Late evaluations disturb seniors

By SUSAN DETHLEFSEN

Many seniors are left without final guidance because they did not receive their graduation evaluations that were supposed to be finished before Wednesday's CAR form due date.

"We had some difficulty in finishing the entire new fall transfer evaluations," said Paula Rhiner, supervisor of evaluations, explaining the reason for the delay in graduation evaluations.

Seniors are asked to fill out the graduation evaluation request form approximately one year before their expected graduation date. They are told that the evaluation, which tells them what classes they will have to take to receive their diploma, will be finished and given to them two quarters, or CAR forms, before the graduation.

However, because the Evaluations Office is behind, many did not receive their evaluations before CAR forms were due Wednesday.

Rhiner said she does not know how many students are affected by this delay but does not feel that it is a real problem. Students should have been working along with their advisors all along and should know what classes they still have to complete, said Rhiner.

However, the students have a different view.

"I'm pretty mad," said Pam Eilers, an ornamental horticulture major. "I had to do it myself and I 1 end of Fall Quarter.

Eilers filled out a request form last June and expects to graduate this June. She said they finally called her about two weeks ago and they said they would send it soon, but she did not receive it before her Winter CAR form was due.

Paul Beck, a speech major, said when he filled out the evaluation request card last June he expected the evaluation by the end of the summer. Two quarters before he was to graduate, but now he will only have one quarter before.

"I feel like I pretty much know what I'm at," he said. "But I'm not sure.

Mary Hennessy, a journalism major, said the delay creates a real problem for her because of a trip to Australia she is planning during Winter Quarter.

She said she has been taking a lot of units so she could finish up her requirements in Fall and Spring Quarters. She filled out a request form last June so she could plan exactly where she stands, and what classes she needs to do in order to graduate this June but has not received it yet.

The only problem is that she needs to have it before she left since her roommate will be filling out her spring CAR form while she is away.

Rhiner said she expects all of the evaluations to be finished by the major. "I had to do it myself and I 1 end of Fall Quarter.

He said he believes prevention is the answer to this problem, not treatment. People need to be educated, they need to know that alcohol is a drug and it effects the brain. Walsh said.

He said that the people in the Alcohol Education Program are not alcohol driven, but rather for responsible drinking. Walsh and the second coordinator, Kerry Bean, speak groups on campus about alcohol and safety tips relating to it.

For example, Walsh said, they tell people how to handle a person who is drunk but still wants to drive, or what to do if someone passes out due to excessive alcohol consumption.

They also explain ways to drink without getting drunk, such as having only one glass of alcohol an hour since it takes this long for the liver to absorb it.

"Getting information to people about alcohol is the answer to reducing the statistics," said Walsh.

Drunken driving

Student enrollment high in class

By SUSAN DETHLEFSEN

Student enrollment is high in class.

A third of all people going through the drunken driving program in San Luis Obispo are Cal Poly students, said the coordinator of the Alcohol Education Program at the Health Center.

Noel Walsh said people who are arrested for the first time for drunken driving in San Luis Obispo must go through this program.

Walsh pointed out that on any given campus 87 to 96 percent of the students drink alcohol at some point in their college ages. However the problem is not in drinking, it's in the way they handle it.

In the last two years over 250,000 people died from alcohol related accidents, which works out to one person killed every 23 minutes, Walsh said.

"It's getting more severe, too," he said. "Younger people are drinking more alcohol.

Walsh said that only one out of 1,000 drunken drivers on the road are arrested. In San Luis Obispo most are arrested on Broad Street, usually leaving the nightclub Thursday to graduate.

Police are just waiting to take you off the road there," said Walsh.

Time is running out

For many students it's just another rainy fall quarter which means time for more mud football or going shopping. But, some students don't have much time for these activities. These students are on a tight deadline. They are seniors who plan to graduate in June. Some of them are fresh out of the Evaluations Office.

The reason they are up there is that they haven't received their graduation evaluations. These evaluations tell a student which classes and how many units he or she needs to get a diploma.

It acts as the final, authoritative guide for those students planning to graduate.

However, many students have been left to plan blindly, because they haven't yet to winter quarter. Without knowing which classes they may need.

Many of these students filled their evaluations request a year ago as is required by the Evaluations Office.

Paula Ringer, the supervisor for the Evaluations Office, said that although the office has made some progress completing all the fall evaluations, the delay shouldn't affect many students.

She defended her office's ability to meet their responsibility by saying that students should work along with their advisers all along and should know which classes they still have to complete.

Well, Paula Ringer, welcome to the real world. Not all Cal Poly students meet regularly with their advisers. Some students may be transfers from other universities or colleges and may not know their classes have been accepted by their departments. Other students may not know what they have accomplished because they have changed majors. Some old units may not count. Other students have had to deviate classes and are unsure of what counted and what didn't. Some students may be the victims of the ever-present curriculum change. Sometimes even advisers don't know what counts for a certain year's curriculum.

View From the Hill

Reagan party, look forward to "four more years"

As I stood among the crowd, a sick feeling in my heart, a good-looking, blue-eyed man approached me. I introduced myself and offered to buy him a drink. He had acted like a right winger all day. I wasn't about to tell him that I was an intern working for one of the most liberal Democrats in Congress, so I told him I was on Congressmen Jack Kemp's staff. Kemp is a Republican president candidate. Could I have impressed him? I quickly changed the subject before he could ask me any questions about it. When with Republicans, dear is the 30th of 30th, speaking with the Assistant Deputy Attorney General, he offered me his thoughts on the election. This election makes a significant change in the mood of the American public and the direction of the history of the United States. It is important to point out that in the Reagan-like rhetoric, I asked him to be frank with me and he was. He was, off the record, of course. Sorry.

At midnight everyone squashed to the video screen where President Reagan made his acceptance speech from California. He thanked his staff and "everyone" at the Shamrock Hotel. Now he was arraying the crowd was cheering uncontrollably. "Four More Years. Four More Years. Four More Years. Four More Years."

"What are you doing here?" he asked.

She grabbed the group around her and brought them over to me. In the short interim, I quickly took it off, slipping it in my pocket. I didn't want to start a riot, and I feared for my well being. I looked quickly to the door but was caught by the arm of this same woman who physically turned me around. There I stood in front of her friends - but forlorn. She had said something overcoat stood smiling. When I say we re trying to clean up some of the bike problems on campus, I am speaking as someone who is concerned about parking problems for bicycles, theft problems, accident problems and barriers for disabled persons. Public Safety has developed a new style bike rack which is being experimented with at the end of the evening...

After all, it would be a shame if the plans of some of these students remained because of the inability of the Evaluations Office to do their work.

Voluntary abortion is murder

Editor:

In her letter of Nov. 7, Sarah Witter states that the answer to the question "is abortion murder?" depends on an individual's interpretation of what makes a human being. She also says that in the United States each person should have the right to follow his or her own morals. I have several problems with this kind of reasoning. I will attempt to discuss them without injecting religious arguments, which are easily confused with creative writing or interpreting the law and would make any conversation or discussion of the topic much less meaningful.

In this country, it is illegal to willfully take the life of another human being with certain exceptions such as in defense of one's own life. When this is done by a person in a premeditated manner, it is called first degree murder. With that in mind, let us consider (scientifically, mind you) when human life begins.

From genetics we learn that from the moment of conception the embryo may be shown to be distinct individual of the species Homo sapiens, including its mother. In order for the woman to be pregnant, the embryo must be alive from the moment of conception onward. Therefore, since the embryo is called a fetus, a human and alive, intentionally "terminating" it is taking the life of a human being. An abortion with the intention of not performing to prevent the death or major injury of the mother is murder.

Now for the "freedom of individual morality" argument. One of the fundamental requirements for a workable society is that each individual has some control over his or her life. There are spots where the law could provide a little or no value in the eyes of those who supported abortion.

Another, unprofessional, unnecessary remark stated in the letter was this: "Van Halen, Motorhead, Operation: Snuffing out lives could be such a heartwarming thing! What a concept! Hey, and while we're at it, how about wiping out the innocents — now I don't have to feel guilty."

I'm so glad you rationalized a justification for the slaughter of unborn babies — now I don't have to feel guilty. In this country, it is illegal to murder. With that in mind, let us consider (scientifically, mind you) when human life begins.

Secondly, on Nov. 13, we receiv- ed a distressing "newsletter" statement that says, "If you are the r e d and stupid to the staff, find another place." I don't feel that expressing our needs and complaints is stupid or rude. What is making this person mad? He or she has paid substantial amounts of money to live in this so-called apartment, and if the management will not lend ears to our requests, such as repairing toilets, or simplyOrthodontia dental services, how are we to get such things done?

Another, unprofessional, unnecessary remark stated in the letter was this: "id as Van Halen, Motorhead, Black Flag, Tex and the Horseheads, Diana Ross, and Frank, the band. Sinatra will do a special, no admission, open bar, all proceeds to the Mustang Village Insane Tenants Society. I really can't see what bearing this comment has on such a letter. All I can see is a very unprofessional staff and manager at Mustang Village.

These are just a few of the irresponsible tactics used by the Mustang Village staff. I assure you that there are a few more things that have occurred here. For anything more, I'd want to discuss it at Mustang Village, take it from a disinterested-taupe. DON'T WASTE YOUR MONEY. There are plenty of better apartments available and I'm sure that those are respectable, and properly trained management personnel.

Abortion supported

Editor:

I was more than thrilled to read Sarah Witter's letter: "Abortion might spare children" in the Nov. 7 Mustang Daily. Miss Witter clearly stated in the letter that the murder of 16 million children through abortion since 1973 is actually an act of compassion because these might have had hard lives. God, Sarah, that's really touching. Who ever would have thought that snuffing out lives could be such a heartwarming thing? What a concept! Hey, and while we're at it, why don't we kill off all the handicapped people too — they have lives "destined for immorality." Sarah would put it all together. And while we're at it, how about wiping out all those senile and depressed old people? And I guess we should slaughter some of those homeless, bummed-out poor people too — just to be fair. Wow. Who knew we ever would have guessed that killing could be so fulfilling and rewarding? I feel like going out and killing some poor, handicapped people right now, just think what a favor I'll be doing them. I agree with you all hands, Sarah.

I'm so glad you rationalized abortion as "saving the lives of unwanted children." It is indeed a workable society that each individual has some control over his or her life. In this country, it is illegal to murder. With that in mind, let us consider (scientifically, mind you) when human life begins.

Reader defies believers to prove God's existence

Editor:

God's existence can be proven. That is, it is theoretically possible. All one needs to do is find a confirming instance of the statement "God exists." However, if one were to disprove the existence of God, he might find this quite difficult, for it is an impossible task. "God does not exist" is a universal negative. In order to establish the truth of this statement, it is necessary to show that God is nowhere. Since one cannot "look" everywhere that there is to look on the earth, let alone the universe, this is obviously impossible. This concept holds for the "blue fairy" or anything else. This leads to the conclusion that it is impossible to prove a universal negative.

It is because of this fact about universal negatives that the burden of proof lies with those who assert that God exists. It is in this way that anyone who asserts that something exists; it is the responsibility of the asserting individual to prove his assertion, naturally. What else would we be doing if in the responsibility of the asserter put forth was considered tolerable even for workable society that each individual has some control over his or her life. In this country, it is illegal to murder. With that in mind, let us consider (scientifically, mind you) when human life begins.

A band people like, with a name the band doesn’t hate

That way, she said, the band can set up its equipment and not have to tear it down four hours later.

The only local clubs that have live entertainment during the week, though, are the Cigar Factory and Shenandoah, a club that usually has out-of-town bands, making The Plumbers one of the few locals playing there.

The band has become so popular that almost all of its members have been able to quit their day jobs. Jan, for example, left her career in nursing, and Rex left Universal Studios, where he was a tour guide. Isaac, however, is the only band member to retain his other job, working carpentry during the day.

Although the band members claim to put in only about an hour of practice a week, they will admit to spending a great deal more time together as a group.

Maintenance of equipment and other factors bring band members in contact about six days a week, according to Rex.

Practices are possible from noon to 3 p.m. in some clubs which are closed during the day, or sometimes an hour before showtime if the band wishes to go in early.

The songs the band performs are mostly off the radio, although the band boasts three original tunes, born out of group collaboration. Among popular bands influencing The Plumbers are The Police, Missing Persons, The Pretenders and the B-52s, said Rex.

Band members have different long-term goals. “There’s some agitation within the band to travel,” said Rex. Others in the band would prefer to remain local. Some band members have other interests which they might like to pursue.

“We’re six different personalities and six individual lives,” Rex explained. “We’re in it basically for the money and the fun, and we feel that we’re providing a useful service.”

The band will take a three-week vacation starting Jan. 1. Members who choose to remain in the band will come back. Those who don’t will go.

“Then we’ll sign in blood” to stay together for another six months,” said Jan. “Aside from that, all we can do is hope for the best.”
Rather than just watch Salieri flip through the portfolio and nod approvingly at the manuscripts, we are brought into the genius of Mozart’s work as his music from each work Salieri looks at flows off the page and spills out into the soundtrack.

What shocks Salieri and seals Mozart’s doom is Salieri’s discovery that each of the manuscripts are the first and only drafts of the music—and not one of them has any revision marks. “It was all was completely formed in his head before he set it down, as if dictated by God,” Salieri tells the priest.

The poor man, who has always slaved for perfection with even the simplest of his compositions (i.e. the ‘March of Welcome’), is driven to burn his crucifix, declare war with God and vow to destroy Mozart at every turn by this revelation.

Students host food drive

By KAREN ELLICHMAN

Staff Writer

As Thanksgiving approaches, many Cal Poly students can look forward to a homecooked turkey dinner. For some San Luis Obispo residents, however, having a Thanksgiving dinner depends on the generosity of the community.

One campus group is working to support the hungry in San Luis Obispo by sponsoring a canned food drive on Nov. 19 and 20. The Baptist Student Union (BSU) will host the drive for Grassroots II, a local, non-profit food service organization.

“The director of Grassroots spoke to the BSU a few weeks ago about the opportunities in San Luis Obispo to help the hungry,” said ordination director Kathy Clausen, a BSU member. “The director said the hungry especially need canned foods around Thanksgiving.”

Nutritious foods such as canned meats and vegetables, as opposed to snack foods and desserts, are the most needed canned goods, according to Clausen.

BSU members will collect the canned foods in the University Union from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. on Nov. 19 and 20.

“We hope Cal Poly students will help the community by bringing canned goods to the drive on Monday and Tuesday,” Clausen said. “Most of us can afford to bring a can or two, and there are people in San Luis Obispo who need that food.”

Patricia McFall, International Programs campus relations officer, will discuss various aspects of the programs offered by the California State University system and show slides of the overseas study centers. Former participants and program representatives will be in attendance.

—POLICE BULLETIN

A woman using a restroom in Sierra Madre Hall was startled Sunday by a man who stepped out of a shower stall, according to Cal Poly Police.

The incident happened in the first-floor women’s bathroom in Tower 4 at 12:20 a.m. said investigator Ray Berrett.

The man was described as a Latino male between 20 and 22 years old, about 5 feet and 8 inches tall with a stocky build and black hair. He was wearing Levi’s, said Berrett.

There has been a problem recent-ly with peeping Toms in women’s restrooms on campus, said Berrett.

Anyone seeing a peeping Tom is encouraged to get a good description and call police immediately.

In a separate incident, a backpack was taken from a storage cubicle in Dining Hall Tuesday, said Berrett.

The backpack owner was eating dinner when the backpack was stolen. It was described as a yellow and orange nylon backpack with the word “Purdue” and a holder maker logo on it.

Value of the backpack and con-tents was $81. Students are cautioned that because it is nearing the end of the quarter, backpack thefts on campus are expected to increase, Berrett said.

Tonight the stage performance of William Shakespeare's "Macbeth" will open at the Cal Poly Theatre. Actors and actresses will be clad in their Renaissance style costumes, avenging and brooding about; their faces will be tediously made-up to fit their characters. There will be dramatic special effects, soft and bright lighting precisely programmed for intensity and color. Massive stage sets will portray the right scenery, and the necessary music and sound will set the proper mood.

All this is usually taken for granted when watching a performance. People come to the show, have a good time and leave, never giving much thought to the massive amount of work that goes on behind the scenes.

Most of the work is done by a Cal Poly theatre production class (stagecraft 322). The class is designed to give students experience in the techniques of a play for public presentation.

"When it comes time for production, these people run it," said instructor Russ Whaley. "We get people from all over the campus," he said. "Engineering majors have done the lighting, architecture majors like to do stage design and just anyone who wants to help out."

The first part of the class is mainly class time, learning about what they will be doing and the necessary safety procedures they will need for building.

"These people come here and..."
some of them don’t know a board from a hammer,” Whaley said.
But by performance time they become very familiar with the tools they need for their specialty in the production of the play. The work becomes progressively more int- ense. Last week the students were spending five or six hours a day and they will continue this pace until the end of the performance. Some out of the ordinary special effects have been created for the show which the class had a big part in.

No denying the most unusual and most time consuming were the fog machines which represent the supernatural or psychological forces depending on how one reads interprets (or play) that motivate Macbeth. Macbeth interprets these events as a sign that he will become king. In order to speed up the process, he kills “King Duncan and takes over the throne.

The heads were made by technical director, Howard Gee, a full time professional. He chisled all three out of laminated scrap plastic. The bodies are made of wooden frames with painted upholstery fabric draped around to give what Whaley has reported to have termed “barbaric splendor.”

These puppets are human operated by rods which connect to the witch’s arms. Also, the heads of actresses Shauna Cancilla, Tracey Walker and Cat Salió will wear a helmet with the rods connected to the head of the puppet. Where the actresses head turns, so does the puppet.

“Make-up is another important element of the play. For Macbeth, make-up artist and former Cal Poly student, Scott Wheeler is the only technical professional brought in for the play, according to Whaley. One student working with him will be sophomore bio-chem major Diana Kline, who said she signed up for the class because she knew one of the actors and she wanted to get involved. And her wish came true.

“Make-up is the first to arrive and the last to leave,” she said. “But it’s fun. I just look forward to the cast parties.”

She also said she has learned quite a bit.

“I made a beard out of latex for Bret (Bret Wahl, who plays Angus),” Kline said. “New I am a lot on Halloween.”

Most of the intricate special effects were designed by Howard Gee, but he said once the design is complete, the students do most of the work. In some instances, Gee will simply tell the student what he needs and they will take over. One example is the fog machine. They needed a small machine to do a full size job, said Gee.

“I gave them the generalities and they made a custom fit,” said Gee. One of the students in charge of the fog machine is Joseph Sand, a senior electronic engineering major. Sand said this is the third time he has taken the class, but has been involved in stagecraft constantly since his freshman year. In the past he has done lighting design, which he said was his favorite. What motivates people like him to be so involved with work?

Sand said he likes the camaraderie of working together and the realization of watching his work pay off.

The Cal Poly theatre and dance department will stage Macbeth tonight, Friday and Saturday at the Cal Poly Theatre. Curtain time is 8 p.m. Tickets are $4; they may be purchased at the University Union Ticket Office, Box Boes, Cheap Thrills, and the Dance Shop.

New technique improves vision with Starbusts cuts

AP - Controversial surgery to improve vision with a handful of cuts in the cornea reduced sight-threatening cataracts in every one of 34 patients studied with no serious complications, according to a study released Wednesday. The vision of 78 percent of those given the surgery, called extracapsular cataract extraction, was corrected to 20/40 or better, meaning they could read a newspaper from 40 feet.

Satellite loaded by shuttle second capture a success

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — Discovery's astronauts placed a second satellite into orbit Wednesday and mated it into the shuttle's cargo bay, demonstrating with smoothness and reliability completing an unprecedented adventure in spacewalking salvage 224 miles above the Earth. "We have two satellites latched in the cargo bay," announced mission commander Rick Hauck after spacewalkers Dale Gardner and Joe Allen secured Westar 6 beside its sister satellite, Palapa B2, that was recovered Monday. "We've done enough work for two days of EVA (spacewalking)," said a tired Gardner as he and Allen moved into an airlock after about six hours in the cargo bay. "You've got one happy crew up here," said astronaut Anna Fisher, who operated Discovery's mechanical arm, a key part of the salvage.

Students eating only rice observe fast for Ethiopia

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — At Harvard University, students will dine on rice and water. Inmates at a Texas prison plan to go without food for the day. In Philadelphia, proceeds from a fast will be raised. Across the nation, thousands are giving up meals Thursday, a day before Thanksgiving, as part of Fast for a World Harvest — an annual fund-raiser dedicated to fighting famine.

The famine also affects 27 other African nations, where a recent United Nations report said 35 million people are "in desperate need of help."

The crisis in Ethiopia, aggravated by civil strife between the government and rebels in the northern districts, has been building for several years. But the magnitude of the suffering has come home to Americans late last month when chilling footage of emaciated adults and children, their bellies distended by malnutrition, was broadcast on national television.

In the past three weeks, Oxfam and other relief organizations have been flooded with calls, donations and offers of volunteer help.

Federal rules stated for Poly financial aid

By CLARE MASCY-RAMIREZ

A student who receive or plan to apply for financial aid need to be aware of federal rules applying to satisfactory progress according to the Cal Poly Financial Aid Office.

The U. S. Department of Education requires that any university administering federal financial aid programs establish, publish and apply specific standards for measuring student’s academic progress in determining their eligibility for aid.

If a student does not apply for federal Title IV funds will be subject to these Satisfactory Academic Progress standards whether or not they have received aid in the past. The Title IV programs administered by the Cal Poly Financial Aid office include Pell Grants, National Direct Student Loan (NDSL), Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grant (SEOG), College Work Study, Graduate Student Loan (GSL) and California Loans to Assist Students (CLAS).

Students currently receiving funds from any of these programs and students who may apply for aid in upcoming years should read and understand the Satisfactory Academic Progress standards.

Grade point average. In reviewing grade point average, the university’s policy on Academic Probation and Disqualification will prevail. Cal Poly cumulative grade point average should not fall below 2.0.

Cal Poly’s policy is outlined on page 58 of the 1984-85 catalog. Course grades of C, F, P, UC, AU, and W will not be counted as satisfactory completion of units. No more than three units of remedial course credit will be accepted.

Minimum unit eligibility. Students must maintain eligibility for financial aid, undergraduate students must enroll in and complete a minimum of 12 units per quarter and thereby complete 36 units for the academic year.

Completion of less than 36 units but at least 18 units per academic year will result in the financial aid recipient being placed on Financial Aid Probation. Eligibility for financial aid will be maintained while on probation and the student may continue to receive funds. However, completion of less than 36 units for the year while on probation will result in a determination of “unsatisfactory progress” and the student will be ineligible to receive financial aid for the subsequent year.

This standard is applicable to graduate students with a minimum unit completion requirement of 8 units each quarter for a total of 24 units per academic year; completion of less than 12 units will result in an “unsatisfactory progress” determination.

Maximum time eligibility. A student may receive financial aid funds for up to two years beyond the established length of time for completion of their degree. For example, most undergraduate degree programs are considered 4-year programs.

Students in these programs will have 6 years of financial aid eligibility. Financial aid funds will be provided to students who exceed the maximum time eligibility for their degree program.

Allowance may be made for university-sponsored special educational programs that may extend the length of time necessary to obtain a degree. Financial aid may not be provided to any student for more than one degree beyond the initial bachelor’s degree. For example, a student who has completed a bachelor’s degree may receive financial aid funds for a master’s degree program.

Maximum number of units. Cal Poly has established the number of units each recipient being placed on Financial Aid Disqualification may complete in each major. The Satisfactory Academic Progress policy allows undergraduate students to exceed that amount by approximately 20 units and still receive funds.

For example, a student in a major that requires between 198 and 205 units to graduate may receive financial aid funds for up to 225 units completed. Graduate students may receive financial aid funds for 10 units beyond the required coursework for their Master’s degree.

Financial aid funds will not be provided to students who exceed the maximum number of units allowed for their degree program.

Students who are disqualified for financial aid due to a determination of “unsatisfactory progress,” or who have exhausted their terms years of eligibility according to the standards described above may appeal that disqualification. A financial aid appeal form is available on the administration building and the Office of the Financial Aid Counselor.

It is very important for students who receive financial aid and potential financial aid recipients to thoroughly understand this Satisfactory Academic Progress Policy.

Students who have transferred to Cal Poly need to be fully aware of the policy cover the length of time necessary to obtain a degree. For example, a student who plans to major that requires between 198 and 205 units to graduate may receive financial aid funds for up to 225 units completed.

Baseball talks continue

NEW YORK (AP) — Negotiators began Wednesday on a contract to replace the one that ended a seven-week major league baseball strike in 1981, and management negotiator Lee MacPhail said it may be a month or more before "we feel out of tough it's going to be." MacPhail, who is president of baseball's Player Relations Committee, said preparations leading to the initial bargaining session had a "better tone." "I think both sides learned from those problems in 1981," he said. MacPhail and Don Fehr, executive director of the Major League Players Association, met for more than 1 ½ hours Wednesday morning with other management and union people at the New York offices of the Player Relations Committee.

A key issue in the negotiations is expected to be how to split a $1 billion television contract that baseball has with ABC and NBC. Money from the TV contract would be applied to the players' pension fund and other benefits. "It's no secret that could be a major issue, and it could be something that would cause us a lot of problems," Fehr said. He said the union will maintain its "historic position that it should share in one-third of the revenue. Because of the unprecedented size of the TV contract, this would represent a substantial increase in the owners' contribution to player pensions.

Bruce Springsteen gives $10,000 to help the poor

DENVER (AP) — Rock star Bruce Springsteen, who has appeared for and to the unemployed throughout his current concert tour, donated $10,000 to the Colorado Food Bank for Families and volunteers collected another $2,500 at two shows during the weekend. "He told us that he had made it and he just wanted to help other people," said Lee Mizer, executive director. While playing at McNichols Sports Arena on Sunday, Nov 11, 1984.

Dean to play on Sunday

REDWOOD CITY, Calif. (AP) — Fred Dean, the veteran defensive end who made the San Francisco 49ers pass rush something to be feared, returned to campus Wednesday after ending a contract dispute that left him on the sidelines as the 49ers ran up a 1-9 record. On Sunday, Dean, 32, agreed to a four-year contract estimated to be worth $8.2 million. He was in camp to practice for Sunday's home game against the 4-7 Tampa Bay Buccaneers.

Coach Bill Walsh said he expects the team's starting line. Dean will play with against Tampa Bay. Walsh said Tuesday that he was beginning to wonder if Dean actually existed. But a telephone call

Rams re-sign Jim Youngblood

ANAPAHEM (AP) — The Los Angeles Rams, who have continued George Andrews to a knee injury last Sunday, have re-signed backup Andy Youngblood, the National Football League team announced Tuesday. The 6-foot-3, 231-pound Youngblood, who was signed with the Rams before being waived at the end of the 1983 season, was named the club's most valuable player in 1978. Youngblood, 34, following the 1980 season and as a free agent. "So far, we're satisfied," Flores said. "Last year was 9-7, was enough to get there. This year, 9-7, would be a good season as far as we're concerned."

In his 12-4 a-year ago. Denver and Seattle were both 9-7, and it's probably good enough to earn them wild-card berths. Los Angeles suffered its third straight loss last Monday night, dropping to a 17-14 defeat at Seattle. The Raiders return to action Sunday at the Los Angeles Coliseum, entertaining the Kansas City Chiefs.

"Monday nights have been lucky for us but this one wasn't," Flores said, referring to the game at Seattle. "Last year at this time we were winning these type of games. This year we're not."

The Raiders activated quarterback Jim Plunkett before the game, but the veteran signal-caller who led the team to both of its Super Bowl victories in this decade didn't play. Plunkett hasn't played since he suffered a torn abdominal muscle.

Despite a sore thumb, Marc Wilson said he was going to practice for Sunday at quarterback against the Seahawks. Wilson completed 16 of 34 passes for 191 yards and was intercepted three times.

"Both of them are inured to a certain extent," Flores said. "Marc's thumb is still sore, and Jim's working hard trying to get all the aches out of his arm."

"Marc is still the starter and we hope Jim will be available if needed. That's the situation right now."

Olympic boxers turn pro Friday

NEW YORK (AP) - Six Olympic boxing medalists, including lightweight Mark Breland and heavyweight Tyree Biggs, will be given a coming out party Friday night at Madison Square Garden. They will turn pro before a few packed house of 21,000. To obtain tickets, written requests had to be made to the New York Daily News. There was a limit of four tickets per person.

The giveaway was the idea of New York Olympics director, Harold Stirling, who has been fighting at Madison Square Garden. I felt I owed the fans something in the Olympic gold medalists, I thought, and they have five New York Golden Gloves titles in their names, which they could hold out on Sunday by agreeing to turn pro. The defensive end who is expected, his newly negotiated contract, is considered among the NFL's best rush ends, and probably will come off the injured list. The Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Walsh has tentative plans to use him on the offensive side and against the run and out, no one gets into the backfield as frequently as he does. We've been known to do that, but I don't think he'll play against the run. McNeil said, "I hope we won't do a lot of unsound personnel substituting just to satisfy all the players and the coaches." We certainly can't afford to have six seconds on offense.

"I don't think he wants to convert the ball carriers to kickers. We have some defensive success in the run and points from his offense. Walsh added, the 49ers would force the Bucs to pass a lot later in the game. Then we'll be bring in Fred Dean," he said.

NEW YORK (AP) -- Larry Bird, the Boston Celtics and Julius Erving of the Philadelphia 76ers were fined $7,000 each Tuesday as a result of their scuffle in Boston Garden, but the two star forwards escaped suspensions.

Scotty Stirling, the National Basketball Association's vice president of operations, also handed out $3,000 in additional fines to 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham and 15 players for their roles in the fight, which erupted with 1:38 to play in the third quarter of the Celtics' 130-119 victory last Friday night.

Stirling called Bird "clearly the aggressor" in the incident but said Erving "escalated an already serious situation." He also warned both players that "involvement in any further conduct of this nature will result in even more serious penalties, including suspension." The incident began when the two star forwards were charged with an offensive foul, Bird of the Celtics and Erving of the 76ers. Bird was ejected at the time. Bird had scored 42 points to Erving's six.

Scotty Stirling, the NBA's vice president of operations, also handed out $3,000 in additional fines to 76ers coach Billy Cunningham and 15 players for their roles in the fight, which erupted with 1:38 to play in the third quarter of the Celtics' 130-119 victory last Friday night.

They will turn pro before a few packed house of 21,000. To obtain tickets, written requests had to be made to the New York Daily News. There was a limit of four tickets per person.

The giveaway was the idea of New York Olympics director, Harold Stirling, who has been fighting at Madison Square Garden. I felt I owed the fans something in the Olympic gold medalists, I thought, and they have five New York Golden Gloves titles in their names, which they could hold out on Sunday by agreeing to turn pro. The defensive end who is expected, his newly negotiated contract, is considered among the NFL's best rush ends, and probably will come off the injured list. The Tampa Bay Buccaneers. Walsh has tentative plans to use him on the offensive side and against the run and out, no one gets into the backfield as frequently as he does. We've been known to do that, but I don't think he'll play against the run. McNeil said, "I hope we won't do a lot of unsound personnel substituting just to satisfy all the players and the coaches." We certainly can't afford to have six seconds on offense.

"I don't think he wants to convert the ball carriers to kickers. We have some defensive success in the run and points from his offense. Walsh added, the 49ers would force the Bucs to pass a lot later in the game. Then we'll be bring in Fred Dean," he said.

NEW YORK (AP) -- Larry Bird, the Boston Celtics and Julius Erving of the Philadelphia 76ers were fined $7,000 each Tuesday as a result of their scuffle in Boston Garden, but the two star forwards escaped suspensions.

Scotty Stirling, the National Basketball Association's vice president of operations, also handed out $3,000 in additional fines to 76ers Coach Billy Cunningham and 15 players for their roles in the fight, which erupted with 1:38 to play in the third quarter of the Celtics' 130-119 victory last Friday night.

Stirling called Bird "clearly the aggressor" in the incident but said Erving "escalated an already serious situation." He also warned both players that "involvement in any further conduct of this nature will result in even more serious penalties, including suspension." The incident began when the two star forwards were charged with an offensive foul, Bird of the Celtics and Erving of the 76ers. Bird was ejected at the time. Bird had scored 42 points to Erving's six.

Men face top teams in finals

By KIM MILLER

After barely qualifying for national competition two weeks ago, the men’s cross country team faces the stiffest of competition in Mississippi Saturday.

The national meet, to be held in Clinton, MS, will host the finest runners from five regions across the nation in Division II competition.

Coach Tom Henderson said that he predicts a tough race for his team. “All the teams are roughly of the same caliber,” South East Missouri looks to be one of the strongest contenders for a first place team, but Henderson said the team’s spread at their regional meet was two minutes, a large gap as compared to the Mustang spread in early season racing.

It is anyone’s guess, however, how well the Mustang’s will fare off their competition. “If we run like we ran at Riverside (at the regional meet) we will place somewhere around 10th or 12th. If we run a good race, we’ll place around 8th. If we run the race I’d like to see we’ll finish in the top three to five,” Henderson said.

The regional meet had its difficulties. Dave Livingston was too ill to race and it was too late to substitute alternate Sean Crowley into the race. After the race the coach and runner Brent Griffiths got food poisoning at a Riverside restaurant.

The beginning of the two week rest before nationals was spent rebuilding the team’s health. “Everybody is physically perfect, now,” Henderson said.

The team left Wednesday for Mississippi, spending two days traveling. Friday, the runners will familiarize themselves with the course.

Henderson said the course is different from any western course. “It is grass, but not like a golf course, more like a mowed field. There is very little flat areas,” Henderson said. The course is mainly on rolling hills.

The team will begin the trip home just hours after competition, returning home Saturday night.

One hundred thirty-two runners will race for 25 spaces on the All American team. Henderson said that all of team members have the potential to earn this distinction if they race to their potential.

Last year the Mustangs took 13th place; they last won the national competition in 1979.

Howe returning with injured arm

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Los Angeles Dodgers’ reliever Steve Howe, who returned home from the Dominican Republic recently to have his ailing throwing arm examined, will have his left elbow in a splint for at least another week, the National League club announced Tuesday.

Howe returned to Los Angeles last Friday to have his elbow examined. The problem has been diagnosed as a subluxing (popping out of place) of the ulnar nerve in the elbow.

Howe, who had been one of the majors’ top relief pitchers, sat out the 1984 season after Bowie Kuhn, then the baseball commissioner, suspended him for recurrent problems with drugs. Howe recently signed a contract with the Dodgers to pitch next season, and had reported to the Dominican Republic on Oct. 25.

Suzie Johansson tries, but fails to kick the ball past the UCLA goalie. Johansson and teammates lost for the second time this year to UCLA and will be traveling to the state championship this weekend.
