DeJong in; bowling and fees are out

By Kim Holweger
Staff Writer

The bowling alley and fee increase initiatives were defeated, and Donald DeJong will be the next ASI vice president.

Sole presidential candidate Stan Van Vleck captured 1,685 votes to clinch a victory.

Approximately 2,400 votes were cast in the April 15 and 16 election, which resulted in the sound defeat of a proposed fee increase of $3 by 1990. A total of 1,372 students said no to the increase, while 1,024 were in support of it.

The defeat of the initiative means a $75,000 cut in the ASI budget, which could translate into deletion of all sport and cultural clubs and a decrease in entertainment programming. It also could mean higher fees for movies, concerts, tutoring and child care.

The bowling alley initiative, however, was defeated by a narrow margin of 29 votes, 1,166 for and 1,137 against.

The vote indicated that a majority of students voted to continue renovation of the area for a fitness facility, as opposed to the reopening of the alley.

The bowling alley has been shut down since June 1985, following a Union Executive Committee vote to close the alley that was ratified by the Student Senate.

The defeat of the initiative translates into approximately $200,000 in what were referred to on the ballot as "relatively certain" costs to continue removal of the lanes and transform the facility as planned.

Vice presidential candidate DeJong received a total of 1,234 votes in his favor, while opponent Franklin Burris pulled in 896 votes.

The inter-club council senators bill, Bill 86-02, was defeated. It proposed the formation of a council made up of representatives from various campus clubs.

The bill received 1,137 yes votes and 960 no votes, but needed a two-thirds majority to pass.

Bill 87-01, which provides for the restructuring of the voting makeup of all Student Senate committees and commissions, passed 1,551 to 446.

The bill will also provide for the enhancement of the relationship of the Student Senate and UEC by making UEC a standing committee of the Student Senate.

A long-range planning committee will be established as a permanent standing committee of the Student Senate. Bill 86-01 was victorious by a margin of 1,917 to 1,295.

In the School of Agriculture, five positions will be taken by John Moons with 368 votes; Bill Grizzle, 266 votes; Ricardo Echeverria, 356; Dennis Hollingsworth, 327 and Jacob Wiersma, 221.

Five seats in the School of Engineering will be filled by Tom Levens, who received 363 votes; Susan Sinclair, 299 votes; Kyle See ELECTION, page 3

Students join last-minute rush to file taxes

By Monica Fiscalini
Staff Writer

On Wednesday, while many students were thinking about the weekend, others were concentrating on midnight — the deadline to file taxes.

Paige Maloney puzzled over her tax forms at 3 a.m. before her class began. She said her parents had always filed her taxes for her before and she wasn't quite sure what she was doing. "They said, 'You're a big girl now,'" Maloney said. She planned to mail her forms after class.

Jeff Blizzard, a journalism student, hopped on the bus at 4 p.m. to pick up his state tax form from the San Luis Obispo County Library. He had completed his federal forms, but still needed to fill out the state form which he discovered would get him a $60 credit for being a renter.

Blizzard said he has been filling for six years and usually waits until the last minute. "It's probably hereditary," he said. His dad, who helped him with his first few years of filing, also procrastinates. He said he will file early next year to get his check before July.

"Procrastination" was the word of the evening. The library was rat­tled by some eyes but Craig Andrews' didn't do more than that.

After displaying his artwork in a March exhibit at Kennedy Library, the Cal Poly journalism senior received a phone call from the Santa Barbara-based Secret Service.

Andrews' collage, titled "Assassination" depicted a magazine photo of President Ronald Reagan splattered with red paint. The work apparently caused a stir in an unidentified Cal Poly student who notified the Secret Service.

"They were calm, low-key people," Andrews said of the Secret Service. "Their main concern was that the collage might trigger someone in the audience." As an organizational policy the Secret Service was unable to comment.

"A majority of the people who saw the collage may think I might be advocating something, but obviously I don't plan on an..." See ANDREWS, page 7

Health Center doctor speaks

Poly not immune to AIDS

By Carol J. Vance
Staff Writer

AIDS exists at Cal Poly and students with an active sex life are in danger, the Cal Poly Health Center director told students Thursday.

Dr. James Nash spoke during activity hour in the University Union along with Dr. William Gordon, Health Department physicist, and Becky Cude, a Cal Poly student.

Cude's brother died of AIDS in 1975. "People at Cal Poly need to become aware of AIDS. We think we're insulated here but we're not," she said.

"Watching my brother die was the most painful experience of my life," she said.
Is Bill the Cat around?

For those who bothered to vote this week, something may have caught their eye. Not only was there just one candidate for president, but also only two for vice president and none for student senator from the School of Professional Studies and Education.

In three schools, the number of candidates running was the same as the number of positions available. Only the Liberal Arts, Engineering and Business schools fielded more candidates than positions available.

Nothing surprising, really. It's just Cal Poly apathy at its best. Not since 1985, when Apartheid-bashing was campusogue, has Cal Poly shown its true colors more vividly. Many may remember when KSBY News asked students to comment on the South African issue.

"I don't think it's a very good idea," said one person. But somehow, you could almost read her mind: "Apartheid? What's Apartheid?"

Student government? Who? What student government? Doesn't anyone want to say in how the school is run? Doesn't anyone want to govern the student body? Doesn't anyone want their own reserved parking space next to the H.P. Davidson Music Building?

Some people who wanted to run probably changed their minds after finding all the best campaign slogans already taken: "I will improve communication...I will work with the Administration...I will improve communication...I will let the students decide...I will improve communication..."

An old saying claims, "The cream always rises to the top." In this case, we'll just settle for milk.

Congratulations to this week's P artists

Editor — We'd like to take this opportunity to congratulate those inventive creators who embellished "SPRINGSTEEN" up at the P Sunday night. Although we're not avid Springsteen fans, we can appreciate the amount of planning and effort that was put into this endeavor.

As long as the remnants are cleaned up, we see no problem with this type of activity. In fact, we challenge any group to try and top this achievement. As for Rob Bates — lighten up, pal. Don't you have anything more important to worry about? We sure hope so.

Now a word from the P artists themselves

Editor — In response to Rob Bates' letter about defacing the P with "SPRINGSTEEN," we would like to make a few comments.

First, Bates, you should not jump to hasty conclusions by saying we defaced the P. We only added to it. Paint is permanent, paper is not.

Second, it took 1,500 feet of paper and many hours to put "SPRINGSTEEN" up at the P. To take the paper down would take little effort in comparison, and was our intention from the very beginning. But you never gave us a chance to take it down.

And finally, we were not the first and we will not be the last to write something up at the P. It is some thing which will continue for as long as it is there. We do not apologize for what we did but if you will look, we cleaned up our masterpiece, only because we are responsible adults.

Sanctions to remain on Japanese products

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sanctions on selected Japanese electronics products will stay in place until the Reagan administration is satisfied that Japan is fulfilling its part of an agreement on computer chip sales, U.S. officials say.

The Cabinet-level Economic Policy Council decided against setting a specific time limit for the duties at a private session Wednesday at which a decision to move ahead on the tariffs was made, said officials who insisted upon anonymity.

One official predicted that the duties of up to 100 percent will remain in place for at least three months.

A monitoring process will be established for lifting the sanctions once the administration is satisfied that Japan is making a good-faith effort to live up to the 1986 accord, the sources said.

That process of winnowing down certainly will consider the impact on American consumers,” he said.

An initial list of targeted items contained dozens of products ranging from Japanese-made television sets to pocket calculators and computer disks. However, the administration was in the process of narrowing that list down following two days of public hearings earlier this week.

In addition to penalizing Japanese companies, witnesses at the hearings said the sanctions would have a sharp impact on U.S. computer makers that rely heavily on Japanese components.

Deukmejian delays filing taxes

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Gov. George Deukmejian, who is on a trip to Europe, has asked for more time to file his income tax returns, his office said.

A person who is out of the country at the April 15 tax payment deadline is usually entitled to an automatic six-month extension to Oct. 15.

Donna Lipper, a press aide to the Republican governor, said Wednesday that when he files his returns he will make them public, as he has done in the past.

Deukmejian was in Paris Thursday, as part of an 11-day European trade mission. He is scheduled to return to Sacramento on Sunday.

UCSB official sentenced to prison

SANTA BARBARA (AP) — A former UC Santa Barbara official was sentenced to four years in prison for his part in a building kickback scandal that led to the resignation of the chancellor.

Holger Chris Ferdinandson, former manager of operations and maintenance at the campus, also agreed to forfeit his $100,000 house as restitution. Ferdinandson, 57, was sentenced Wednesday in Superior Court after pleading no contest last month to three counts of embezzlement. As part of a plea agreement, prosecutors dropped eight other embezzlement counts.

Two positions in the School of Science and Mathematics will be filled by Chris Vogel, who received 102 votes, and Matt Surbur, who received 84 votes.

In the School of Liberal Arts, Courtney Canterbury won a seat with 115 ballots cast in her favor, while Jana Stigley also was victorious with 84 votes.

An official ground-breaking ceremony took place Wednesday to mark the beginning of construction on a downtown parking structure at the corner of Palm and Morro streets.

The ceremony to celebrate the construction of the four-story structure was attended by various city officials including Mayor Ron Dunin and Carl Hysen, chairman of the Board of Supervisors. They gave speeches on the importance of the parking structure and then initiated construction by breaking ground at the construction site.

Dunin said he was greatly pleased that the parking structure was finally being built since another parking structure proposal had been turned down in the past. He described the event as “historical” for the relationship between the city, county, chamber of commerce, and Business Improvement Association.

“Between these four entities, it used to be that you couldn’t find two friends. This is the conclusion of 11 years of something that is indescribable.” He said he believed the parking structure was proof the four groups were able to work together successfully and added that it would be a step toward improved relations between the parties.

The $1.25 million project is being financed by the issuance of bond funds and a county contribution of $1.25 million. It will provide 300 parking spaces, and fees for using the facilities will be similar to the parking meters downtown.

Although actual contractors will not begin work until May 4, Candace Havens, city parking manager, said the current lot at the corner of Morro and Palm will be closed immediately and preliminary work was to begin Thursday.

“We hope to have the structure completed by the end of November in time for Christmas when we’ll need it most,” Havens said.

There is still expected to be a parking deficit after the structure is built but it is expected to at least relieve some of the downtown parking problems.

A similar parking structure has been planned for the corner of Broad and Marsh streets.

A big-time Hollywood movie company looks for reality in small-town local talent

By Alicia M. Kaplan, Staff Writer

A small-town girl from the Midwest competes in dance competitions throughout the country and finally gets her big chance in Hollywood.

Sounds like a movie plot. Well, it is. But it also could be the story of some lucky woman who wins the talent search that has been held at Champions the past five weeks.

Every Wednesday night judges have been scouting for someone with beauty and dance ability to be cast in one of the female roles in a new film called "Star Dancer," the story of a young woman’s rise to fame.

Steve Marchese, entertainment director for Champions, said the response has been enormous. Each Wednesday night in March saw an average of 20 contestants competing in the dance and beauty categories. The contestants are from 16 to 35 years old and come from San Luis Obispo County, Fresno and Los Angeles.

Each night there were four winners, two in each category. At the end of the six weeks, the 24 finalists will compete in the finals at Champions. Two winners will be chosen.

The finals are 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday.

Cal Poly student Sarah Hight, 24, competed in both categories. She placed first runner-up in the beauty competition and returned for a try at the dance category. She said the competition is professional and well-organized.

"I'm really happy to see the variety of dancers show up, instead of having just one school of dance," she said.

To prepare for her second night of competition, Hight said she focused on being more relaxed because she thought tenseness hindered her in the earlier competition.

Hight, a physical education major, said her husband does not mind the male-audience admiration too much.

Seventeen-year-old Tracy Porter of Atascadero, who won first place in the beauty contest, said she was more excited than nervous.

"My adrenaline is pumping and my stomach is doing flip-flops," she said, "but I feel secure because I know there are a lot of people out there to cheer me on."

Cal Poly social sciences major Deborah Carr, 22, said she entered the beauty competition to realize her own potential.

"A person will never be able to know their potential unless they try. And if they fail, well, there will be other things to come along."

‘Soap’ star shows the life in Frost

By Stacey Myers, Staff Writer

San Luis Obispo will get a different view of Arthur Peterson during Poly Royal weekend.

Peterson, best known for his role as The Major on the television series “Soap,” will bring his one-man show, “Robert Frost: Fire and Ice,” to Cal Poly as part of Poly Royal open house.

“Fire and Ice” was co-authored by Peterson and is based on the life and work of the American poet. “It’s a full play, not a poetry reading,” said the show’s associate producer, Dave Arrow. “The show gets you interested in Robert Frost as a person, not just as a literary legend.”

In the play, Peterson, 74, portrays Frost’s character and recalls events in the poet’s life. Peterson takes his audience through the years, from Frost’s youth in a California gold mining town through his later years of fame as one of America’s most celebrated poets.

During his visit, Peterson will also visit acting classes and share his knowledge of Robert Frost with local school children.

Peterson began his theater career in Chicago and moved on to radio and television. Among his television credits are “The Real McCoys” and “Marcus Welby.”

“Robert Frost: Fire and Ice” will be presented in the Cal Poly Theatre at 8 p.m. on Friday and Saturday, April 24 and 25. Phone reservations can be made by calling 546-1421.

DANCER

From Spotlight 1

All female roles in the film will come from this contest and similar ones in 50 other U.S. cities, said Marchese. The 100 winners will receive varying roles in the movie. The roles will range from the lead part to a backup dancer, said Marchese. Shooting will begin this summer.

The preliminary contestants are judged by local celebrities, co-sponsors of the contest and people in the dance profession. The beauty entries are judged on face, figure, fashion, pose, walk and star quality. Contestants are graded in three segments: fashion outfit, swimsuit and response to a question.

The dance competitors are judged on technique, originality, figure appearance and star quality. The contestants dance for about two minutes.

Champions was chosen as a contest location when American Independent Productions of Flollywood asked the bar to host a casting call along with the semifinals, which the bar was originally slated to hold.

“Since the response was so great, such as the number of girls and the high caliber of talent, they asked us to hold our own competition — including the finals,” Marchese said.

Don O’Henley, doorman for Champions, said the response has been good. “The competition has also been great,” he said. “There have been some real good contestants Champions can feel good about.”

The final competition for roles in “Star Dancer” will be Monday and Tuesday nights at 8 at Champions. Tickets for the finals are on sale for $3 at Champions, and will be $5 at the door with limited seating.

The Release 'adds life' to Top 40

By Danielle Letenyei

Back in the San Luis Obispo County music scene with new members, a new name and a new sound, the band called The Release entertains audiences with a Funk-n-Roll style music.

This Grover City-based band adds a danceable, jazzy flavor to an ordinary Top 40 format.

"Nobody would touch this kind of format," said Robert "Bobby Dee" Olivera, saxophone player for the band. "It is a 'popfusion' kind of sound."

Originally known as Fatz, The Release boasts some of the best musicians in the county. Olivera, the only original Fatz member, is credited with putting the band together.

"Robert went around looking for the best players in the county," said Mark McKinnon, the band's lead guitar player. "He bugged me for a year and a half."

One of the remarkable talents in The Release is Shaun Thies, lead singer. Thies has a powerful voice which sounds great whether she's singing the country-western song "That Ain't a Way to Treat a Lady" or a Madonna tune. She was recently voted the best female singer in the county. Formerly with The Plumbers, Thies has been with The Release for four months.

"It's a nice change of pace," said Thies. "You never know what to expect with this band."

Fatz originally had a male lead singer but, with the band's renovation, opted for a woman.

"A guy would have to be Steve Perry to pull off some of the high notes we play," explained McKinnon.

Other members in the band include Perry "Bud" Seldon on drums, Michael Lomas on bass and Richard Everett on synthesizer. With Top 40 songs, the band plays original songs by Olivera and Everett.

"There are not many bands like us around," said Olivera. "We try to add life to Top 40 songs."

SAN BERNARDINO - New sightings of Mountain Fresh Rainiers across much of Southern California have now been confirmed by several unbiased sources, according to Dr. Heinrich Tschutter, chairman of the Beaumont Citizens Committee on Carbonated Phenomena. Tschutter told a hastily-called press conference in Escondido yesterday that MFR's have been "positively identified" in the region near the Joshua Tree National Monument. And, he added, sightings in Los Angeles and San Diego "are just a matter of time."

Rumors concerning the imminent appearance of MFR's in the area have been circulating for months, and yesterday's press conference was obviously designed to dispel all doubts. Appearing with Tschutter were several eyewitnesses and independent experts, many of whom brought authentic-looking photographs.

Other eyewitnesses who spoke included Leonardo and Mary Elizabeth Welkins of the Big Bear Lake area. The Welkinses claim to have seen as many as six Rainiers at one time. "It was just before dark," said the retired accountant. "We were walking next to this horse corral. Suddenly the horses began kicking and whinnying. Dogs began to howl. Mary Elizabeth shouted. 'I see it! I see it!''

"As we got closer, we could make out six of them in very tight formation. They were the browns ones, and we could read the 'R's' on their sides clear as day. They made no sounds as they charged past us.

Dr. Tschutter visited the couple a few days after the sighting was reported. "When I left," he said, "I was more puzzled than when I arrived," because the Welkinses were the first to report multiple MFR's. "But they obviously didn't make up the story."

Nonetheless, the Welkinses took a terrific ribbing from their friends, they reported. "Even my mother scoffed at us," said Mrs. Welkins. "Things were pretty unbearable for a while, but all I know is I saw the things, and that's it."

All the speakers agreed that Rainiers are friendly to humans, and are even thought to impart a feeling of refreshment and well-being to those with whom they come in contact. Tschutter concluded by saying that multiple MFR sightings had since been verified by, among others, Karen Alweil, a 21-year-old college student, and a law enforcement officer who preferred to remain anonymous.

"We can all expect to see Rainiers throughout Southern California in the weeks to come, all the way from Fresno to La Mesa," said Tschutter. "And I, for one, am as pleased as I can be."

Mary Elizabeth Welkins, shown here with her husband Leonardo, told newsmen: "All I know is I saw the things, and that's it."

Dr. Heinrich Tschutter of the Beaumont Citizens' Committee on Carbonated Phenomena displays a recent photograph of a Rainier seen near Indio.

Wally "Buzz" Entropo shows sketches of Mountain Fresh Rainiers he made along the Kings River during 1985.

"This time they can be identified absolutely," claimed Dr. Tschutter. "Rainiers are of two distinct species - one that appears to be shiny and metallic, and is almost perfectly cylindrical. The other is dark brown, translucent, and also cylindrical, but with a protruding neck or cap."

Tschutter said that the markings of both species were almost identical: a large red "R" in script, followed by the word "ainier," the combination thought to refer to the mountain up in Washington State, traditionally considered the place of origin for all MFR's. But other experts challenged Tschutter's interpretation, several conjecturing that "ainier" is a reference to the light, fresh, golden, carbonated contents of MFR's. Arguing this point convincingly was Wally "Buzz" Entropo, an MFR-tracker for over 20 years, who claims to have lived among one group of Rainiers in the remote China Lake region.

"I've even tasted them," stated Entropo. "And I'll tell you, they are friendly and extremely refreshing. But I found no evidence convincing me that the 'R' and 'ainier' together make up any larger word."

Tschutter had no comment regarding Entropo's remarks, but he dismissed as "insufficiently documented" the recent spate of sightings of a variant species marked "Rainier Light."

These remains, thought to be left by MFR's, were found near Lake Arrowhead.

Cal Poly to face red-hot Matadors

By Anthony Lopez

Staff Writer

State Northridge is crucial if the Mustangs want to challenge for first place in the California Collegiate Athletic Association.

The Mustangs trail the conference-leading Matadors by four games, but have a chance to gain two games during today's head-to-head competition. Cal Poly has a 6-5 league record while the Matadors are 11-1.

As if playing the first-place team wasn’t enough to prepare the Mustangs will be trying to put an end to the Matadors' impressive 26-game winning streak. Northridge is currently ranked No. 1 in Division II.

Heidesch is unsure who will pitch for Cal Poly, but chances are that the Matadors will face Lisa Ferguson and Missy Bausch, who have both done well on the mound for the Mustangs this year.

Bausch won all three of her starts at the Northridge Tournament last weekend, with two coming by way of shutouts. Ferguson pitched well at Northridge but won only one of her three starts. One of her losses was a 5-2 decision to Cal State Northridge.

Offensively the Mustangs are going to need a balanced hitting attack from everyone, but especially from top-hitters Heather Mackey, Penny Parker, Shirley Tuttle and Ellen Frank.

As for Cal State Northridge, Matador coach Gary Torgeson has been hitting "very well" recently, and singled out Priscilla Rouse as a hitter to watch. Rouse leads Northridge hitters with an average of .467.

The game is slated for 1 p.m. at the Cal Poly Softball Field. Saturday the Mustangs will host a doubleheader against UC Riverside at noon.

Baseball team headed for LA for two-game series

After a week and a half off from competition, the Cal Poly baseball team will travel to Cal State Los Angeles this weekend for a two-game series.

The Mustangs, who are 5-9 in the conference and 14-21 overall, will face a Golden Eagle team which has won four straight and is now 6-11 in the conference and 20-24 overall.

Los Angeles' most recent wins include Tuesday's 8-4 win over Chapman College and Wednesday's 10-8 win over Cal State Northridge. The Golden Eagles were to host the conference's second-place team, Cal Poly Pomona, Thursday.

The Golden Eagles are hitting .298 as a team, while the Mustangs are hitting a collective .277 and are led by Joe Fox, who has an ERA of 0.27, or Delaney Anderson, who is 10-2 on the season. All four Northridge pitchers have ERAs below 1.00.

Torgeson noted that his team has been hitting "very well" recently, and singled out Priscilla Rouse as a hitter to watch. Rouse leads Northridge hitters with an average of .467.

Military base has had tough past

By Carolyn Duval

The turbulent and often muddy history of Camp San Luis Obispo was presented by a Cal Poly history professor in a slide show Thursday in the faculty dining room.

Daniel Krieger said that in 1928 the California National Guard bought 2,800 acres of the Chorro Valley for a camp to provide new training plans that had to be deferred after the 1929 stock market crash, and most of the plans went back to the private sector.

After the 1937 lettuce industry riots in Salinas, state Gov. Frank Merriam re-acquired some of the land for a national guard base and named the camp after himself.

On Sept. 8, 1939, President Franklin D. Roosevelt called a limited national emergency (the bombing of Poland) in involvement in World War II, and in April 1940 more land was bought. The camp became Camp San Luis Obispo.

The name was changed from "Secret Service," he said, "to Craig was doing it as an artist, about him as editor, and he could be trying to get me back." Andrews said the Secret Service wants him to let them know if anyone reaches through the collage. "I really don't trust the Secret Service," he said. "They're writing up a report on the whole thing and they won't let me see it. And I'm sure they'll keep an eye on me.

"I knew the Reagan piece would come as a shock to me, I was afraid of that — but this was far beyond my worst fears.

closed at 8 p.m. and people were still picking up forms at 7:45 p.m. One Cal Poly student said he was a procrastinator who was filing for the first time after a few years of not having to. “If I figure it out, fine. If not, shine it,” he said.

“I'm a procrastinator,” said Chip Doyle, a construction management student. He said it would take him one or two hours to figure out what he could legally deduct. He had called the post office to find out when they would stop postmarking, but they didn’t answer the phone. Penalty for a late postmark on taxes owed is 5 percent of the amount due.

There were not many people mailing their forms at 8 p.m. when Charlie Duvall got downtown to find the mail drawer filled to the top. The stamp machine wasn’t working so he went to the post office at Madonna Road where he got postage for his mail.

Duvall said he waited until Wednesday to mail his check because he wanted to keep the money in the bank. He didn’t want the government to make interest either, he said. Then he added laziness to his list of reasons.

Not everyone waited until the last minute to file. History senior Julie Aiken filled in early March, which is late for her, she said. She said she usually files in February. “I like to get it over with,” she said. “It’s good practice for the future.”

AIDS

life. I don’t want to see anyone else die of AIDS.”

Her message was, “If you’re not going to abstain, think about who you are sexually active with.”

She also said, “We need to support AIDS victims. Don’t harass or shun them... You can’t get AIDS by being around them.”

Gordon emphasized that AIDS is a viral disease that affects more people than just homosexuals. The majority of AIDS victims have been homosexual but there is a steady increase in females and children contracting AIDS, he said.

“We need to have a sense of responsibility for our behavior because everyone at Cal Poly is in the risk category, (age 24 to 35).”

He said those most likely to get AIDS are people with multiple sex partners, abusers of intravenous drugs and patients who have had blood transfusions.

In San Luis Obispo County there is a 60 percent mortality rate of AIDS patients.

Gordon said symptoms of AIDS may include swollen lymph glands in the neck, continued diarrhea, continued cough, fatigue and unexplained weight loss.

“Other than condoms I don’t know how else you can protect yourself,” he said. “You must know you have a responsibility and know your partner.”

Condoms are usually free at the Health Center but at the moment the center is out of them, said Nash.

Those concerned about AIDS can call the San Luis Obispo Health Department and make an appointment. The Health Department tests for free and the test is anonymous. Students can also be tested at the Health Center for $9 but patients must give their names. Tests can also be done at Sierra Vista Hospital for $10 through a private doctor.
