Police arrest wallet thief
By Debra Ross

Police have arrested a suspect on charges of committing a series of burglaries in the men's locker rooms at both Cal Poly and Cuesta College during the past month.

Kenton Kumar Malde, 16, was charged with 25 counts of burglary Thursday after investigator Wayne Carmack observed Malde prying open a locker with a lug wrench. In an interview with Carmack, Malde admitted he was responsible for the locker room thefts.

Malde is a Cuesta College student and has admitted to 10 burglaries in the men's locker room at that campus.

Carmack said only three wallets were recovered; two were with Malde at the time.

Students become the stars
Video yearbook will capture campus and club activities

By Laura Rosenblum

With the debut of a video yearbook, Cal Poly students will be able to take a top-down memory lane with a half-hour videotape of the 1986 school year.

Bob Timone, an alumni officer and the impresario behind the video yearbook, said the video will capture live moments of the past year. "It's not going to be the traditional yearbook with mug shots. It's going to be students and Cal Poly in action," he said.

The approximtely 30 minutes of footage will be divided into sections on campus clubs and organizations, athletics, important university events and each of the academic schools.

"We will capture the essence of the campus today, from the music to the faces," said Timone.

The video will begin with an aerial view of the campus and then zero in on specific campus spots. A narrator will take viewers through the most-filled journey.

The Associated Students is producing the yearbook in conjunction with San Luis Video Production. The association has imported the best footage for the video yearbook to capture campus and club activities.

The plight of mankind’s fishbowl

Some people may remember once having a goldfish. If they didn’t replace the water in the bowl, the fish would suffocate in its own waste. Perhaps the goldfish wouldn’t survive, but it would be regarded as a parallel to the plight of mankind’s own fishbowl - Earth.

High levels of toxins have forced whole communities from their homes - most notably at New York’s Love Canal and Missouri’s Times Beach. Other towns have lived in the midst of lethal chemicals for years before learning of any hazard. A creek used for fishing and drinking in Triana, a rural town in Alabama, had up to 1.5 million gallons of DDT-laden wastewater dumped into it between 1947 and 1970, according to a June, 1984 article in National Wildlife. Not until 1977 was the creek contamination detected, revealing a possible 840 tons of DDT. “Most of the townpeople and nearby residents have been con taminated with high levels of DDT,” the article stated.

The cover stories in the Oct. 14, 1985 issue of Time magazine focused on the problem of toxic wastes in America. According to one of the Time articles, 66,000 chemicals are being used in the industrial countries (U.S., Japan, U.K. and Germany) as the biggest threat - producing 90 percent of the world’s pollution.

Yet, it seems only those whose lives are stricken with the toxic waste dilemma are truly concerned. When residents of Casimba, Calif. heard-despairing about noxious fumes from a waste dump, some outsiders can’t believe any smell could be that bad.

The fact is, toxins have been expanding and further outward into the environment. Hopefully, people will get concerned before lethal poisons show up at their own back doors.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Date rape victim sets the issue straight

Editor — As a victim of date rape, I am very sensitive to the issues raised in your article on date rape and the attitudes about it I see on campus. I was raped when I passed out at a party and for years I was told not to "rape." I have also heard the "you brought this on" and many on campus, and I would like to set the record straight. I got drunk — that is true, but I didn’t ask to be raped. I didn’t enjoy it and I am still getting counseling today. Five years later. Why do some men think they have a right to force themselves on a woman just because she passed out? Could it be that okay for me to help myself to money in your water if you passed out and couldn’t stop me? Or maybe I could take your car keys and borrow your car, you know. I don’t like being treated like that. I never actually said no. Women should have the right to make a choice of whether or not to have sex. When a man forces his choice on a woman, that is rape.

Freedom of the press not a laughing matter

Editor — This letter is in response to the letter by Dwayne S in the U.S. Environmental Monitoring Around column, published in last Monday’s edition of the Mustang Daily.

I agree with Mr. Thaele whom I consider student, should never contain any light, even semihumorous material. They should always contain hard news — even if it is morbid, depressing news.

Personally, whenever I pick up a newspaper, especially the Mustang Daily, I want to laugh. I know, that is a paradox, but I expect to be depressed. In your wallet, reader. Perhaps the Mustang Daily should terminate Andy Frokjer’s humor column and devote the entire space to you and your concerns about hostages, environmentalists who kill thousands and toxic wastes.

In short, perhaps, we all would be laughing too hard.

First electricity from Unit 2

SAN LUIS OBISPO (AP) — The Diablo Canyon nuclear power plant's Unit 2 reactor produced its first electricity Sunday, a Pacific Gas & Electric Co. spokesman said.

At 5:57 a.m., the reactor's generators started delivering 100,000 kilowatts — enough to meet the electricity needs of about 100,000 people — into the regional power grid, spokesman Chuck Peterson said. "That is a milestone," he said.

The reactor was operating at about 15 percent of its 1.1 million kilowatt-rated capacity as part of a test in which output is being gradually increased, he said. By December, Unit 2 is expected to operate at full capacity.

Unit 1, at the $5.6 billion, twin-reactor plant reached full power May 6.

Klinghoffer body returns to US

NEW YORK (AP) — A military honor guard, elected officials and relatives of Leon Klinghoffer, who was slain during the hijacking of the cruise ship Achille Lauro, gathered at Kennedy Airport on Sunday as the body of the 69-year-old New Yorker was returned home.

Klinghoffer's body arrived shortly after 3:30 p.m. on a flight from Rome. His flag-draped coffin was wheeled onto an airport runway as a short ceremony took place. Speakers including U.S. Sens. Daniel P. Moynihan, D-N.Y., and Alfonse D'Amato, R-N.Y., extolled Klinghoffer's courage.

"The hearts of all Americans go out to you in your time of grief," D'Amato told Klinghoffer's wife, Marilyn, and other members of his family.

As a result of his death, "There has come about a new spirit. Leon lives on," D'Amato said. "I believe that spirit will be one that lives on and gives comfort, help and aid to others to end this barbarism."

D'Amato said he and Rep. Theodore Weiss, D-N.Y., who also spoke at the airport ceremony, would propose Monday that Klinghoffer be awarded the congressional Medal of Honor.

After the speeches, Klinghoffer's wife kissed her hand and touched the casket, which was covered by an American flag.

Mustangs hail over St. Mary's

By Tim Robinson

Sports Editor

It was a near-flawless October afternoon — a warm clear day crowned just for football, and for Cal Poly, it was a time to play near perfect football.

It could have been described just as that, near-perfect, as Poly physically dominated an ill-prepared St. Mary's team, 44-0.

It was also the kind of game that a Hollywood script writer would love — it was breathtaking, a star player who seemingly was lost for the season, returns to play despite injuries, and the home team, of course, goes on to win by a bunch.

It was, however, also the kind of afternoon that St. Mary's would love to forget. More than 4,000 saw a game which stopped being competitive shortly after the coin toss — and Cal Poly even won the flip.

From the opening kickoff, it was clear that any St. Mary's hopes would have to wait longer than on the opening drive, when the Mustangs drove the length of the field, failing to score after having a first and ten at the 12-yard line.

It may have been deja vu, but Cal Poly, after driving from its own 29, failed to convert on a fourth-and-short opportunity and did not score.

It gave the Gaels a few more brief moments of hope — hope which would last only until the opening kickoff.

Meanwhile, on the other side of the ball, the Mustang defense has given strong back-to-back performances. The defense, easily the biggest question mark before the season began, completely shut down St. Mary's offense.

As a matter of fact, Gael quarterback Peter Johnson completed only one of his 16 passes with two interceptions. However, one of Johnson's passes was dropped by a wide open receiver who allowed the ball to ricochet off his head which drew a fourth down from the crowd.

Credit Johnson's afternoon of frustration to the Mustang defense, which constantly harassed Johnson and had three sacks on the day. The defense also held St. Mary's offense to a low 187 total yards, which serves as a warning to the rest of the conference that the Mustangs are capable of holding their own.

"We're improving, but we have to get better. We're not where we should be at this time of season, but we'll continue improving and we'll have at least a fighting chance for the conference," said Sanderson.

Improvements in special team play showed up Saturday when Eric Schulte slid in behind the Gaels' wall on the kickoff to strip the ball loose for Ken Gourdin to recover. How good was this win? The Mustangs used their second and third teams most of the second half. How important is it for reserve players to see some action and win?

"It felt in good to be able to walk over and shake their hands after being on the winning side," said backup quarterback Joe DiFronzo, who had one sack. The Mustangs will play on the road for the next two weeks and will not return to Mustang Stadium until Nov. 9. They have, however, already returned to their winning ways, and with a healthy running game, which will supplement a much improved passing attack, the road back could be a little shorter.

Sixteen straight victories

Win No. 200 for Coach Wilton

By Lisa A. Hook

Sports Editor

"The coach's notebook slammed shut, the tie was loosened and Head Coach Mike Wilton watched his volleyball players win their 18th match of the season — to place his career victories at a monumental 200.

No scoreboard flashed a noon '200' in green and gold lights and no police escort had to restrain the crowd, as Coach Wilton accepted his 200th win in the fashion of a Class Eastwood rate.

With a serious expression, Wilton said, "I was totally unaware of it until last night when the number 199 was mentioned — but I sure didn't reach this point alone."

The women's volleyball team helped Wilton obtain his 199th and 200th win by defeating the Blue Devils of Duke University Thursday night 15-3, 15-3, 15-9, and beating the Anteaters of the University of California, Irvine 15-6, 15-1, 15-6 on Friday. These two victories add to the reputation of the Mustang 'Savage Six,' as Poly's league record jumps to a perfect 7-0 and 1-0 overall.

"Tim Eastwood and the 'Savage Six' — it sounds like a box office hit, only Wilton and his players sell out their opponents instead of the theaters.

With a 16-match winning streak, the Lady Mustangs have set a new school record and have earned a number two national ranking. The floor is also still hot for loss in Pauline Pavilion, after the Mustangs blazed over number two-ranked University of the Pacific and number three-ranked UCLA to win the National Invitational Volleyball Tournament a week ago.

Thursday night the Mustangs proved they could handle an East Coast team. Within 62 minutes, Duke was off the court and headed back to Durham, North Carolina with one more loss added to a 13-4 overall record.

Against the Blue Devils, Poly's setter Kelly Strand let her hair down for a match-high 14 kills in 27 attempts to produce a soaring .444 hitting percentage. Double figures were hard to come by in such a quick match, but Ellen Bugaski added eight kills, while Lynn Kessler fired six to boost Poly's team hitting mark to .311. Vera Pendergast helped the Mustangs out with seven defensive digs and Dele Boddor set up 32 assists, while Carol Tschauer rocketed four kills in seven tries.

This match involved the 'Great Eight,' as Wilton turned to his bench for the talents of freshman Erin Deiters and injury struck Claudia Hemmersbach. Deiters, who played the entire last game, earned two kills in five sets to add to Hemmersbach's two kills and another.

Friday night, the Poly volleyballers took care of business with UC Irvine in a habit forming three straight sets. The Mustangs gave Wilton his 200th win and then some, as his 'Savage Six' couldn't seem to attack the final match point.

The crowd of 1,326 received more of a workout than Poly, as the fans stood up for the final match point four times before a UCI spiker hit Kessler's serve into the net to raise Wilton's career record to 200-77 in seven plus seasons.

"I was pleased with the way we performed in front of our home crowd — relaxed, yet business-like — usually we don't put the home court advantage in our favor."

Mustang spikers Pendergast and Deiters switched the pace against the Anteaters, as Pendergast surpised bunch coaches with an impressive offensive and defensive show of consistency, while Deiters hit her cross-court kills on after another.
Mustang runners take second in Cal Poly Invitational

By Andy FroHJcr

SPIKERS

awesome sets during the game so each to shoot their hitting marks also teamed up for 10 rockets defensive digs to round out a fine with only one error for a whopping with eight kills in 16 attempts said Kessler, the 5'9" senior out of the main competition for the hosts provided by the Converse Agger Running Club. Last year, the Mustangs played host to eight teams and 88 individuals. This year the field ballooned to 20 teams and over 200 individuals.

The third-ranked Mustangs scored 74 points to finish behind Division I UC Irvine's tally of 39 and beat the defending champion Aggies (83 points). Despite the loss, Cal Poly remains unbeaten by Division II teams.

Cal Poly alumnus Ivan Huff, running for the Aggie team, won the five mile race in 24:19. Teammate Daniel Gonzales, who shared the lead with Huff for most of the race, finished second in 24:22. Despite the one-two punch, the Aggie's effort to defend their title was damaged when front-runner Mike Lansdon (another Cal Poly alumnus) fell at the mile mark and couldn't regain his position.

The race was billed as a rematch between Irvine and Cal Poly. The Anteaters beat the Mustangs two weeks ago at the Stanford Invitational, a result due more to the Mustangs' disappointing performance than Irvine's superiority. "I was not happy with the way Irvine beat us at Stanford," said Hernandez. "I don't mind losing to a team when they run an almost perfect race."

And the Irvine Anteaters ran an almost perfect race, with their top four runners beating the number one man from every college team except Cal Poly. The Anteater pack placed fourth, fifth, sixth and seventh, with their final scoring individual placing 13th.

After being buried at the Stanford Invitational, when the host team took an early lead and pulled away for the victory, Hernandez decided to alter his pack-running strategy. He sent his Mustang team out fast to lead.

"We had run the same stretch the week before and I knew what I had to do," Hernandez said. "I looked back and it was a shock they weren't there." Hernandez, the first collegiate finisher, took fourth place in 24:41. It was the fourth straight time this season the Mustangs have led by a different runner. Teammate Joe Rubino, returning to early season form after a rough race at Stanford, followed in 25th place (25:01). Polya's third man was Michael Minor, who has improved steadily all season in a bid to make the national squad again (25:08).

Don Reynolds made his first ever appearance in the Mustang lineup running a great race to place 20th (25:14). Jim McCarthchy, another runner who struggled at Stanford, returned to form at placed 21st (25:15) in completing his season.

The top seven were rounded out by Benjamin Morris, who took 23rd place in 25:18, and redshirt freshman Jim Chaney, who placed 25th in 25:24.

The Annual Audit for Fiscal Year 1984-85 for the California Polytechnic State University Foundation has now been completed. Copies for public information are available in the Foundation Executive Director's Office (Fisher Science Hall, Room 290) and the Campus Library.

Strong finishes for Poly runners

By Andy Frokjer

The magic of the home course advantage finally wore out for the women's cross country team Saturday, but not before the Mustangs had toppled one Division I giant and grabbed second place in the ninth annual Cal Poly Invitational.

The Mustangs fell victim to the superior firepower of tenth-ranked Houston, which placed four runners in the top eight. The Cougars, who have all seven scorers, scored 32 points to Cal Poly's 93 points. Houston's depth was too much for the Mustangs to handle, but Poly's depth forced the Cougars to depend on one runner to make the difference.

"I consider that very flattering," said Harter, freshman Sherri Minkler (26th, 17:13). "It's kind of flattering because then you're not depending on anyone."

The group of Mustangs that followed Lopez would have made any coach's day. Cal Poly's next four runners finished within 12 seconds of each other — an exceptional demonstration of the teamwork concept which Harter has tried to foster throughout the season.

"There is no established pecking order and that's good because then you're not depending on a single runner to make your performance," said Harter. "The other team can't key on a single individual. That makes you unpredictable and that much harder to beat."" Jennifer Dunn, with a breakthrough performance, led the Mustang pack across the finish line in 17:05 for ninth place. She was followed closely by Katy Manning (10th, 17:04) who returned to the Poly line-up after an illness kept her out of the Stanford meet. Jill Ellingson, continuing to close the gap on the Mustang top three, placed 12th in 17:37.

The best news for the Mustangs was the performance of their fifth runner, Lesley DeBettencourt (19th, 17:22) and first for the Mustangs in the Mustang Invitational. Poly's depth was enough to take the early lead, while the Poly pack set up as a team behind the rest of the Bruins. After laying back and watching the race develop for the first mile, the Mustangs made their move on a series of hills early in the second mile to pull away from UCLA and make it a dual meet with Houston.

Junior Lori Lopez pulled ahead of her teammates and valiantly chased Plumer and the Houston runners, finishing fourth overall and first for the Mustangs in 16:40.

"On our team you're only first for the day," said Lopez. It just so happens today was my day. I'm surprised I ran that fast." The Other team can't key on a single individual. That makes you unpredictable and that much harder to beat.

The magic of the home course advantage finally wore out for the women's cross country team Saturday, but not before the Mustangs had toppled one Division I giant and grabbed second place in the ninth annual Cal Poly Invitational. Poly's Lori Lopez led the women's cross country team to a second place finish in the Cal Poly Invitational Saturday. Poly knocked off Division I UCLA.

YEARBOOK

"They (students) feel like they're missing a yearbook. The video and sound today is going to meet an awful lot of these people 20 years from now," said Timone. "Modern technology gives a chance to hear and feel things conjured up in college years."

The tapes will sell for approximately $30 to $40 and will be available the beginning of June. Timone said the yearbook will be marketed in the University Union Plaza with the showing of a five minute preview " teaser."

In addition, those who are willing to take a chance and purchase the yearbook before seeing it will get a reduction in price. "Early bird purchasers will be given a cost break so that we can get a reduction in price," Timone said. "Gives a chance to "hear and feel things conjured up in college years.""

The video concept was introduced at the 1981 June commemoration ceremonies. Although it was a last-minute effort, Timone said the tapes are still selling. The pilot project was helpful in that it pointed out ways to improve the production, such as the inclusion of background music. They also discovered that the original video should be shot on metal tape, so "hundreds of high-quality tapes can be easily reproduced."

The Alumni Association will continue to sell graduation videos. "No individual shots will be done but we will shoot from the floor with more close-ups and sounds," said Timone. "There is that moment of celebration when degrees are granted. We want to capture that."

Child bothers pet wolves; loses arm

IDYLWILD (AP) — Pet wolves bit off the arm of a 2-year-old boy who reached into the wolves' fenced enclosure kept in his family's yard, authorities said Sunday.

Christopher Nimitz lost his arm Friday from the shoulder down, but was "doing OK" in his family's yard, authorities said. "Everyone has a right to express their grievances and concerns and a protest march is one way of doing that," said Costa.

According to Verke, the group of protesters consisted mostly of concerned students, though a member of "concerned citizens" did take part. "People who marched were great, they listened to all the regulations we were to follow," said Verke. "I think they were all really glad to see it happen."

John Culver, head of the political science department, was bought by Verke for advice on the march. Culver said he agrees with Verke about the need for a greater public awareness of the events of Oct. 10.

"I'm concerned over the lack of concern about what exactly happened," said Culver. "It's (the riot) the sort of thing one associates with larger areas, but can happen anywhere. The history of student-police relations has had few problems in San Luis Obispo, but every now and then something can disturb that pattern," said Culver.

Many students were concerned about what exactly happened. "I think they were all concerned about what exactly happened," said Culver.

"I'm concerned over the lack of concern about what exactly happened," said Culver. "I support anything which would change that pattern," said Culver.

"We don't need to blame anyone for what happened. We need to have a positive thing come out of this and not let it happen again," said Culver.

Culver said the peaceful demonstration was a good way for citizens to show their concern. "I support anything which allows members of the public to articulate their views," said Culver. "I support anything which allows members of the public to articulate their views," said Culver.

PROTEST

more conventional the police wouldn't have reacted in this way.

"Basically what has happened is what has happened," said Anderson. "It scares me that people don't give a damn about the issue. As long as I'm not happy with how the police are treating us, I'm going to speak out against them. And until the police and people of San Luis Obispo wake up, I'm going to exercise that right."

After walking down Figueroa Street, the march proceeded up the sidewalk of Santa Rosa Avenue and eventually to the police station.

Sgt. Costa of the San Luis Obispo Police Department said the march was "quite peaceful and they obeyed all the laws necessary."

"Everyone has a right to express their grievances and concerns and a protest march is one way of doing that," said Costa.
