Security at SLO County Airport tightened after crash

By Lawrence Anton

For many Americans, business people and vacationers alike, flying the friendly skies has become a necessary means of transportation, particularly for those in a hurry.

As a person collects his bagged-on bag while the county is required to provide law enforcement support.

Nearly 12,000 passengers are screened each month at the airport, yet few serious security violations result. The most common violation, said Larsen, is for a passenger to attempt boarding with a self-defense spray, such as mace, inadvertently left in a carry-on bag.

Debbie Foster, a supervisor for American Eagle, said there are 19 employees trained to operate the security screening equipment. These employees, she said, alternate between passenger screening and other airline jobs.

U.S. will withdraw Afghan rebel aid early if independence is assured, Shultz says

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said today that U.S. military support to the Afghan rebels could be withdrawn before the last Soviet troops are out of the country if the United States is satisfied that independence and freedom for Afghanistan are assured.

He said U.S. economic and humanitarian aid to the resistance would continue after any cut in military assistance.

"We look for Soviet agreement to a firm schedule for withdrawal," Shultz told a news conference. ""We think that schedule must be front-end loaded so that once it starts there's a certain inevitability to it, there's no turning back.""

He said the United States has been giving military support to rebels fighting the Soviet Army and the Afghan government it backs to bring about an independent government and permit refugees to return, "so as these conditions emerge we wouldn't have to continue that support."

"There are all sorts of support," he said. ""There is going to be a continuing need to support humanitarian concerns, to support economic development, but as far as support in the form of military equipment is concerned as withdrawal proceeds — the first thing we want to have in a peaceful atmosphere — then you don't have the need for that continued support and it would cease."

Shultz said the Soviets would also have to cease aerial bombardment of the Afghan government they leave behind.

The California State University Board of Trustees has approved schematic plans for building renovations and two new structures on the Cal Poly campus.

The first project consists of renovating the existing Business Administration and Education Building (the clock tower building) and constructing a four-story addition.

The original building no longer meets current standards, said Douglas Gerard, executive dean of facilities administration.

The addition will provide space for lecture halls, laboratories, faculty and storage.

Gerard said the project will cost nearly $14 million, mostly designated for the new building.

Dairy Science I, the new dairy science instruction center, is the first of two facilities to be constructed at the existing dairy unit. The new center will replace the 25-year-old one currently in use.

Gerard said many of the units were built in the 1950s, and were moved from another site on campus in 1953.

Dairy Science II will be used primarily to house animals, and Dairy Science III will be the new products technology center.

All 43 aboard were killed.

Because of the crash, the Federal Aviation Administration issued stricter rules concerning security screening at the nation's airports. The new rule requires

My last stop was at a campus in the heart of the city. The police officer was waving everyone everywhere and confusion was prevalent. A student on a moped misinterpreted a signal and proceeded across the intersection, before being abruptly halted on the other side by the traffic officer. He yelled frenziedly, "Why did you do that? You spoil until I tell you to stop! You Slop until I tell you to stop!" He replied dazedly, "Well, you thought I was off my rocker for a second. Anyways, I was just thinkin'..." before being cut off before being abruptly halted on the other side by the traffic officer. She yelled ferociously, "You're here only because they are us­ing the door for this journey. Very interesting. It's very interesting that a university nationally known for its agriculture, engineering and architectural schools cannot compensate for its required liberal arts GE's, in terms of money, classes, manpower and more money. Extremely interesting that I have as much chance of adding needed classes as a FREAKING ORANGUTAN HAS AT FARTING AIRWICK..."

Couple in serious condition after eating wild mushrooms

OAKLAND (AP) — An Oakland couple who ate poisonous “death cup” mushrooms today was in a Los Angeles hospital where the woman underwent an emergency liver transplant and the man faces the same operation, health officials reported today.

“We get one or two of these cases almost every rainy season,” said Dr. Robert Benjamin, Alameda County’s director of communicable disease control.

Cynthia Zheng, 19, received a new liver on Wednesday at UCLA Medical Center where she was reported in critical condition today. Wilhelm Winter, 45, was in serious condition today while awaiting a transplant, the medical center reported.

The two picked the mushrooms on Friday near Inverness in Marin County and consumed them the next day, Benjamin said.

The couple, who had eaten wild mushrooms before, depended on a field guide with pictures.

Safety commission to launch child-proof lighter campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Prodded by Congress and consumer groups, the Consumer Product Safety Commission said Thursday it is launching an effort to make cigarette lighters child-resistant.

Children playing with lighters were blamed for 7,800 fires leading to 120 deaths, 860 injuries and $60.5 million in property damage in 1985, the agency said in announcing its action.

The decision to act follows a two-year study of lighter safety that the commission conducted after receiving a petition from Diane Denton, a nurse at Kosair Children’s Hospital in Louisville, Ky.

Congress and consumer groups have been critical of the agency for its slow start on the issue.

“The evidence is clear: cigarette lighters are killing children and swift regulatory action is needed,” the Consumer Federation of America said in a report issued in November.

Violence in Israel continues despite international protest

RAMALLAH, Occupied West Bank (AP) — A fight with rocks and tear gas between young Arabs and Israeli troops drove a visiting U.S. senator from a refugee camp Thursday, the end of a month of rioting that cost at least 24 Arab lives.

Seven Palestinians were reported wounded Thursday. Soldiers used rubber bullets and tear gas, some of it dropped from helicopters, against protesters in the occupied West Bank and Gaza Strip, where 1.5 million Palestinians live.

Military authorities continued a stern policy toward arrested rioters despite international protests, ordering 15 Palestinians held for up to six months without trial.

Prime Minister Yitzhak Shamir said he would refuse to meet with United Nations envoy Marrack Goulding, who is due here Friday to examine the situation.

“I think there’s no need for it,” Shamir said when asked on Israeli television about Goulding’s trip.

The two buildings will be adjacent to one another. Dairy Science I will cost about $4 million, Gerard said. The construction date for both projects depends upon when the legislature approves the governor's budget request, to be released today, and upon the people supporting a higher education facilities bond measure in June or November. Gerard said construction could start early next year.

Construction of the business building should take about two years, and the first phase of Dairy Science should take about 14 to 16 months, Gerard said.

Television

Biggest Disappointment:
Sorry, campers, but this one goes to The Cosby Show (NBC). Remember when it was roll-on-the-floor funny at least once a minute? I sure do. I often wonder if Bill does.

Most Consistently Funny:
Chasers (NBC). I guess because I really disliked Shelley Long and the whole Sam/Diane relationship, I do have some (NBC). Set in 1950s Los Angeles, this show had style to spare. Unfortunately, it's stories were old Simon/Simon reprises. So what?

Next Most Style/Most Violent:
Crime Story (NBC). This time it's 1960s Las Vegas, where riddling the car with bullets isn't enough; complete automotive detonation is required.

Movies

Best Film I Saw: Broadcast News, Best Picture, Best Director, Best Actress — gee, you'll hear a lot about this film come Oscar time.

Worst Film I Saw: For some reason, I just don't want to see this film. A tough call, but this one has got to break the news to me. And speaking of Robert Downey Jr. a factor. Do not, under any conditions, agree to see this film. It's running time is slightly over 90 minutes, but each minute is like an hour. Very, very weak.

Music

Best Potential/Worst Execution:
This is kind of a sentimental pick, for Superman IV — The Quest for Peace. Remember when Superman films were cool? Marlon Brando, super-badguys, Clark and Lois ... ah those were the days. One disastrous sequel couldn't help but destroy the Man of Steel (Superman II), but this one might have just done that.

God Bless You: For Steve Guttenberg, not for Three Men and a Baby (AF). A film with Dr. Spock knowledge that was directed by Mr. Spock, Leonard Nimoy, but for turning down Police Academy F. Of course, that didn't deter the producers, who are going right ahead with the film. Folks, do yourself a favor, do Steve a favor, and do untold thousands of potential moviegoers a favor: Don't go see a sequel unless you really want to, or it's really good. Example: The Color Purple II — No. Realm of the Damned II — No. If people keep going to see them, Hollywood will keep making them.

Please Stop Screaming: Someone has got to break the news to Whitney Houston. There is such a thing as carrying your style too far. And the hair! Only Oprah is a rival in quantitative hair design.

When Happened To... Part One: The bad news is off, the Beatle Boys? They get busted a few times, chill out, and start dating Moit the Doll. What gives?

Whitest Band Ever: This award has to go to a personal favorite of mine, Huey Lewis and the News. No, you won't be catching them on Soul Train any time this millennium.

And Speaking Of...: When will TV make up and put Don Cornelius in charge? The Chief Engineer on the aforementioned Train deserves better than endless syndication.

The greatest hit song of the century? "Don't Stop Believin'".
The newest print alternative

How many times have you worked feverishly over a political science term paper or photography class assignment to find that once graded, it gets shoved somewhere in a file, never to be seen again?

Journalism major Ann Buila is offering the opportunity to not only dig up those papers and photos, but to get them published — with pay.

Buila is in the process of organizing the first issue of a magazine called AXIS, due out March 1. The publication is designed as an all-student-produced magazine for students.

The idea of producing a college magazine came to Buila after she had been submitting material to The Alternative.

"The core idea (for The Alternative) as a source of ideas for students to read was great, but I had come up with a proposal of ideas to give to the publisher. One night I was showing the proposal to some friends and they told me, 'Hey, you've really got something here.'" Later Buila's friend Michelle Richmond offered to back her financially if she wanted to put the proposal to use on her own publication.

Although college magazines are in circulation at other college campuses, Buila feels AXIS will be what the other magazines haven't. "Most college magazines are funded through alumni like Stanford's — it's a nice-looking publication but it deals mainly with alumni so it's more localized. AXIS is not per say a Cal Poly magazine but a college magazine," she said. "I would like to see it distributed locally to Cal Poly, Cuesta College and Allen Hancock College, but eventually go statewide."

Business major Thao Doan is head of marketing for AXIS and said statewide distribution is an attainable goal because the magazine will do its best to keep from becoming too liberal or too conservative.

"Staying in the middle is a thin line to walk, but we want to do our best so people won't have any preconceptions of what will be in the magazine," Doan said.

Buila said she feels AXIS will be successful because it will deal with issues that concern college students everywhere.

"That's where the name AXIS comes in — it's a publication that revolves around student ideas and concerns as well as a quality publication for students to get things published and get paid for it," Buila said.

Besides stories, the magazine will contain a section called Galleria to feature college photography.

"Since AXIS will be a black and white publication printed on glossy paper, it's a great place for students to get their photography published. Photographs reproduce much better on the glossy paper than in newspapers," Buila said.

For the first year Buila plans on publishing AXIS every two months, then eventually publishing monthly. AXIS will sell for $1. Information on submitting material will be posted on campus later this month.

Peace in tune with humor

“When you add humor people are able to laugh at serious issues without feeling threatened.” — Mark Levy

Mark Levy, a multi-talented artist, has developed a musical style that brings out the humor in world issues, leading to a greater awareness for people to act upon. With such a wide array of musical styles and world issues at his disposal, Levy never becomes boring. On one song he will be ripping up the banjo, singing about what's going on, and on the next he will be being done singing about saving the Black Hills of South Dakota from uranium mining. An instrumental piece on the hammer dulcimer might be next. And if that's not enough, how about a rap called “There You Go Again,” which takes a successful Reagan debate slogan and scratches it with some mixing.

Much of Levy's political awareness has come from travel to more than 37 states and a number of countries, including the Soviet Union. When he goes to Israel, he sings in Hebrew — in Russia, he sings in Russian — and in Spain he sings in Spanish.

In an interview with Levy over the phone from his home in the Santa Cruz mountains, he talked about how the world has responded to his multi-talents and in turn how the world has motivated his own thought and action.

“They did not want me to stop singing... In Moscow, I started playing and within 15 minutes there were 200 people clapping for me,” he said.

By communicating in Moscow with such songs as the Russian “May there always be Sunshine” and then with “We Shall Overcome,” Levy said he found in these people the same hopes we have: Peace with the superpowers, an end to the arms race and a brighter future.

“When you add humor people are able to laugh at serious issues without feeling threatened,” said Levy. “No matter how dark things look, there always has to be a force working toward hope.”

One song that takes a humorous look at a serious issue is “Take Off Your Clothes,” based on a situation where Israel won another 100 yards of strategic territory because Egypt was afraid its soldiers would develop an "infestation" over the land in question — a nude beach.

“I imagine how amusing that is to gain land because people didn’t want to go near naked people. The song is a peace proposal to the rest of the world,” he said.

Situations like this help to motivate Levy to write his songs. Levy has felt that his songs and his belief, Levy said he feels there is progress.

University art professors to display variety of works

The Art Faculty Exhibition will open at Cal Po­ly's University Art Gallery (located in the Art Building) with an artist's reception Jan. 11 from 5 to 7 p.m. The show will feature painting, sculpture, graphic design, photography and craft works. A few of the 15 art and design faculty members who will be exhibiting works are Robert Reynolds, George Jencich, Mark Kaufman and Eric Johnson. Also exhibited will be works of woodworker Richard Harrison, who has left the college as the department's equipment technician for sever­al years. The exhibit will run through Feb. 8 and is free of charge. Call 756-1148 to arrange group tours or for more information.
WASHINGTON (AP) — American Jews are profoundly distressed over the violence in the West Bank and Gaza and divided over what Israel should do to end the crisis, community leaders and others said in interviews.

Jews feel a "great sense of pain and anguish ... an embarrassment" by scenes on television of Israel's shooting Arabs, said Hyman Bookbinder, head of the American Jewish Committee. They also think it is "terribly unfair" that Israel is taking all the blame for a situation that stems from the failure of all sides to deal with the Palestinian issue, he said.

The disturbances — the worst in Israel's 20-year occupation of the territories — have prompted an unusual degree of public criticism of Israel's actions by American Jews as well as a public airing of their differences.

Leaders of mainstream Jewish organizations insist the riots have not caused a major schism in their ranks, but they acknowledge many Jews are upset and confused over the situation.

Jews feel a 'great sense of pain and anguish ... an embarrassment' by scenes on television of Israel's shooting Arabs, said Hyman Bookbinder, head of the American Jewish Committee.

For American Jewish Organizations in New York, said there was "no split" between the over Israel's policies in the 45 groups represented in his umbrella coalition.

Others, however, said recent events have prompted heated discussion about the future of Israel among America's 6 million Jews, who provide crucial financial support to the Jewish state, born in 1948 as a haven for Jews from around the world.

"Pain, yes; disappointment, yes; confusion, yes," Rabbi Alexander Schindler said. "This does not mean there is an alienation from Israel." Schindler is president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations and a leader of the Reform movement.

Soviet Foreign Minister Eduard Shevardnadze, after talks in Kabul earlier this week, expressed optimism that a deal could be arranged and said the Soviets would like to be out of the country by the end of the year.

Shultz called the news conference to give a preview of U.S. foreign policy activity for the final year of the Reagan administration.

Among the goals, he said was work on a strategic arms reduction pact that President Reagan and Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev could sign at a summit in Moscow.

Shultz said he and Shevardnadze had agreed to meet roughly once a month until the summit, beginning in February, when the secretary is expected to go to Moscow.

The secretary also reaffirmed what he termed the "unshakable" U.S. commitment to Israel, rejecting the notion that a U.S. vote against Israel in the U.N. security council this week had changed that support.

Lady Mustangs end losing streak

By Mike Robles

SACRAMENTO — The Lady Mustangs (6-6) had not won since they beat Stanislaus State Dec. 12. Four consecutive home games turned into four consecutive losses for the Mustangs before they turned in an 82-49 triumph over Humboldt State Wednesday in a basketball contest at Cal State Northridge. Michael Seizmack/Mustang Daily

The Lady Mustangs proved to be just what the doctor ordered as the Cal Poly women's basketball team picked up its first win of 1988 and ended a four-game losing streak with a 74-55 victory Wednesday in the Main Gym. The Lady Mustangs (6-6) had not won since they beat Stanislaus State Dec. 12. Four consecutive home games turned into four consecutive losses for the Mustangs before they turned in an 82-49 triumph over Humboldt State Wednesday in a basketball contest at Cal State Northridge Monday.

"We talked to the team before the game and told them that Humboldt was frustrated, tired, they wanted to go home, they haven't won, and they were due for a win," said Cal Poly head coach Jill Orrock.

The Lady Lumberjacks stifled any thoughts of Cal Poly repeating its first-time Northridge nightmare by staying close to the Lady Mustangs for the first 10 minutes. But Cal Poly slowly turned a 15-point lead midway in the first half into a 41-27 halftime advantage.

For all intents and purposes, the game was over. The Lady Mustangs got a taste of cruise control in the second half and won handily. Despite the win, Orrock still saw room for improvement.

"We're still shooting below 50 percent and that bothers me," she said. Poor shooting has plagued the Lady Mustangs recently and Wednesday was no exception.

Michael Seizmack/Mustang Daily

The Lady Lumberjacks hit just 40 percent of their shots Wednesday. Volleyball standout Theresa Smith made her first appearance in a basketball uniform for Cal Poly and scored four points in limited action. Her presence helped offset the absence of forward Russia Muddin who had been fighting the flu bug recently. Meanwhile, freshman Pam Coffey continues to nurse an ankle injury. Madden is questionable for Saturday's game at Arena Pacific.

Cal Poly with all five starters reaching double-figure scoring was paced by Judy Hansfield and Cindy Morris, both with 17 points. Stacy Rooney had a game-high 18 rebounds to go with four blocked shots, while Julie Jordan and Elizabeth Oman each added 10 points.

But Naess adds an offensive dimension in the lineup as he is the team's third-leading scorer, averaging 9.7 points per game. He also is among the team's top four in free throws, rebounds and assists. In a tournament at Chico State last month — the Mustangs finished second — Naess scored 40 points and grabbed 24 rebounds in three games.

Sacramento also is strong offensively, with several players capable of hitting the three pointer. Guard Alex Williams leads Division II with 10.6 points per game and grabbing 12.5 points per game. Three-point specialist Mark Onna is second with a 10.2 average.

Saturday's game will be the Mustangs' final tuneup before the California Collegiate Athletic Association Division II tournament begins next Thursday. Cal Poly will open at Cal State Bakersfield — Elmer Ramos

Rugby team in 'Battle of Cal Polys'

The Cal Poly rugby club will host Cal Poly Pomona Saturday afternoon. Kickoff is 1 p.m. in Mustang Stadium.

The Mustangs (3-1) have never lost to Pomona. Top players for San Luis Obispo include Rob Fraser, Dave Cullen and Mark Molina.

Five teams compete in ultimate tournament

The Cal Poly ultimate frisbee club will host the New Year's Ultimate Jamboree Tournament.

Matches will be played all day at the upper track field. Cal Poly, Stanford, U.C. Santa Barbara, U.C. Santa Cruz and U.C. Berkeley will play in a round-robin format.

The 15th annual College Cheerleading National Championship competition is in progress at the Convention Center in Las Vegas.

The Cal Poly gymnastics team, which last year made its first ever trip to the NCAA championships, will open its season Friday night.

The Lady Mustangs will face Boise State, U.C. Davis and Chico State. The four-way meets begin at 7:30 in Crandall Gym.

Poly opens season tonight in 4-way meet

Three all-American sophomores return from last year's squad, which finished sixth in the nation.

Kim Wells was third in the all-around. Wells was 10th, Zeri Rooney second and Julie Jordan seventh in the regionals.

VANCE. SCHEDULE

FRIDAY

WRESTLING vs. Boise State, Thu., 7:00 pm, Mustang Gym

Gymnastics vs. Boise State, U.C. Davis and U.C. and Osborne State, Thu., 7:30 pm, Crandall Gym.

SATURDAY

Women's basketball at Azusa Pacific, 7:30 p.m., Main Gym

Men's basketball vs. San Diego State, 8 p.m., Main Gym.

Boise State figures to be Cal Poly's biggest competition. The Lady Broncos return eight letter winners from last year's team, which was second in the nation. Boise is Division I.
WASHINGTON (AP) — A new test for the AIDS virus that is faster, more accurate and may help determine the effectiveness of treatment drugs has been developed by National Cancer Institute researchers.

George Pavlakis, an NCI researcher, said Thursday that he and Barbara Felber, another scientist, developed the AIDS test by using genetically altered human cells that react to the presence of the HIV virus by secreting an enzyme.

Pavlakis said the bioassay is so accurate that it can detect 10 cells infected by the HIV virus, which causes AIDS, in a sample of more than a million unaffected cells.

"It is a speedier process for detecting the presence of functional HIV," he said. "And it is very accurate."

Pavlakis said he and Ms. Felber developed the test by inserting a bacterial gene that produces an enzyme into a portion of the genetic pattern of the HIV virus. This recombinant genetic pattern then was inserted into the genes of two types of human cells that are susceptible to HIV infection.

The result is that the engineered human cells now secrete the bacterial enzyme whenever the cells encounter an HIV infection.

"This gives us a signal that we can measure very, very reliably," said Pavlakis.

By measuring the amount of enzyme secreted by the test cells, he said, the process tells if there has been an HIV infection and how precisely active the virus has become.

Current tests for HIV, or AIDS, depend upon measurement of antibodies, a natural response to the virus. But antibodies may not develop for many months after an infection, and are but an indirect indication of the virus activity. Pavlakis said his test measures the presence of the virus directly.

"Even in the absence of antibodies, this test will pick up active HIV," he said.

The scientist said the bioassay already has been used to make laboratory tests of the effectiveness of an experimental AIDS drug called didoxycycline, or ddC.

Pavlakis said the engineered test cell line showed that ddC is 50 times stronger than AZT in stopping the replication, or spread, of the HIV virus in laboratory experiments. AZT, or azidothymidine, is the first AIDS drug commercially available for treatment of patients. The other drug, ddC, still is only experimental.
