about 10 stops in a hectic campaign day.

He also invited Democratic Mayor Jane M. Byrne and Democratic leaders supporting Epton to join Washington in a unity ceremony after the election. But he warned them they would be working with an "aggressive, progressive mayor." Mrs. Byrne endorsed Washington immediately after losing the Democratic primary to him, then briefly considered a write-in campaign and has remained silent about him since.

Meanwhile, Epton, a millionaire lawyer hoping to become the city's first Republican mayor in more than 50 years, met with aides and scheduled a final radio appearance and only three public appearances, two of them with his volunteers.

"That was his will and desire," said Judy Kington, an Epton aide. "We're trying to calm down the intensity.

In recent days, both candidates have zeroed in on the liberal lakefront area, considered a critical battle ground in a contest in which racial tensions have frequently surfaced.
Review

Gym rocks with 'American Music'

Blasters revive Fifties sound, style

by Kristen Simon
Staff Writer

A small but enthusiastic crowd was on hand to rock and hop to the tunes of the Blasters Sunday night in the Cal Poly Main Gym.
From the moment the band took the stage till their second and final encore, there wasn’t a still foot in the house.
The five member band from Los Angeles calls its sound “American Music”, and that’s exactly what it is: a fine mix of soul, rhythm and blues, and rockabilly played with the intense energy of rock and roll.

Old favorites, like Little Willie John’s “I’m Shakin’”, sent the crowd into a frenzied state of flailing arms and legs. Just about everyone hit the waxed and slippery dance floor.

The band kept the pace up for a little over an hour before saying good night, only to be called back for two encores and three more songs.
The Blasters’ appeal is enhanced by short and danceable tunes. No song dragged on and every song had a good dancing beat.

This is the kind of music that reaches out and grabs listeners to keep them humming and tapping long after the song is over. It’s well worth listening to and has been getting a lot of attention lately. It all fits in with the rebirth of Fifties music.

The Blasters took the stage in cowboy boots, tight jeans and denim jackets, and a majority of the audience was also in the appropriate Fifties attire.

“Just about everybody hit the waxed and slippery dance floor...”

Please see page 4

The 1983 Poly Royal Executive Board is proud to present

A TRADITION FROM THE PAST
the rebirth of the coronation ball in honour of this year’s queen

Adrienne Lefèbre

Hors d’oeuvres and dancing featuring the University Jazz Band
April 16th 9:00-1:00pm Chumash Auditorium $5.00 per couple-
Tickets on sale Monday at the ASI Ticket Office
Faculty and Staff Welcome

GELARE
You’ve never had ice cream like this before!
2 for 1
purchase on small cup ice cream
In the Creamery
544-1925
Coupon Good thru April 31

The San Luis Legal Clinic
ANNOUNCES
Spring Cleaning For Your Legal Affairs
TWO DAY SPECIAL ONLY
Thurs. April 14 & Fri. April 15
- Divorce - Criminal - Bankruptcy

Valencia
555 Ramona Drive
San Luis Obispo, California 93401
805/543-1450

- Two-story townhouse apartments
- 3 bedrooms, 1 ½ bathrooms
- Completely furnished
- All utilities included
(except cable-TV and telephone)
- Within easy walking distance to Cal Poly
- Within one block of two shopping centers

Now accepting Fall Reservations

974
Santa Rosa

544-8850

The San Luis Legal Clinic

544-1925
Blasters show faithfuls exciting dance concert

From page 3

The Blasters began their career singing in dark smoky clubs and soon found one of their albums listed in Time magazine’s Top Ten. The turning point came when the group became the opening act for X, Queen and the Go-Go’s. Suddenly people were talking about the Blasters. So why the sparse turnout of fans at Cal Poly? Well, perhaps Sunday is a bad night.

Fortunately, neither the band nor the crowd seemed to mind the far from sold-out attendance. All those present appeared to be having a good time and were probably grateful for the space on the dance floor.

The Red Devils opened up for the Blasters and set the crowd in motion with some sultry voiced sounds and good rockabilly tunes.

The Blasters seem to get enjoyment playing their music no matter where they are. Their energy buzzed through the crowd and kept everyone on their toes.

Phil and Dave Alvin in action at Sunday’s dance concert in the Cal Poly gym. The Blasters performed to a small but enthusiastic crowd.
Proposal liabilities exceed benefits, trustees say

From page 1

Chancellor W. Ann Raynolds in March, 1982, to research the pros and cons of the proposal. Although the study group made no specific recommendations to the chancellor, it did articulate the benefits and liabilities of on-campus organizational housing.

The group's report lists four types of recognized student groups that may have been interested in on-campus housing:

1. North 202 on Monday, April 11 at 8 p.m. Remember, all organizational meetings are mandatory for all interested participants.

2. Grab your racket out of the closet and dust off your tennis shoes. A singles/doubles elimination TENNIS tournament for all the faculty/staff and students will be held beginning Monday, the 16th of April. Entries will be taken until 4 pm Friday, April 16th in the Rec. Office, UU 104 or by calling 546-1366. Sign-up for a teammate. Two winning entries will be issued to all winning entries. Play will be held in novice and intermediate/advanced divisions.

3. Get into the Mustang Spirit and enter the POLY NATIONAL PUTTING CONTEST behind the main gym on Saturday, April 23rd. T-shirts will be awarded to contest winners.

Senior Sandkulla named outstanding C.E. student

David C. Sandkulla, a senior from Buringame, has been named the outstanding civil engineering student at Cal Poly's School of Engineering and Technology. Sandkulla, who has a grade point average of 3.67, was honored along with the outstanding students of the schools of architecture, business, engineering, and allied sciences at a recent banquet.

Presenting the awards were Dr. Robert G. Walpsey, dean of the school, and Eric Cannon, president of the school's student body.

Sandkulla is a member of the Phi Kappa Phi National Honor Society, the Tau Beta Pi National Engineering Honor Society, and the Society of Civil Engineers.

He has been on both the President's Honors List and the Dean's Honors List and is recipient of the Engineering-Training Certificate.

The Cal Poly student's outstanding student awards are based on scholarship and activities.
The clouds kept Santa Barbara cool and Poly was kept on ice as they won one game out of five last weekend at the Santa Bar­bara Invitational Rugby Tournament, described as the world's largest.

The tournament included 80 club and college men's teams from across the na­tion and abroad, and 16 women's teams.

To make sure the tournament lasted only for the weekend, the officials modified the games length from two 40 minutes halves to two 30 minutes halves.

Poly started early Satur­day in a game against San Diego State University, winning 3-2.

In the afternoon the weather cooled even more and so did Poly as they lost to Santa Clara University, 1-4 and again to the University of San Diego, 9-4.

On Sunday, again under cloudy skies, Poly lost to San Diego, 7-0. In their last match of the tournament, the Mustangs lost to the Fossils, a team of former tri-county all-stars, 1-4.

The Mustangs finished 16th out of 22 teams in its division.

Netters tilt No. 1 Northridge in flawless weekend sweep

by Teresa Mariani

fter blanking Cal State Los Angeles and Cal State Dominguez Hills, the women's tennis team defeated the number one Division team in the nation just in time to avoid Sun­day showers.

The Cal Poly women defeated number one Cal State Northridge 5-0. Cal Poly won five of its singles matches before the final singles match and the three double matches were rained out. That puts Cal Poly 10-4 overall and 7-1 in conference play.

"We upset the number one team in the nation," explained coach Orion Yesent. "That moves us in­to first place with North­ridge."

Yeart said the women's team was psyched for the Northridge match after their sweep in Los Angeles. The Mustang women beat Los Angeles and Dom­inguez Hills 9-0 in matches that turned out to be easier than the team had ex­pected.

As drizzle began to fall at Sunday's match, Cal Po­ly needed one more win to clinch the contest at 5-0.
Cubillas clocking 9:05.6 in the 3000 meters steeple chase. It was Cubillas's second best ever time, which included one extra water jump and two extra hurdles.

Running his best "double" ever, Hector Perez, who was doubtful for the meet, ran 3:00.8 in the 1500 meter and 30 minutes ran a lifetime best 1:53.8 in the 5000 meters.

Long jumper Ron Wayne, who has previously jumped 28'3 1/4" made a impressive jump of 28'6" to take second. Wayne also came in first at 10.5 in the 100 meter race, missing the national qualifying standard by a tenth of a second. His time in the 100 meters is a life-time best and is the fourth best on the Cal Poly all-time list at Cal Poly.

The 400 meter relay team of Terry Wylot, Gordon Reed, Dru Uiter and Ways, ran a seasonal best of 41.3 and missed qualifying by 1/10 of a second. Brad Underwood ran a seasonal best 14.6 in the 110 meter high hurdles.

In dominant style the Mustangs placed 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th and 5th, in the 400 meter intermediate hurdles. Gordon Reed and Brad Underwood both came in at 52.0 with Reed getting the victory and life-time best.

Sports

Men tracksters lose meet but win major battles

by Sherman Turatine

Despite losing on points to UC Irvine over the weekend, the men's track team made a strong bid for the Division II National Championship with two more national qualifiers, 12 life-time best, eight seasonal best, and three second-best-ever marks, all of which surpassed the traditionally standard.

Dave Johnson, a freshman standout from Cabrillo High School in Torrance, qualified his life-time best in the 110 meter high hurdles with a time of 14.6. He ran the fastest leg of the mile relay in 48.1 and dropped 1.8 seconds off his life-time best in the 400 intermediate hurdles running 52.4 and a national qualifying mark.

Mike Landon, who last week ran a life-time best, National qualifying time in the 10,000 meters, continued to improve with a life-time best and national qualifying time of 14:30.7 in the 5000 meters: "It is very difficult to have an outstanding effort two weeks in a row, mentally, let alone physically," said Coach Tom Henderson of Los Angeles's best.

Other national qualifying performances found Steve

Softballers lose at UOP

by Brian Bullock

The UOP Softball Tournament wasn't very hospitable to the Cal Poly women's team last weekend, as they were eliminated by two defeats and a tournament ruling.

The weekend began slow for the Mustangs, Friday they lost their game to Sacramento State 6-1 with Janie Hollen soaking in the loss. The lone highlight for Poly was Jill Hancock's run-scoring triple.

Saturday's action began with the Mustangs notching a 2-2 win over the United States International University. Middle infielder Gina Bock did it all, it was Bock's win for Poly to place her record at 6-3, while Jill Hancock again had the Mustangs going two for four, including a home run.

Saturday's second game matched Poly against another Division I school, Berkeley. The Mustangs lost 8-1, placing their tournament record at 1-2.

At the close of the tournament the Mustangs were tied with United States International and Sac State with 1-2 records in their draw of the tournament. But because of an "overall runs record" rule technically, the Mustangs were eliminated along with Sac State.

Women jab Matadors

From page 6

Number five seeded singles player Mini McAbee came up with the points Poly needed just five minutes before the rain came down hard enough to end the match. "If she hadn't won, it would have been a mess for us," said Yeidt.

The women play at Cal State Bakersfield today. Bakersfield is ranked number two in the nation, behind Northridge. Yeidt expects the match to be tough, but not impossible, "They work hard and they're very mature. Our best asset right now is our team spirit—and even from the girls who haven't played so far this year."

Classified

Students, faculty & staff daily

There are minimum and 25% for each add.

Monday-Saturday campus rates apply. People by check only to Mustang Daily, SRC Box 294.

EUROPE CHARTERS

Tel. 936/256-02

PRISONER DEGREE CORRESPONDENCE K. McQuarry 47172 729 F.O. Box A..

4036/330/90/90

HISPANIC DANCE CLASSES! Thurs. Starting April 11. 6:30 or 9:00 pm. Dance studio below S. L. O. Partners not necessary. 541-8542.

GETTING MARRIED? Come to Special Impressions for high quality custom invitations, announcements, traditional and personal invitations. Call for appointment, bring the idea and we shall give you two free thank you notes with your order.

OVERSEAS J O B-Summer University teaches in 3, Los Angeles, Australia, All Fields. 850/630 mon Full-Employment. Free Info. Write UG Box 52-500 Cal Poly, CA 93440.553

NEW HIRING! REPRESENTATIVE FOR 108364 School Year. Approx 20 hour per week to canvass students with interest in business. Earnings approx. $350 per month. Drop resume off at Journalism room no. 28 at 9:00 AM.

Neive female student, Share has ambitions in the field of change for work experience. Call Campus Intsr 374-1769.

MOM, HOME-Sweet HOME 2bd In A-1 condition, space and $795.00 new adult pair in SEL $1,700.00.

CENTRAL COAST SPORTSWEAR PRESENTS RALPH LAUREN POLO SHIRTS FOR ONLY $25.00 IN MEN'S AND LADIES SIZES. BRIGHT COLORS TO CHOOSE FROM. CALL 544-4242.

2 FEMALE RENTS $850.00 Shared VHR SHARE GROUP 5 MONTHS TO JUNE. CALL 544-4242.

FOOTBALL TRUCK DRIVER WANTED $6500. Salary does (approx. $45K total). Apply: sshd at 548-2501 for appointment.

SUMMER Positions: Fine High-School girls earn weeks leave counselors (SHD) to teach. English, math, science, art, music, etc. On June 22nd. Contact Coach Mike Schmidt, Central Coast High School. Write for application.

WANTED: MORN, HOME FOR RENT $165 A MONTH IN MONTEREY COUNTY. CALL 548-2351.

Ag NEW HOSTELS WANTED: $175 for 30 days. Apply: 544-4242.

MOUNTAIN BIKES: WANTED 100.00. Apply: 544-4242.

Summer: Migrant Farmworkers College Applications due April 30. Queena Res. Off. 544-2942 ext. 298 14-12 PM.

DRIVER WANTED TO DELIVER AND INSTALL Suset's Home Hardware. Contact: 544-4242.

FREE FILM TODAY AT 11:00 AM IN ROOM 292 OF THE FISHER SCIENCE BUILDING.

MAKE A WORLD OF DIFFERENCE.

There's an endless frontier of need out there, stretching from the Dakota to the Andes to the Alps of the South Pacific. In 20 years 80,000 Peace Corps volunteers have traveled to all of them to: work with people in over 80 countries. They've done everything from helping villagers dig wells and build houses to teaching them hand pumps and skilled trades, to giving advice on farming and health care. Join a phenomenon tradition. The difference is a better world and a better you.

AGRICULTURAL ANIMAL HUSBANDRY, FORESTRY, BIOLOGY, FRENCH ECONOMICS, ENGINEERING, MATH AND SCIENCE MAJORS. THERE IS A PLACE IN THE THIRD WORLD FOR YOU! DROP BY THE UNIVERSITY UNION PLAZA TODAY OR TOMORROW FROM 9 AM UNTIL FALL QUARTER ON cn.

SUMMER POSITIONS: Fine High-School girls earn weeks leave counselors (SHD) to teach. English, math, science, art, music, etc. On June 22nd. Contact Coach Mike Schmidt, Central Coast High School. Write for application.

544-4242.

ag NEW HOSTELS WANTED: $175 for 30 days. Apply: 544-4242.

MOUNTAIN BIKES: WANTED 100.00. Apply: 544-4242.
Watt hates us

No wonder Californians are getting paranoid about Secretary of the Interior James Watt. He doesn't like our coastline unless it is dotted with oil rigs. He doesn't like national wilderness areas that have no usefulness other than making environmentalists happy.

When Watt refused to schedule the Beach Boys to play in the capitol's Fourth of July celebration, Californians' suspicions were confirmed. He doesn't even like our music.

Up to now, President Reagan has supported all of the secretary's previous decisions, no matter how detrimental they might be to the environment of his home state. That policy is not too surprising when we remember it was set by the man who believes that if you've seen one redwood, you've seen them all.

But the ultra-conservative Coloradan cancelled the Beach Boys' performance claiming they would attract the "wrong element", the First Family protested. The surfer rock heroes of the Sixties come from Southern California—Reagan country—and grew up with the Reagan children. Nancy Reagan claimed them as her fans, and the President gave Watt a plaster of paris foot with a hole in it—to remind him not to play himself in the foot again.

The secretary apologized for his action, promising to schedule the group to perform some other time. Although he usually second-guesses the President quite accurately, Watt didn't realize the Beach Boys' nostalgic surf-sun-and-fun music might be inoffensive to a man who remembers the Fifties as the good old days.

Watt chose the U.S. Army Blues Band and Wayne Newton—what he called "patriotic, family-based entertainment"—for the independence celebration.

Maybe he did have a moral reason for selecting the Las Vegas casino singer over the surfer band. Or maybe he just didn't want to be reminded that some hedonistic, impractical Californians prefer the coastline in its natural state.

The Last Word:

Rain or shine

Dear Mom and Dad:

Sorry I haven't written in so long. Life at the big university is getting better. The sun finally decided to come out! When I moved down here last fall, I thought I was moving into Humira, Southern California. That's what's supposed to happen when you migrate 300 miles southward towards the equator.

No one told me that winter quarters were four months of constant rain. I was expecting beach parties, complete with Margaritas and blond surfers grinning, "Hey, wow, it's really grrrreat," during the month of December. Silly me.

I don't think it stopped raining longer than two hours during the whole winter quarter— the whole period in just one wet, gray, sneezing blur in my memory.

I don't think it stopped raining longer than two hours during the whole winter quarter-- the whole period was just one wet, gray, sneezing blur in my memory.

The rain taught me how to adapt to my surroundings. Though my ballet training came in handy when I had to tiptoe through the many puddles that sprang up. The worst of those were in front of my apartment and in the parking lot outside.

And the parking was worse. One day while my roommate and I wished shined deep to my car, I thought we were going; the wake left by a four-wheel drive Blazer nearly knocked us over.

One afternoon stands out in my mind. I think I went a little crazy. I had been raining for two and a half months, and then it stopped—trying to trick everyone into thinking it was over. I was walking home from school, and halfway there the rain started coming down in buckets.

It was making inch-high splash marks as it hit the ground. It sounded like machine-gun fire on my umbrella. It soaked through my jeans and ran down into my boots—which made a nice gush-gush-gush sound as I walked.

Just as I reached my apartment parking lot, the wind caught my umbrella. I had visions of me soaring into the air—a cross between Mary Poppins and the Flying Nun. Then my umbrella snapped.

There was nothing I could do. I put down my umbrella and started dancing across the parking lot, belting out "I'm singin' in the rain," Jusunus silligin' in the rain..." It was a very good Gene Kelly imitation. True, I did get some funny looks from passing drivers as I tappeddanced my way through the puddles.

All that's behind me now. The sun's out, it's warm and there really are surfers out with hair blond enough to cause eye-strain. They don't say "gnarly," though, at least not all the time.

But there is one thing about the rain I miss. Under jeans, boots, a wool sweater, a raccoon tail, a scarf, and an umbrella, I didn't have to worry about cellulite.

Now everybody's in nylon track shorts and bikini. I just can't win.

Love,
T.J.

Author Teresa Mariani is a junior journalism major and a Mustang Daily staff writer.

Letters

Tribute

Editor:

This week our community suffered the loss of a very special man. This man was Carlton Winslow, professor, author, art historian, and most importantly a human being. He enabled those around him to become inspired and was constantly reminded by his example of my reasons for being in school.

Few of us live life so fully and share it so freely. His genuine enthusiasm and interest in his students together with his willingness to share his own stories enabled those around him to understand, wonder, and reflect. Ideas no longer remained foreign; concepts became familiar.

He was so much more than my teacher; he became my friend. So rare is that opportunity for a student to experience such a professor. His approach to learning was spiritual, both whimsical and curious. These precious qualities he transmitted to all of us. I became inspired and was constantly reminded by his example of my reasons for being in school.

My deep sense of loss, my grief, is selfish, I know. I feel cheated. So many unanswered questions. So much more he had to offer. How precious the time spent with those closest to him must have been.

With these thoughts I wish to pay tribute to a wonderful man, a successful man. I will miss you, Carlton.

April A. Rosenlund
Cal Poly School of Architecture

Correction

The free speech resolutions currently being discussed by the ASI Student Senate will not be on the ballot for the upcoming elections as stated in the April 11 Mustang Daily story, "Senate discusses free speech, elections." The Senate will vote on the issue later this quarter.

Neal Vaughn, co-chairman of the Poly Royal button sales, and member of Alpha Phi Alpha was pictured on the front page of the Mustang Daily April 11. The photograph was incorrectly identified as Howard West.