Mock elections to be sponsored by Cal Poly club

By ROSEMARY COSTANZO
Staff Writer

Today and Thursday, Cal Poly students will be able to vote for the president of the United States and staff members applauded.

The GRC students, faculty and students will be able to vote for the Cal Poly Historical Society will be holding mock elections to polls close to see if students can predict the outcome of the nation's elections on Nov. 6.

Students will be able to cast their vote between 9 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. at tables set up in the University Union Plaza or between the Agriculture Building and Math Building.

"We hope to be able to tally results every hour," said Jim Kelly, president of the historical society.

Results of the election will be in Thursday evening.

Spring in England offered to students

After the presentation, senior GRC major Tom Freed and department chairman Leo Brown demonstrated how the station wagon size machine works by printing several posters for members of the audience.

"There is special significance beyond the mere presence of this piece of equipment," Levensen said, referring to the new press.

"Heidelberg technology indicates that the print media is alive and well," Roper said, referring to the new press.

"Heidelberg has contributed much to the growth and development and vitality of the printing industry, and today Cal Poly is the recipient of such quality," Levensen said.

The new Heidelberg press was initiated Oct. 22 in Cal Poly's graphic communications department.

The new four-color computerized printing press donated to Cal Poly by the Graphic Communications Department was dedicated to the department on Oct. 22 by Dr. Harvey Levensen, department head, and by Herbert Roper, president of Heidelberg West.

"The Heidelberg press is the largest single gift ever received by the Graphic Communications Department," said Levensen.

"Heidelberg has contributed much to the growth and development and vitality of the printing industry, and today Cal Poly is the recipient of such quality," Levensen said.

The graphic communications department head presented posters printed by the new press to several Heidelberg representatives, as about 50 GRC students, faculty and staff members applauded.

"The historical society is pitching in to demonstrate that history is a tool used to analyze the presidential campaigns," said history professor Dan Kriger.

"The method CBS uses to predict the national results right after the election are called 'not political scientists,'" explained Kriger.

"People think that political scientists have always been involved in analyzing elections, but historians have been analyzing election results for years. Political scientists use the data historians are using with their own needs," said Kriger.

"Kriger said he believes Cal Poly to be the most conservative campus, following the profile of the American people.

The Student Senate meets every Wednesday night at 7 p.m. in Room 220 of the University Union.

The estimated cost for the London Study Program, in addition to regular Cal Poly quarter fees, is $2,990. This price includes air transportation from Los Angeles to London and return at $620, AIFS program fees at $1,790, and the optional British Life and Culture course and Tour of Britain at $475.

"I really feel that the London Study Program is very enriching for Cal Poly students," said Ericson. "We have capable, bright students at this university, but they have traveled abroad to learn about a new and different culture."

The London Study Program was so successful last year that it is again being offered to all Cal Poly students.

The program has been scheduled for Spring Quarter 1985 and is sponsored by the School of Communications.

On Thursday, Oct. 25 at 11 a.m. an informational meeting about the London Study Program will be held in the Cal Poly Theatre.

Jon Ericson, dean of the School of Communications, explained that the curriculum of the program is aimed at providing general education courses for students.

"As a result, students who participate in the program will not fall behind in their required courses. They will be able to graduate as planned," he said.

The program is sponsored by Cal Poly in cooperation with the American Institute for Foreign Study (AIFS). AIFS is a nationwide organization founded in 1964 to provide comprehensive overseas study and travel programs for students and teachers.

Students will be housed in the Kensington area, which is the cultural center of London. Within walking distance are the Royal Albert Hall, the Royal College of Art, the Victoria and Albert Museum, and many other London attractions.

"The students will live in old Georgian townhouses and there will be two to four in a room," said Ericson. "These townhouses were constructed in the late 18th century and they're like nothing you've ever lived in before.

Classes for the London Quarter will be located on the campus of the University of Westminster Square College. The four-square college is an offshoot of the College of Westminster College.

Many of the houses were built in the late 17th century by courtiers, descendants at a monarch's court who wished to live near the King. William of Orange, who resided at nearby Kensington Palace (where Prince Charles and Diana, Princess of Wales now live).

A meal plan, which is part of the program fee, will be provided for students.

"We have 10 meals and 5 breakfasts and 5 lunches per week, Monday through Friday. All food plans are the student's own responsibility."

Fall for another ceremony

Sometimes it seems like a college student’s life is full of pressures that won’t stop.

Passing that next history midterm, paying November’s rent, getting through the quarter...and getting that diploma in four, short years.

In order to graduate on time — in June — students sometimes have to overload their schedules, taking 17 or 18 units a quarter while also working to pay never-ending bills.

With a graduation ceremony held at the end of Fall Quarter, in addition to the June ceremony, many students would have a great burden lifted from their shoulders.

They could take less units and spend more time getting a quality education knowing that they had another opportunity, other than June, to graduate.

Donald Coats, commencement coordinator, has recommended a Fall Graduation to President Baker, and the reactions were favorable.

Coats is now waiting for an endorsement from the Student Senate and the Academic Senate before going ahead with plans for a fall ceremony.

We encourage the two senates to endorse the proposal.

Some students have no problem getting through their department requirements in four years and graduating with their degree. But in many cases, it takes up to one, two, three or more extra quarters.

What a relief it would be to know that if one didn’t have all the necessary graduation requirements finished when June rolled around, there would be another opportunity.

Many of the students who take an extra quarter to graduate don’t come back in June because they lose interest or have jobs that they can’t get away from. According to Coats, only 15 percent of the people who graduate in December go through graduation exercises in June.

Holding an additional graduation ceremony would also ease the crunch of space at the June ceremony.

Every student who graduates deserves the recognition of getting their degree, no matter how long it takes them.

Coats said he expects up to 425 students will want to participate in a fall ceremony.

Education Secretary T.H. Bell recently criticized colleges for having low standards of education requirements, which is evident in the low scores of many college graduates’ Grade Record Examinations.

Bell suggested that all undergraduates, no matter what their major is, take two full years of liberal arts courses, even if it takes more than four years for them to get their degree.

Perhaps the reason students are not scoring very high on their graduation exams is because they feel so pressured into graduating in four years, that they do not put the effort into their non-major classes.

It is reasonable to expect every student to have a broad background of knowledge, technical and creative majors alike.

But, it is unreasonable to expect students to become knowledgeable in two years worth of general education and master their professional skills in just four years.

We hope they will think about: relieving the pressures of the students who can’t finish school in twelve quarters; the students who can’t come back for a June ceremony; and helping to ease the overcrowded June ceremony.

Stenner Glenn employee lists crime prevention steps

Editor

I am writing in response to several articles in which you informed the public of the assaults that occurred at Stenner Glenn.

A casual glance at these articles would lead the reader to believe that Stenner Glenn has a problem with this type of activity, but the contrary is true.

Stenner Glenn is currently the largest off-campus student housing facility. The high concentration of college students in proportion to the increase in the likelihood of crime.

We realize this and therefore provide an extensive security service which includes nightly lockup of the buildings and security guards which patrol the complex.

The articles in the Mustang Daily included all the horrifying facts of this violent and emotional crime, but your staff avoided a follow-up to see what has been done about these assaults.

In light of the incidents, several steps were taken to apprehend the assailant and deter any future assaults. They include:

1. Increased tenant awareness of the seriousness of the problem.
2. Sexual Assault workshop sponsored by Stenner Glenn and the San Luis Obispo County Rape Crisis Center.
3. Extra hours the student staff patrol and watch for suspicious activity.
4. Stenner Glenn cooperated with the local police department to set up an extensive undercover investigation.
5. Several of the student staff members assisted the police in apprehending a suspect in the case.

As a member of the Stenner Glenn staff, I want to thank the Fall staff who avoided a follow-up to the public of the assaults that occurred at Stenner Glenn.

There is a new club on campus that has just started up, but has confronted some unexpected difficulties of late. The coalition of Americans Pro-Life University Students has been trying to advertise its existence using posters around campus.

However, its attempts have been muffled by certain individuals who insist on destroying the posters. In fact the average poster had a life-span of much less than an hour.

What is the problem here? At the very least, it is a strange way of expressing one’s political views.

These people cannot bear to allow free expression of freedom of expression to others who might be politically opposed to their own personal views. What a travesty, an irrational way of opposing political views in a democratic society. Are they afraid of the political actions that may be taken by a Pro-Life movement in America? Or maybe they feel like a guilty or ashamed about something?

Regardless, isn’t it time for somebody out there to start giving an explanation for their strange actions or views? Isn’t about time to face the facts.

Poly debate team wins awards
Student last eight rounds

By KAREN ELLICHMAN
Staff Writer

At its second forensics tournament of the year, the Cal Poly Debate Team won awards in San Diego. The team took second and another championship in prelim rounds and final rounds on Oct. 20 and 21, said the assistant debate coach.

Debate Team member senior Barbara Binney said the team learned a lot from the tournament. Binney was second place in the junior division. "I thought my team contributed a lot, I think we will take an award at a debate tournament after eight rounds of competition," said Barbin, a communication lecturer and debate team coach.

"We’re taking mainly novice and junior level teams to that competition," she said, "and we expect to have teams in semi-final and final rounds in both divisions, if they don’t in fact win the tournament.”

The competition was good at San Diego. With one team placing second and another claiming the preliminary rounds, there is no reason to believe that Cal Poly’s performance is not indicative of how the team members will do in future rounds. That’s the way it is."

Krause said the Debate Team will travel to the San Juan Docks Invitational tournament in Stockton on Oct. 27 and 28.

"We’re taking mainly novice and junior level teams to that competition," she said, "and we expect to have teams in semi-final and final rounds in both divisions, if they don’t in fact win the tournament.”

He had been here for more than a month. He stood alone on a platform. He was shouting, shouting, shouting. He was a tired protester from the Whitehouse. On a Saturday afternoon, he was here. He was alone. He was tired. He was shouting.

"There is no reason or logic for the proliferation of Nuclear War," he said. "We have power in numbers. We can do this. We must do this.

He looked out over the almost empty park. He thought of the Whitehouse across the street. On the way, he noticed that the street was empty. No one seemed to know the difference. No one seemed to care.

He couldn’t reach for it. His stomach overcame his conscience. He couldn’t do it. He didn’t see anyone. His stomach overcame his conscience and he walked across the lawn to the street. On the way, he noticed that a sign had appeared: "There was painted a bomb explosion in black and gray and red. He looked ahead. He heard that the President was coming back from Washington. D.C.

"We have power in numbers. We must do this," he said.

"That’s the way it is."

The young activist remained on the stage, reciting the familiar script. He thought of the almost empty park. He thought of the Whitehouse. If the President drove in, would he see his sign? It was the least he could do. It couldn’t hurt. To the other end. The sign was there. It was there, cumbersome sign in hand. He ran across quickly; the asphalt; was warm.

The piece of paper in his shirt pocket was turned back and picked it up. There was a bomb explosion in black and gray and red. The caption above read, “Is this our future?” Stan kind of liked this one. Reagan should really see this. He hoped he wouldn’t miss the motorcyclist while he was gone.

He turned around. He wanted a hot dog.

"No, my friends," Stan concluded, "there is hope for a safe future if we only continue our efforts and fight, fight, fight.” Stan folded the piece of paper and left it. He thought of the almost empty park. He thought of the Whitehouse. If the President drove in, he said, "I would do this. It was the least he could do. It couldn’t hurt."

To the other end. The sign was there. It was there, cumbersome sign in hand. He ran across quickly; the asphalt; was warm.

A few tourists were taking pictures of the Whitehouse, but that was no matter. The security man was in his little booth inside the locked gate and seemed to be reading a magazine. What’s a sign? thought Stan. So there he put it - right beside the driveway. And off went Stan down the street to the hotdog stand.

A few feet down the short block, Stan heard a frantic voice. "Stop right there, police." Stan spun around and saw Four big men surrounded him and threw him against the iron gate. They tripped him and coiled his arms behind his back. He was bewildered. The policeman read him his rights. Stan said nothing.

"We’d like to see everyone get a chance," he said.

The Special Events Committee sponsored a similar program last year known as The Coffee House. With a new name and greater in involvement, the shows will be a recurring form of entertainment sponsored, said James. "Hopefully, we’ll get a lot of involvement," he said.

The committee is still working out a format for the shows. "We’re trying to decide if the shows will be a recurring format of entertainment," said James. "We’re hoping to get a lot of involvement." He said James. "We’re trying to decide if the shows will be a recurring format of entertainment," said James. "We’re hoping to get a lot of involvement." He said James.

Six agree not to work on US contracts

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Six past and present employees of National Semiconductor Corp. have agreed not to work on government contracts for three years in a settlement stemming from the company's admission of fraudulently testing military chips, the U.S. Defense Department says.

The Defense Logistics Agency, an oversight and procurement agency within the Defense Department, said the individuals did not admit to any wrongdoing and none were charged with criminal violations.

In March, National pleaded guilty to a 40-count indictment, including counts of mail fraud and making false statements to the government, and paid $1.75 million in penalties and fines.

The indictment stemmed from the inadequate testing of military chips from 1978 to 1981. The chips sold by National have been used in a wide range of aerospace and military equipment, from fighter planes to walkie-talkies to space shuttles.

On Monday, National said that it eliminated all government duties from the job of Clements E. Pause, a vice president and corporate officer, and has transferred two employees out of its military and aerospace operations. The other three people named by the Defense Logistics Agency no longer work at National.

At the same time, the Defense Logistics Agency said it dropped its formal proceedings to bar the individuals from future government work.

Group protests president’s veto of bill

FRESNO (AP) — Carrying signs that charged “Here First, Served Last,” about 30 people marched outside the federal building in Fresno to protest President Reagan’s veto of a bill to improve health care for Indians.

The Indian Health Care Improvement Act, which was vetoed Friday, would have provided $30 million for Indian health care in California, including $3 million in the San Joaquin Valley, said Manuel Garcia, executive director of Central Valley Indian Health Inc.

Demonstrators picketing during the noon hour Monday issued a statement which said Americans and Indians have the nation’s highest rates of alcohol-related deaths and excess and lack sufficient prenatal care.

SANTA CLARA, Calif. (AP) — Investigators followed a trail of blood and arrested a 22-year-old woman in connection with the death of a popular grocer who had been stabbed 64 times, police said.

The body of William Kelly, 71, was discovered in the back room of his store, the Country Gentleman, at 1:20 a.m. Monday, police said. Less than an hour later, Wanda Brown of San Francisco was arrested in connection with the killing.

Investigators say they traced a trail of blood from the death scene to an apartment about a mile away. The blood was that of Kelly and Ms. Brown, who had suffered a minor stab wound, police said.

The killing shocked neighbors and shop owners in the area.

The kids would steal candy or maybe someone would take a potato and run like hell. But I can’t believe this,” said Mary Kaidash, 63, who has lived in the Western Addition neighborhood for 42 years.

Police said the motive in the slaying was unclear. Ms. Brown was being held without bail in the San Francisco County Jail.

The right woman for the job

Workshop boosts women in sciences

By ROSEMARY COSTANZO
Staff writer

Like father, like daughter. It's a new twist to an old saying lived out today as more women than ever are entering previously male dominated fields.

Mechanical Engineering student Karen Kohorst is one of these women. About 20 Cal Poly women like Kohorst attended a workshop this weekend to promote professional growth for women in the science and engineering fields.

"Science is Women's Work," sponsored by the Cal Poly Counseling Center, Kohorst, whose father is the president of South Los Angeles-based Pressure Systems Incorporated, spent the summer as an assistant engineer for Aerojet Electro Systems in southern California. But the like-father-like-daughter movement isn't easy. There are obstacles.

"A woman in the engineering industry has to be able to put up with the joking from the older men in the corporation. You can't take their comments seriously," said Kohorst.

When she first arrives on the job, Kohorst said, some men will act suprised when a woman actually knows what she's talking about.

"I think maybe employers tend to expect limitations from a woman when they're hiring just to meet quotas," she said. "I think maybe employers tend to expect less from a woman when they're hiring just to meet quotas."

"I have seen several women in the counseling center who have had difficulty because there are so few women in the fields of science and engineering," said Dr. Ellie Axelson, workshop coordinator.

Axelson said she was pleased with the workshop. "I think women need to be more vocal about the problems women face in the technical field so we can work on them," Axelson said. "I'm hoping that the workshop will lead to other activities, such as a on-going support group or a lecture series."

Among important workshop topics was math anxiety. "Until recently women didn't really get a math background in junior high or senior high school," said Axelson.

Kohorst agreed with the view that early education may be a factor in so few women going into engineering. "By the time they get to college most women aren't exposed to as much mechanics as most men," she said.

"Few girls take elective courses in advanced mathematics, chemistry or physics in high school, according to a report by the Committee on the Status of Women in Physics."

In the past, girls have lacked successful role models. Without the awareness of women currently employed in a wide range or careers, most girls have limited career expectations, the committee indicated.

A 1976 American College Testing program publication on women in science and technology states their are no typical women in science. Their common ground is "their ability to take a problem, define it, analyze the causes, study the effects, create or apply many possible alternatives, and finally come up with the optimal solutions."

"There are more women entering the engineering field according to a survey by the National Science Foundation. Women collected one-fourth of the doctorate degrees in science and engineering, which is nearly double that a decade ago."

"One of the most significant developments in higher education and research in the last 20 years has been the increasing participation of women. They have increased in terms of both absolute numbers and in comparison to the participation of men," the study said.

Women now outnumber men on college campuses across the nation according to the latest Census Bureau study. Women accounted for 52 percent of all college students as of October of 1983, the study said.

Amy goes to college

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — It's not every prospective college freshman who tours campus with a Secret Service guard. But then, not everyone looking for a college is Amy Carter, daughter of former President Jimmy Carter.

"I really like it here," the 17-year-old Miss Carter said Monday after touring Brown University with Carter and his wife, Rosalynn. Amy said her interests tend toward the sciences, including physics — her father's specialty — and astronomy, "but I also love English and ceramics."

Not for m

Harvard official

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — For the very first time, membership in one of the elite law schools of New England is not just for men. The women are not being admitted to the Harvard Law School, even though there are more female applicants this year, but women cannot be admitted unless they meet the same standards as men.

"These clubs must come to terms with the fact that they are in the 1980's," said the Rev. Valentine Finn, a Jesuit priest who heads the Harvard College Committee on the Status of Aquatic Species.

"We believe that every member of the Harvard Law School should be able to attend classes and participate in the social and athletic activities of the school."
Reagan protestors spray UCSB in night day-glo graffiti spree

GOLETA, Calif. (AP)—At least 40 splashes of bright orange graffiti, most lambasting President Reagan, were found on the campus of the University of California at Santa Barbara, and officials refused to believe students did it.

Somebody should be held culpable for this, and I don’t think students did it. That’s my opinion,” said Chris Ferdinandson, manager of building maintenance and grounds.

He said there were 43 to 44 separate graffiti that would cost about $5,000 to clean up.

Apparently anticipating an investigation, the culprits left no spray cans behind to be used as evidence. Found were such slogans as “Death to Reagan,” “Republican Ethics Greed’ War-Bigotry,” “Hey, Republicans, When the Bombs Go Off, You’ll Blow Up Too” and “Consume, Consume.”

The administration is of course busily responding and cleaning up the mess,” said vice chancellor Edward E. Birch. “I would like to believe that it’s not the work of students, because the immaturity level that is associated with this type of activity is far below that that we feel is the level of the university student.”

He added; “Hiding behind painted sloganry in the dark of the night certainly doesn’t reflect what we in the educational community would like to ascribe to.”

Birch said investigators have no leads in the case.

In an editorial, UCSB’s Daily Nexus newspaper called the slogans “pseudo-leftist day-glo drivel” and commented: “It is much easier to go on a midnight graffiti spree than to stand up in the daylight, express an opinion and be responsible for it.”

It too expressed hope that UCSB students weren’t responsible for the defacings.

“We can only hope that it was the work of well-informed pre-adolescents,” it said Tuesday.
Renounce Armageddon theory, clergy ask candidates

WASHINGTON (AP) — A group of clergymen called on both presidential candidates today to renounce the Armageddon theory — the belief that the world will end in a battle between good and evil — as a perversion of Holy Scripture and a danger to the security of our Republic.

At a news conference, they said that President Reagan had, on at least nine occasions, expressed such a belief, which they said is held by fundamentalist Christian groups.

They said they had no evidence that his wife, Ms. Hoover, Reagan's Democratic rival, believes in the New Testament prophecy of Armageddon.

Thomas Gumbleton, auxiliary Roman Catholic bishop of Detroit, told reporters he wanted Reagan to repudiate the belief by the "Christian" that a nuclear war is inevitable and imminent — a view that he said "rules out the possibility of reconciliation that could lead to peace."

The press conference was sponsored by the Institute of the Roman Catholic Federation of the United States, an ecumenical group that has been critical of Reagan Administration policies in Central America.

The institute said about 100 Protestant, Jewish and Roman Catholic leaders have signed the statement.

Sponsors circulated some copies of a letter in the past by Reagan which they said showed he seemed to accept the Armageddon view.

Last October, Thomas Doe, an executive board member of the Public Affairs Committee, said that Reagan, in a telephone conversation, told him, "I turn back to your ancient prophets in the Old Testament and the signs foretelling Armageddon, and I find myself saying, "You know, if the generation that's going to see that come, I'll be dead.

But last Sunday, during his debate with Mondale, Reagan was asked if he felt the country was heading for a nuclear Armageddon.

"I have never seriously worried and I don't think we can worry about that," he said.

Jerry Falwell, founder of Moral Majority, who was in a telephone conversation today that a belief in Armageddon would not affect the way people vote.

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The wife of Mayor Roger Hedgecock says she feels no shame over her husband's criminal indictment nor a civil suit seeking massive penalties for alleged campaign violations.

Cindy Hedgecock said in an interview with KOGO Radio that the months she has been hard since the revelations of her husband's ties with the fallen J. David & Co. investment firm, his indictment and he really likes what he's done.

"There have been days when it has been horrible," she said. But she said even if her husband of eight years loses his job for reselection, there would be no regrets.

"It is worth it," she said. "I have a husband who loves his job, and he really likes what he's done for the city."

Hedgecock, 38, was elected mayor in May 1983 to succeed Pete Wilson who was elected to the U.S. Senate. In April, it was revealed that Hedgecock accepted a $120,000 home improvement loan from J. David associate and personal friend Nancy Hoover. He has since repaid that loan.

On Sept. 19, Hedgecock was indicted along with J. David & Co. founder J. David Dominelli, Ms. Hoover and political consultant Tom Shepard on charges of perjury and conspiracy to finance Hedgecock's 1983 election with illegal contributions from J. David & Co. Earlier this month, the FPPC said Hedgecock and five others in a $1.2 million suit alleging numerous campaign violations.

Most of the financial penalties are being appealed in court.

"Roger is a good person and an honest man," Mrs. Hedgecock said. "To have his endeavors to make the city better treated as criminal and a conspiracy is devastating. It is shocking to our idealism and it's real hard to take."

She said the upcoming trial for her husband and the stories about him have taken some expecting them to their 8-year-old son, Jamie. The Hedgecock aide said that Jamie and Christopher, is too young to understand what's happening.

Rose Queen will get a better view of parade this year

The picketing that began Monday in Los Angeles, San Jose, and other areas was an investment firm, his indictment and other areas was an extension of a boycott launched in February 1979 against the growers. Spokesmen for American Growers Association said Tuesday.

"There will be no camping out this year," the 20-year-old Pasadena City College sophomore said Tuesday after being crowned. "I have a psycho major, Ms. Smith was born in Los Angeles and joined her in Salinas. She's not impressed by her father's "I have a husband who loves his job, and he really likes what he's done for the city.""

Legislator wants 'Harry' changes; FPPC. She hopes to transfer UCLA to University of California-Berkeley for a year, then transferred to UCLC. She hopes to transfer UCLA next year and pursue a career as a broadcast journalist.

As for boys, "Yes, I do have a few. But there it was, a one-cent raise — a penny for company workers got a 30-cent raise plus a one-cent cost-of-living wage increase. Last year, it went six-tenths of a percent beyond the limit."

Marchers charged that both store chains, owned by American Store Co. and the other produce from Bruce Church.

Spokesmen for American Stores, Alpha Beta and Sav-On refused comment on the boycott Tuesday.

But, Michael Payne, vice president and general manager of Bruce Church, said neither chain carried company goods, but other chains owned by American Stores are customers.

The state Agricultural Labor Relations Board ruled on December that Bruce Church, which produced lettuce under the Red Coach label, bargained in bad faith with the UFW.

The union's message to the growers: "If they're going to buy cheap scarlett lettuce, they're going to buy a boycott right along with it," Martinez said.

JUDGES can't perform weddings in park

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Federal judges or magistrates can't perform marriages at Franklin D. Roosevelt Park, elsewhere in California, that state attorney general told a law school Tuesday.

His opinion was sought by Jeffrey Green, county counsel of Maricopa County, who had been asked by Scottsdale, Ariz., Superior Court judge Don Pott's of Yosemite.

Workers unhappy with raise

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Some workers at National YMCA Casting Co. didn't even notice they got a 2-cent raise plus a one-cent cost-of-living wage increase. However, they will have to pay another nickel from that into their pension fund.

"I admit it looks real dumb, but that's the way the contract was negotiated," said company general manager Jack Campbell.

"I have a husband who loves his job, and he really likes what he's done for the city."
Floods drive many from homes

NEW ORLEANS (AP)  - Flooding following increased rains killed one person and drove dozens from their homes today in southern Louisiana, and Gov. Edwin Edwards activated the National Guard to help evacuations in the hardest-hit areas.

"Virtually everything in the city is flooded," said police Chief Steven L. Davis in New Iberia. "We have had over 100 calls from people in flooded areas asking for help."

"I've got at least 80 families waiting for the trucks," said Joseph Vatonti, Civil Defense director for Iberia Parish. "We've had over five inches or rain in the past three hours," he said before dawn, "and it's still raining."

The heavy thunderstorms also prompted evacuations in the Vermilion Parish towns of Erath and Abbeville.

One person was reported killed in St. Martin Parish when a car was swept off a road by rushing waters. Two others, trapped in the car, were rescued by a fire department snorkle. Identities of the victims were not immediately released.

Vatonti said New Iberia police, sheriff's deputies and Civil Defense personnel put dump trucks to work helping to evacuate people.

Poly loses to UCLA, beats Northridge

The Cal Poly women's soccer team suffered its first loss of the year this weekend in Los Angeles Saturday at the hands of UCLA, but came back to beat Northridge Sunday, 1-0.

The Mustangs were 9-0 going into the weekend, but after two weeks off without a game, said head coach Scott Steinmetz, "we weren't able to work our offense into their UCLA's defense."

Lisa Best scored Poly's only goal in the 4-1 loss.

Poly came back on Sunday and beat Cal State Northridge 1-0 with Jennifer Drum scoring the only goal. Despite walking away from the weekend 1-1, Steinmetz said it wasn't one of the team's strong weekends.

The team was down coming off the loss, he said. Adding the team should have beaten Northridge by a larger margin.

Cal Poly's next home game on Nov. 10 will be against UCLA and Steinmetz said, "when UCLA comes to see us, I don't think we will have any trouble outscoring them."

Poly drops down to No. 3

Even though the women's volleyball team came away victorious in two matches last weekend, one loss the women suffered cost them their No. 1 position in the national volleyball poll.

The loss against 15th-ranked BYU in Utah on Saturday brought the Mustangs down in both the Tachikara Coaches poll, where they were ranked 18th and the NCAA poll, where they went from No. 1 to No. 3 this week.

The team will play in the UCSB Tournament this weekend against unrated Santa Barbara and Loyola Marymount and 7th-ranked Nebraska. The next home game will be against Fresno State, Oct. 30.

Halloween run with costumes held next week

A Halloween Costume five kilometer fun run will be held Oct. 30 on the Cal Poly campus. The Fun Run will be a twilight run, starting at 5:15 p.m. in the University Union Plaza and going up to the Agriculture Engineering Building where they'll turn right towards the Swine Unit.

The run is being sponsored by the Cal Poly Recreation Sports and runners are encouraged to wear costumes—prizes will be awarded for the most creative.

Awards will be given to the top 10 finishers in both men's and women's divisions, along with a prize drawing at the end of the race.

A special centipede division is another new attraction in this event. A qualified centipede must include at least four members who are connected in some way, plus have a head and a tail.

The Fun Run will be on campus along Perimeter Rd., traffic may be slowed down between 5:15 and 5:45. Runners will continue along perimeter Rd. to the Agriculture Engineering Building where they'll turn right towards the Swine Unit. Recreation sports said drivers should be prepared to slow down and watch for runners.

Free custom designed T-shirts will be given to every entry and will be given to every entry and Free Stroh's painter hats to the first 100 entries. Entry fees are $5 for Cal Poly students, faculty and staff, and $6 for all others ($1 more for day of race registration). Be sure to register in person at the Rec Sports office in the University Union.

DeBartolo might purchase Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Edward DeBartolo Jr., owner of baseball's San Francisco Giants, says that he is now "60 to 70 percent interested" in buying baseball's San Francisco Giants.

DeBartolo, in New Orleans for a National Football League meeting, talked of his interest in the Giants in interviews with reporters from the San Francisco Examiner and San Jose Mercury News.

"I'm thinking down the line we could cable television. With pay TV sports, if you control two major franchises in this area ... you can make it work," he said.

Bob Lucie, owner of the Giants, put the National League club up for sale recently. DeBartolo said a first that he was only mildly interested in buying the team.
