Political science professors analyze debate

By MICHAEL STUMP

After the first presidential debate between President Ronald Reagan and Walter Mondale, Cal Poly political science professors agreed that the most important issue raised was the federal budget deficit, but held contrasting views on other matters.

Professors Stanley Wisor and Carl Lutrin, and department head, Randolf Cruikshanks, all said that President Reagan made a satisfying plan for balancing the budget. They disagreed however, as to whether or not the budget could be balanced.

"I don't think it's possible to balance the budget with the huge obligations that the government has," Wisor said...

Carl Lutrin, on the other hand, believed it is possible to balance the budget, and criticized Reagan for not having an acceptable plan for balancing the budget. "They designed however, as to whether or not the budget could be balanced.

"I don't think it's possible to balance the budget with the huge obligations that the government has," Wisor said...

Responding to Mondale's claim, "every estimate by this administration about size of the deficit has been of by billions and billions," Lutrin thought that the political rhetoric and untruths bared by the Mondale campaign were not the real issue. "Mondale absolutely right that," Lutrin continued "but the plan will work or not, he said. It is in fact he offers a solution well that a second debate.

Cruikshanks continued Reagan for not having a grasp on the unemployment rate.

"The question that Reagan likes to pose is that people are better off than a few years before," he said. "There is a pocketful of people who are better, but there are others who are scraping to survive.

In the view of Cruikshanks, the winner of the debate is simply the one who comes out best. Again Mondale takes the honors, but he does not think the debate changed any minds.

"Whatever the outcome is, it didn't have any minds..." Cruikshanks said. "I gained a lot. I know more serious questions about Reagan's ability to do the job. He was caught off guard a number of times. I was not impressed with the way he was conducted.

"I was also disgusted for both candidates..." Cruikshanks said. "I was about the argument of who should go first.

"What they are trying to do is one-up the other person..." Wisor said. "Each tried hard to sway the argument, not answer questions.

With all the political rhetoric and avoidance of the issues, there is nothing to be learned by watching the debate.

"Definitely," Cruikshanks said. "It gained a lot. I now have more serious questions about Reagan's ability to do the job. He was caught off guard a number of times. I was not impressed with the way he was conducted.

Rounding up rodeo support

This week has officially been dubbed "Fall Rodeo Week" at Cal Poly.

This special week was designed to recognize our outstanding rodeo team and to bring our diverse university a little closer together.

Many students do not know how widely-acclaimed our men's and women's rodeo teams are. Coach Ralph Rianda said the team is not only known nationally, but internationally, for its excellence.

When people think of college rodeo, he said, they think of Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo.

Last year both the men's and women's teams won the West Coast Region titles. Cal Poly was rated "Number One" in the nation throughout most of the year and two members of the team earned the top titles at the national championships.

Cal Poly has competed in every national finals, but one, since the team was organized in 1949. They have won four national championships and have a chance of rounding up another one this year.

Except... At the present time our rodeo program has very little money.

The Associated Students, Inc. have delegated an adequate amount of money, said Rianda, for a travel fund for the nine actual team members.

However, this money is not enough when around 50 Cal Poly students travel with the actual team and compete independently. (The team is structured much like wrestling — there is opportunity for students to move up to and off of the actual team. Which nine members compete at each rodeo under the Cal Poly name is determined by how well any of the students did at the last rodeo.)

In addition to travel expenses, the team must buy stock to practice with each year, feed and supplies, and pay for caring.

The rodeo team and the Rodeo Boosters hold fundraisers every year, but the money they can raise is far from the amount needed to pay for the programs and the coaches' salaries.

Rianda said Tuesday that the School of Agriculture is in the process of finding funds for the rodeo program.

We strongly hope that the school and university officials can get these funds finalized for the team.

We also recommend that other parts of the university look into any possible support they can find.

And, we urge Cal Poly students, faculty and staff members back our great rodeo team.

This Friday and Saturday is the annual Fall Rodeo. This is the only chance this quarter to watch the action-packed team of riders.

Not only can we enjoy a very exciting and different sport, but we may be able to help save a team that has continuously earned Cal Poly a great deal of respect.

The rodeo on Friday is at 6 p.m. in Collet Arena and on Saturday at 1:30 p.m. Advance tickets are on sale at the University Union ticket office for only $2 for students and $3 for general admission. Children's tickets are $1.

See you there!
Tarnished ideals evident

So, you think we live in a free country, huh?

The First Amendment certainly guarantees us the freedom of speech, of the press, and of the peaceable assembly. The amendment encourages a free exchange of ideas and information among citizens, which is vital to our source of pride and democracy.

But these ideals are being threatened by our government. The current administration is denying us that exchange of ideas by denying visas to foreign scholars, writers, scientists, policymakers and even Nobel Prize winners because their political beliefs are contrary to our government's.

According to the Immigration and Naturalization Service, people from 98 countries are currently restricted from entering this nation because of their political beliefs.

Dario Fo, an Italian actor, director and playwright, spoke to a group of concerned citizens in Washington, D.C. about the absurdity of U.S. policy. Actually, the listeners were in D.C. and Fo was in Canada, speaking over a two-way closed-circuit television. Author of the play "Accidental Death of an Anarchist," he was denied a U.S. visa because of his anarchist beliefs. It is ironic that thoughFo is excluded from the U.S., his play is currently being produced in New York. To this he said, "I am honored to be excluded from the U.S. Looking at the list of denials, I am in great company."

Carlos Fuentes, Nobel laureate, former Mexican Ambassador to France and writer, has also been denied many visas because of his "leftist" ideas. On the occasions he was allowed to enter the U.S., his access was extremely limited. The terms of one particular visa, for example, confined him to Manhattan for five days. His good friend and fellow writer, Norman Mailer, happened to live in Brooklyn, but according to the visa, Fuentes was not allowed to visit him there. He told the group in Washington he "escaped to Brooklyn," for an evening.

How can we allow such instances to continue? The United States doesn't allow people into this country because of their political beliefs? I have been taught since grade school that this country was founded by people escaping persecution because their beliefs were contrary to the existing government's.

Now, 200 years later, the United States government does not allow dissenters into its jurisdiction. Even 70 years ago, hordes of European immigrants found sanctuary in the U.S. Today, vice presidential candidate George Ferraro even boasts she is the daughter of an Italian immigrant. How can the current administration restrict foreigners from entering our country simply because their political ideals are not harmonious with democracy? Perhaps the answer can be found in our history.

There was a mania more than 30 years ago called McCarthyism. Laws were made during those frantic '50s to stomp out communism once and for all. The most damaging law was the Immigration and Nationalization Act, enacted over President Truman's veto in 1952. This is also known as the McCarran-Walter Act which excludes aliens on the basis of their political beliefs. Though amended in 1977, it is still so broad that aliens can be denied U.S. entrance because their beliefs are considered "contrary to the public interest.”

I think some of President Reagan's policies are contrary to the public interest.

Those laws were made during the height of the Red Scare. When those fears waned in the '60s and '70s, so did the enforcement of these laws. Now it seems the current administration is dusting off the '50s law books and reviving the McCarran-Walter Act to keep out people whose ideas and opinions the government doesn't want Americans to hear.

I want to know why the present administration is so afraid of a "free marketplace of ideas" and is imposing this ideological exclusion. Isn't there any confidence in the American ideals of democracy? The press and the "right man's" president?

I'm worried.

Reagan Rhetoric: Some answers from the policy makers

By MARGARITA MILLS

WASHINGTON — Every four years we elect someone to the presidential office. This one person is held accountable for everything that happens to the country, whether it be a change in national economic status, military operations, domestic policy or foreign relations.

The truth is that the person who gets elected is in fact not the person who makes the decisions. The President keeps a whole staff on hand to advise, develop and execute national policy in all areas. These are the people who understand specific policy and its making best. These are the people who answer questions concerning administrative policy most completely.

The White House recently held a press briefing for college journalists, featuring the major policy makers of the Reagan Administration.

With election day nearing the fight between Ronald Reagan and his challenger Walter Mondale is mounting and hard issues are being drug between the two. Issues concerning Reagan’s policies over the past four years have been the target of campaign speeches, commercials and candidates debates.

Ambassador to the United Nations Jeane Kirkpatrick, Deputy Press Secretary Larry Speakes, Speechwriter for the Pentagon Jack Bergen and Secretary of Education Teal Bledsoe were available to question and comment on current Reagan policy.

The Budget

In a 30-minute briefing, Colonel Jack Bergen explained a system which the administration uses to come up with a budget. According to the terms of the system, the increasing amounts budgeted for defense spending are justified. The question that arises, however, is whether the values reflected in the spending are justified. The question that arises, however, is whether the values reflected in the spending are justified.

Bergen pointed out that the deficit is not the result of defense spending. “We at the Pentagon don’t feel the deficit is composed of things like having the capability to retaliate, the capability to scare people who are well-trained, that they have equipo­ment they can operate, that they have the spare parts they need to keep operating. I would emphasize the people part of readiness because that is some­thing we are bery proud of.

“We’ve gone from 68% to 92% of our people who are high school graduates in just three years. People who are reenlisting are increasing from 55% to almost 70%, commented Bergen.

The final step of development, Bergen said, is the budget itself. The budget we see today is based on all those commitments, and developed on the way back to the commitments. And as Secretary Weinberger likes to say, as senators and con­gressmen tell him, Secretary, you really can’t nor­mize that money; he tells them. ‘Tell me what commit­ments I can cut out of the budget.”

The budget is just one aspect of administrative policy which causes concern to those looking forward to the presidential race approaching next month. Tomorrow the Mustang Daily will feature the ad­ministration’s explanation concerning the involve­ment in Central America.

The Californian at rest this weekend in Port San Luis. It was the flag ship at the Olympic Tall Ships Regatta.

Seals rest to watch ocean rhythms.

Luis Rodriguez smiles to have caught one off Pismo Pier.

Even the peace of the Central Coast can be broken. Cars clot the streets. Voices grate. Deadlines sprint up and roar by as tensions distract you. There isn't even enough time to consider slowing down.

That's when the ocean beckons and you would do well to listen to it. The shore-song of the ocean is loudest on Saturday mornings, or on breezy weekday afternoons when life itself keeps you from enjoying it.

There are dark swells in which to dip your lines from the piers. Maybe a fish to catch, certainly an hour or two to talk things over, and time to remind yourself of the splendors seen by putting slack in the pace of daily life.

And in your ocean daydreams, a tall ship may blow onto the horizon, sailing into the harbor, loaded down with visions of long ago, as the Californian was this weekend entering Port San Luis.

To the ocean you can deposit your worries. From it you can draw peace in the distant, unreal clapping of canvas in the wind, the yelping of seals and sea lions, the desperate cries of gulls, the embracing curl of wind. Then you can face what you escaped.

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Several hundred people at a demonstration outside the federal building Tuesday signed pledges to join in non-violent, civil disobedience actions if the United States invades Nicaragua or El Salvador.

The protest, which featured religious speakers and Vietnam War songs by Country Joe and the Fish, kicked off a drive to create a national "emergency response network."

"If we get several hundred thousand people across the country to sign, it might deter this invasion," Ken Butigan, one of the organizers, told the crowd. A second purpose of the network, he said, is "we don't have to wait two or three years to build a movement against a possible U.S. invasion. We have something in place."

"Our goal is, hopefully, to get 100,000 people signed up nationally before the (Nov. 6) elections," said Robin Knowles, a spokesman for the Northern California chapter of the civil disobedience movement. "About 300 signatures were mailed in before today and we'll have at least 500 more after this.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The California Supreme Court on Tuesday temporarily halted enforcement of a lower-court order forbidding striking Disneyland workers from picking near the amusement park's main ticket booths.

The high court's action comes one day after six union leaders were arrested for defying the Superior Court's restrictions and one day before Disneyland has said it will begin hiring permanent replacements for the 1,844 strikers.

"We are obviously pleased with the outcome," union spokesman Michael O'Boyle said of the Supreme Court's late-afternoon decision to stay enforcement of the picketing restrictions pending determination of the unions' appeal.

No hearing date for the union appeal was set. Under the week-old order by an Orange County Superior Court commissioner, picketers haven't been allowed near the park's main ticket booths, which are about a quarter-mile inside park property beyond its sprawling parking lots.

The unions contend they are permitted by state law and prior court rulings to picket in such areas as parking lots that are used by the public to access to struck facilities.

CAUSE OF SF JET CRASH STILL NOT KNOWN

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Investigators said it will take "a long time" to uncover what caused a corporate jet to explode just after takeoff, killing three people, temporarily closing San Francisco International Airport and creating debris over a half-mile area.

The Gates Learjet burst into flames Monday night either in the air or in the crash moments after takeoff for Van Nuys, headquarters of the plane's owners, Clay Lacy Aviation Inc.

The company said Tuesday the plane had no flight recorder, an armored device carried on commercial airliners that monitors cockpit conversations and other flight data.

The company identified the pilot as Henry Power, of RoeSports this week, of RoeSports this week, of RoeSports this week, an eyewitness, a former Air Force pilot who had just climbed to 8,000 feet then plunged into a field.

"the plane had no attention from us. It was a quick crash," said Mark Johnson, with 2500 hours. Both had air transport licenses, Lacy officials said.

The name of their passenger on the "non-revenue" flight was withheld until notification of relatives.

Suspect virus found in saliva

WASHINGTON (AP) — Researchers have found the virus believed to cause AIDS in the saliva of people who have a pre-AIDS condition or who have had contact with known disease victims, government spokesmen said today.

The work, done at New England Business Hospital in Boston and the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., confirms previous speculation that the disease might be transmitted through saliva as well as through blood and other bodily fluids.

However, Dr. Edward N. Brandt, assistant secretary for health and Human Services, said evidence to indicate it is "very unlikely" that the disease can be transmitted from person to person through saliva.

"Although we have been able to isolate the virus from the saliva of people with a pre-AIDS condition and others at high risk of contracting AIDS," Brandt said in a statement, "all evidence indicates AIDS is transmitted only through blood, blood products and semen."

Federal health experts said there was no reason for the public to be concerned about everyday contact with those at high risk of getting AIDS, including male homosexuals and hemophiliacs who use blood products to treat their blood-clotting deficiencies.

Of the more than 6,000 cases of acquired immune deficiency syndrome reported to date in the United States, none has been linked directly to transmission through saliva.

However, more than 100 cases of the incurable and deadly disease are linked to transfusions of blood and blood products from donors who had the disease or an immune system problem called pre-AIDS that shares some of the disease's characteristics.

AIDS is a progressive disease that destroys the body's infection-fighting immune system, so far has proved fatal in 45 percent of cases. A virus isolated separately by U.S. and French researchers, and referred to as human T-cell leukemia—lymphoma virus or HTLV-III, is believed to cause the disease or play a major role in it.

Salvadoran leftists agree to negotiate future peace

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador — After five months of secret exploratory moves, El Salvador's leftist rebels agreed Tuesday to talk with the government about ways of ending the five-year-old civil war.

The guerrilla acceptance of President Jose Napoleon Duarte's proposed Oct. 15 meeting was the most substantive move yet toward resolving the bloody conflict that has claimed some 50,000 lives.

In a seven-point communiqué, the coalition of the Farabundo Marti National Liberation Front and the Democratic Revolutionary Front accepted and expanded upon Duarte's proposal, suggesting Colombian President Belisario Betancourt mediate in arranging next week's peace talks.

For nearly two years, both the Reagan administration and the Centadora group - Mexico, Colombia, Venezuela and Panama - have been urging the guerrillas and armed forces high command to come to the conference table.

U.S. officials in Washington said Duarte's strengthened position militarily and internationally enabled him to drop conditions that had blocked peace talks: State Department spokesman Alan K. Rossberg called Duarte's proposal a clear advance in the search for peace in Central America.

In a speech before the U.N. General Assembly on Monday Duarte made his surprise proposal that peace talks with the rebels begin next week. He suggested they be held in La Palma, a town of 6,000 in rebel-held territory near the Honduran border.

Duarte's only conditions were that representatives from both sides come unarmed, and that the talks be witnessed by the media.

The president, a Christian Democrat who took office June 1 as El Salvador's first freely elected president in 42 years, said he would go to La Palma without an escort, "placing my life as a guarantee to talk and to negotiate on the date proposed."

The broadcast added: "Taking into account the internationalization of the war and the worsening of the international situation, the FMLN and the FDR express their intention to discuss the Salvadoran crisis globally and present proposals for a solution."

The Farabundo Marti Front, or FMLN, is a coalition of the country's five leftist guerrilla organizations. Its ally, the Democratic Revolutionary Front, or FDR, includes outlawed civilian political parties and movements.

Each organization will name two representatives to the talks, the broadcasting said. It urged Duarte be accompanied by members of El Salvador's traditionally rightist-dominated armed forces high command, and that the talks be witnessed by observers.

The broadcast also said all forces should be kept outside a six-mile radius of La Palma.

Reagan rules out Social Security cuts

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, responding to a challenge by Walter Mondale, ruled out on Tuesday any cuts or changes in Social Security benefits for current recipients or future retirees.

In an abrupt policy shift prompted by Mondale's suggestion at a Cincinnati campaign stop that Reagan might revamp the Social Security system, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the president had authorized him to announce that he "will never stand for reduction in Social Security benefits for anybody."

Reagan's standard position: reiterated as recently as his debate Sunday night, with Mondale, has been that he would not seek to cut benefits for current recipients. But he had not specifically ruled out program changes that could affect the benefits of those not yet on the rolls.

"I am here to say that I have just spoken with the president, and Mondale ought to be ashamed," Speakes said. "He is out to frighten the elderly. The president will never stand for reduction in Social Security benefits for anybody who is now getting it or future recipients."

Mondale said in Cincinnati that he had been urged by the Carter administration to do the same.

Speakes also pledged that current and future Social Security recipients would receive all cost-of-living increases to which they are entitled under current law.

Speakes refused to discuss plans for the Medicare program for the elderly, which is growing financially troubled, as Social Security was before a bipartisan commission proposed — and Congress accepted — revisions in the system last year.

Duarte said Monday that the armed forces high command had agreed to his proposal for the talks. Radio Venceremos said the guerrillas made the original proposal for the talks in a letter Duarte was to get to La Palma without an escort, "placing my life as a guarantee to talk and to negotiate on the date proposed."

Reagan's standard position: reiterated as recently as his debate Sunday night, with Mondale, has been that he would not seek to cut benefits for current recipients. But he had not specifically ruled out program changes that could affect the benefits of those not yet on the rolls.

"I am here to say that I have just spoken with the president, and Mondale ought to be ashamed," Speakes said. "He is out to frighten the elderly. The president will never stand for reduction in Social Security benefits for anybody who is now getting it or future recipients."

Mondale said in Cincinnati that he had been urged by the Carter administration to do the same. Speakes also pledged that current and future Social Security recipients would receive all cost-of-living increases to which they are entitled under current law.

Speakes refused to discuss plans for the Medicare program for the elderly, which is growing financially troubled, as Social Security was before a bipartisan commission proposed — and Congress accepted — revisions in the system last year.

Duarte said Monday that the armed forces high command had agreed to his proposal for the talks. Radio Venceremos said the guerrillas made the original proposal for the talks in a letter Duarte was to get to La Palma without an escort, "placing my life as a guarantee to talk and to negotiate on the date proposed."

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan, responding to a challenge by Walter Mondale, ruled out on Tuesday any cuts or changes in Social Security benefits for current recipients or future retirees. In an abrupt policy shift prompted by Mondale's suggestion at a Cincinnati campaign stop that Reagan might revamp the Social Security system, White House spokesman Larry Speakes said the president had authorized him to announce that he "will never stand for reduction in Social Security benefits for anybody."

Spikers No. 1
Women make history, move to top of NCAA poll

by JILL PERRY
staff writer

The Cal Poly women's volleyball team is hoping history will one day repeat itself. One day.

The 16-2 spikers were rated No. 1 in the Oct. 9 NCAA poll, after one week at the No. 3 position. The team also moved up in the Tachikara Coaches Poll from No. 5 to No. 4. "This is historical. It's the first time we've ever been rated No. 1," head coach Mike Wilton said Tuesday.

Although Wilton was obviously pleased with the newest results, he knows to keep perspective about the significance of the poll. "Of course the only poll that makes any difference is the one at the end of the season. It's a close race. It's definitely wide open and there's a lot of season left," he said.

The team members themselves were also pleased to be thought of so highly by the coaches and administrators who decide the rankings. "It's neat to have the encouragement of other people," outside hitter Kelly Strand said.

Defensive specialist Christi Hale felt the new poll placed more pressure on the team. "It makes you want to prove to everyone else that you're the best," she said.

But setter Dede Bodnar and middle hitter Carol Tschasar both felt the team had earned the honor. "It's about time," they echoed.

The Mustangs will be playing the Pepperdine Waves this Saturday in the gym at 7:30 p.m. There is no cost to students with valid ASI cards.

October 19, 1984

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The Detroit Tigers last appeared in the World Series in 1968. The San Diego Padres not only are making their first trip to the World Series, but 1984 marks their first taste of postseason play. The World Series began Tuesday night and it features a matchup of two managers who already have met once in the World Series, in 1972. That was when Detroit's Sparky Anderson was with Cincinnati and San Diego's Dick Williams was with Oakland.

Williams won that time; Anderson did not win the first of his two World Series until 1975.

Regardless of who wins this time, however, history will be made. One of these managers will become the first to win a World Series in each league.

Since this is an even-numbered year, the designated hitter will be used in the World Series. Other than having to find a DH, San Diego comes into the World Series with a set lineup, while the Tigers use a lefty-righty platoon at three positions — DH, third base and left field.

The matchups:

FIRST BASE

Darrell Evans, a left-handed hitter, is the Tigers' regular first baseman, unless he plays at third base in Anderson's platoon. When Evans is at third, another left-handed hitter, Dave Bergman plays first. Steve Garvey, Most Valuable Player of the National League Championship Series, is the Padres' first baseman.

Evans hit only .232 during the season but drove in 63 runs and hit 16 home runs. Bergman was a .273 hitter with 44 RBI and seven home runs. Garvey had a subpar year, hitting only eight homers, but batted .264 with 96 RBI. He had seven RBI in the NLCS.

Give Garvey the edge.

SHORTSTOP

Alan Trammell has a sore shoulder, but he managed to be effective at shortstop for the Tigers during the playoffs, when he hit .364. Gary Templeton sparked San Diego's Game 3 victory.

Trammell hit .314 with 69 RBI and 14 homers, while Templeton batted .258 with 35 RBI and two homers.

Call this a tossup.

CATCHER

Lance Parrish of Detroit is one of the best in either league, while Terry Kennedy of San Diego has struggled this season. Parrish led the Tigers in homers with 33 while driving in 96 runs. Kennedy had 57 RBI and 14 homers after driving in 97 runs in 1982 and 98 in '83.

PITCHING

The Tigers have one of the best rotations in baseball. For the World Series, they'll use right-handers Jack Morris, 19-11, Dan Petry, 18-9, and Milt Wilcox, 17-9. The Padres will start with left-hander Mark Thorman, 14-6, followed by right-hander Ed Whitson, 14-6, left-hander Tim Lollar, 11-13, and right-hander Eric Show, 15-9, although he was bombed twice in the playoffs.

Just from the rotation, the Tigers appear miles ahead.

In the bullpen, the Tigers have Willie Hernandez, a left-hander who earned 32 saves with a 2.83 ERA and 14 in the playoffs, plus Jayvero, who earned 32 saves with a 3.00 ERA. Evans complemented by Aurelio Lopez, Juan Berenguer and Doug Hair.

The Padres' headliner in Rich Gossage, who had 57 saves and a 2.90 ERA. They also use left-handers Craig Lefferts and Dave Dravecky, a converted starter, and right-hander Andy Hawkins.

The Padres have a slight edge in the bullpen, but the Tigers enjoy a slight edge overall.

Campbell traded to Saints for No. 1 pick

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Earl Campbell, the powerful Heisman Trophy running back for the Houston Oilers, was traded in a flurry, hastily arranged swap deal to the New Orleans Saints who gave up their top two picks in the 1985 National Football League draft. The 29-year-old Campbell, a 5-foot-11, 238-pound running back, had been a mainstay of the Oiler's offense, scoring 153 touchdowns and running for 11,019 yards in 11 seasons. He was traded to New Orleans because the running back position had become crowded with the emergence of several talented young players. The trade gave the Saints two Heisman Trophy winners in the backfield — Campbell and Rogers.

Campbell entered the 1984 season as the ninth most productive runner in NFL history. Coming into the season, he had carried 1,883 times for 8,286 yards — a 4.4 average — with 44 touchdowns.

But he's had harder times this season with the Oilers, carrying 96 times for 278 yards, a 2.9 average. He has scored four touchdowns.

Phillips said that the Oilers offered him before noon Tuesday, when Ladd Herring called Pat Pappas, the Saints' director of football operations.

"Obviously, we are glad to get him," Phillips said. "I've never had too many good players. This trade gives us a heck of a backfield."
