Two arts centers looming on SLO’s horizon

San Luis Obispo may soon have two 1,000-plus-seat performing arts centers, one at Cal Poly and one at the Fremont Theatre.

The City Council voted Tuesday to continue working toward building an on-campus center, and it also asked the city staff to study the Fremont Theatre and the land behind it.

Before this meeting, the council had discussed building two separate facilities: one 1,500-seat center at Cal Poly and one 350-seat facility in the city. It was recommended that the Fremont be cut down from its present 1,060-seat size to meet the need for a small theater.

For three hours residents and council members spoke out against changing the interior of the 45-year-old theater.

Residents told the council that the city could support two large centers. They said the proposed $20 million Cal Poly center would be finished in 1994 at the earliest and that the Fremont would serve well as an interim center.

When the Cal Poly center opens, the city would still be able to use the Fremont for performing arts activities.

Cal Poly will also have the option of buying out the city’s share of the campus center at any time. Councilmember Allen Settle said the city would be back to where it is right now if that happened and there were no alternate facility.

The Cal Poly center will be a cooperative effort between Cal Poly, the city of San Luis Obispo and the Foundation for the Performing Arts Center, a private group.

Cal Poly’s share will be about $10.6 million.

Cal Poly has requested $400,000 in the 1989-1990 budget for the planning of the center. Cal Poly’s $10.6 million request will be in the 1990-1991 budget.

Doug Gerard, Cal Poly executive dean, said he can’t guarantee what the legislature is going to do, but he said he has to be optimistic and find ways to solve problems.

“We will do everything possible to make funds available. For the first time, Cal Poly is not trying to do it alone,” he said.

He said he has strong reason to believe that the Board of Trustees will be responsive to providing centers where they don’t exist. A similar program has been implemented at Cal State Los Angeles.

KCPR seeks underwriting

The San Luis Obispo City Council will discuss today whether or not to resume KCPR’s live broadcasts of council meetings.

The item was originally on the council’s April 21 meeting agenda, but as the meeting ran late, discussion was postponed until today.

For the past six years, the Cal Poly radio station has broadcast the twice-monthly meetings live and free of charge as a public service.

Because of budget problems, KCPR stopped broadcasting the meetings last October.

In a letter to the City Council, Steve Schellings, KCPR general manager, said in the shades

Politic payback

The federal government is not the only thing struggling with a deficit. Some of the men who want to run it also are in the red. California Sen. Alan Cranston still owes almost $600,000 from his ill-fated presidential bid in 1984. Gary Hart, who fared somewhat better than Cranston in the jor embarrassment in the 1988 presidential campaign, with a deficit. Some of the men who want to run it also are scrambling to pay off his debt for fear that it will be a ma­ creditors, who had obtained a court order.

can they as easily feast on the hands that mark the ballots?

Editor — I am writing in response to Alan Chao's letter regarding our campus police department. I too have been victimized by a lieutenant. I hope Public Safety of­ficials begin to realize that students dealing with them are often in a situation of distress and that outrageous personal insults are not an appropriate response.

However, I also have occasion to deal with three different Public Safety officers and found every one of them courteous, com­petent and professional. One is ex­ceptionally sensitive and willing to help, and should be recognized for such qualities. It is not right to criticize the entire force for what appears to be the excessive reac­tions of one gentleman.

Residents should not shell out for damages

Editor — Attention dorm residents: you don't have to pay unnecessary damage fees assessed by Public Safety. While I may be happy with their performance, it is not your job to patrol campus.

In this case it was the question of why dorm residents have to pay for general damages such as extra janitorial time, dirty carpets or broken fixtures like lobby wall sockets. According to past internal Council Chair Franklin Bur­nis, money earned from dorm vending machines is pooled into an account. The account is large.

Climbers fall to death at Yosemite

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK (AP) — Two rock climbers fell 800 feet to their deaths in Yosemite Valley, a park spokesman said.

Climbing partners Frederick O. Yenny, 33, and Donald Horten, 30, both of San Jose, fell Saturday while climbing the east buttress of Middle Cathedral Rock at Yosemite, said Mallory Smith, a Yosemite spokeswoman.

"There were absolutely no problems. No fires either, this year," she said.

At 1:30 a.m. Friday, Yenny and Horten, both IBM electrical engineers, fell to the rock slope at the base of the cliff and died instantly, she said.

Poly Royal once again a success

Small inconvenience as UU evacuated for false fire alarm

By Dianna Callesen

Despite a false fire alarm Friday morning that required the evacuation of the University Union, Poly Royal 1987 has been termed a success by many.

"Almost everyone I talked to said it was the best ever," said John Bird, chairman of the Poly Royal Board.

Bird estimated this year’s attendance to be about 150,000 people for both days.

"There were absolutely no problems. No fires either, this year," he joked.

There was a fire scare, however. Just after opening ceremonies Friday morning, someone tripped a fire alarm so the U.U. was evacuated. Poly Royal publicity chair Pam Oleson said it is reasonably certain that the alarm was set off by some junior high school-aged kids as a prank. The evacuation went smoothly, and there was no fire or damage.

Oleson said that because of opening ceremonies, there was a lot of people in the U.U. plaza and El Corral Bookstore at the time of the alarm. "It was really bad timing," she said.

Chico's 'Pioneer Days' celebration turns to drunken riot

CHICO (AP) — A wild weekend of drinking and riotous clashes with police at the start of a college-sponsored "Pioneer Days" celebration gave way to calm Sunday after 73 arrests.

Thirty-six people were arrested Saturday night and early Sunday, mostly around Cal State Chico, on charges of unlawful assembly, public drunkenness, interfering with officers and driving under the influence of alcohol, said police Capt. Robert Horton.

Chico police and about 125 officers from other areas "discouraged any attempt of the partying youth to repeat their actions" of Friday when 37 were arrested on similar charges, Horton said.

Dozens of officers, many pulled by horses, quelled a riot Friday night and early Saturday that grew out of a celebration of more than 2,000 drunken students and others who smashed windows and stomped cars, police reported.

Local hospitals treated 32 people, including at least two policemen, mainly for cuts from broken glass on Friday night. All were released. Several others suffered minor injuries Saturday night.

Parrying in advance of the scheduled Saturday night observance of Pioneer Days, sponsored by the state university, got out of hand Friday night in an area where some fraternity houses are located a few blocks from the campus.

University President Robin Wilson announced Saturday that the week-long Pioneer Days celebration was canceled. However, several hundred celebrants gathered in the streets Saturday night, leading to the additional arrests. The mob ranged over roofs of fraternity houses and stores bordering the area, tossing bottles and other objects. Couches, chairs and other items fueled a bonfire at the city's main intersection.

Windows were broken all over most of the businesses in the area. Awnings in front of shops were torn down. Many parked cars were caroused over, and objects were being tossed and cars and hoods. Police said an estimate of the damage from the mob scene wouldn't be available until the morning.

The revelers appeared to be trying to live up to the Playboy magazine reference last fall to Chico State as America's No. 1 party school.

Lover's quarrel ends in wild ride

LANCASTER, Calif. (AP) — A young woman's argument with her boyfriend ended with him clanging to the rooftop of her car as she drove along a freeway shoulder before a sheriff's deputy pulled her over, authorities said.

"You know how love is. It makes people do strange things," Deputy Randy Hayworth said.

Ruth Gardner, 18, of Little Rock remained in custody Sunday in lieu of $2,000 bond for assault with a deadly weapon and on $1,500 bond for outstanding traffic warrants, deputies said.

Gardner was stopped by Hayworth on Saturday night when he saw 19-year-old Hughie Shivors clinging to the top of a Datsun 280Z as it traveled about 30 mph along the shoulder of the Antelope Valley Freeway here, 50 miles north of Los Angeles.

Hayworth said the couple told him they got into an argument while riding in the car. When Shivors got out of the car near a shopping center in Lancaster, Gardner locked the door so he couldn't get back inside. When she started to drive away, Shivors jumped on top of the car.

"She gasped at the statement that she was trying to knock him off," Hayworth said late Saturday. "She was obviously mad at him. If she wanted help to get away from him, she was right by a shopping center with hundreds of people in it." Hayworth said the couple didn't tell him the subject of their argument. When the deputy stopped the car, its roof had been caved in. Shivors was crying and did not want Gardner arrested, Hayworth said.

"More than likely, the arrest won't go any further if he doesn't press charges," Hayworth said. "There's no telling what will happen next."

The CHEEZ Barn—AKA-THE SNACK BAR

As reported in the April 18 issue of the Mustang Daley, the Foundation's chees think tank has developed a new variety of cheeses that are now being offered at the SNACK BAR.

Though the long-awaited new toppings—caro chips and crushed oreos - have not yet arrived, the SNACK BAR now features: "SAY CHEEZ", - a chatty Cheddar; "BIG CHEEZ-AMERICAN" of course; "OLEE CHEEZ," the controversial Swiss at its holiest; "CHEEZ-ON-A-ROPE," a smooth Mozzarella with an Italian accent; and the "STEINBECK SUR-CHED" - a novel Monterey Jack.

Baseball loses two of three to Toros

By Marty Neideffer

The Cal Poly baseball team spent the better part of its Poly Royal weekend locked in a three-game series with Cal State Dominguez Hills.

The results? Well, they were both good and bad, just like always. The Mustangs have been struggling with inconsistency all season and the weekend series was no exception, as they dropped two of three games to the Toros.

In the first game Friday night the Mustangs bats exploded, scoring 14 runs on the way to a 12-3 win. The game, played before a large Poly Royal crowd, was bussed open by the Mustangs in two big innings.

In the first, Poly scored five runs, with three of them coming on center fielder Jeff Smith’s three-run homer.

The Toros came back to tie it in the third, but had their backs broken in the bottom of the inning when Poly got doubles from Scott Reaves, Smith and Pat Kirby to account for four more runs.

The Toros never recovered, while the Mustangs turned it into a rout by scoring three more times. Poly got well-rounded offensive support in Friday’s game, as every Mustang starter but one had at least one hit.

Poly and Dominguez Hills hooked up again for a doubleheader on Saturday and the Mustangs looked like a different team than the one that showed up Friday night. In the first game, the Toros got revenge for Poly’s rout by drubbing the Mustangs 12-3.

Dominguez Hills starting pitcher Joe Cortez shut down a Mustang offense that seemed so potent the night before. The Toros were lead by catcher Chris Plank and designated hitter Rene Licon. Plank was on base five times and scored four runs, and Licon had three hits and two RBIs.

The only life the Mustangs showed on offense was in the ninth inning when center fielder Smith connected for another three-run homer.

“I really enjoy hitting in this park,” said Smith, explaining his hot streak. “It’s easy to see the ball here. The crowd helps a lot too — the home field advantage thing.”

Smith’s Homer, however, was the only bright spot in a 14-10 loss to Dominguez Hills in the second game of the doubleheader. The Mustangs looked like a different team than the one that showed up Friday night.

In the first game, the Toros got revenge by scoring three more runs. Linda Parrish set a meet record at 400 meters with a time of 51.94. Eighteen other Army men broke in the top five of their respective events, including first places at 10,000 meters, 800 meters, and in both the 1,600-meter relay and the high jump.

A couple of the Army’s women had outstanding days as well. Linda Parrish set a meet record when she won the 100-meter race in 12.3 and Betty Pearson won at 3,000 meters in 9.56.67, outdistancing her closest competitor by 40 seconds.

Mark Oleson broke the stadium’s nine-year-old 1,500-meter record of 3.47.50, formerly held by American record holder Steve Scott, when Oleson churned out a mark of 3:47.46.

Cal Poly’s Dave Johnson set a meet record at 400 meters with a time of 47.32, as well as recording a third-place finish in the 200-meter race and running on both relay teams.

In the javelin Koel of Club Athletics set a meet record with a toss of 181-9, and Trammel of the Northern California International Track Club did the same in the triple jump with a leap of 51-8.

Mustang Erik Josephson won the 100-meter in 10.76 and placed second in the 200-meter dash with a 21.58. He also competed on both relay teams.

Other outstanding performances turned in by the Mustang men included those of Brian Porter, who placed second at 800 meters and seventh at 1,500 meters; pole vaulters Steve Horvath (16-8) and Steve Toney (16-1), who placed first and second, respectively; Jeff Ahlquist, who won the steeplechase in 9:16.01; and both relay teams, which each placed second.

Two other meet records were set on the women’s side of the meet.

Helga Hallersdottersen of NCITC set one in the intermediate hurdles with a time of 58.20, and Jenny Purper of Stanford got another in the shot put with a throw of 67-3.

Poly men take first in rodeo

The Cal Poly men's team captured first place in the 1987 Poly Royal Intercolligate Rodeo this weekend, while the women rallied behind Wendy Kaufmann to take second place.

More than 80 contestants from several schools competed in the annual competition at Collet Arena. Always a popular event, the arena was filled to capacity during both Friday's and Saturday's contests.

Kaufmann, a sophomore, won the women's all-around title to lead the Lady Mustangs, who finished behind Fresno State. Brad Lopez of West Hills College took the men's title.

Leading the men's team to victory was Jeff Hopper, who won the barrel racing event; Hardy Vestal, who won calf-roping; and Jeff Sparrow, who teamed with Jeff Olson of West Hills to win the team-roping competition.

Other individual winners were Tootie Miller (gate-tying) and Vicki Kavanagh (breakaway roping) of Fresno State, Mark Calbo (bull riding) and Rob McDonald (calf roping) of West Hills, Dan Ferguson of Lassen College (saddle-bronc riding) and Arlene Hall of Modesto Junior College (barrel racing).

A rider competes at the Cal Poly rodeo on Saturday.

Knuckler not a pitch for young Niekro

LITHONIA, Ga. (AP) — High school pitcher John Niekro is taking the first steps down the road that his father took to major league victories, but he is doing it without the pitch that made Phil Niekro famous.

"Everybody thinks I know how to throw the knuckleball," said the 6-foot-4 senior, who is 5-0 in his first season pitching for Shiloh High School.

"I really can't throw the knuckleball, never have thrown it. Dad has tried to teach it to me, but it's a tough pitch to master," Niekro said.

Phil Niekro, 48, who has not seen his son pitch, made a career with the Braves, who drafted him the first season with the New York Yankees and now is in his second season with the Cleveland Indians.

He calls every morning after his son has pitched to the mound this season, "has got a great curveball, great movement on his pitches and he hides the ball very well," said former Atlanta Braves shortstop Darrel Chaney, president of Shiloh High School's booster club.

"He'll ask about what problems I'm having," Niekro said.

Niekro, who once had surgery to produce the curvebales he's been brought to the mound this season, "has got a great curveball, great movement on his pitches and he hides the ball very well," said former Atlanta Braves shortstop Darrel Chaney, president of Shiloh High School's booster club.

manager, said it has always been assumed that some of the issues discussed at council meetings are worth covering. He said the current management believes the same. "KCPRESS wishes to continue to broadcast the council meetings."

Yet we cannot afford to continue unless they’re properly underwritten," Schellings said. Underwriting is a form of fund-raising in which the radio station gets different businesses and groups to sponsor broadcast hours. Schellings offered the city the Multi-Cultural Center's spring workshop series.

Laura Yannayon, an environmental engineering freshman, filed a complaint claiming she was unable to vote because ASI did not widely publicize voting times. Yannayon said she didn’t get to vote because she thought the polls would stay open until 7 p.m. as they had for the fall election.

"How are students supposed to vote on issues if they aren’t aware of the times? I, as a concerned student, didn’t get to vote over a technicality," she said.

Yannayon also complained that ASI did not have absentee ballots for her use.

"TCBY" Yogurt...
A Hard Act To Follow!

Nobody upstages "TCBY" frozen yogurt. All the great taste of premium ice cream, with fewer calories. It’s lower in cholesterol and 96% fat free, too.

Good for you, delicious, and served so many ways. Take it from me. Nothing tops "TCBY"!
