Cal Poly sees success in ’84 homecoming

Festivities called some of the best in Poly’s history

By BREGG SCHROEDER

Homecoming 1984 proved to be one of the best in the history of Cal Poly, according to the associate athletic director.

Denny Martin Vide said not only were more students involved in homecoming activities this year, but also more alumni came back than in past years.

“Night of the Mustangs,” held downtown last Thursday night, was well received. Martin Vide said. Hughie Sney was crowded with students, alumni and locals who came to the Cal Poly Band and see the cheerleaders and athletic teams. Businesses downtown filled their windows with displays done in green and gold and barbecues were cooked to passersby courtesy of San Luis Floral and Gift Shop.

“Student and alumni involvement was outstanding.” Martin Vide said. Martin Vide was also pleased with the tailgate party held before the football game Saturday night.

About 300 people from the Alumni Association attended, according to Martin Vide. Concerning the football game, Martin Vide said there was a conflict of interest, he is the largest we’ve had in several years, figures were available by press time.

Martin Vide said a committee will meet in two weeks to plan homecoming next year. He hopes that in addition to improving upon the events that took place this year, a band will be planned for the next year and a live mascot will be featured at the football game.

Democrats backed by Anderson in SLO

By KAREN ELLICHMAN

Two hundred Cal Poly students and other San Luis Obispo residents crowded into the Monday Club on Oct. 19 to hear ex-presidential candidate John Anderson campaign for Walter Hensley. Anderson is running for the Democratic party nomination for the presidency.

Mondate and Geraldine Ferraro. Anderson said that although he remains an Independent, he supports the Democratic nominee for president because the national and world problems that should have been solved under the Reagan administration have not been solved.

Anderson, a former Republican, ran for president in 1980 as an Independent, receiving over six million votes. He said he sees no conflict between his former election attempt and his present support of the Democratic nominee of one of his opponents, President Jimmy Carter’s Vice-President Walter F. Mondale.

At that time (1980) I was running against Reagan and Carter not against their running mate, he explained.

Anderson outlined several factors during his San Luis Obispo speech that motivated him to support the national effort to persuade Independents to support the Democratic nominee. He briefly addressed the environmental and health problems associated with toxic waste sites. Reagan’s goal of nuclear supremacy as evidenced by his foreign policy initiatives, the President’s foreign “ostracism” policy towards the poor and the state of the American economy.

The Independent leader said the current administration is guilty of gross negligence in its lack of effort in cleaning up toxic waste sites.

Anderson said that only six of the 2,200 sites that need decontamination have been cleaned up.

“The lack of urgency on this health issue will cost us dearly,” he warned.

Anderson said the Reagan administration vetoed $5 million aimed at cleaning up the toxic waste sites, while spending billions of dollars on weapons. The presidential candidate also criticized Reagan for having representatives of the companies that produce toxic wastes on the regulatory boards.

We can’t afford to install in office people who, in the name of development, are willing to sacrifice the future, Anderson said.

Addressing the President’s nuclear policy, Anderson said that Reagan’s meeting with KGB President Andrey Gromyko a few weeks ago was too late and too inconclusive.

I heard no policy toward the President, he emphasized. I hold him in high regard. I don’t think the President is deliberately trying to start a war, but as I look at his mindset, and as I consider that it took almost 11 months before he resumed the Strategic Arms Reduction Talks. I think of lost opportunities that could have been used to build a more peaceful world.

Anderson said that Reagan has a weapon nuclear armaments policy. First, he wants to achieve nuclear superiority. and second, he wants to limit nuclear weapons buildup.

He added that the American public cannot be fooled into believing that nuclear arms can be built up at the same time that arms are limited.

Anderson said the problems in Central America cannot be solved by military methods. He compared current military endeavors in that area to President Calvin Coolidge’s failed effort of sending Marines to Nicaragua more than 30 years ago.

Then it was to save the Western world from Bolsheviks. Anderson said. We’re now up dated the word to communists. Actually, I believe we’re making communists by sending troops in.

Instead of recognizing the central problems of the area. Anderson ended his speech with a review of Reagan’s economic record. He said that although some people’s economic status has improved over the past four years, for the average family and especially for the poor, the last four years under the Reagan administration have seen a decrease in usable income. Reagan vociferated the decrease in inflation. Anderson said, but inflation is not down due to his policies. It is down due to the worst recession in 50 years and due to fortunate events such as low food and oil prices, which cannot be credited to Reagan.

Anderson said that the President’s economic policies are helpful to the wealthy and detrimental to the poor.

His policies are partitioning this country. Anderson said. They are not laying a foundation for a healthy future. Society will have problems in the future under Reagan’s economic policies.

Anderson’s appearance was sponsored by the local Democratic Central Committee.

Two Cal Poly students who lead the Students for Mondale-Ferraro campaign on campus said they were impressed with Anderson’s speech. Associate major Lynta Frediani said she thought his best point was that information about the nation’s economy which is presented by Republicans is inaccurate.

Political science major Jeff Hunt said Anderson’s view that Reagan’s nuclear weapons goals are contradictory was a major thrust of the speech.

Reapportionment is focus of controversial Prop 39

By ROSEMARY COSTANZO

Asmembymen Eric Seaward’s administrative assistant has called Proposition 39 the most controversial measure facing California voters this election.

Proposition 39 is the most crucial issue on the ballot this year and possibly of the decade. Leslie Ramey told a group of about 50 College Republicans.

Gary George Deukmejian is proposing this constitutional amendment which would remove the responsibility of reapportionment from the state Legislature and turn it over to a committee of eight retired Supreme Court and appellate justices.

One of the main objectives of Proposition 39 is to dissolve the process of gerrymandering. Gerrymandering is the practice of dividing a territorial unit into election districts to give one political party an electoral majority in a large number of districts, while concentrating the voting strength of the opposition in a few districts as possible.

Brian Perry, Reagan Bush youth chairman for San Luis Obispo County has called the initiative a nonpartisan move that would take the power of drawing district lines out of the hands of the politically controlled state Legislature. He said the Legislature has proven to respect their own self-interests over the interests of the people of California.

This is not a single party issue, said Perry. A conflict of interest exists when the Legislature draws the district lines in which majority party is in control.

Proposition 39 would amend the California state constitution to transfer the job of reapportionment from the Legislature to a reapportionment commission. The commission would be required to redraw districts for the 1986 election and mandate every 10 years.

Opinion

Working students deserve a break

No two students are alike, yet the people who are responsible for making up department curriculum seem to think they are.

But, they aren't. The differences between them is easily demonstrated in the way they pay for their education.

Working students are lucky enough to have to have their whole education paid for by parents or by some form of financial aid, others have to work their way through school. It is these working students who are being forced to bear an unreasonable burden because school officials are taking advantages of impacted programs.

They believe that the seemingly infinite applicants for their finite spaces justifies the way they conduct their business.

In this they are wrong. "They say,"

We believe that some of the policies espoused by certain Cal Poly departments go against the idea that is the cornerstone of the the California State University system. That idea, that goal, is to provide students, particularly those of low income, a chance for a good college education.

It costs an estimated $5,000 for a student to complete a nine-month school year. To account for half of this total, a student would have to work at least 20 hours a week at minimum wage. In addition, some students need to take 18 units in order to graduate on time.

It is unreasonable for Cal Poly departments to make rigid unit demands of their students in order to get their degree in four years. We know these departments are impacted and have students waiting to get in, but it is also their responsibility to make room in their curriculum for the working student.

This is the student who needs to take less than 15 units quarter out of necessity. This student should not be looked at as lazy, but instead, as someone who may need more time to get through school.

Last week was Student Employment Awareness Week and according to statistics from the Placement Center, 6,580 students are registered for 4,250 jobs. These figures do not include the students who found jobs on their own.

Obviously, Cal Poly has a high percentage (roughly one third of its students) of working students.

These students have reason to be proud. They represent the finest ideal of all. The American work ethic. They are also carrying out the very creed of Cal Poly—learning by doing.

Letters

If departments continue to make unreasonable demands on these students, a valuable resource will be lost to the education system. It is not good enough for departments to point to their waiting lists to justify their tactics. Their is a bigger test of an education system than the number of students which move through the school in four years. One of those is the availability and access to a variety of students.

Arms control not answer to nuclear war concerns

Editor:

I am responding to Jim Austin's letter published (Oct. 15). In his letter, Mr. Austin posed five interesting questions to the issue of arms control. However, Mr. Austin answers to his own questions are

Mr. Austin would have us believe. They are not offering simple answers. By misconstruing the positions of the Democratic Party, the media and liberals.

It is my understanding that the position which these people take is far more intelligent than Mr. Austin would have us believe. They are not offering simple answers.

Mr. Mondale is supporting an arms agreement which would be mutual small beneficial, verifiable and laster.

But the problem of nuclear war is more than an arms race. We could eliminate all the weapons in the world and still have war. In the short run, we should do what we can to alleviate tensions between countries. This strategy is analogous to using firebreaks in the hills. In the long run, we can do what we can to change people's attitudes. In our war. There are other ways to resolve conflicts. How about using brains rather than brash?

Biker criticizes police's attitude

Editor:

A note about the Cal Poly Public Safety Department's attitudes toward bicyclists. It stinks.

Though personal experience and several Mustang Daily articles, it is clear to me that campus police would like to see bicycle prohited on campus. In the Daily article of Wednesday, Oct. 17, Ray Herrett is quoted. "We're trying to clean up some of the bike problems on campus. A more positive statement might have been, "We're trying to eliminate the need of cyclists to use handrails as hitting posts."

I believe Public Safety is not approaching the problem properly or with a good attitude.

My suggestion is similar to Public Safety's, though. It is very important that cyclists have access to a permanent fixture to which they can lock a bicycle, and ordinary bicycle racks are often insufficient. However, those of us with lightweight racing bicycles often cannot use this type, which can easily damage a lightweight wheel.

Handrails are a useful alternative. I suggest the new bicycle racks, mentioned in the Oct 17 article, incorporate this handrail idea. One hint would be that parking meters are useable with "l-shaped locks.

I do appreciate the fact that the campus authorities are working toward improving bicycle parking at Cal Poly. I am only resentful of their attitude. It seems to me that the motor-vehicle parking crunch the police would welcome, encourages police's attitude.

after each federal census, beginning in 1990. According to the proposition, the commission would be composed of retired Supreme Court jujges and appellate justices. The commissioners would be required to develop reapportionment plans which conformed to criteria set by the proposition. The plans would have to be drawn to give fair representation to all of the people, promote competition for elective office and provide for compact districts. The commission would be able to hold public hearings on plans before they could become final.

The co-chairmen of Cal Poly Student Senate Mondale/Ferraro disagreed with Perry and said that the proposition is definitely a partisan issue.

Perry argued that the change is necessary to California's constitution. "California is usually the leader in policy changes, but with this proposition we're followers because ten other states have already turned the duty of redistricting over to commissions."

Hunt said one of the major arguments against the proposition is that it would politicize the judiciary. "When appointing judges, governors would be thinking of the end result of drawing districts. They would tend to elect someone loyal to the party and in favor of redistribution to benefit their own party."

He added that voters will see this changing of the mission of the commission as a subversion of the checks and balances system, and that will lead to the defeat of Proposition 39. Perry said that the claim by opponents of the proposition that it would politicize the judiciary is the most outrageous statement of this election.

"Asking retired judges to be in charge of redistricting is an extension of our checks and balances system. We would have an independent commission instead of elected officials interested in promoting their own candidacy."

Proposition 39 would provide a common sense solution to the problem facing voters in California by taking this duty of redistricting out of the hands of petty, self-motivated members of the Legislature and putting it in the hands of an independent commission.

CONSERVATIVE

1. TENDING TO CONSERVE; PRESERVATION
2. TENDING TO FAVOR THE PRESERVATION OF THE EXISTING ORDER AND RESPOND TO PROPOSALS OF CHANGE WITH DISTRUST

American Heritage Dictionary

IS THE REAGAN ADMIN. CONSERVATIVE?

LET'S LOOK AT SOME FACTS

Conservatives have always stood for sound, cautious monetary policy traditionally opposing reckless borrowing. The chart on the right vividly shows the Reagan approach has been just the opposite. In fact he has run the government on more borrowed money than ever before. The candidate who in 1980 promised to reduce spending has in reality created deficits larger than all deficits combined since WWII.

FISCAL 1. POLICY

Here is an example where a centralized economy has been pushed at the expense of a decentralized approach more fitting to our economic tradition. The nuclear power industry, in spite of vast subsidies, has been an economic failure, while decentralized alternatives shown in the right have been a bright spot of American ingenuity & technological enterprise. Yet under Reagan support for alternatives has been massively cut while the greater subsidies to nuclear maintained. It's not an American tradition to reward failure & punish successful enterprise.

ENERGY 2. POLICY

The rule of law has always been a concern of conservatives, yet this administration has been flagrant in its violation of international law. The mining of Nicaragua’s harbors is a case in point. Regardless of our disagreements with Nicaragua it is a sovereign country with which we are not legally at war. Mining its harbors was a rash & illegal act causing men of integrity like Senator Goldwater to speak out forcefully against it. The U.S., in spite of such actions by the Reagan Administration, stands for international order not international anarchy of this sort.

FOREIGN 3. POLICY

The environment in which we all live (air, water, plants, & animals) is necessary for life. Conservation of this existing order is a concern to us all. The Reagan Administration’s record in this area has not been good. From the early scandals with toxic waste funds during the Burford administrated Environmental Protection Agency, through the antics of James Watt, to Pres. Reagan’s most recent attempt to reappoint Burford to an environmental position, it has been less a policy of conservation than one of exploitation and neglect.

ENVIRONMENTAL 4. POLICY

The Reagan Admin. has not been Conservative at all but has attempted to instigate radical changes in our society. Many of these changes we are convinced, are detrimental to America.

IN CONTRAST: 1. Mondale has spelled out difficult but necessary ways to combat the federal deficit.
2. The Democratic platform, unlike the Republican platform, supports alternative energy sources.
3. The Democratic candidates stand for making the world more secure through strength within the framework of law.
4. Mondale & Ferraro are more committed to conserving our environment.

WE URGE YOU TO VOTE FOR MONDALE AND FERRARO ON NOVEMBER 6TH.

Mangione blows his way to the top!

IM MILLER

Mangione's family is as much a part of his music as his flugelhorn, both of which go nearly hand-in-hand.

Mangione enjoys his music. He plays his horn as if it were the most beautiful sound in Earth, and admits his feelings toward the music: "This horn is like a woman. If you squeeze it during the day, at night when I have to play, there ain't nothing going on!"

The album "Disguise" contains two songs for family members. "Josephine" was written for his sister and "Diana D" after his daughter. Mangione has dedicated his albums to his relatives. "Freddie's Walkin'" is about his brother who has cerebral palsy and yet today at 18 plays baseball and bowling.

Mangione, now 44, studied music from 1958-1963 at the Eastman School of Music where he earned his bachelor's degree. During the concert he named all of the many instruments Chris Vadala plays. "I have to show my parents I learned something for their $40,000 worth," he said.

Once a year he teaches music to high school kids. When he works with them, not only does he play for them, but he inspires them.

He once said, "Look, please, look to the children. The children they know. In their eyes are the answers we seek. And their hearts feel the way to go. Love, give, live like the children."

"I was fortunate in having a father who brought jazz players home to play with my brother and me, and I am obligated to make a contribution back," he once told the Wisconsin State Journal.

"Papa" Mangione said, "There is not one top (jazz) musician who doesn't know me or my family or my children."

He said that when Mangione was young such artists as Dizzy Gillespie, Jimmy Cobb and Sarah Vaughan were regulars at the Mangione house.

Gillespie was a role model that the 15 year old patterned his music after. It was Gillespie who gave Mangione his background in Latin and African rhythm.

"Once a year I teach music to high school kids. When I work with them, not only do I play for them, but I inspire them."

He once said, "Look, please, look to the children. The children they know. In their eyes are the answers we seek. And their hearts feel the way to go. Love, give, live like the children."
Alumni power
Converse Aggies return to edge Mustang men

By KIM MILLER

Bitter because they were mostly alumni.

Coach Tom Henderson noted, "Almost everyone who beat us today used to run for Cal Poly and is a former All-American."
The Mustangs finished the course with 66 points against the Aggies, led by Carmelo Rios, who scored a low of 27.
The top Cal Poly finisher this week was Kevin Jones who finished sixth overall at 24:31.
"The Aggies made this a quality race. Instead of this being just college racing, they brought it up to national caliber," Henderson said. "They are one of the finest teams in the country at any level."

Henderson said this race was critical for the runners because it decided who will be going on to the regional meet at the University of California at Riverside.
"Almost everyone who beat us to date have made our job difficult deciding exactly who the top seven will be," he said.
Saturday's top finishers included Jones followed by Brent Griffiths at 25:03 and 10th overall; Mike Miner at 25:18 and 15th; Chuck Fanter at 25:16 and 17th; Dave Miner at 25:34 in 20th place.

Eight teams competed in the third annual Cal Poly SLO Men's and Women's Cross Country Invitational. Occidental finished behind Poly with 174 points, and San Jose State placed fourth with 183.
Henderson will choose Regional participants based on performances this week, although it is certain Jones, Griffiths, Miner, Pantzer and Livingston will make up the top five positions.

Bernal, Hernandez, Sean Crowley, Ken Ellingboe and Chris Craig will be evaluated based on performances this week.

"They train on the course on a regular basis. Knowing the course is critical in a cross country race. It's not like track—all tracks are basically the same," said Henderson.
Competing on home territory was a great advantage to the Mustangs.
"The course becomes more like a regular race when you know the course," Henderson said.

Shootings blamed on 'coke' syndicates

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Three weekend shootings in the poverty-stricken south-central area left a girl and seven other people wounded, but authorities said there was no evidence the attacks were related to each other or to a recent rash of gang violence.

Guns fired early Sunday during a party, injuring five people, in what detectives said was a gang war. Late Saturday, a 12-year-old girl was shot to death as her 22-year-old brother was riddled in a drive-by shooting. Fifteen minutes earlier, a 19-year-old man was critically wounded with a shotgun blast following an argument.

City police and county sheriff's deputies were investigating, but said they had no information linking any of the three, separate attacks to gang warfare. South-central Los Angeles has been wracked by gang violence that claimed 10 lives since Oct. 12.

The gang attacks apparently stemmed from a dispute between two warring cocaine syndicates, The Los Angeles Times said Saturday, quoting police officials who declined to be named.

Three men — ages 24, 25 and 29 — were shot Sunday during the early-morning party on West 124th Street near Normandie Avenue, then rushed to Daniel Freeman Memorial Hospital in Inglewood, said sheriff's spokesman Deputy Bruce Broussard. He said their conditions were listed as very critical, critical and serious.

Newman, now a professor of international law at the University of California at Berkeley, said in a recent interview the new Pentagon policy allowing only 12 journalists to cover a war denies press freedom without violating the U.S. Constitution.

The ex-justice pointed to the U.S. invasion of Grenada as an example of how the courts cannot guarantee under the First Amendment journalistic access to a combat area.

It is a fact, said Newman, that the First Amendment does not cover all free press issues, noting the existence of open-meeting and freedom of information laws.

Jews hold protest against Jackson's TV appearance

NEW YORK (AP) — The Rev. Jesse Jackson sang and crowed as host of NBC TV's 'Saturday Night Live,' but while he called his performance "political satire, perhaps at its best," not everyone saw it that way.

Jackson said he tried to "walk this delicate balance between message and celebration" as he did impressions of President Reagan and others, portrayed a zany game show host and chastised NBC for failing to hire more minority workers for the show.

The former Democratic presidential candidate got raucous laughter when he confessed to having a "silent passion" for United Nations Ambassador J. Kenneth Galbraith, one of the staunchest conservatives in the Reagan administration.

Heating oil in big supply, gas prices cause excess worry

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Average U.S. gasoline prices are up 2 cents a gallon since Labor Day, while heating oil prices are down by the same amount in a reversal of the usual seasonal patterns, analyst Dan Lundberg said Sunday.

Despite recent oil price cuts of 4 cents to 82 1/2 barrel, by Norway, Britain, the United Arab Emirates and Nigeria, gas prices still are rising unreasonably because of continuing strong demand for gas by U.S. motorists coupled with "disappointing" third-quarter refinery profits, Lundberg said.

For the two weeks ending last Friday, Lundberg's survey of about 7,500 gas stations in all 50 states showed that the average price of all grades of gasoline, including taxes, rose more than a tenth of a cent a gallon to $1.19 per gallon. The price hike was sharpest for premium leaded gasoline, he said.

Last June, Lundberg estimated that about 15,000 of the nation's 138,000 gas stations were selling regular leaded at self-service pumps for $1 per gallon or less. But last Friday, that figure had dropped to fewer than 100 stations nationwide.
China boldly reforms economic system

PEKING (AP) — China's new leaders are pressuring the economic system so quickly, the government is promising a "hard revolution" to ensure reform.

China will take off for a third time in the 1980s, he said, with the eventual aim of quadrupling national output and reunifying Taiwan with the mainland by the end of the century.

The proclamation by the third full meeting of the 12th Communist Party Central Committee also tries to allay fears that prices will rise, insisting that any increases will be carefully monitored and people's wages also will go up.

The proclamation includes price and wage reforms, decentralization of planning and control, and the "bold" promotion of qualified managers. The reforms build on Deng's 1979 innovations in rural enterprises.

Rebels renew attacks after peace talks

SAN SALVADOR, El Salvador (AP) — Leftist guerrillas armed with mortars and automatic weapons attacked an electrical installation north of the capital Sunday, killing 12 soldiers and wounding seven, a military spokesman said.

In a Sunday homily, a top Church official deplored renewed violence in this Central American nation a week after President Jose Napoleon Duarte and leftist guerrillas held initial peace talks, and cited new military operations and the deaths of four CIA operatives in an air crash.

New-wave film director dies of cancer

PARIS (AP) — Francois Truffaut, the French film director who headlined New Wave cinema and won awards from Cannes to Hollywood for his portrayals of ordinary people, died Sunday at the age of 52.

He said Truffaut died in a coma, regaining consciousness only briefly from time to time.

Truffaut's death was announced by the American Hospital in the Paris suburb of Neuilly, a spokesman there said. He said Truffaut was admitted about 10 days ago and fell into a coma, regaining consciousness only briefly from time to time.

Truffaut died in a coma, regaining consciousness only briefly from time to time.

Truffaut found out in 1983 that he had a brain tumor and took on a secluded life, seeing few people.

Nelson wins Golf Classic

LAKE BUENA VISTA, Fla. (AP) — Larry Nelson turned back Hubert Green’s late challenge with a 2-under-par 70 and put a positive finish to his season with a one-stroke victory Sunday in the Walt Disney World Golf Classic.

Nelson, whose last previous victory had come in the 1983 U.S. Open, scored his seventh career tournament victory with a spectacular 266 total for 72 holes. That’s 22 under par — the greatest subpar total of the season — and broke Jack Nicklaus’ tournament scoring record set in 1972.

The victory was worth $72,000 from the total purse of $400,000 and sent Nelson’s total for the year to $154,689. It also made Nelson something of a prophet.

Coming into the event Nelson said this season, in which he had been afflicted by a variety of injuries and ailments, had been his worst since 1978. But, he added, “I said all along I wouldn’t say it was a bad season until after Walt Disney.”

But it wasn’t easy.

Nelson started the hot, humid day with a 2-stroke advantage and held that margin most of the way.

But a series of 2-shot turns — three of them over the final five holes — made it close.

On the 14th, Nelson made bogey from the water and Green holed a 12-foot birdie putt, lifting Green into a tie for the lead.

On the next hole, there was another swing, this time in Nelson’s favor.

The team will be spending this week focusing on fundamentals, defensive positioning and anything else to help them come out of the UCSB Tournament this Friday and Saturday in Santa Barbara with three wins. Especially when they face 8th-ranked Nebraska. “They’ll be the toughest team we’ll play this weekend,” Willton said.

Poly intercepts Northridge

By ROSEMARY COSTANZO

"It was a vindictive victory," said Sanderson. "I don't know if I'm prouder to be head coach or of the fact that I'm also defensive back coach at Cal Poly." The Mustang defense held Northridge to 24 yards rushing on 30 carries, less than an average of one yard per carry. The defense was also able to snag six of Matador quarterback Charlie Wegher's throws for 121 yards. Kicker Art Gonzales chalked up a kicking record by scoring 14 points in one game. The Matadors gained 117 yards in the air with 9-of-28 throws completed.

Mustang starting quarterback Yale Keckin gained only 38 yards on 12 carries, less than an average of one yard per carry. With just over six minutes left in the third quarter Keckin plunged into the end zone from the one-yard line for the first touchdown of the game. The point after attempt by Gonzales was good bringing the score to 10-0.

After a scoreless first quarter punter Gonzales put three on the board from the 37-yard line. Keckin missed a scoring opportunity on the third down by throwing the ball into the ground with tight end Nick Cummins wide open in the end zone.

The point after attempt by Gonzales was good bringing the score to 10-0. After a pass slipped out of the hands of tight end Darnone Johnson in the end zone fullback Joey Kolina gained six yards for a first down. The Mustangs made it 23-0.

Cummins sacked Wegher in the backfield with 24 yards rushing on 30 carries, less than an average of one yard per carry. The Mustang defense held Northridge to 24 yards rushing on 30 carries, less than an average of one yard per carry.
