Women spikers feature balance

Last year the Cal Poly women's volleyball team was tabbed No. 10 in the Volleyball Monthly pre-season poll. It was said then that the Mustangs have too much firepower with the departure of setter Marie Lunde and hitter Sharm Walker.

The same is being said in 1983. Volleyball Monthly picked the Mustangs No. 9 in the preseason rankings. It had been said that head coach Mike Wilson's club was in trouble because it lost a lot of experience to graduation—said Mike Taylor played with several of the seniors.

Wendy Hooper and super-sub Jolene Taitt return, plus two seniors.

All lined up and ready to go are these Mustang football players. For a preview of the football season, see story on page 8.

Well, heading into this weekend's San Juan State Invitational—which the Mustangs won two consecutive years—Cal Poly is No. 1. (Route does not include OOP Invitational.) Also in the San Jose tourney with the seventh-ranked Mustangs are the host Lady Spartans, Texas (14th), Stanford (5th), and UC Santa Barbara (88th). Poly opened its fall home schedule September 11 against Pepperdine. The Mustangs swept the Waves 3-0 with a time of 2 hrs., 21 mins. "We're ready to go," said head coach Mike Wilson.

The Mustangs are also on the road against Santa Barbara, USC, Brigham Young and UCLA, to name a few. "It's always been my philosophy to play as tough a schedule as possible," said Wilson. "Every year our schedule is as tough as we can make it. We're not playing the Sisters of the Poor too many times.

Wilson has seven players back from last year's 29-10, fifth-place national finish. Terri Strand is one of them. "In 1982 she was the first Cal Poly volleyball player to make the 12-player all-America squad. In May she was chosen the Most Valuable Player in the U.S.V.B.A. National Volleyball Tournament in Tennessee. The nickname 'Awesome-baugh fits her quite well. The 6'9'-foot senior led the Mustangs last year in kills (1,150) in regular season, kills attempts (1,150) and defensive saves (77). She was second in total blocks (67).

"Sandy's a huge plus," said Wilson, who has a 1983-84 non-conference record of 2-2. "I don't know if we can go back to all that. I'm not sure we can go as far as we did last year. I'm not sure we can go as far as we did last year. I think we have the personnel to spread the attack around to make us that much tougher to defend.

Two-year starter Terri Pur leading in the Mustangs. The 6-1 junior can play either the right side or the middle. She was best on the club with 33 service aces. Last year we played our best ball with 'Purling on the right side,' said Wilson. "Terri is a versatile player because she is a proven, experienced middle blocker.

Also back is junior super-sub Stacy Stowell who can play either hitter or middle; and sophomore Ellen Bieganski, Dede Bodnar, Lynn Kessler and Tammy Schroeder. Bieganski is in the same situation as Purling and Stowell. Bodnar is a senior. Reader a left-side hitter and Schroeder is in the middle. Also playing is senior Nancy Truesett, who last participated in 1980.

The newcomers include 5-8 junior setter Linda Bohm from Golden West Junior College; 5-10 hitter Stephanie Moore from Chico State; 5-8 setter/hitter Tara Pendergast from Reedley High; 6-0 middle blocker Carol Tachasar from California High; who redshirted last year; and 5-1 middle blocker Leslie Walpole from Monrovia-Pasadena Junior College via San Jose State.

"Getting used to a whole new block of setters is a big question mark," said Wilson who's Mustangs are 3-0 at home over the past three years. "We are experienced on the left side and in the pretty important position.

Also part of the 1983 edition is Kelly Strand. She is a transfer from rival UC Santa Barbara. Strand, a 6-0 middle blocker, will redshirt this season and will be a junior in 1984.

"She (Strand) is a thorn in our side last year," said Wilson. "We place a lot of pressure on Kelly that Kelly has decided to matriculate at Cal Poly.

"She's a real competitor and a great person. She is a type of player that when the score is 12-14 she says, 'Hey, set it right here.' She is a fighter and has one of the toughest serves going in the country. We'll use a lot of value just having Kelly around in practice, working out with us all this year."

Poly men finished season with titles, champs

IN MEN’S ATHLETICS, most of Cal Poly’s teams compete at the NCAA Division II level. The university currently competes in nine men’s sports, seven of them as a member of the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA). In wrestling the Mustangs compete at the NCAA Division I level and Poly football is in the Western Football Conference.

BASEBALL—Rain washed out 18 home games and created a rough road for Poly’s baseball team. Coach Berdy Harr’s team ended the season at 11-57 overall and 10-17 in CCAA action. High Williamson, right field, led the team with a .332 average and was named All-CCAA and All-District VIII. Scott Bakker, relief pitcher, was also named All-CCAA.

BASEBALL/—The cagers finished the season with an 18-10 overall record and 6-6 in the CCAA earning themselves the 4th place slot. Tom Perkins was chosen first team All-CCAA, and Alex Landharte was selected for the second team.

SWIMMING—The men’s swim team placed 10th in NCAA Division II national competition. Seven Poly swimmers earned 14 All-America certificates. This group was paced by Rich Simon who earned four and Brian Williamson who earned three.

TENNIS—Coach Hugh Reay’s men’s tennis team managed a 16-4 overal record, and finished in second place in the CCAA with a 7-2 record. Tyler Core, Andrew Webber, and Dave Reynolds competed in the NCAA Division II nationals at Southwest Texas State University.

Howard “Slam” Lawson, who finished seventh in the nation last season, is poised to pin yet another opponent.

TRACK AND FIELD—The Mustangs won the CCAA team championship and took two NCAA Division I individual titles in track and field. In national competition Ron Waynes set a school record, leaping 26'-4½" in the long jump. Waynes also earned All-America honors by placing sixth in the 100 meters. Carmelo Rios ran off with the 5,000-meter title after finishing second in the 3,000-meter steeplechase. Coach Tom Henderson's team wound up the season with eight other runners earning All-America laurels in national competitions.

WRESTLING—The Mustangs had their best season at the national level since 1978. This year's group placed ninth in the NCAA Division I nationals with three out of four wrestlers earning All-America honors. Team leader Lou Montano went 41-2-2 for the year and placed second at 158 pounds. Al Gutierrez placed 8th at 118 pounds and Pat O'Donnell placed 7th at 130 pounds. Jeff Barkdale also represented Cal Poly in nationals.

The men's track team cleared all hurdles on their way to a CCAA crown last season.
The Cal Poly women’s sports program picked up 35 All-America certificates, five individual champions, and team championship titles in cross country and track and field during the 1982-83 season. This is Cal Poly’s second year of competition in the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) championships.

Of the eight women’s sports at Cal Poly, seven competed at the Division II level, in the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) with volleyball competing in Division I.

BASKETBALL—Unusually injuries marked a tough season for coach Marilyn McNeil’s squad. The team finished the year 9-20 overall and 9-9 in CCAA play.

Senior Carolyn Crandall led the Mustangs in scoring and was chosen first team All-CCAA at her forward position.

GYMNASTICS—The winter sports season ended with a much improved women’s gymnastics squad.

SOFTBALL—The Mustang women ended with a 15-14 overall record, and 9-7 CCAA mark for third place.

PITCHING—Jenna Holbrook and Dana Tanaka, catcher Amy Bush, outfielder Jill Hancock, and infielder Lisa Hauk made the All-CCAA team.

Women's track and volleyball put Poly on the map

The women's tennis team displayed good enough form last year to earn themselves a full team bid to the NCAA Division II nationals at Cal Poly Pomona.

Former Mustangs play for pay in the pros

by Mark Brown
Managing Editor

The 1982 baseball and football seasons marked a milestone of sorts for Cal Poly athletics, with two former Poly athletes achieving the highest honor possible in each of their fields: shortstop Ossie Smith holds the Cal Poly records as both a career and season leader. Smith was instrumental in helping the St. Louis Cardinals clinch the World Series, and LaCharls McDaniel was part of the Cal Poly team that won the 1980 National Championship. He was signed by the Pittsburgh Stealers before going to Detroit, and still holds the Cal Poly records as both a career and season leader.

Actually, the list of Cal Poly alumni playing in professional sports is a long one:

—McDaniel is a sometime-player with the Redsk.ins that they turn to in times of need. "He's the first one they call when someone's hurt," said Cal Poly sports information director Steve Rutledge.

—Wide receiver Robbie Martin of the Detroit Lions was part of the Cal Poly team that won the 1980 National Football Championship. He was signed by the Pittsburgh Steelers before going to Detroit, and still holds the Cal Poly records as both a career and season leader.

Looking ahead to improving on their 6-6 mark of last year, the Cal Poly football team already has one impressive win.

Football 1983

After rebuild

by Dave Wilcox
Sports Editor

1982 was what is disaffectionately referred to as a rebuilding season for the Cal Poly football team.

"Last year would be best termed as a transitional one," said second-year head coach Jim Sanderson.

Rebuilding. Transitional. Whatever. With a new head coach and a slew of unfamiliar faces, the Mustangs were hard-wired to expect the national championship, which Poly captured in 1980, back to San Luis Obispo. They didn't.

Still, led by a defense that finished in the top ten of Division II, the Mustangs managed to end the year above .800 with a 6-6 overall mark and raced through the inaugural Western Football Conference season, winning the league crown with a perfect 4-0 record.

And as Sanderson is quick to note, a total of seven points in three of the losses were all that separated his squad from a remarkable 9-2 season.

"And we weren't really a very good team," Sanderson admitted.

But with an impressive season-opening 38-15 win over Cal State Sacramento to their credit as of this writing, a 9-2 season, or better, certainly doesn't seem out of the question.

Especially impressive in the victory was a strong, balanced Mustang offensive attack which rolled up 446 total yards against the Hornets. Sanderson and his staff had expected the defense to carry much of the burden in the opening game.

"We basically moved the ball at will (against Sacramento)," Sanderson said. But he still stands by his initial assertion that defense will be the foundation of this year's team.

"The defense has the potential to be exceptional," he said. "We have so many returning starters from last year."

The Mustangs traveled to Chico last Saturday and will keep their bags packed for two more weeks as they visit San Francisco State and Boise State before returning for their home-opener October 8th versus UC Davis.

With the WFC having shrunken to four teams following Cal Poly Pomona's lack of its football program, Poly's quest to repeat as champs is best summed up by Sanderson, who called it "antiklimatic."

"The overall record is the most critical," Sanderson remarked, adding that the "conference race will at least get us some identity."

Here's a look at some potential Mustang standouts for the 1983 campaign:

OFFENSE

Quarterback—Last season the Mustangs suffered through a quarterback scramble that saw Sanderson use Tracy Biltz and Clark Sinesness before tabbing walk-on Tim Snodgrass as starter in the sixth game. In the seven games since, the 6-2 senior has thrown for 1,064 yards, including 283 against Sacramento, completing 18 of 38 attempts.

Snodgrass admitted he was handed the job after a "process of elimination" left him as the only possible alternative. He's now firmly entrenched as the offen-

Gary Swanson picked up where he left off, having a hand in 11 stops from his middle position at Sacramento to lead Poly.

Flashing Swanson on one side is Dale Bartche, a 6-3, 200 pound senior from Lompoc. Gary Haering is the other starting backer, but will be out for a couple of games with strained ligaments in his ankle. Haering is also a senior.

Defensive Line—the Mustangs pose an experienced, formidable three-man front, spearheaded by All-American candidate Paul Sverchek. The trio, which averages 6-4, 250, also includes junior Pepe Prudhomme and Steve Gibson.

Kicking Game—With the untimely departure from Cal Poly of last year's freshman sensation, David Croteau, possibly emerges another in freshman punter Tom cortex. Against Sacramento, Cortes banged home three field goals in three tries and converted all three extra-point attempts as well. The twelve total points and three field goals in one game both tied Poly records. Punter Nick Cinino averaged a respectable 43.7 yards per kick.

Harper and Co. begin fight to defend crowns

by Daryl Teshima

When it comes to running, the Cal Poly men’s and women’s cross country teams know how to go the distance.

Both teams certainly proved that last year. The men’s team took both the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) and NCAA Regional titles, and finished a strong 11th place at the NCAA national meet in Minnesota.

The women’s team went even farther. Coach Lance Harter’s harriers were unbeatable last year, taking the CCAA, NCAA Regionals and NCAA Division II crowns. Led by defending Division II national cross country champion Amy Harper and five other runners with All-America credentials, they left every team they faced in the dust and snow.

This year shouldn’t be much different. With virtually the same team (four out of their top seven runners are returning) as they had during their championship seasons, these women are once again the team to beat in their division.

And the frontrunner of this all-star team will be Harper. With her past record-breaking achievements in cross country and track, Harper has to rank as one of the best runners ever to wear a Cal Poly uniform.

The Cal Poly women’s cross country team, led by Amy Harper (photographed), will be back on the trails in a bid to repeat their successes of last season.

Men, women harriers set to run the distance

Entering her senior year, Harper is expecting to continue her already illustrious career at Cal Poly.

Right behind Harper will be three returning All-America runners—juniors Marilyn Nichols and Carol Gleason and sophomore Robyn Dubach. All three have turned in some impressive times in the preseason. Other fine performances are expected from sophomores Lori Lopez, Kris Katterhagen and Heidi Ertl, and senior Vicky Bray.

The women's team also boasts a good crop of newcomers to the team. Freshmen Leslie White, Katy Dunsmuir and Gladys Prieto are just a few of these young runners who will hopefully continue Cal Poly's dynasty in women's cross country.

In the upcoming three weeks the women's cross country team will travel to Riverside, San Diego and Stanford to participate in various invitational contests. The Stanford Invitational will be an exceptionally challenging contest, as they will compete against many of NCAA Division I's top cross country teams.

The men's cross country team also has its share of high expectations and talented runners. Although they lost many top runners from last year; coach Tom Henderson's team will still be tough to beat.

They will be led by senior All-America runner Mike Lansdon. Lansdon took 15th place last year in the NCAA Division II national meet, and will be the pacemaker for the team.

Other top performances are expected from seniors Phil Boll and John Rembao, and sophomore Chris Emmons. Overall, the entire men's cross country shows a great deal of depth and strength.

The team's first three invitational races will be on the road. They will travel to Fresno, San Diego and Stanford to compete in these various races.

Mustangs trying to kick themselves into gear

Although starting off the season 0 and 4 might have some coaches discouraged, Cal Poly men's soccer coach Wolfgang Gartner is expecting to finish nothing short of second in the league this year.

"Last year at this time we were 1 and 4, and then we came in second in the league. We didn't lose the last 10 games," Gartner said before Poly tangled with St. Mary's soccer team last Friday.

"Again we'll try to make a run at the title, but it will be difficult because we lost to Pomona and Cal State L.A. the first two games," Gartner explained.

Cal Poly started off the soccer season at CSLA with a 4-0 loss, and then the tirad team lost a close match the following day to Cal Poly Pomona, 3-2. The Mustangs then lost to U.C. Davis 4-2 but pulled together to make Division I Stanford struggle for a 2-0 victory Sept. 14. Gartner said the 2-0 score was deceptive.

Among the new faces on the team, Gartner praised freshman Jeff Meyer of Simi Valley and Dan Tobias.

"Jeff is coming into his own as a freshman," the coach said. "I think he'll be very helpful.

Four players have come out for the position of goalkeeper; they have talent and potential," Gartner stressed. "But the season is short, and it might be too late before they mature." But after the men held their own against Stanford, Gartner said a much more unified team.

"They're playing better," he said. "They're playing clever. They were not clever enough in the beginning. The inexperience hurt us.

The next home game for the team will be 7:30 p.m. at Mustang Stadium Sept. 24 against Cal State Bakersfield, a showdown Gartner says should not be a tough one. Bakersfield is no match for Poly, the coach said.

And as for the win-loss record, Gartner expects a big turnaround, starting now.

"Last year we did exceptionally well for the kind of program we are," he stressed. "We held our own against teams that should have just destroyed us. There are some outstanding athletes here.

"They're playing clever. They were not clever enough in the beginning. The inexperience hurt us."

Intramurals offers fun, competition for students

An extensive program of individual and team sports is being offered this fall through Cal Poly's recreational sports program.

During the 1982-83 school year, almost 10,000 students participated in recreational sports, afigure recreational sports director, Dave Ciano, said highlights why the recreational sports program probably draws more student participation than any other activity on campus.

Ciano also said that in addition to the 9,672 participants, there were 389 off-campus people who joined in last year's activities.

Besides co-recreational sports, there are also activities for disabled people, drawing many community members. These activities include bowling, racquetball, tennis and "Twinges and Ringes," a water exercise program for arthritic people.

Co-recreational sports offered this fall include innerube water polo, table tennis, volleyball, backgammon, a free-throw contest, a rec-festival and a turkey trot.

Separate women's and men's sports being organized are badminton doubles, racquetball, team racquetball, tennis, volleyball and touch football.

Last fall touch football drew the most student interest, with 61 teams and 931 student players.

Two special additions to this fall's recreational sports program are a softball over-the-line tournament and a "Pitney Poker Tournament."

Sports open to the faculty and staff include afternoon swimming, early bird swimming, open basketball, tennis, volleyball and the turkey trot.

Managers from prospective teams must attend the fall organization meetings for that sport. At the meetings, the managers will find out more information about team rosters, entry fees and entry deadlines. (See Chart 1)

Further information on meeting dates, entry deadlines, tournament dates and when games begin, is available in the recreational sports office, University Union 104.

Ciano said there will be an employee meeting on Sept. 22 at 6 p.m. in Chumash Auditorium for people interested in any of the 80 job positions available.

"We need people to work in the rec office, checking out equipment, in the weightroom, taking court reservations and as lifeguards," Ciano said.

In addition to those openings, Ciano said he is also looking for referees.

The recreational sports office also checks out equipment and runs the campus sports' facilities.
