Diablo full-power license angers SLO locals

Students were also asked why they live in the state, 116 (36 percent) said northern California, 27 (8 percent) said the Central Coast, 27 (9 percent) said the San Joaquin Valley, and seven (2 percent) said they lived outside the state.

Fifty-two percent of the respondents were male, 48 percent were female.

When asked to indicate family income, 116 (40 percent) of the students said they were between $30,000 and $45,000 a year, 61 (20 percent) indicated a family income between $25,000 and $35,000, and 51 (17 percent) indicated a family income between $10,000 and $25,000.

Students were also asked why they were voting for their particular candidate and given an opportunity to write a response. Reagan repeatedly to describe himself as the best of the bums. The Republican, according to the record, has even called himself a bum before deciding what they will do for Reagan's piersonality and his defense policies.

A senior journalism major voting for Mondale said: "I believe that Reagan's approach to the domestic issues are some of the best." A freshman child development major wrote: "He is strong in what he believes and speaks up about it." She added: "Reagan is the man for the presidency," said a freshman in philosophy major. "He has brought our country back from the poor job done by the Carter Administration and will continue to do so."

Most students who said they intend to vote for Mondale expressed dissatisfaction with Reagan. "Reagan is a stuchon, dodging fool who means well. I'm sure," said a student who said he planned to vote.

A U.S. Court of Appeals decision to remove a seven week old injunction blocking the full-power licensing of the Diablo Canyon Nuclear Power Plant has many of the plant's opponents angry and upset.

The courts' decision to remove the injunction opens the way for the Nuclear Regulatory Commission to issue a full power license for the $1.1 billion nuclear plant.

We think it is outrageous that the court lifted the injunction before they even determined if the license was legally "You license plants and vou do it anv way you can," said Mothers for Peace spokesperson Nancy Culver. The Mothers for Peace filed the request for the injunction and claim that the NRC acted for political reasons in initially granting the operating license for Diablo Canyon.

Culver also said that this decision may be just what the NRC needs to go ahead in a reckless manner.

She said that the next step for the group will be to file a motion with the court next Tuesday to put into the record a letter written by NRC member James Asselstine. The letter written by Asselstine accuses the NRC of lying to the court. Asselstine has accused the commission of acting improperly in closed-door deliberations before licensing the plant.

The letter is part of evidence by the Mothers for Peace to support the allegations of Richard Ottinger, D.N.Y., the chairman of the House Subcommittee on Energy and Power. Ottinger accused the NRC of making misstatements to the court to justify its vote to license the plant.

Culver said that the removal of the injunction opens the door for the NRC to issue other nuclear power plants. She added that she feels that the commission acted improperly and that they have the full-power license in their hand by Friday and will start testing.

In response to charges that the NRC acted improperly in granting the license, she said: "We have always felt the NRC has acted properly in granting the license." The U.S. Court of Appeals will continue to hear testimony to determine if there was any wrongdoing in the licensing procedure and could withdraw the license in the future.

Reagan policy ignores problems that bring revolution

Editor:

Is Ronald Reagan stopping communism?

"A former resident was quoted the other day as saying he "likes the way things are going in Central America and everywhere." That voter, and too many others like him, evidently hadn't thought about something 1980 in independent presidential candidate John Anderson said in a recent speech: Anderson said Reagan's policies are the problems that create revolution.

Poly student endorses Mondale

Editor:

I am a native of San Jose, currently attending Cal Poly State University at San Luis Obispo. As indicated by the results of a mock presidential election and by the prevalent mood of the campus most Cal Poly students are conservatives Republicans. When I ask students why they are voting for Reagan, they generally reply many of them haphazardly—that they are happy with the economic condition of our nation. Most college students have an acute awareness that they will soon be entering 'the real world.' Thus the job market, price interest rates and the inflation rate are of primary concern to them. I urge these students though, not to limit their political views to issues concerning economics. Students concerned with their futures should examine the areas in which the current administration has mishandled policy cuts. Obviously important to students, including myself, are the financial issues of the day. But, is not the dire situation of public education, as documented in the report A Nation at Risk, also of grave importance? 800,000 people have sunk below the poverty line in the last four years. If Reagan is even one of the hundred where toxic chemical waste has contaminated water supplies. The administration has taken the

Abortion not 'pro-life'

Editor:

Why do the anti-abortionists insist upon calling themselves 'pro-life'? It would be ludicrous to assume that those against the "pro-life" coalitions of America are "pro-life." Actually, those who do not agree with the "pro-life" cause simply recognize the right of a woman to make her own decision on the subject of abortion.

A confident Ronald Reagan campaigned Thursday in landslides strong enough to swell Republican ranks in Congress, while Walter F. Mondale, cheered by a throng of 100,000 New York garment district, vowed to reduce inflation to zero in a second term.

Reagan was greeted with chants of "50 states" as he campaigned traditionally Democratic Boston for himself and GOP senatorial candidate Raymond Shamie. He invoked the name of John F. Kennedy, a son of Massachusetts who became a Democratic president, and vowed to reduce inflation to zero in a second term.

Mondale, with running mate Geraldine Ferraro at his side, found the largest crowd of his campaign in the New York garment district, where polls opened alone for Jewish voters elsewhere in the city.

The president has accused media of being soft on anti-Semitism. He repeated it is despicable. "He said in a reference to Reagan's complaint that the Democrats had not inserted an anti-Semitism plank in their election year platform.

Secretary predicts turnout

Sacramento—Just over 78 percent of California's registered voters will go to the polls Tuesday, 1 percent more than the total in 1980, Secretary of State March Fong Eu predicted Thursday.

That would be still be the second lowest California turnout for a presidential election since 73.34 percent voted in 1924, Ms. Eu said. She said she was basing her turn- out prediction of 78.2 percent on 78.3 percent voted in 1980, and that the "prediction was based on several factors, including poll predictions of county and state officials, a large number of requests for absentee ballots, and a unprecedented number of newly registered voters.

"Forecasts for fair weather -- we expect a very good day," said Eu, expressing hope of a "proportionate recovery" from the presidential race before California's polls close at 8 p.m.

One estimate indicated that 401,000 Californiaans did not vote in 1980 because the networks projected Ronald Reagan the winner several hours before the polls closed in this state, Ms. Eu office said. "I have also taken into consideration the types of races and ballot-issues facing voters, indication of planned aggressive get-out-the-vote drives, and public opinion polls showing the degree of change in the electorate," Ms. Eu said in a statement.

A 78.2 percent turnout of registered voters translates to a 3 percent turnout of California adults of voting age. Thirteen million Californians are registered to vote, but 7.6 million are not enough to vote. California's voter turnout has averaged 81.39 percent for presidential elections between 1912 and 1980. The highest presidential turnout was in 1960, when 78.3 percent of those registered voted.

The lowest presidential turnout record was in 1940, when 74.6 percent made it to the polls.

Ms. Eu said she polled 11 representatives from counties and found turnout predictions ranging from 60 to 68 percent in Fresno to 80 percent in Sacramento.

A Cal Poly business professor will make recommendations by the end of the month to the Industrial Welfare Commission concerning minimum wage laws.

Professor Jan Duffy, chairman of the 1984 Minimum Wage Board, and a panel of 30 employer and employee representatives testified in San Francisco Oct. 11 concerning the appropriate level for the state minimum wage. The board also considered a sub-minimum wage for learners, students and tipped employees; changes in meal and lodging credits; and exemptions from overtime pay laws.

The board, which is formed every few years when the Industrial Welfare Commission decide on the minimum wage should be raised, the Industrial Welfare Commission closed in 45 days. The commission considers Duffy’s recommendations and decides whether to act on minimum wage laws. Duffy said she expects the commission’s decision to be made public by either the first of the year or by mid 1985.

Duffy, who is beginning her fifth year at Cal Poly, is also an attorney specializing in employment and labor laws at the San Luis Obispo law firm of Steinheuser Schiebelbuh and Baggett. She is a 1972 graduate of Case Western Reserve University.

Three Cal Poly students leaped across campus Wednesday spreading Halloween goodwill. They delivered over four dozen carnations to lucky bystanders, including President Baker. The “FTD” men from left are Dan Babbiarz, senior mechanical engineering major; Loyal Frazier, graduate student in industrial engineering; and a Cal Poly business professor.

Halloween was a chance for several sororities and fraternities to get involved with the community by visiting a convalescent hospital and presenting haunted houses.

As a philanthropy project, Sigma Kappa sorority visited the Heceta Convalescent Hospital dressed in the unusual, and some not-so-unusual, Halloween costumes. The sorority women tried to spark conversation and let the elderly people know that someone cares. A few ladies approached a man in a wheelchair who was in the hallway reading a book. The conversation immediately broke out into tales of novels and adventures in fictitious situations. They then asked the man what he thought about Halloween and all the excitement of the night.

“I didn’t even think about it,” he said. “Holidays kind of depress me these days.” He did say that he enjoyed talking to the ladies and was glad they came.

In another part of the hospital, in a darkened room with the only light coming from a television tuned to the Joker’s Wild, a few resident women were sitting together.

School sponsors Parent's Day, activities planned for the 'folks'

By LEANNE ALBERTA
Staff Writer

The School of Business will sponsor their first annual Parent's Day at Cal Poly on Nov. 3. "We got the idea of having a parent's day from the University of Texas," said Suzy Morris, business council chairman. "Their program was so successful that we decided to try it here.

"We want to show parents of business majors that their child's decision to attend Cal Poly was a good one and we want them to feel comfortable with that decision," Morris added. "No other school on campus has put on a parent’s day before.

and we're hoping ours will be a success.

Many activities have been planned for the visiting parents.

From 8:30-9:30 a.m. registration will be held in Chumash Auditorium. The parents will attend informational speeches and a slide show given by business faculty members and students from 9:30-12:00 a.m. in Chumash Auditorium. Associate Dean Zafar Igbal will talk about "Academic Quality at the Cal Poly Business School," and the slide show titled "Student Life at the Cal Poly Business School" will be presented by business student clubs.

At 12:30 p.m. a barbeque will be held in Poly Grove and tickets for the 7:30 p.m. football game in Mustang Stadium have been reserved for the parents.

"We are expecting 250 to 300 parents," Morris said. "Since the School of Business is up for reaccreditation next year we're hoping to get parents' views on potential changes in the school.

"Parents are in a unique position. Their skills are so highly demanded in the job market, we'd like to purchase microcomputers to help train business majors in this area," Morris explained. "We want to get parents involved in this issue and others as well.

"The (ZTA) pledges put it on for their service project, but we might do it again because we all really liked it. Sigma Nu expressed an interest in getting involved with the sorority.

The first scene at the Zeta house was a murder scene in the living room. Their children were led into the kitchen where they were tricked into thinking they were sticking their hands into bags of cat eyes and intestines, which were actually gourmets beans and spaghetti.

Finding their way out of the kitchen, the children were then led to a cemetery with a real coffin, which was borrowed from Delta Sigma Phi fraternity, said Merritt. Finally, if they made it through a tunnel, they were rewarded with a treat.
Live from San Luis Obispo it’s Thursday night

Unique to San Luis Obispo is the Farmer’s Market held every Thursday evening from 6:30 to 9:00 p.m. Local farmers, merchants and Cal Poly students gather on Higuera Street to sell food products. The market has become increasingly popular within the community. Upper left, Suzy Bush, Agriculture Business Major, finds the farmers market the fastest way to sell Cal Poly walnuts that have been processed and packaged through the enterprise project. Lower left, the Cal Poly band plays during Homecoming for the Thursday night crowd. Above, Ian Coates, 4, watches over his parents’ produce. Right, Musty, Cal Poly’s mascot, gives a homecoming greeting to a child. Upper right, Randy Hofland eats his Thursday night favorites—McLintock’s kabobs. Study in 15 countries through a CSU program

KEVIN H. FOX

The chance to live and study in a foreign country awaits qualified Cal Poly students through a group called International Programs.

As part of the California State University System, International Programs (IP) offers students a special opportunity to live and study abroad.

IP is coordinated through the CSU office in Long Beach with a campus representative at each of the 19 state universities and colleges.

“This (IP) is one of the best kept secrets on campus,” said Laura Gregory, alumni assistant for Cal Poly, who is working with program alumni to spread the word about study overseas.

Gregory said that IP offers one of the best opportunities to study abroad. “IP is set up through the CSU and offers one of the few programs that is a full year in length. Students work with advisers and counselors to work out schedules that will transfer back to Cal Poly,” she said. “Plus there is a resident advisor with each group to help out in any way needed.”

She said the alumni group is planning a slide show Thursday, Nov. 11 at 11 a.m. in Chumash Auditorium. Alumni will speak on their experiences and a representative from Long Beach will be present to answer any questions.

The group will also have an information table set up in the University Union Plaza the first three weeks of November.

The application process is intensive, said Gregory. Applications are due Feb. 1, 1985 and are followed by campus interviews and final selection made by a state-wide committee.

Minimum requirements for the programs offered in 15 countries vary according to individual country but a strong academic record and the maturity to handle living and studying abroad are essential according to IP literature.

All financial aid available to Cal Poly students can be applied toward IP study trips.

The experiences of program alumni vary as greatly as the countries they visited, but all had a great time living and learning in another culture.

“It was the best year of my life,” said senior journalism major Dawn Harwich. She spent last year in France and described her year as “mind opening.”

“I can’t say enough to people about the program and encourage everyone who can to apply. You’ll never have this chance, at this age again,” she said.

Harwich said the hardest thing about her year in France was coming home. “After living with people, in their country, for so long I found it very difficult to just leave them behind and return home,” she said.

Jane Keff spent her year with IP in Sweden in the Soviet Studies program.

“The biggest thing I learned was how to live in another country. I now know better, the differences between our country and the Soviet Union and how to deal with those differences,” she said.

The hardest part of her year was the Swedish winter. “It was really long and very, very cold and dark. That was hard to get used to coming from Southern California,” she said.

She encourages any student who might be interested in studying abroad to throw aside all their reservations and go.

More information about International Programs is available in Room 211 of the old Dexter Library. The phone number is 546-2935.
Poly hosts powerful Boise

Football team coming off two wins in a row

The Cal Poly football team will put its 5-3 record on the line this Saturday in Mustang Stadium, 7:00 p.m., for non-league game with Boise State.

Both teams have 5-3 records, but the Broncos have racked up a 4-1 record in the Big Sky Conference, while Cal Poly is 2-1 in the Western Football Conference.

The Mustangs are coming off a 28-10 win over St. Mary's which marked the first time Cal Poly has won two straight this year.

In the series which dates back to 1969, Boise State leads 10-3 and has won the past three games in 1983 (27-21), 1982 (26-24) and 1981 (22-17).

Jeff Byars will probably be starting at quarterback after throwing two touchdown passes in the win last weekend.

The Mustangs have a bye next week and will play at home the last game of the season (Nov. 17) against Cal Lutheran.

Dean will sit and wait for 49ers to up their offer

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Fred Dean isn't doing much these days, except going to let the San Francisco 49ers to decide whether to pay him what he feels is worth more than football's top pass rushers is worth.

By Dean's calculations, that works out to about $800,000 a year — about $300,000 more than the 8-1 49ers have offered and $550,000 more than this year's contract calls for.

By, in an interview in San Diego with the San Francisco Chronicle, Dean says he's content with his decision to sit out the season, if necessary, to make his point.

"I can take my pride," said Dean. "I've learned to do that through the years. But it's football's principle the matter now."

I'm not just some dumb jock. I'm not going to let the 49ers or anybody else underestimate me — I know what I'm capable of and I don't have any hard feelings about it."

"Owners in the National Football League think, 'This is the only way to get a few dollars out of the game of football.'"

Dean's financial demands, which would have made him the second highest-paid player behind quarterback Joe Montana, seem reasonable to him in light of what other top players like him would get.

"I'm defensive end and Mark Gastineau is receiving cast contracts violated the Sherman Antitrust Act.

It is reasoned in Wednesday's ruling that there should be an open and competitive market in the field. "I assume the defendant (the NCAA) is aware of the course available to this court and achieve its stated purpose should grant a temporary restraining order to avoid compliance with the court's injunction.""}

Both sides in the case said they were happy with the ruling by the courts, but neither side was prepared to say the case was over.

"We feel good about it," said Clyde Muncie of Oklahoma City, one of the attorneys for Oklahoma and Georgia. "I think the NCAA probably was the spirit of the judge suggested, we don't have the same kind of objections to the decision as we had before, making a definitive statement."

Dean wishes his teammates no ill feeling. "I was thought more of than this point," said Dean. "I had a feeling I was thought more of than this point."

"Owners in the (National Football League) think, 'This is the only way to get a few dollars out of the game of football.'"

Dean's calculated the principle the matter now."

I'm not just some dumb jock. I'm not going to let the 49ers or anybody else underestimate me — I know what I'm capable of and I don't have any hard feelings about it."

Coaches worry over players signing early

If as many as a third of premier college athletes, especially football players, sign contracts with agents before the NCAA-allowed deadline — as one prominent agent claims — the questions become "Why?" and "What can be done?"

"Nowadays, the kids don't get anything," Tennessee football Coach Johnny Majors said. "It's not fair, because some of them come from homes where the parents can't afford to send them money."

Majors is one of many coaches and athletic directors who support the idea of paying the athletes up front, giving them perhaps $50 a month or maybe $1,000 a year to cover incidental costs.

"I think that's a possibility," Don James, coach of No. 1-ranked Washington, said. "I'd like to see the players get a little bit more. They do so much for their universities."

After losing Walker, Georgia Coach Vince Dooley said one of the problems was created by the NCAA itself when it changed its rules several years ago to halt schools from providing spending money and part-time jobs to athletes.

The Halloween Costume 5K Fun Run sponsored by Cal Poly Recreational Sports had over 200 runners in costume participate in the race. The run around the campus with most runners in a variety of costumes.

Winners for the Men's Division were: Hector Perez (14:44); Don Reynolds (14:49); and a Centipede which included Steve Cubillas, Devin Broady, Jim McCarthy, and Dave Basinger (16:02). Women's Division winners were: Lesley White (16:19), Irene Henderson (17:34), Janice Teh (19:20). Wheelchair Division and 8th Place went to Rory Cooper (16:33).

The Most Creative Costume Award went to a Centipede made up by Russ (Dean) Brown, Ed Butrovich, Joan Mary Laubacher, Cheryl McClain.

An Over-the-Line Softball tournament was held on Sat., Oct. 27 with Kevin Tracy, Mike Beat, and Tom Haiss taking first place. Also, a Badminton Doubles Tournament was held on Fri., Oct. 19. The first place Men's Division went to Ray Ng and William Tung, while the first place Women's Co-ed Division was won by Wency-Ting Loon and Ting.
Men physically prepared for race

Poly needs front runners to do well at the regional cross country meet

by KIM MILLER

Physically, the Men's Cross Country team is ready. The only thing left to be seen is whether or not they are mentally prepared for this weekend's regional meet in Riverside.

Head Dave Livingston said, "If the race is like our invitational meet and we have two men up front, we could win this race. Kevin Jones and Brent Griffiths have taken over our front runner positions and hopefully they'll pull some of the rest of us with them."

The competing team is made up of Jones, Griffiths, Livingston, plus Mike Minor, Chuck Fasert, Jerry Hernandez, Chris Craig and alternate Sean Crowley.

Coach Tom Henderson said the competition will come from UC Riverside, UC Davis and Cal Poly Pomona.

The top three finishing teams will travel to Clinton, Miss., for the national meet, but nine seven member teams will be vying for the top positions. With only nine teams entered in the race, the race will be tough one, Henderson said.

"We had affectively pushed out Pomona, but with only 63 people racing, there won't be many runners in the middle to separate the scoring positions," Henderson said.

But, the team is optimistic. Henderson said, "We are equal to the challenge."

We run well together as a team.

At 4-4, Fighting Irish down on their luck

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) — Leaden clouds hang heavily over the Golden Dome these days as the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame struggle through an unaccustomed two-game losing streak.

They carry a mediocre 4-4 record into Saturday's game against Navy of Annapolis, Md., in East Rutherford, N.J. Medallo is fine in some places but here, among the ghosts of Bocke and the Gipper, where the Four Horsemen, Leahy and Parseghian were at their hot shot.

Autumn has created a spectacular splash of fiery colors on the pastoral campus and the flames lick hungrily at the heels of coach Garry Faust. He's a man on the hot spot.

A malaise has set in here in the wake of a season that has evaporated from a promising 5-1 start into a struggle for survival even after last week's upset of previously undefeated and ranked Louisiana State University.

The Fighting Irish may have been the fifth in the nation with 14 games for Notre Dame teams against ranked opponents in the four seasons Faust has been here. "Five and nine is not very good," said someone close to the athletic scene here. "If you reversed it to 9-5, under Ara Parseghian that would have been viewed as very good.

Faust remains upbeat. That's his style. He sees the LSU victory as a turning point, a new beginning even if the results did not. It was a good enough for a bowl bid, especially since the Irish went to the Liberty Bowl after last year's 6-6 record.

There was much soul-searching, especially on the home front, since 1966 the Irish have been distributed as far as our capabilities go," added Faust. The region is basically made up of the western states plus Hawaii. "Our conference is the most dominant of this region...so a lot of other teams spend the money to come to this meet to get their feet ripped off," Henderson explained.

We have a lot of individual talent and if we can put it all together on one day we stand a good chance of winning the meet," Henderson.

At the 1983 regional meet, Cal Poly placed third, barely earning the right to participate in nationals. Sacramento State came out after finishing one point behind the SLO team.

The SLO runners placed second out 1982 behind UC Riverside.

John Henry not running in cup race

NEW YORK (AP) — There is an 80 percent chance that John Henry, the grand gelding who has won money more than any other racehorse, will not run in the Breeders' Cup Nov. 17 at Hollywood Park, owner Sam Rubin said Thursday.

Rubin said John Henry, who is in California with John Henry, "They tell now that before he had had best in the ankle and come back to run," said Rubin, but he was not optimistic.

Since John Henry's sire, Old Bob Bowers, was not nominated, Rubin would have to pay a supplementary fee of $400,000 to enter the 1-mile-old gelding in the 1-mile $2 million turf race on Breeders' Cup day.

He made the first installment of that payment — $133,000 — Tuesday. "That money will not be refunded," Rubin said.

John Henry has won more than $6 million in races, better than any other horse in history, and is among the candidates for Horse of the Year honors.

At Lexington, Ky., Thursday, organizers announced that 12 opponents, many of them from Europe, were lined up to take on John Henry in the Breeder's Cup turf race.

Seattle Song, a son of 1977 Triple Crown champion Seattle Slew, and 1982 Kentucky Derby winner Gato del Sol were among those pre-entered against John Henry in the $2 million 1 mile-turf race for thoroughbreds older than 3.

Also pre-entered were: Al Allong, France; Alphabatim, Great Britain; Lashkari, Great Britain; Majeez, Great Britain; Moereon, Great Britain; Persian Tiara, Ireland; Raam, Great Britain; Strawberry Road, Australia; Tristaciar, France; and Who's for Dinner.

In another feature of the Breeder's Cup $10 million series of races at Hollywood Park, Say Who's for Dinner, winner of all three races in the fall championship series in New York, is slated for a matchup against Desert Wine, Peakness, Stakes winner Gate Dancer and five others in the $3 million Breeders' Cup Classic.
