Poly student wants position on harborboard

By KIM MILLER

A 21-year-old Cal Poly student is the only candidate looking for a spot on the Port San Luis Harbor Commission, but he doesn't think his age is a factor.

Brian C. Krewski, a political science major, will make his bid on Nov. 6 for one of three vacancies on the five-member board.

Krewski said that his age should not make a difference because Cal Poly students are old enough to vote. "If I prove I'm competent, I can save money, he said."

The young politician has worked for three years as maintenance personnel. "I feel I have adequate knowledge of the district," Krewski said.

To be eligible to run for the non-partisan position, a candidate needs only to live within the district, said Bill King, the harbor manager.

King, Krewski's boss, said that being simple and running operations of the harbor area makes Polk Poly board can didate.

"The inexperience of being a public official might hurt him a little," King said.

Krewski said that anyone living within the harbor district, which extends from Monterey to Nipomo, was eligible to run.

The Port San Luis board is often regarded as a Poly board because of the numerous parties held there by club organizations. The commission looks at subjects like those and decides whether or not an interest should be served. Krewski said.

Another concern of Krewski's is the lack of maintenance of equipment the commission sees as a waste of possible income.

Krewski explained that if the equipment like the dry launch and diesel equipment were upgraded, the Port could run on its own income.

Krewski faces incumbents Stewart Jenkins and Dennis Johansen as well as four other candidates. The Democratic primaries will be held Aug. 1st. The Democratic candidates are facing off for two spots since there are only two years on the board.

Nothing is free. But, you get what you pay for.

For instance, the Cal Poly women's volleyball team's first ever No. 1 rating is the result of a lot of hard work and discipline which has cost them time and effort.

The volleyball team, under the coaching of Mike Wilton, garnered its first No. 1 rating in an NCAA poll released Oct. 9.

Wilton said that Wilton and company are happy about their ratings and we extend congratulations to them.

We also encourage students to go out and show support for the Mustangs. After all, it doesn't cost anything to attend the game.

It's sort of.

Actually, it is a trade-off. Athletic programs are subsidized through the Instructionally Related Activity Fund which is not a free source of revenue. The amount of the fund used by the athletic department costs each student $7 per quarter, $21 per year and comes to an overall student body cost of $237,597.

In exchange, students get free admission to volleyball, basketball and other athletic events, except for football. But even then they get a reduced price of admission.

Then there is the marketing of the team, which is done by the athletic director. He said he is pleased with the subsidy set up because it has helped attendance at the sporting events (1,680 people at the Oct. 6 volleyball match) and has kept sports like women's volleyball, from being cut.

But the funds doesn't just help out sports teams. Although about two-thirds of the funds go to athletics, the other monies in the fund go to support other activities on campus, like the Cal Poly Marching Band.

The IRA is a good idea, and students should take advantage of the sporting opportunities it makes available.

It isn't everyday you get a number one team on campus.

Sandwiching down the dunes in Montana de Oro, campers were in for a treat. The work they had been doing was paying off. After weeks of practice and repair and bowling tournaments are just a few of the activities and events sponsored by the University Union Recreation Department.

A few more activities, and you may not get involved. One is that they don't know how to do and the other is that they don't know what to do with things such as rock climbing, but they wouldn't want to try them.

The Cal Poly Montana Crew Club has 110 students on its roster, but has yet to establish itself in practice rowing.

The club plans to have two new 8-man boats available for practice Winter Quarter. The club is working on acquiring three more boats and will hold morning and evening practices starting Winter Quarter.

New crew club started up.

Lyons professors specializing in different artists' expressions will have students in their rooms by Winter Quarter. The faculty adviser for the group is Lloyd Fowler and Frank Gray will coach the team.

Kay Herrel The incident happened at the training site for crew but the club status allows the members to compete against USF, Stanford and Berkeley. McCoy said.

Now the club is seeking potential participants in two or three weeks. Crewing Gray said he will take the only boats they have and the facility is required to house the boats before they are obtained.

The work of artists who died young but left lasting impressions, was presented Oct. 5 at the Cal Poly Theatre.

The production was a collaboration by four Cal Poly professors specializing in different artistic expressions.

Portrait artist Dan Piehl first began working with the class of students representing larger-than-life portraits of stars who died young, like Marilyn Monroe, James Dean and Elvis Presley. Elke Pfeiffer Miller joined Piehl to work on dramatic interpretations along the same theme. In "St. Nono," Pfeiffer Miller presented her interpretation of John Keats. "The Exiled St. Agnes." John Russell and Cynthia Nazarios joined efforts to expand the concept as an idea for a showing. Russell, a composer, felt that any theme developed from a concept should include the works of Mozart and Schubert.

Russell was interested in Greek mythology as well, and together with choreographer Nazarios, applied the story of Endymion to dance. Endymion is a story about a shepherd boy who enchanted Selene, goddess of the moon. She cast a spell on him so that she could possess him, but the plan backfired and he killed her instead.

Music from a modern synthesizer accompanied Endymion's story, giving it a futuristic appeal. The theatre opened its doors to a full house that raced over the performances of Professor Ronald Yarrow, Ray Rycl, Goldberg and Rod A. K. 1 and a duet made up of Jeanne Claus on violin and Susan Azarel-Davis on the piano playing Schubert's "Sonatina in D Major, Op. 137, No. 1." A quartet made up of six of five players, performed Mozart's "Krakow." In F. flat, for Horn and Strings, K. 407. Dr. Clifton Swanson, the bass player, explained the six member group by saying, "I like it better with bass."

The Galerie will display Piel's portraits through Oct. 21. The student group is sponsored by the ASI Fine Arts and Humanities Committee, the School of Com-

Citizen squad wants to halt the flames

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — After three years of blazing buildings and cars, a citizen's group decided to halt the flames, using an $18,000 grant to list arson targets and asking the city to order the zon­eh­able structures repaired.

"It took a lot of hard work, much more than we thought," said Linda Terry of Organized People of East Oakland Neighborhoods. "We gathered information with the help of fire officials, the city manager's office and insurance agencies.

OPEN gathered the money to change the grant after the Ford Foundation offered five grants for U.S. cities interested in setting up neighborhood arson prevention programs.

After 23 arson fires from 1980 to 1983, OPEN decided to apply, then used the money to ram­mage through public records, finally identifying 12 properties they felt were likely arson targets.

Last week, they asked the Oakland City Council to list property owners on a public good.

The law allows government agencies to take over private pro­perties for the public good.

Brother of baseball star's Morgan shot

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — David Morgan, younger brother of baseball star Joe Morgan, was in stable condition Wednesday after he was shot Tuesday night by a police officer trying to break up a fight outside a bar.

The 29-year-old was booked by police for investigation on charges involving marijuana and cocaine.

Police said two officers found Morgan and Henry Connor, 34, fighting in a parking lot outside the bar shortly before midnight.

Officer Larry Eade saw a 38-caliber handgun in Morgan's waistband, according to Deputy Police Chief Tom Donohue. Morgan moved quickly, as if he were about to grab the weapon, Donohue said, and Eade fired, hitting Morgan.

A nursing supervisor at Highland Hospital said today that Morgan was shot in the back but was in stable condition.

Police also found a small gun on Connor and said both men had marijuana and cocaine.

Police Chief Tom Donohue said the shooting appears to have been justified but will be in­vestigated further.

Joe Morgan is an Oakland native who played last season for the Oakland A's.

Former DA drops libel suit against Bee

FRESNO, Calif. (AP) — Former Fresno County District Attorney William A. Smith dropped a libel suit against the Fresno Bee after con­cluding his dismissal was due to a "difference of opinion and inter­pretation.

Smith was named in an article published May 31, 1992 that linked him to organized crime in the Fresno area.

He explained that he dropped the suit for two reasons.

"First, as I see it, none of the defendants were accusing me of accepting any money illegally for any purpose," Smith said.

Smith said he also decided to drop the suit after concluding from depositions that "the reporters' interpretations of my methods of administra­tion differed greatly from his own.

But he added, "In some in­stances, the reporters had different opinions, and I respect their right to them.

Smith filed the suit last year against the newspaper and several reporters whose names were dropped from the suit earlier.

“RUSH TO SEE ‘COUNTRY,’ the passionate, intelligent thunderbolt that brings its drought of meaningless movies to a merciful end. Superbly directed by Richard Pearce,... Jessica Lange delivers an eloquent, gritty performance sure to be remembered at Oscar time.”

“Country” is a poignant tribute to the dogged spirit of the American farmer. It is unflinchingly powerful, a tragic and poetic movie of the '80s, with almost as much grit and honesty as the classic film “The Grapes of Wrath.”

A solid work of immense integrity and artistic grasp... ‘Country’ makes the audience cry. You’ll be rooting for the doomed. An eloquent, gritty performance sure to be remembered at Oscar time.”

Jessica Lange not only deserves cheers for her superior acting, but for her achievement in co-producing one of the year’s finest films.

“Strong, emotionally high-pitched and superbly acted drama. It demonstrates, once more the blinding talent and intelligence of actress Jessica Lange.”

Lange and Shepard have the gift of being totally real and totally glamorous at the same incandescent moment...*

“Country,” like “Nick and the Night Wood” and “Norma Rae” before it, merits a place in the pantheon of populist movies about little people in the thrall of monstrous injustice.

Mendocino considers pot
UKIAH, Calif. (AP) - The Mendocino County Board of Supervisors is considering a request for an emergency declaration against marijuana growers, and Gov. George Deukmejian said he would give serious consideration to such a plan. Emergency declarations traditionally apply to floods, fires or civil disturbances and usually qualify local governments for emergency state or federal aid.

But Supervisor Jim Eddie said that while the county is giving "a fairly high priority" to ridding the area of the violent pot farmers, the program "begins to siphon funds from the libraries, museums and everything else, and that isn’t fair." On Tuesday, the board formed a committee to study the possibility of the emergency declaration.

In the past three weeks, marijuana burnout season violence has included one killing, two other shootings and a beating. Supervisor Dan Hamburg called the marijuana growers' gangsters. Jack Beecham, commander of the state’s Campaign Against Marijuana Planting, said "certain parts of this county have been taken over" by the marijuana growers. And the woods are unsafe for hikers.

Northrop Tighershark crash
LOS ANGELES (AP) - The nation’s newest jet fighter, the F-20 Tighershark that has been plagued by a dearth of buyers, crashed during a demonstration flight in South Korea Wednesday, killing Northrop Corp.’s chief test pilot.

The crash occurred at Suwon Air Base, about 20 miles south of Seoul, said Maria Oharenko, spokeswoman for Los Angeles-based Northrop Corp.

The plane plunged earthward while strafing the ground with a machine gun at an altitude of about 300 feet, according to South Korea’s Yonhap News Agency.

About 100 Korean dignitaries were watching.

Killed was Darrell E. Cornell, 52, of Lancaster, Calif., and Ms. Oharenko. Darrell, raised in Fargo, N.D., had been with the company since 1962 and had been its chief test pilot since 1980.

“Cause of the Tighershark crash was under investigation,” Ms. Oharenko said.

It was the second time in six weeks that a chief test pilot for an aerospace firm had been killed during a test flight or demonstration flight. Rockwell Corp. chief test pilot T.J. Leung was killed Aug. 29 when an F-111 bomber prototype crashed during a test flight in the Mojave Desert.

Ms. Oharenko confirmed that Northrop was negotiating possible Tighershark purchases with the South Korean government, as well as with other countries in the Middle East.

The Tighershark was developed specifically for the third-world countries as a less expensive, easier maintenance alternative to America’s top-of-the-line jets with their hefty perks and high repair costs.

The Tighershark costs about $1 million, compared to between $20 million to $25 million for the F-16 and F-18. But Northrop, which has poured $700 million into developing the aircraft, has failed to find any purchasers since the craft flew in 1982.

Charlie Daniels Band

By BRENDA BIELEK
The "patron saint of boogie woogie" as one reviewer described Charlie Daniels, will appear in Cal Poly's Main Gym on Thursday Oct. 14 at 7:30 p.m. Advance tickets are $9.75 for students and $10.75 for the public and may be purchased at the University Union Ticket office, Cheap Thrills and Bob Bus Records. Tickets will be $10.75 for students and $11.75 for the public at the door.

Daniels, a Grammy Award-winning country singer, brings his fusion of American musical roots together into music varying from southern hard boogie woogie and blues to rock 'n' roll. The singer, musician and songwriter has described his music as "blue collar music" because it's about people, common people.

The North Carolina-grew up listening to the bedrock southern music of black blues and country. He then discovered the "new" music called bluegrass from Bill Monroe, Lester Flatt and Earl Scruggs. His first band was bluegrass but he quickly learned that it was the newer rock 'n' roll people wanted to hear. Eager to make his fame and fortune, he moved to Washington D.C. when he was twenty and played the bars. He later worked as a sessions picker for the likes of Bob Dylan and Ringo Starr.

Charlie Daniels has been described as "the last true keeper of the flame of southern rock." Long-haired rock 'n' rollers that made up such bands as the Allman Brothers Band, Lynrd Skynyrd and the Marshall Tucker Band hit their heyday in the mid-seventies when country-rock was in full force, then faded into the oldies show on the radio. Charlie Daniels, however, has managed to keep alive the power of southern rock, which was strong enough to put Daniels on the top of both the country and rock charts at the height of disco fever with his 1979 hit "The Devil Went Down to Georgia." The country boy's influence on the South has his "The South Do" as a virtual anthem "Dixie." But his music strikes deeper than regional jingoism and the traditional themes found in much of country rock-guitar-picking.

Chuck Mangione, luring listeners like the Pied Piper of jazz with his mellow tones, will perform two shows at 7 and 9:30 p.m. Advance tickets are $10 for students, $11 for the public, and are available at the University Union Ticket Office, Cheap Thrills and Boo Boo Records. Tickets are a dollar more at the door.

Though a standard in jazz circles, Mangione did not become popularly known until the circle was broken with his pop hit, "Feels So Good," for which he was named Billboard Magazine's top instrumentalist in 1979 and Rolling Stone Magazine's jazz artist of the year the same year.

The plaudits suggest a new direction for the jazz trumpeter and the Chuck Mangione Jazz Quartet, whose credits now range from musical scores for movies, plays and Olympic games to the steady production of albums. His latest, "Disguise," released in August.

Early fans know he won a Grammy in 1977 for best instrumental composition of "Bellavida," and were familiar with the background music played during the 1976 Winter Olympics. Mangione's "Chase the Clouds Away." Newer fans know his music written specifically for the 1980 Winter Games, "Give it All You Got,"—he also performed there at the closing ceremonies—and the well-known score to the lesser-known movie based on Oscar Lewin's book, "Children of Sanchez." In a sense he has replaced Johnny Mathis as the master of romantic mood music. The combination of soft jazz guitar and Mangione's flugelhorn, now singing sweetly, now growling seductively, suggests tender August evenings or prompt moments of inner reflection.

His range is wide, from the touching "Lost Dance" on the Feels So Good" album to the title cut and its variations on "Children of Sanchez."

His style, though, is unmistakable.

To his credit is the theme song for the movie "Cannonball Run" and music for the play "Leonardo," which opened in Los Angeles in April.

Spaniard ambassador kidnapped

BEIRUT Lebanon (AP) - Kidnappers with automatic rifles ab ducted the Spanish ambassador to Lebanon on Wednesday, but he was freed unharmed four hours later after Lebanon's largest Moslem militia intervened.

The Lebanese prosecutor general said Ambassador Pedro Mansan-Fernandez, 57, returned to the Spanish Embassy after being released. He later went to his home.

The prosecutor, Camille Geagea, said de Aragun was turned over to police at 7:03 p.m. (2003 GMT) after negotiations with the unidentified kidnappers by the Shiite Moslem militia Amal.

Lebanon's state television said the kidnappers staged the abduction "because they have relatives held in Spanish jails. There is no other political motive for the abduction."

The report apparently referred to two Lebanese Shiites held in Spain in connection with the shooting of a Libyan diplomat in Madrid last week.

General to battle with CBS news

NEW YORK (AP) - Jury selection was completed Wednesday in retired Gen. William C. Westmoreland's $120 million libel suit against CBS over the network's broadcast of a documentary about his actions in the Vietnam War.

Westmoreland and CBS News correspondent Mike Wallace, who narrated the 1982 documentary, sat a few feet apart in the courtroom but did not speak to each other.

Westmoreland, who commanded American forces in Vietnam from 1964 to 1968, claims CBS falsely and maliciously defamed him in its "CBS Reports" documentary, "The Untold Story: A Vietnam Deception." The broadcast depicted him as the head of a 1967 conspiracy to underestimate deliberately enemy troop strength in order to maintain political support for the war.

Opening arguments were expected to begin Thursday before U.S. District Judge Pierre N. Leval, who selected 12 regular jurors for the case Tuesday and chose six alternates Wednesday.

On Wednesday, Westmoreland walked past without stopping as Wallace sat at the defense table outside the courtroom. Wallace paused to display a quotation from his book "Close Encounters," in which he quotes from a 1972 letter he received from Westmoreland: The general congratulated Wallace on "a first-rate piece of reporting" for a "60 Minutes" story on wounded soldiers. Wallace said he still has the letter, but does not know if it will be introduced at the trial.
Prostitute refuses help in raising kids

BAKERSFIELD (AP) — Ironically, Pandora turned her first trick on Mother's Day so she could support her 8- and 11-year-old daughters.

She took the girls to the park for the day, then, out of work and broke, drove to a truck stop east of Bakersfield and started knocking on cab doors.

Since then, Pandora, not her real name, has become one of the regular prostitutes at Bakersfield-area truck stops.

"A lot of people look down on what I do," she says. "But at least I'm not standing in the welfare line or getting married to support my kids."

The girls know their mother is a prostitute.

"My oldest one says, 'Mom, I know why you're doing it,'" Pandora says.

The brunette divorcee is 31, older than most hookers at the truck stop but she says her business has been steady, letting her earn $150-$250 a night tax-free.

She charges anywhere from $10 to $75, giving a discount to regular customers.

"I've got some drivers who only want to talk to me or hold me, and they pay just as much," Pandora says. "They get tired of the trucking business, and they want some company."

Prostitutes use that term "company" or "commercial company" while soliciting tricks over citizens band radios.

The women use CB names called "handles," such as Pandora, which she reserves for Bakersfield customers. On a trip east with a trucker, she used the handles "Honeydew," "Cinnamon Slammer" or "Bakersfield Halfbreed," referring to her half-French, half-American Indian ancestry.

Prostitutes hustling for businesses at truck stops describe themselves over the CB, and the trucker tells the type and location of his rig. He usually blinks the truck's lights as the prostitute walks by.

Most of the sex is conducted in sleeping compartments behind truck cab, but a trucker occasionally takes a prostitute to a motel room. Pandora says.

She claims to be more successful than most prostitutes because she treats the truckers with dignity.

"There's a lot of drivers who think I'm respectable, clean and dependable," she says. "It's not handled like a business. I'm not a clock watcher."

Bray

Bray's final two years at Los Altos High School were spent fighting injuries rather than competition. "I was so competitive. I wouldn't admit that I was actually injured. I refused to take time off," said Bray.

The injuries compounded as did her moves from college to college, running program to running program. Recruited out of high school to Cal State Northridge, Bray stayed only one quarter. Finding that it wasn't what she wanted, after her first collegiate cross country season she returned home to attend West Valley Community College.

No chance to recover from earlier injuries, Bray kept running, never achieving the standards she had achieved in high school. Utah State was next on her list of moves. Again dissatisfied, Bray returned after two quarters, finding her way to Poly.

It is an example of trying to find a "key to past success," said Lance Harter, coach of the women's cross country and track programs.

Please see BRAY, page 13.

To design and develop today's most technologically advanced defense products, General Dynamics requires the talents of many highly motivated Engineering and Scientific graduates.

This year, nearly half of our 1,500 technical hires will be in Electrical Electronic Engineering and Computer Science—goal oriented, high performance students who will graduate in the top half of their classes.

If you are one of these top performers, explore the wide range of opportunities available in the following technologies: Aeronautics, Advanced Signal Processing, Radar Systems, Embedded Software, Lasers and Electro-optics, Composite Structures, VLSI, Nonlinear Structural Analysis, Robotics and CAD/CAM.

At General Dynamics, you will work with our innovative professionals in applying these technologies toward a wide variety of aerospace, computer systems, electronics, shipbuilding and military land vehicle programs. Plus, you can stay current in your field and make the most of your career through our corporate wide training and lifelong education programs.

Don't settle for less than state of the art in your career. See your Placement Office for a campus interview with General Dynamics.

Yoko Sues Rams for $5 Million

LOUIS ANGELES (AP) - Former Los Angeles Rams defensive end Fred Dryer had his $5 million lawsuit against the team argued Wednesday before the California Supreme Court.

During the hearing, Dryer's attorney said the Rams waived his client, now a 39-year-old actor, despite the fact that he had a novitiate-cum-trade contract.

The action prompted the lawsuit against the organization, listing 15 years of action including bad faith, intentional, wrongful termination, intentional infliction of emotional distress, fraud and deceit, and breach of written and oral contracts.

Jabbar no longer the tallest Laker
INGLEWOOD, Calif. (AP) -- As the Los Angeles Lakers huddled during a break in practice, the "Big Guy," Kareem Abdul-Jabbar stood the shadow of a bigger guy - 7-foot Nevitt. Although Nevitt is the tallest player in National Basketball Association history and some three inches taller than Abdul-Jabbar.

Despite his towering height, Nevitt has been largely overlooked against Loyola last weekend. Cat Poly will face Cal State Bakersfield on Saturday in Mustang Stadium.

EDMONTON, Alberta (AP) -- Larry "Moose" Stubing, who guided the Edmonton Trappers to the Pacific Coast League baseball championship this year, has thrown his name in the ring as a replacement for Manager John McNamara of California Angels.

McNamara informed the Angels on Tuesday that he would be leaving the American League team. Stubing, 46, who took over the Angels' Triple A team in Edmonton last year, has been in the California organization for 17 years.

He has had only two losing seasons in his nine years as a minor league manager. He was named PCL manager of the year with Spokane in 1982.

Stubing says he believes he has a good chance to get the Angels' job because many players new with the major league team have played under him in the California farm system.
