Protesters deliver petition to President Baker

By Diane Wright

A petition alleging discrimination in Plant Operations and asking for the resignation of the Plant Operations director is being submitted to Cal Poly President Warren Baker at noon today.

Electrician David Jones, who led a demonstration against Ed Naretto on May 3, said, "We will rally in front of the Administration Building and present it to Baker or whoever is representing him at that time." Jones said he would like Baker to appoint a panel to investigate discrimination and waste charges at length and return the report to Baker for review in a reasonable amount of time.

"We just want to see something get started on it," Jones said.

He said he would like the panel to be made up of students and staff persons not associated with Plant Operations. Jones said there are about 100 signatures on the petition, and he hopes to have more than 200 signatures before it is submitted.

Douglas Gerard, executive dean of Facilities Administration, is Naretto's immediate supervisor. When Gerard was informed about the petition being delivered today, he declined to comment on it.

Gerard and Jones met last Friday in what Jones termed "a very productive meeting." Although no specific promises were made, Jones said Gerard indicated he would look into the problems at length, "It made me feel he was trying," Jones said.

Gerard said he did not have enough information to know if Jones' concerns were reasonable, but he would investigate the charges and reply to Jones in about one week.

"My goal is not to be a rabble-rouser," Jones said. "I'm not just a trouble maker."

Gerard said he received a memo from Jones on April 5 alleging discrimination and waste in Plant Operations. Jones called for an appointment, but Gerard said he was not prepared to meet with him at that time. Gerard said he had to go out of town and scheduled the meeting after he returned.

"I don't like the idea of trying this in the media," Gerard said. "I'm sorry he (Jones) decided to go the way he did."

Gerard said he works with Naretto on a daily basis. "He (Naretto) would not knowingly create a situation that would affect anyone badly," Gerard said.

Jones said he will continue to try and get a training program established to assist minorities in learning a trade and to have the percentage of minorities employed in trade positions be compatible with the percentage of minorities living in California.

"I made it my responsibility to challenge this for my children and my children's children," Jones said.

Jones has been employed in Plant Operations for about 13 years. He started out as a custodian and later transferred to a labor position. Gerard said Jones expressed an interest in becoming an electrician and Jones participated in an electrician training program attending classes on and off campus for more than four years and receiving on-the-job training.

Ex-candidate says presidential hopefuls need specific U.S. goals

By Neil Farrell

American presidential campaigns have become costly, exhaustive and less responsive to the people, according to a former public office and former presidential candidate John Anderson.

Speaking before a standing room only crowd in the University Union Wednesday, Anderson said candidates and political parties must stand up on specific issues in this campaign, and that it depends on the state of the nation to determine how specific a candidate should be. He referred to a current news article that stated the Democratic party was split on how specific the platform should be.

"One representative of one of the candidates is speaking to every interest group in this country and isn't saying whether a platform plan calls for a balanced budget in three years, or spending too much money. Then, of course, faced with the Great Depression he launched a big public works program, a big welfare program, to meet the needs of the nation," Anderson said in 1980.

Anderson said in 1980 Ronald Reagan, ran on the platform of balancing the budget in three years, and substantially increasing the defense expenditures of this country. The proposed increase was in line with a provision of the Republican platform that called for achieving "a position of technological superiority in the military field over the Soviet Union." That was interpreted widely as a plank that called for nuclear superiority," he said.

He quoted an article from Rolling Stone Magazine that said the baby boomers generation wanted a foreign policy that wasn't a life threat. What this generation yearns for is moral leadership in world affairs," Anderson said.

Anderson said it was a mistake to have a very general platform. "Anderson said. When Franklin Delano Roosevelt campaigned for president in 1932, he actually was critical of Herbert Hoover, then in the White House, for spending too much money. Then, of course, faced with the Great Depression he launched a big public works program, a big welfare program, to meet the needs of the nation."

When the Democratic National Convention rolls around all eyes will focus on Michael Dukakis and his eventual running mate. Political experts say the Democrats are locked on the horns of a dilemma. How do you politely dismiss Jesse Jackson without turning away the voters who have supported him? Among the questions: What to do about Jesse? What does Jesse want? Will Jesse support the party? These are logical questions, but are there any logistical answers to this ponderous political plot? Surely, there will be some backroom deals made to appease Jackson and strengthen the Democrats’ position in the November election. However, at issue is the redispersion of the displaced who make up a substantial portion of Jackson’s power base. Regardless of the overwhelming support of black voters, Jackson has garnered votes from many people on the fringes of society. Jackson’s rhetoric of inclusion has brought the political process home for the homeless and to the doorsteps of the disadvantaged. Jackson has been the only candidate to recognize and address the problems of the excluded. Dukakis, liberal as he is, has made no attempt to bring these outcasts into his fold. Vice President George Bush had the audacity to say he believed in inclusion and welcomed Jackson’s supporters if Jackson wasn’t given the Democratic vice-presidential spot. Bush should be “included” in the Betty Ford Clinic if he expects anyone to believe he wants to address the needs of Jackson’s supporters. Jackson appeals to the segments of the population that receive the least attention from mainstream America. As the homeboy the Reagan Administration says don’t exist; the increased number of people who fall below the poverty level while good news of economic growth grabs the headlines; farmers who have lost their farms; ghetto dwellers who not only fall between the cracks but have to battle crack. These new inclusions have brought new blood to the vancile veins of the political process. Jackson has made these people believe in a process that seemingly has eluded them in the past. This time the Democrats must find a way to reach these people with or without Jackson. The race between Dukakis and Bush will be tight to the end. The outcome may rest on how well the Democrats weigh Jackson’s Rainbow Coalition into the political spectrum. Jackson’s attitude will have a definite effect on his supporters. His campaign has garnered more support and political muscle than most expected — maybe even more than Jackson expected. How he handles himself at the convention will determine how much power he will have. Some experts say it’s time for Jackson to join the rank and file and to become a team player. If not Jackson, at the very least his supporters — some of whom are getting their first chance at bat — will swing a big stick and aim for the rafters. Power Jackson has may be a once-in-a-lifetime chance. It’s a chance that few of his supporters have ever known. It’s a chance to make their voices heard loud and clear. This opportunity may allow the inclusions to never be forgotten or ignored again because now they are talking a language party leaders can understand — politics. The Democrats know they need all the votes they can muster in November. Jackson may be able to draw a portion of the population into this race that could send Dukakis and whoever over the top. For the Democrats, Jackson action might have to become Jackson satisfaction. Jackson and his band of supporters know they hold a few wild cards in this political poker game. It will be interesting to see if the Democrats draw a card because at the convention in Atlanta. Terry Lightfoot, a journalism sophomore, is in his first quarter as a Mustang Daily reporter. Weiser’s the idiot, not gun toters

Editor — This goes out to Matt Weiser in response to his column “The idiots who disgust our peace” (May 2). Was this a call in favor of legislation against plastic handguns or was this the medium for telling us that he’s afraid to face life after graduation? It would seem to me the only idiot here is Matt, not those of us he so fondly refers to as “gun toters.” Only an idiot would print falsehoods in a newspaper, only an idiot would not realize it is perfectly legal to shoot in designated areas on Cuesta Grade and only an idiot would proclaim himself so righteous that only he should be allowed to enjoy the beauty Cuesta Grade has to offer for recreation. I, too, commend the legislation to ban plastic firearms. However, I don’t appreciate being called an idiot for enjoying trapshooting on Cuesta Grade, where it has been legal to do so long before Weiser entered college. Next time he needs to express his own shortcomings, he shouldn’t do it at our expense.

I also still believe in the tooth fairy.

Legislators, consumer groups back proposed insurance reform initiative

SACRAMENTO (AP) — Attorney General John Van de Kamp and several consumer groups and legislators Wednesday endorsed a proposed November insurance initiative, calling it the best plan for real reform and reduced rates.

But backers of a rival initiative backed by crusader Ralph Nader said the other measure is supported by trial lawyers and "does a better job of protecting lawyers' income than protecting the public."

Van de Kamp and other supporters of the Insurance Consumer Action Network held a news conference Wednesday in Sacramento, Los Angeles and San Diego to announce support.

Backers have submitted their signatures to election officials, but the secretary of state has not yet certified the measure for the November ballot.

It is one of four insurance initiatives likely to be before voters in November.

U.S., Soviets agree on anti-cheating but Shultz won't promise treaty OK

GENEVA (AP) — The United States and Soviet Union struck a conciliatory note Wednesday at the outset of a diplomatic effort to rescue their nuclear missile-ban treaty from crippling disagreement over anti-cheating measures.

Secretary of State George P. Shultz acknowledged, however, that he could not guarantee Senate approval of the treaty before President Reagan's May 29 summit in Moscow with Mikhail S. Gorbachev.

"I am not a member of the Senate," Shultz told reporters before his first meeting at the U.S. mission with Eduard A. Shevardnadze, the Soviet foreign minister.

"I can't tell you what the Senate is going to do. That's for the Senate to decide. But I think it would be a good thing to have ratification before the summit meeting."

On Monday, the Senate indefinitely postponed debate on the treaty.

Another Solidarity strike possible

WARSZAW, Poland (AP) — Lech Walesa said Wednesday a nine-day shipyard strike failed because it lacked nationwide support, but "if necessary, we will try again." The government said it did not plan to punish the strikers.

Parliament enacted a law giving the government special powers to speed its program of economic reform, which inspired more than two weeks of strikes. The law retained the right of official trade unions to strike.

Strikers at the Lenin shipyard, where Walesa is an electrician, sought recognition of a local chapter of Solidarity, which was outlawed after the declaration of martial law in December 1981.

A major impetus for the strikes was the reduction or removal of government subsidies, which increased prices of necessities an average of 42 percent in the first three months of 1988. Strikers demanded pay raises of up to 60 percent, and some were granted.

Viewpoint on AIDS: Hardship of plotting an uncertain future

By James Welch

On May 5, 1988, the Mustang Daily published an article concerning AIDS in San Luis Obispo. It was mentioned in the article that there is known to be one AIDS Related Condition (ARC) patient on this campus.

The day after the article was printed Mustang Daily received a surprise phone call from that student. It was, he felt, to let his story be told. The names used in this article are fabricated so as not to reveal the patient's identity or that of his girlfriend. The facts, however, have not been changed. He's not gay. He is not a drug user, and he does not sleep around. During the summer of 1984 he went to the dentist to have two wisdom teeth removed. One year later he went to the dentist again to have two more teeth pulled. Both times he received a special blood product for the procedure; a product called Factor 8. Unbeknownst to Joe, the dentist and the supplier of the product, it was contaminated with the AIDS virus.

About a year ago Joe came down with a throat infection. Thinking nothing unusual, he went to the Center for treatment. Dr. Michael Perry examined him and noticed some of the ordinary symptoms.

"I read about my medical history," said Joe. "There was something about the throat infection that suggested something was not right."

He was diagnosed as an ARC patient. ARC is the early stage of AIDS and if left untreated will develop into AIDS. When the results did come in, Joe was scared but not shocked. He was diagnosed as an ARC patient; the AIDS virus is the precursor to the full blown AIDS disease, not the disease itself. ARC patients are able to function normally, occasionally becoming ill but with nothing out of the ordinary. It can at any time, however, develop into AIDS. When this happens, the body slowly deteriorates, giving the patient about a year-and-a-half to live, on the average.

The results came back on his girlfriend's birthday.

"I really want to tell people that it happens to normal, even above normal, people... Once you get AIDS, that's it." — Joe

Joe's and Alice's parents know of his condition.

"My father was very disappointed," said Joe. "He was very proud of me being in college and as such I was. He wasn't disappointed in me, but at the whole situation." Joe's mother felt guilty because the reason he needed the Factor 8 in the first place was due to a condition inherited from her side of the family.

Alice's parents, understandably, were scared at first, have been very supportive. "My parents love Joe," said Alice. "Sometimes I wonder if it's worth it."

Joe has managed, however, to keep his work going. "I thought what it would be like if I gotARC and how hurt I would be if the person I had cared for left me." — Alice

Although the physical aspect of their relationship now has its limitations, that really matters," said Joe.

"I really want to tell people that it happens to normal, even above normal, people... Once you get AIDS, that's it." — Joe

Joe

"Every single weekday for two weeks I had some sort of medical test," he said. "At first, he considered dropping out of school, but there was a chance that it could affect his health insurance and he didn't want that added stress looming over him."

"I decided to stay in school and try to go on normally," he said. "He said that in the college environment, this is extremely hard to do."

"It's especially hard here. People aren't here just for the fun of it. They're working for the future and that's what a lot of their talk is about. School is an investment in the future and it's hard to make that investment when you don't know if you have a future." Joe

"I'm going through a negative period for awhile but it doesn't help. I just had to realize there's nothing I can do. It's very frustrating, if you're doing bad in a class you can try harder to improve, but with this it's too late to do anything about it." Dr. William Gordon from the County Health Department and Dr. James Nash from the Cal Poly Health Center have asked Joe to become involved with various AIDS support networks. However, Joe doesn't feel that he can relate to these people.

"Most of those people didn't get the virus the same way I did," he said. "They are homosexuals and drug users and I would have no time with that barrier. I don't really have the feeling of wanting to join."

"I don't want people to think I'm doing the lifestyles of these people just because we have a similar disease. I probably got it from someone who lived like that and I just can't forgive and forget."

"What's hard is that I always kept my nose clean and had my life planned out very well. Things were starting to come together. Factor 8 was supposed to help me. It's not like I stuck a needle in my arm and then said "Oh no, I shouldn't have done that." I had no choice.

"I do have faith in our capitalist system. Someone out there will find a cure. Not necessarily because they care about me as a person, but there's a lot of money involved in finding a cure.

"There's a certain satisfaction knowing you're doing better than others, even with all the distractions," he said. "This whole thing has given me a new sense of motivation. I definitely don't feel like I'm being pressed for time.

"Since I am doing so well in school and my life seems in order to others, it's really difficult when you hear people complain about everything they have to do and say they can't cope. The funnest thing is when I hear them say to me, 'You've got it made.'"

Anderson spoke dramatically to the audience and used his hands and fists to animate the points of his speech. He said Republicans will argue that they've brought down inflation and reduced the misery rate (infla­tion plus unemployment) from 11 percent to 10 percent. But Anderson disagreed, saying that it was done with borrowed money.

He referred to a Treasury bill auction that the federal government has scheduled warning that the U.S. has to be concerned that "enough Japanese show up to buy those bonds and finance our debt.

Anderson said that we need a candidate who will be specific about the programs that need to be addressed.

Anderson criticized the current administration saying that if voters elect a Bush, "he continues to brandish the underdeveloped countries in Central America as a threat to our national security, then a scandal like Iran-Contra should not be a surprise should it arise again.

Anderson said that there is a parallel between 1960 and 1988, because two years before the 1960 elections Democrats captured a majority in the House, and the majority in the Senate despite the fact that Republicans controlled the presidency.

Livingston: No longer dreaming about a national ranking

By Rob Lorenz
Staff Writer

Track & Field News last month published its list of the top 10 performances recorded for the year in each track event. To make the list, a magazine which is considered the "bible of the sport," is something that all but the best track competitors can only dream about.

Mike Livingston, who runs distance events for Cal Poly's track team, can no longer consider himself as one of those dreamers. His 10,000-meter time of 29:48.89, recorded earlier this season, placed him ninth on the list.

Livingston won both the 5,000- and 10,000-meter championships at the conference championship meet last weekend, and bettered his 10,000-meter time by more than nine seconds. To him, winning the conference championship is more important than making the magazine's list.

"Right now, all I'm looking forward to is the Division II meet," he said. "In high school, I would thumb through the magazine and think 'someday,' but making the list now has a lot to do with the time of the year. It's still early in the season."

To men's track coach Tom Henderson, however, the listing is not something to be brushed off as insignificant.

"The significance of it is that it's the entire United States," said Henderson. "It's not a college list, it's not a Division II list, it's the United States, and there are only three collegiate athletes who are on the list, and Mike had the third fastest collegiate time."

The two other collegiate athletes on the list are both from Division I teams, Henderson said, making him the fastest runner in the event the Division II this season.

Livingston won't compete in the Division II national meet, coming up in less than two weeks.

"This is the fittest I've ever been," said Livingston. "The Division II is all I'm thinking about. I'm really looking forward to the meet."

Livingston is also a two-time all-American in cross country. This season he was Cal Poly's top finisher in the regional and conference meets, placing third and fifth, respectively. The Mustangs finished fourth in the region and second in the conference.

Livingston placed 14th at this season's NCAA meet, the best national performance by a Mustang since 1981.

John Madden golf tourney to benefit Poly football

Walter Payton, the all-pro running back of the Chicago Bears and all-time leading rusher of NFL, heads the list of celebrities expected to attend the 6th annual John Madden Golf Tournament, which begins today.

The two-day event will benefit the Cal Poly football program and will be held in conjunction with the 3rd annual Virginia Madden Golf tourney, benefiting the women's athletic program.

Monty Stickles, former two-time Notre Dame all-American and San Francisco 49er standout, will be the master of ceremonies.

Returning all-pro players include Jim Plunkett, Mike Haynes, Howie Long, all of the Los Angeles Raiders, and Riki Ellison of the 49ers.

Also playing in the tournament will be George Blanda, Chris Bahr and Daryle Lamonica, all of the Raiders, and Randy Cross, Jim Plunkett, and Todd Shell, all of the 49ers.

Among the 49ers, former Cal Poly players expected to attend are LeCharles McDaniel of the Giants, Louis Jackson of the Los Angeles Rams, Jeff Smith of the USFL Renegades, Danone Johnson of the Rams and Gary Davis of the Miami Dolphins.

Cal Poly football hall of fame member Stan Sheriff will take part in the tournament. Sheriff is the only Mustang football player to play in the East-West Shrine game and is currently the director of athletics at the University of Hawaii.

Also attending will be Larry Moriarty of the Kansas City Chiefs. A former all-American out of Notre Dame, he is the son of Al Moriarty, a former Mustang football player who now lives in San Luis Obispo.

Men's crew defeats Stanford over weekend

The Cal Poly crew team won eight races over the weekend while competing at Sacramento State.

The men's heavyweight novice eight claimed its fifth consecutive victory by beating U.C.
Davis at the Port of Sacramento on Saturday. Only an hour before the race, the crew included the high-ranked Stanford crew for the win.

The men's varsity lightweight crew team overcame the rough conditions and went on to beat Davis. The team of John McCarthy, Bret Osterfeld, Mitch Gardner, Trevor Lyser, Sean Engdahl, Mike Fourkas, Jeff McClure, Doug Highland and Tony Cellbrin complemented the performance with a second victory on Sunday against Santa Clara University at Redwood Shores.

The women's novice heavyweight team is now showing its potential, said head coach Wayne Ricket after the team beat Davis and U.C. San Diego. The team overcame the rough conditions and went on to beat Davis. The varsity lightweight women raced to victory by beating U.C. San Diego at the Port of Sacramento over weekend.

Wheelmen take 3rd straight title

The Cal Poly Wheelmen continued to dominate the Western U.S. Collegiate Cycling conference last weekend by winning their third consecutive conference title in the races held at U.C. Irvine.

With the victory, the Wheelmen became the first team in the history of the conference to win three years in a row. They also qualified for the national championships with the win.

Also qualifying for the championship were second-place Stanford University and third-place U.C. Santa Barbara. These teams, along with U.C. San Diego, U.C. Berkeley and Orange Coast College, will represent the Western United States at nationals, which will be held in San Luis Obispo next weekend.

The Wheelmen came on strong in the 3 1/2-mile individual time trials, with the team winning all categories overall.

Cal Poly's Sheldon Smith captured first place in the men's A time trial and recorded the fastest time of the day at 6:33. Other top finishers for Cal Poly include Craig Anderson in sixth, and Robert Enzerink in 14th.

In the men's B time trial Cal Poly's Rich Keenan captured the bronze medal with a superior effort. The rest of the team placed consistently with Dan Kabat in fifth, Paul Hewes in eighth, Frank Mousiratis in 12th and Derek Steiner in 14th.

The Cal Poly men's C team took the overall time trial in with 30 points. Andy Spinas finished third; Cameron Fraser, fourth; Bryan Hoadley, eighth; and Tim Crenshaw, 11th.

In the women's time trial, Mindy Trask took second place for Cal Poly. Teammates Chris Pappas and Beth Vanderliet also picked up points for the team.

A pack of more than 80 riders made Sunday's criterium a fast-paced, crash-filled battle.

Cal Poly's men's A team rode strongly, but at the finish it was Cuesta's Andres Eulate who broke away with two other riders to take the win.

Enzerink was led out by Sheldon Smith, and sprinted to a fifth-place finish. Teammate Angelo Guinasso fought for eighth place.

Guinasso was closely followed by the remaining Cal Poly riders, except for John Hawkins and Mike Bennett, who sacrificed their bikes and bodies so that key UCSB riders wouldn't finish well.

In the criterium, the "Killer B's" dominated with outstanding teamwork. Only six riders were allowed to race for Cal Poly, and each added to a winning effort.

Cal Poly's Dan Kabat and Paul Hewes attacked consistently, tiring out the field, while in the primes, Steiner, Keenan and Steve Habkirk gave leadouts resulting on seven prime placings by George Garibay, Keenan and Hewes.

In the final sprint, Garibay placed seventh and Keenan followed at eighth.

Cal Poly's Paul Petit placed fourth in the criterium for the men's C team.

In the women's criterium, Trask took second place and Pappas finished eighth. Vanderliet also picked up points for the team.

Chris Smith of Cuesta College, who works out with the Wheelmen, had an outstanding weekend, placing sixth in the time trial and fourth in the criterium. Smith is now qualified for nationals.

Many of the Wheelmen will race this Sunday in downtown San Luis Obispo in the Hind Criterium.

SENATE

From page 6 and the Fairness Board Committee proposed the revised resolution on cheating and plagiarism because the Campus Administrative Manual fails to define cheating or discuss plagiarism, said George Brandes, an economics professor.

"Over the last two years we have developed a policy on cheating and plagiarism, including definitions of cheating and plagiarism," Brandes said. The policy defines cheating as, "obtaining or attempting to obtain, or aiding another to obtain credit for work, or any improvement in evaluation of performance, by any dishonest or deceptive means."

Plagiarism is defined in the resolution as, "the act of using the ideas or work of another person or persons as if they were one's own, without giving proper credit to the source." The resolution on the sexual harassment policy was proposed by the Status of Women Committee but does not make extensive changes to the current harassment policy, said Elie Azary, senate back page.

Jones is alleging that Naretto has dismantled the trainee program. Gerard said the trainee program was never an ongoing program, and that only one other employee besides Jones advanced through the program, and that only one other person filed a complaint. "That's why we are appealing the decision to the state Superior Court."

"We believe the statements she made were somewhat fabricated," Gerard said. "We think this judgment was incorrect. That's why we are appealing it." Gerard said Bowlby's situation is different from Jones' because Bowlby claimed harassment by fellow workers and Jones claims Naretto is discriminating against minorities.

Bob Dowdy, a counseling and testing counselor.

One of the major changes clarifies the role of sexual harassment adviser, Axelroth said.

"The way the original policy was written it was difficult to determine exactly what the role of the adviser was," she said. "We tried to clarify that a little bit.

The proposed resolution defines the role of adviser as a mediator between parties, rather than as an advocate of a person filling a complaint.

Another change to the policy is to provide protection for the person filing the complaint and the individual alleged to have engaged in sexual harassment, Axelroth said.

The sexual harassment policy states, "The policy of this campus is to eliminate and prevent sexual harassment and to provide prompt and equitable relief to the extent possible when such activity is reported or observed."
