Over 80 students join hands for peace

By JAN SPARGUE

Students working to inform others about the need for peace formed a ring of about 80 people Thursday in the University Union.

Hoping to impress on Cal Poly students the importance of nuclear awareness, Students for Social Responsibility planned the rally and initiated the hand-holding when the band "The Touch" began to play to a lunch-time crowd of several hundred people.

I was afraid some people might think we weren't serious," said Melanie Grubin, a humanities major. "We just started holding hands as a tribute to the many peacemakers of the past who worked nonviolently for peace, for world peace." said Grubin. "Once we grabbed hands, the feeling was unbelievable. We weren't expecting the turnout to be so good.

"Nick Temple, the secretary treasurer for Students of Social Responsibility, was surprised by the turnout. "If you can get people to think about it, the idea of holding hands, it becomes rather symbolic. Peace is something you have to do together," said Temple. "You're out there looking pretty foolish in the University Union, and people are looking at you, but then you realize what you're doing.

"I think one thing that wasn't so obvious is that even those people who didn't join in the circle saw us and became more acutely aware of the ring and more aware of our need to pull together for our survival," said Wolf.

The concept of the peace rally and having students join hands to express support for peace was created by Grubin. "We wanted to do something symbolic and constructive," she said. The group has been on campus for only a year, and has about 20 active members. This is the first time a peace rally has been held, although the group sponsored a candle-light vigil last year that attracted about 50 students.

"It's like coming out of the closet for a peace group," said Grubin. "You can't imagine how good it feels to get this kind of support. We'll definitely be planning more stuff like this in the near future.

"It's a very popular event. People will want to know what we're doing," said Temple. "If you wish to join us, just look for the ring of hands growing, the details to come.

By the time the band played the last note of a song called "We are One," approximately 80 people had joined the growing ring, surrounding the plaza fountain. "It was pretty powerful at the end because we turned a ring at the climax of the song," said Grubin. "Once we grabbed hands, the feeling was unbelievable. We weren't expecting the turnout to be so good.

"Nick Temple, the secretary treasurer for Students of Social Responsibility, was surprised by the turnout. "If you can get people to think about it, the idea of holding hands, it becomes rather symbolic. Peace is something you have to do together," said Temple. "You're out there looking pretty foolish in the University Union, and people are looking at you, but then you realize what you're doing.

"I think one thing that wasn't so obvious is that even those people who didn't join in the circle saw us and became more acutely aware of the ring and more aware of our need to pull together for our survival," said Wolf.

The concept of the peace rally and having students join hands to express support for peace was created by Grubin. "We wanted to do something symbolic and constructive," she said. The group has been on campus for only a year, and has about 20 active members. This is the first time a peace rally has been held, although the group sponsored a candle-light vigil last year that attracted about 50 students.

"It's like coming out of the closet for a peace group," said Grubin. "You can't imagine how good it feels to get this kind of support. We'll definitely be planning more stuff like this in the near future.

"It's a very popular event. People will want to know what we're doing," said Temple. "If you wish to join us, just look for the ring of hands growing, the details to come.

By the time the band played the last note of a song called "We are One," approximately 80 people had joined the growing ring, surrounding the plaza fountain. "It was pretty powerful at the end because we turned a ring at the climax of the song," said Grubin. "Once we grabbed hands, the feeling was unbelievable. We weren't expecting the turnout to be so good.

"Nick Temple, the secretary treasurer for Students of Social Responsibility, was surprised by the turnout. "If you can get people to think about it, the idea of holding hands, it becomes rather symbolic. Peace is something you have to do together," said Temple. "You're out there looking pretty foolish in the University Union, and people are looking at you, but then you realize what you're doing.

"I think one thing that wasn't so obvious is that even those people who didn't join in the circle saw us and became more acutely aware of the ring and more aware of our need to pull together for our survival," said Wolf.

The concept of the peace rally and having students join hands to express support for peace was created by Grubin. "We wanted to do something symbolic and constructive," she said. The group has been on campus for only a year, and has about 20 active members. This is the first time a peace rally has been held, although the group sponsored a candle-light vigil last year that attracted about 50 students.

"It's like coming out of the closet for a peace group," said Grubin. "You can't imagine how good it feels to get this kind of support. We'll definitely be planning more stuff like this in the near future.

"It's a very popular event. People will want to know what we're doing," said Temple. "If you wish to join us, just look for the ring of hands growing, the details to come.

By the time the band played the last note of a song called "We are One," approximately 80 people had joined the growing ring, surrounding the plaza fountain. "It was pretty powerful at the end because we turned a ring at the climax of the song," said Grubin. "Once we grabbed hands, the feeling was unbelievable. We weren't expecting the turnout to be so good.

"Nick Temple, the secretary treasurer for Students of Social Responsibility, was surprised by the turnout. "If you can get people to think about it, the idea of holding hands, it becomes rather symbolic. Peace is something you have to do together," said Temple. "You're out there looking pretty foolish in the University Union, and people are looking at you, but then you realize what you're doing.

"I think one thing that wasn't so obvious is that even those people who didn't join in the circle saw us and became more acutely aware of the ring and more aware of our need to pull together for our survival," said Wolf.

The concept of the peace rally and having students join hands to express support for peace was created by Grubin. "We wanted to do something symbolic and constructive," she said. The group has been on campus for only a year, and has about 20 active members. This is the first time a peace rally has been held, although the group sponsored a candle-light vigil last year that attracted about 50 students.

"It's like coming out of the closet for a peace group," said Grubin. "You can't imagine how good it feels to get this kind of support. We'll definitely be planning more stuff like this in the near future.

"It's a very popular event. People will want to know what we're doing," said Temple. "If you wish to join us, just look for the ring of hands growing, the details to come.

Senate approves UU fee increase of $12

By JULIA PRODIS

Students can expect a fee increase of $12 next year, beginning Winter Quarter to fund operations of the University Union, a vote from the ASI Student Senate confirmed Wednesday night.

In other unrelated action, the student senate discussed a resolution which would encourage Cal Poly's diversification of investments in South Africa to avoid participating in a task force to study funding possibilities for the Children's Development Center and voted against a resolution which would have encouraged alcohol on campus.

The fee, which is currently $42 per year, will increase to $54 next year, totaling $54 and increasing again to $59 in 1986-1987. The vote was 11-1 in favor of the increase and seven opposed.

Roger Conway, executive director of the ASI, hopes the UU fee will stabilize when new revenue generating areas are created and more recreational areas in place of the bowling alleys and an Italian style restaurant in place of Mustang Lounge. The fee should also stabilize with better efficiency of existing services such as the renovation of the cops center.

The decision to increase the UU fee increase have been delayed more than a week because of legal questions regarding the erosion of $1 million in reserves.

This fee increase will allow the $1 million in reserves to be set aside as a down payment for a recreational facility should the students approve the construction of one in a referendum scheduled for late fall.

The senate discussed a resolution encouraging Universitry Foundation and ASI divestiture of direct investments in South Africa and asked Mr. C. Braun, the student body's representative to the ASI, to set a week to table any discussion of the resolution.

ALSO, the first witnesses the court heard were asked to describe her daughter and identity a red key chain as her son's. The boy's father did not testify why these questions were asked.

Both women appeared calm, breaking down only briefly, when portraits of the students were shown for them to identify. The father of one boy did, but she came through it pretty well.

Carl Braun said in reference to his wife, who took the stand to testify.

Please see THE GATE, page 3
Peace rally is a welcome sight

If you were walking through the University Union during activity hour Thursday, you probably saw an unusual sight. About 80 people had formed a ring around the plaza fountain as a band played the peace song "We Are One."

If you were a typical Cal Poly student, you might have stopped in surprise. Students holding hands? After all, you might have thought, this is conservative Cal Poly, we're not talking about holding hands here. It's not Berkeley or UCLA, where such occurrences happen all the time.

However, it's a pleasure for us to report on today's front page that such events are becoming more common at this university, which in the past has been renowned for its lack of activism. The event, which was dubbed a "Hold hands for peace rally," was organized by Students for Social Responsibility, a 20-member organization that was formed last year.

Organizers said the event "was like coming out of the closet for a peace group." The rally, along with the apartheid rally earlier this quarter, shows that the sluggish dinosaur of activism is slowly beginning to awaken at Cal Poly.

It's something we hope to see more of in the future.

Protect your bike

Five expensive bicycles have been stolen on campus within a month, and in all cases the bikes were locked with an 89-cent steel cable. In one case the bike was valued at $750 but was protected with one of these dime store cables. People who own such expensive bicycles should invest in a more sizable investment, and not merely concerned with the several dollars they save by going to a cheaper lock. Many people buy these cheap cables and then expect a solid padlock to protect their bike.

The only problem with this reasoning is that thieves can cut cable more easily than they can cut locks. The dollars that are spent buying a solid U-bolt lock can prevent even the best of thieves from striking. We think that people should use a little more common sense when protecting their investments.

Letters

Prof questions award criterion

Editor

With the editorial on "Graduation's Most Winners" in the May 22 Mustang Daily, I have a question and objection. However, I believe that some judgments made by the selection committee and the Dean of Math and Science were not as fair as they should have been.

As a member of the faculty in the Mathematics Department, I am familiar with the five nominees proposed for the MPPF Award: Two of the Math Department nominees were distinguished teachers and a third, also a MPPF Award nominee, has recently been named a Distinguished Teacher. Yet none of these three was chosen for the MPPF Award. Moreover, the candidate I nominated recently received the Tassel Society Outstanding Faculty Award (which appeared in the Mustang Daily, April 19). Indeed, your indirect input as students was obviously not a major factor when the actual MPPF Award winners were chosen.

Those who chose the MPPF Award recipients made a decision which was at variance with the original selection of the Math Department's Outstanding Faculty. While the MPPF Award committee may have had different criteria for choosing the awardees, as students we are not aware of which criterion they used to make their selection.

I hope that the faculty of the Mathematics Department are aware of their contributions to our community and to Cal Poly.

Catherine Aaron
Senior Journalism Major

The dread of collegiate dating

By CATHERINE AARON

There's got to be more to this than the Friday night at a dance party, picking up a beautiful woman just to tell her '0010' and collecting phone numbers. I am not in the business of using people, to look healthy and tan and show off my good teeth. How then, if I shouldn't even have to show their ID's and pay a dollar at the door to get in?

I've also toned down the size of my earings, so as not to look "too punk." I've gotten rid of my friend's complimenter with me was to wear white, because fast people always seem to want white. Deliberately wearing it must show that I am not a fat person, and don't read Fashion Tips for the Tabloids. Looking around me, I'm either a shooting off Colgate toothpaste or my friend has been exposing the vitrues of white to the whole town.

I have set myself up for this abuse not because I like to dance, my dad owns the place, or Grad Burgers are 75 cents. I have deliberately come here to meet guys. Why deny it to someone else is playing the same game, but under the guise of "It's my best friend's 21st birthday."

"I'm not in town, "I'm conducting a survey for my psychology class," and "Corona's are only a dollar. These excuses don't cut it with me week after week.

Not only has my friend has me convinced that I'm not fat, and my mother that I'm not a punk. I think my friend saved her best beauty tips for herself, she's wearing a pink mini-skirt, glitter on her face, and wearing a black dress on top. Maybe it wasn't the best idea to go out drinking and from a good person look alike. So last week I went to a party alone. Half an hour into it, someone asked me if I came. I stopped myself from making up a name or saying I was "supposed to be here". I'm supposed to be zien at the Student Center. The peace rally, along with the apartheid rally earlier this quarter, has massed the amazement on my roommate's face when those male voices asked for the ugly duckling of dating all the time.

My luck is to lack a complete absence of dates even cause I'm pretty ugly. The worst thing I had to endure last time I went home. My little brother immediately was not willing to go out: "I get that I'm in my best friend's 21st birthday, " "I'm new because I like to dance, my dad owns the place, or Grad Burgers are 75 cents."

I've also toned down the size of my earings, because fast people always seem to want white. Deliberately wearing it must show that I am not a fat person, and don't read Fashion Tips for the Tabloids. Looking around me, I'm either a shooting off Colgate toothpaste or my friend has been exposing the vitrues of white to the whole town.

I have set myself up for this abuse not because I like to dance, my dad owns the place, or Grad Burgers are 75 cents. I have deliberately come here to meet guys. Why deny it to someone else is playing the same game, but under the guise of "It's my best friend's 21st birthday."

"I'm not in town, "I'm conducting a survey for my psychology class," and "Corona's are only a dollar. These excuses don't cut it with me week after week.

Not only has my friend has me convinced that I'm not fat, and my mother that I'm not a punk. I think my friend saved her best beauty tips for herself, she's wearing a pink mini-skirt, glitter on her face, and wearing a black dress on top. Maybe it wasn't the best idea to go out drinking and from a good person look alike. So last week I went to a party alone. Half an hour into it, someone asked me if I came. I stopped myself from making up a name or saying I was "supposed to be here". I'm supposed to be zien at the Student Center.

Catherine Aaron is a senior journalism major and Mustang Daily staff writer
Third family member charged with spying

FAGA 3

Third family member charged with spying

NEWSBRIEFS

MUSTANG DAILY

EXPLOSIONS.

THE NEW Eruption was the first for the southwest Washington Volcano since a quiet (H)zing of lava on Sept. 10, 1984. That eruption since a quiet (H)zing of lava on Sept. 10, 1984. That eruption

ISLAMIC GROUP SAYS AMERICAN KIDNAPPED

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Islamic Jihad terrorist group, believed to have ties to the Islamic regime in Iran, has claimed responsibility for killing a British professor and kidnapping an American student and two Frenchmen.

In a statement to a Western news agency Wednesday, the shadowy group said it would not "let anyone rest" until Moslem extremists jailed in Kuwait were freed and the United States and France halt what the group said was their support for Iraq in its war against Iran.

A caller to a Western news agency who claimed to represent Islamic Jihad said it killed 53-year-old Denis Hill, a professor at the American University of Beirut. He had been missing since

Disney reported considering sale of parks

BURLINGTON, Calif. (AP) — Walt Disney Productions is in negotiations that could lead to a major restructuring of the company, including possible sale of part of its theme parks and creation of joint ventures to run its hotels, it was reported Thursday.

Disney is looking at the restructuring as a means of raising up to $150 million, according to a company spokesman who refused to be identified.

Disney owns Disneyland in Anaheim, Calif., Walt Disney World and Epcot Center in Lake Buena Vista, Fla., and more than 27,000 acres of undeveloped land, much of it near the Florida parks.

St. Helens eruption may be possible soon

VANCOUVER, Wash. (AP) — Scientists reported a new flow of molten rock on Mount St. Helens' huge lava dome Thursday, indicating that a predicted eruption of the steaming volcano

WHERE CONVENIENCE IS FUN!

- Single and double occupancy
- In-room TV for selected events
- Free parking
- We have QUIET BUILDINGS
- Utilities included (except cable TV and phone)
- Swimming pool
- Planned social events on us

Disney reported the possibility of selling its theme parks and hotels.

By KRIS REHER

GRADUATES this year are paying up to 40 percent more for extra commencement tickets. Each student is allowed five tickets, but those needing more are forced to pay between $35 and $40 per ticket.

Stephanie Zeller, a food science major said he needs two more tickets, but has not gone to the extreme of putting an advertisement in the paper. "Friends are better because they're more reasonable."

Renée Schroyer, a home-economics major said she has relatives planning to attend the commencement ceremony.

SENECA

From page 1

senate spoke during open forum encourag ing the senators to consider the resolution. One student, Paquita Hathaway, said, "We need to make it clear that we don't want our money going to support South Africa."

She said that the senate should look around the country at the actions of other schools and students such as at UC Berkeley. "We're not about to take over the library or administration building."

Rachael presented information about Cal Poly's investments or involvement with companies in South Africa, noting the Foundation's involvement with Bank of America, IBM and General Motors and the ASI's involvement with City College Savings and Loan, State Service Money Pool and its investment with the purchase of United States Treasury Notes.

The senate will vote on the divesture resolution on Wednesday night.

In other action, the senate voted to freeze the creation of a Children's Center Task Force to establish a consistent funding policy for the organization. The Children's Center, who's request for an ASI subsidy of $40,000 was limited to $30,000 during budget hearings in April, has been paying fewer weeks in favor of this resolution. At this time the ASI has no funding commitment to the Children's Center and this resolution would research various policy alternatives.

This task force resolution was passed instead of another resolution authored by President John Perrone, an aeronautical engineering major said he needed one more ticket but did not realize the profitability of selling graduation tickets. "I think I'll tell my parents not to come and sell my tickets to make 200 bucks."

The resolution for the senate to consider the resolution was adopted, based on a recommendation from the Children's Center's 'Center policy' authored by ASI President, Kevin Creggton, his Executive Analyst, Jeff Hunt and ASI Controller Lynette Freidman. That resolution called for the ASI to establish a diminishing subsidy limit beginning in 1985-86 at 3 percent of the total ASI fee income and decreasing to 1 percent by 1985-86.

Another resolution titled, "Strokes on Campus" called for the policy of no alcohol on campus to be changed to allow alcohol in dorm rooms under certain conditions and allowed during certain events.

The resolution, authored by Renee Schroyer, failed with 12 opposed, eight in favor and one abstention. The resolution was the result of a survey taken by Ruby of students' opinion about alcohol on campus.
Foundation plans to install change machine

By KRIS REHER
Staff Writer

The Foundation plans to install a change machine in the University Union this summer to combat the problem of limited available change.

Getting change in the Union has always been a problem, said Dawn Annoni, an employee of the Snack Stop across from the Activities Planning Center. "Approximately 30 people a day come up asking for change."

Annoni said her job is sometimes made difficult when she must turn away people asking for change. "More often people are rude than nice; you tell them that it's policy and they don't understand," Annoni said. "That was one of the first things I was told when I started working here was not to give out change."

The Burger Bar is also a frequent stop for people looking for change. Gloria Hernandez, an employee, feels the Union definitely needs a change machine. "I think if someone is in a hurry to catch a bus, they should have something available to them," Hernandez said. "I don't have any compassion for those who want change for cigarettes, but I do for those wanting bus tokens."

Change is available at the cashier's office until 3:30 p.m., but Annoni said people who want change do not like to wait. "They're too busy to wait in line for a cashier."

The information desk is one place in the Union where people can get small change after the cashier's office is closed. Kim Lanum, an employee at the information desk, said something needs to be done to curb the change problem. "If we can't give change, people usually get upset because at night there's no where else to get change," Lanum said. "I think a change machine would help. People ask me where to get change, and if I have a place to direct them to, they use it."

Lloyd Lamouria, satellite operations manager for the Foundation, said it was his understanding that the games area was in charge of providing change for the Union. But Lamouria said that because their change machine only gives back tokens for video games, an additional bill changer is necessary.

The Foundation plans to install vending machines near the telephones next to the Bookstore. Along with the vending machines, Lamouria said, there will be a bill changer. "The change machine has already been purchased, and the vending machines will be those from the Sandwich Plant, which is currently being remodeled. "A fair estimate is that we'll probably install them in the summer," Lamouria said. "If we didn't have so many changes in the Union at one time, I think we already would have the vending machines here."

The availability of change in the Union has been a concern recently. To alleviate the problem the Foundation has plans to install changers.

$200 Free Software

with the purchase of an HP 150 Computer

Computers and Peripherals limited to stock on hand.

LEATHER PREMIER

Full-grain leather upper with high traction rubber sole and strip closure. Sold in '84 for $53.

1699

A PAIR

Qualities are subject to stock on hand. We reserve the right to refuse sale to dealers.

Copeland's Sports

962 MONTEREY ST. 543-3663

S.L.O.

PRICES GOOD THROUGH 6/9/85
Campus Store features campus products

By GREGG SCHROEDER

Staff Writer

Traditionally, the Campus Store, a Cal Poly Foundation-operated outlet for student agriculture enterprise projects, offers prices below local competition, recent survey data shows.

In an informal price comparison conducted by the Mustang Daily, prices of nine Cal Poly-produced fruits, vegetables, meats and milk products were gauged against the cost of similar items at two local grocery stores. In general, the Campus Store offers lower prices than Williams Bros. (which carries some Cal Poly products) and Lucky Stores. (Please see table.)

Lloyd Lamouria, food service satellite operations manager, said that although the Campus Store sells university products at lower-than-grocery-store prices, other items are more expensive.

"The Campus Store is a showplace for campus products," Lamouria said. Therefore, the profit margin on campus items is less than at supermarkets.

"We're a little above (supermarket prices) but below Circle K and family markets" for commercially-packaged goods, Lamouria said.

Although Foundation-operated from its inception, the Campus Store was run by the School of Agriculture until two years ago. Since the Foundation took over the day-to-day running of the store—and spent an estimated $75,000 in remodelling—sales have greatly improved, Lamouria said. "There's an astronomical difference."

Like the Sandwich Plant, Snack Bar and Student Dining Hall, Lamouria said the Campus Store has expansion in its future. A separate building, possibly to be constructed adjacent to the store, would include a bookstore and a Snack Bar-type eating facility.

"This is all in the pre-proposal stage," Lamouria said, adding that no concrete plans have been made for the project. The new store would be consistent with the increased number of students expected to use Engineering South and the proposed agriculture building.

As a part of the food services division of the Foundation, a part of the store's surplus will go to the university requested services fund at year end. "None of the money leaves the campus," Lamouria said. The fund is used to supplement the athletics program and assist students with President Warren Baker's discretion.

Lamouria said student input is important in food service matters. The Campus Store—and all of food service—"serves at the pleasure of the campus," Lamouria said. "We answer to their needs."

---

Campus Store vs. Lucky vs. Williams Bros.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Item</th>
<th>Campus Store</th>
<th>Lucky</th>
<th>Williams Bros.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Romaine lettuce</td>
<td>.20</td>
<td>.39</td>
<td>.39</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>avocados (each)</td>
<td>.15</td>
<td>.19</td>
<td>.49</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>oranges (1 lb.)</td>
<td>.33</td>
<td>.69</td>
<td>.49</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>large grade A eggs (1 dozen)</td>
<td>.91</td>
<td>.95</td>
<td>.97</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>whole milk (half gallon)</td>
<td>1.03</td>
<td>1.01</td>
<td>1.05</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Monterey Jack cheese (1 lb.)</td>
<td>2.57</td>
<td>2.69</td>
<td>2.49</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>butter (1 lb.)</td>
<td>2.09</td>
<td>1.95</td>
<td>2.29</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>ground beef (1 lb.)</td>
<td>1.49</td>
<td>1.79</td>
<td>.89</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cornish game hens</td>
<td>1.39</td>
<td>1.40</td>
<td>1.49</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
Happiness is

Happy Hour

Nachos are a specialty at Spike's Place.

Nachos are in high demand at Los Hermanos as Geo...
Gold margaritas are a favorite at Los Hermanos.

Photos by James Adams

A mouthful.

Aguilar takes them to hungry customers.

Grey Rappe pours a two-pound beer at the Graduate.
If you feel like a number, feel glad you're not at Arizona State

BY THOMAS WILLIAMS

What's it like attending a university three times the size of Cal Poly?

Different, to make an understatement.

There are some similarities however, if one thinks hard enough about it. Hmmmm ... Oh yea, how about classrooms, students and professors?

But other than these similarities, attending a university with a student population of 45,000 is, as they say, a different breed of cat compared to Cal Poly.

We'll use Arizona State University for a comparison, since it is my former Alma Mater.

At Cal Poly, students make up a little less than half of the population of San Luis Obispo, whereas ASU students make up only five percent of the population of Phoenix. While this may not sound particularly startling at first, one must bear in mind that at ASU there are 45,000 students, meaning that all of San Luis Obispo is smaller than the student population of ASU.

But a swarming mass of people isn't the only thing that makes ASU different from Cal Poly.

While ASU has 14 residence halls and Cal Poly is close with 13, the number of students they house isn't comparable. At ASU there are more than 5,100 students living on campus. There are two 15 story dorms, 16 fraternities in two Greek Rows and 15 sororities.

At Cal Poly there are only 2,800 students housed on campus, nine far-easternities and eight sororities and even one Greek Row is a debatable issue.

There are more than 150 majors offered at ASU, compared to 55 at Cal Poly.

ASU has eight libraries containing 1.5 million volumes. Cal Poly has one library with about 700,000 volumes and plenty of room to sleep.

Classes are a different story too. ASU has more than 150 majors offered at ASU, compared to 55 at Cal Poly.

ASU has eight libraries containing 1.5 million volumes. Cal Poly has one library with about 700,000 volumes and plenty of room to sleep.

There are some similarities however, if one thinks hard enough about it. Hmmmm ... Oh yea, how about classrooms, students and professors?

But other than these similarities, attending a university with a student population of 45,000 is, as they say, a different breed of cat compared to Cal Poly.

We'll use Arizona State University for a comparison, since it is my former Alma Mater.

At Cal Poly, students make up a little less than half of the population of San Luis Obispo, whereas ASU students make up only five percent of the population of Phoenix. While this may not sound particularly startling at first, one must bear in mind that at ASU there are 45,000 students, meaning that all of San Luis Obispo is smaller than the student population of ASU.

But a swarming mass of people isn't the only thing that makes ASU different from Cal Poly.

While ASU has 14 residence halls and Cal Poly is close with 13, the number of students they house isn't comparable. At ASU there are more than 5,100 students living on campus. There are two 15 story dorms, 16 fraternities in two Greek Rows and 15 sororities.

At Cal Poly there are only 2,800 students housed on campus, nine far-easternities and eight sororities and even one Greek Row is a debatable issue.

There are more than 150 majors offered at ASU, compared to 55 at Cal Poly.

ASU has eight libraries containing 1.5 million volumes. Cal Poly has one library with about 700,000 volumes and plenty of room to sleep.

Classes are a different story too. ASU has more than 150 majors offered at ASU, compared to 55 at Cal Poly.

ASU has eight libraries containing 1.5 million volumes. Cal Poly has one library with about 700,000 volumes and plenty of room to sleep.

There are some similarities however, if one thinks hard enough about it. Hmmmm ... Oh yea, how about classrooms, students and professors?

But other than these similarities, attending a university with a student population of 45,000 is, as they say, a different breed of cat compared to Cal Poly.

We'll use Arizona State University for a comparison, since it is my former Alma Mater.

At Cal Poly, students make up a little less than half of the population of San Luis Obispo, whereas ASU students make up only five percent of the population of Phoenix. While this may not sound particularly startling at first, one must bear in mind that at ASU there are 45,000 students, meaning that all of San Luis Obispo is smaller than the student population of ASU.

But a swarming mass of people isn't the only thing that makes ASU different from Cal Poly.

While ASU has 14 residence halls and Cal Poly is close with 13, the number of students they house isn't comparable. At ASU there are more than 5,100 students living on campus. There are two 15 story dorms, 16 fraternities in two Greek Rows and 15 sororities.

At Cal Poly there are only 2,800 students housed on campus, nine far-easternities and eight sororities and even one Greek Row is a debatable issue.

There are more than 150 majors offered at ASU, compared to 55 at Cal Poly.

ASU has eight libraries containing 1.5 million volumes. Cal Poly has one library with about 700,000 volumes and plenty of room to sleep.

Classes are a different story too. ASU has more than 150 majors offered at ASU, compared to 55 at Cal Poly.

ASU has eight libraries containing 1.5 million volumes. Cal Poly has one library with about 700,000 volumes and plenty of room to sleep.

There are some similarities however, if one thinks hard enough about it. Hmmmm ... Oh yea, how about classrooms, students and professors?

But other than these similarities, attending a university with a student population of 45,000 is, as they say, a different breed of cat compared to Cal Poly.

We'll use Arizona State University for a comparison, since it is my former Alma Mater.

At Cal Poly, students make up a little less than half of the population of San Luis Obispo, whereas ASU students make up only five percent of the population of Phoenix. While this may not sound particularly startling at first, one must bear in mind that at ASU there are 45,000 students, meaning that all of San Luis Obispo is smaller than the student population of ASU.

But a swarming mass of people isn't the only thing that makes ASU different from Cal Poly.

While ASU has 14 residence halls and Cal Poly is close with 13, the number of students they house isn't comparable. At ASU there are more than 5,100 students living on campus. There are two 15 story dorms, 16 fraternities in two Greek Rows and 15 sororities.

At Cal Poly there are only 2,800 students housed on campus, nine far-easternities and eight sororities and even one Greek Row is a debatable issue.

There are more than 150 majors offered at ASU, compared to 55 at Cal Poly.

ASU has eight libraries containing 1.5 million volumes. Cal Poly has one library with about 700,000 volumes and plenty of room to sleep.

Classes are a different story too. ASU has more than 150 majors offered at ASU, compared to 55 at Cal Poly.

ASU has eight libraries containing 1.5 million volumes. Cal Poly has one library with about 700,000 volumes and plenty of room to sleep.

There are some similarities however, if one thinks hard enough about it. Hmmmm ... Oh yea, how about classrooms, students and professors?

But other than these similarities, attending a university with a student population of 45,000 is, as they say, a different breed of cat compared to Cal Poly.

We'll use Arizona State University for a comparison, since it is my former Alma Mater.

At Cal Poly, students make up a little less than half of the population of San Luis Obispo, whereas ASU students make up only five percent of the population of Phoenix. While this may not sound particularly startling at first, one must bear in mind that at ASU there are 45,000 students, meaning that all of San Luis Obispo is smaller than the student population of ASU.

But a swarming mass of people isn't the only thing that makes ASU different from Cal Poly.

While ASU has 14 residence halls and Cal Poly is close with 13, the number of students they house isn't comparable. At ASU there are more than 5,100 students living on campus. There are two 15 story dorms, 16 fraternities in two Greek Rows and 15 sororities.

At Cal Poly there are only 2,800 students housed on campus, nine far-easternities and eight sororities and even one Greek Row is a debatable issue.

There are more than 150 majors offered at ASU, compared to 55 at Cal Poly.

ASU has eight libraries containing 1.5 million volumes. Cal Poly has one library with about 700,000 volumes and plenty of room to sleep.

Classes are a different story too. ASU has more than 150 majors offered at ASU, compared to 55 at Cal Poly.

ASU has eight libraries containing 1.5 million volumes. Cal Poly has one library with about 700,000 volumes and plenty of room to sleep.

There are some similarities however, if one thinks hard enough about it. Hmmmm ... Oh yea, how about classrooms, students and professors?

But other than these similarities, attending a university with a student population of 45,000 is, as they say, a different breed of cat compared to Cal Poly.

We'll use Arizona State University for a comparison, since it is my former Alma Mater.

At Cal Poly, students make up a little less than half of the population of San Luis Obispo, whereas ASU students make up only five percent of the population of Phoenix. While this may not sound particularly startling at first, one must bear in mind that at ASU there are 45,000 students, meaning that all of San Luis Obispo is smaller than the student population of ASU.

But a swarming mass of people isn't the only thing that makes ASU different from Cal Poly.

While ASU has 14 residence halls and Cal Poly is close with 13, the number of students they house isn't comparable. At ASU there are more than 5,100 students living on campus. There are two 15 story dorms, 16 fraternities in two Greek Rows and 15 sororities.

At Cal Poly there are only 2,800 students housed on campus, nine far-easternities and eight sororities and even one Greek Row is a debatable issue.

There are more than 150 majors offered at ASU, compared to 55 at Cal Poly.

ASU has eight libraries containing 1.5 million volumes. Cal Poly has one library with about 700,000 volumes and plenty of room to sleep.
Student premieres one act play

By CATHERINE AARON

A look at the morals and values of life in the fast lane can be seen tonight as the student production "Roomies" premieres at 8 and 10 p.m. in room 212 of the music building.

Written and directed by theater arts graduate student Greg Strange, the one-act play is a modern-day tragedy dealing with new wealth in Los Angeles, co-

Bicycle thefts on the rise

By DAN RUTHEMeyer

Five bicycles were stolen on campus between May 20 and May 29, making it a significant increase in bicycle thefts, said campus police.

Investigator Ray Berrett said that while the overall number of bicycle thefts is lower than it has been the past several years, the latest rash of thefts is similar to one that occurred last spring.

With an average value of $450, the five bicycles were stolen between noon and 5 p.m. within the nine day period. Berrett said that this is typical of campus bicycle thefts.

"It is easier for thefts to occur in the daytime because they thieves can watch you go into a building and then take your bike," said Berrett.

Each of the five thefts involved cutting a steel cable with a pair of cable cutters, said Berrett, and in each case the locked cable and lock were taken.

Because the five thefts involved expensive bicycles taken within a short period of time, Berrett believes that all the thefts were committed by the same group of people.

"It is probably a ring working these thefts," said Berrett. "They are probably working several universities throughout California."

Berrett said that preventing thefts such as these is difficult because of the type of bike locks that were used.

"It doesn't really matter how good the lock is because they thieves can always cut through the 800-pound cable," he said. "The cable doesn't really provide any security."

The possibility of turning up bicycles stolen on campus is usually pretty slim because the owners rarely know the serial numbers, said Berrett.

If the numbers are known they can be put into a computer system, and if the bicycle is found it can be returned to its owner, he said.

Dance benefit

"Dance for Africa," presented by KQRI radio, will be Thursday, June 6.

Proceeds for the event, which is at the San Luis Obispo Vet's Hall from 8 p.m. to midnight, will go directly to the African Relief Fund.

The Plumbers and Ravin will be playing the benefit. Admission is $5 and tickets are available at Boo Boo Records and at the door.

Photo IDs

Students may pick up their photo IDs in the Dean of Students Office. Administration Room 209, from 1:30 to 4:30 p.m. only.

"How do you say, 'We came to your country to find our suitcases?'"

2 FREE DRINKS

W/PURCHASE OF ANY SIZE SANDWICH

$.50 OFF

ANY SIZE SANDWICH

Folder coupon per sandwich.

SHAREHOLDERS

GAYLE LARGE, President & CEO; JERRY BROWN, Director of Operations & Treasurer; PEGGY SMITH, Secretary & CFO; MARK HONOR, Assistant Treasurer.

DIRECTORS

J. CARL SMITH, President; ERIC L. SMITH, Vice President; THOMAS A. SMITH, Secretary; MARK HONOR, Treasurer.

STOCKHOLDERS

JOHN A. SMITH, (100 shares); BETTY L. SMITH, (50 shares); JAMES W. SMITH, (20 shares).

SHARE PRICE

$0.50 per share.

DIVIDENDS

Not declared.

OFFICERS

J. CARL SMITH, Chairman of the Board; ERIC L. SMITH, President; THOMAS A. SMITH, Secretary; MARK HONOR, Treasurer.

SHAREHOLDERS MEETING

To be held at 10:00 a.m. on June 15, 1985, at the company's headquarters, 123 Main Street, Anytown, USA.

ANNUAL REPORT

To be filed with the Securities and Exchange Commission on May 31, 1985.

SEND RESERVATIONS NOW!

For the FULL YEAR (8.19 to big in large print)

FALL SALE!

All furniture and appliances 20% off. All clothing 30% off. All accessories 40% off. All home decor 50% off.
Volleyball game between alumni, summer Saturday

With five of six starters returning from last year's women's volleyball team and months of practice this year, it would appear the volleyball squad would be able to handle any group of former Cal Poly players. But four Cal Poly Hall-of-Famers who are the group of alumni that will return to the Main Gym this Saturday, 7:30 p.m., for a Green-Gold game with the varsity team.

The varsity squad is practicing giving them the edge in training, but the volleyball team has seven members only.

The alumni team will probably have more than 10 players and hopes to make up for its lack of training.

The varsity team consists of Kelly Strand, Eileen Bugalski, Lynn Kessler, Vera Pendegast, Dede Bodnar, Claudia Hemmenga, Jack and Carol Tschasar.

Cal Poly students will be admitted free with a valid identification (general admission tickets are $2.50, $1 for non-Cal Poly students and children).

Cubs could play series on road

ABC wants all World Series games played at night

CHICAGO (AP) — If the Chicago Cubs are lucky enough, the World Series this year, home may be away from home.

The Cubs' venerable Wrigley Field is the last major league ballpark without lights — and the ABC television network has decided that all World Series games will be played at night.

"Obviously it puts us in a little bit of a difficult situation if we get" to the series, Cubs General Manager Dallas Green said Thursday after the games-only decision was announced by Commissioner Pete Ueberroth.

"The right to do that under the contract," Ueberroth said Wednesday in New York after an owners' meeting. He said the TV contract was signed during Bowie Kuhn's term as commis-sioner.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Returning starters Carol Tschasar and Lynn Kessler will lead the varsity in a match against the alumni.

At park, Average price $150/mo Call 549-5025

OWN ROOM-Available 6/18 through June 86

Office, 2nd floor, close to Poly. $130/mo. Call 541-8831

SUMMER SUBLET FOR 2 FEMALES TO SHARE RM-2 bdr, 1 bath 3 mo. $130/mo. Call 549-3429

SUMMER SUBLET- Apt for summer-Garfleld Arms-Trangle - 2 Bd. 1 bath 3 mo. $130/mo. Call Lisa 543-4474, or 546-4542

SUMMER SUBLET IN 4-Storey Vicinity of Poly- 3 bdr, 1 bath 3 mo. $140/mo. Rent negotiable. Call Carol 549-6121 or 541-5046

RETURNING STARTERS: Carol Tschasar and Lynn Kessler will join the group of former Cal Poly players.

Moore, the most prolific hitter in the school's history.

"Obviously it puts us in a little bit of a difficult situation if we get" to the series, Cubs General Manager Dallas Green said Thursday after the games-only decision was announced by Commissioner Pete Ueberroth.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announcement was the latest development in a long-standing controversy over the lack of lights at Wrigley Field. On Friday, the Illinois Supreme Court is to hear oral arguments on the constitutionality of the presence of aql fans in the stadium, essentially ban night baseball at the North Side ballpark.

Ueberroth's announc
Student found dead of apparent suicide near San Simeon

By DAN RUTHEMEYER

A Cal Poly student was found dead in his truck shortly after noon Thursday, an apparent victim of suicide, the Cal Poly Public Affairs Office reported.

Donald Gardner, Braun's brother-in-law, went up to Cuesta Ridge looking for the Cal Poly student.

"We were dropped off by Steve's parents... we proceeded to walk down TV Tower Road. We were looking for his car. We thought he might have lost control of the car and gone over the side," said Jackson.

"I noticed the car," said Jackson. "We were walking about mid-day and I caught the reflection of a rear windshield... it wasn't for the sunlight hitting the windshield, I probably wouldn't have seen the car."

Braun's car was found hidden behind bushes and scrub off TV Tower Road.

During the trial, Jackson identified a car, ice chest and wallet as belonging to Braun when shown pictures of these items.

Once the car was found, Jackson said he flagged down a car and was given a ride to Highway 101 where he met Highway Patrol officers and was taken to the Sheriff's department.

Donald Gardner, Braun's brother-in-law, said the driver of an AT&T van, Jens Bogedang, stopped and asked if he could help. Gardner and the driver of the van inspected the inside of the car by looking through the windows. The door handles were not touched, but the driver of the van opened the trunk, said Gardner.

The defense attorneys asked Bogedang why he opened the trunk and Bogedang replied, "I just wanted to look and see there was anything that could be helpful as to what happened to the students."