Tarkenton to throw business tips
By Steve Harmon

Former NFL star quarterback Fran Tarkenton will be in San Luis Obispo on Wednesday, Nov. 2, to speak on how to run a better business. Tarkenton is also of concern to the board. After last year's Poly Royal poster is "He's a Style to Wait Awhile" showed up on T-shirts around campus, the board had to scan the entries more carefully, she said.

For instance, said Rogers, any entry with the word "capture" would not be considered.

"We wanted it to be optimistic," she said, "and the student board's design and individual majors are concerned.

Board member Christine Craig said "Unity Through Diversity" was chosen because the board was trying to involve all aspects of Cal Poly.

"The 'Diversity' represents every school at Cal Poly. And we wanted to promote a little more diversity racially, too. We saw it as the best way to get people more involved," said Craig, a biological science junior.

A team on the board narrowed the choices down to three after this weekend, for final discussion during yesterday's meeting. The other two entries that were not chosen were: "Excellence by Design" and "In Tune with Poly's Mission.

The contest for the official 1989 Poly Royal poster began tomorrow and its deadline is Nov. 16. Seventeen poster entries will be guaranteed from a design class on campus and entries will be critiqued professionally. All students are encouraged to enter.

The winners of posters entries and finalized products can be picked up and turned in at the Poly Royal Board Office, the architecture department, the graphic communications office or the UC information desk.

"We (the AMA) went down the line of all the heavy hitters in the organization identity and corporations and 43,000 boards of directors, one of which is Coca-Cola, and he owns five companies. He also authored two business books, Playing to Win - Strategies for Business Success and How to Motivate People, both published by Harper

A hot new local band The Toddlers will be playing daily at the Child Development Lab. The band features (L-R) Dana, 2, on guitar; Galen, 4, on bass; Michelle S, with vocals and Alex, 2, on keyboard.

Coach says he painted locker room
By Terry Lightfoot

The Campus Fire Department responded to a false alarm set off by mechanical difficulties at the administration building Monday shortly after 3:30 p.m.

The incident was the latest of several false alarms that have been received in the past three weeks at the Administration Building, said Fire Captain Neil Lincoln.

"Everyone is evacuated when we get there," Lincoln said. "We check the alarm and cannot find the problem. It's very frustrating.

The alarm is not a specific one, Lincol said. Each time the alarm goes off it has been from a different part of the building.

"This becomes one of those puzzles where you have to find the cause of the alarm," he said.

One problem has been smoke alarms going off when there is no fire. Repairs were made on the previous false alarms and were apparently holding up until today's alarm.

Fire Chief John Paulsen stayed with repair crews to help search out the cause of the alarm.

No one has been injured during the evacuations, although several workers complained of the inconvenience the incidents have caused.

Several false alarms stump Poly fire crew
By Bruce Sutherland

Jerry Brown talks of Zen Buddhism, election
By By Stewart McKenzie

Former California governor Jerry Brown, after a six-year hiatus from politics, will discuss the national election here tonight.

Brown will fly into San Luis Obispo this afternoon and speak at 7:30 at the Performing Arts Auditorium.

Brown, who was once training to be a Jesuit priest, is the son of Edmund (Pat) Brown Sr., governor of California in the late 1950s and early 1960s. Jerry Brown was elected to the same office in 1974 and served two terms in one of the more colorful chapters of California politics.

Under his administration, Brown imposed anti-emission laws in Los Angeles, fought the Mediterranean fruit fly invasion, and encouraged alternative forms of transportation and energy.

As a symbol of his frugality, he shunned the governor's lifetime pension in favor of a blue Plymouth sedan that was sold after Brown left office.

He was praised for his innovation and criticized as being "Governor Moonbeam," the epitome of California lifestyle to the rest of the nation.

He ran unsuccessfully for the Democratic presidential nomination in 1980 and the U.S. Senate in 1982. He then turned to the private sector, taking a job with the law firm of Reavis & McGrath and traveled extensive.

Last year, he studied Zen Buddhism in Japan as well as spending three weeks with Mother Teresa in India.

Brown recently announced his plan to run for the state Democratic Party chair and is currently writing a book on his political experiences.

In a telephone interview from Los Angeles, Brown offered his thoughts on Zen Buddhism, presidential candidates Michael Dukakis and George Bush and the election process.

Did your experiences in Japan influence your spirituality?

What was unique about where I was, Kamakura, which is an old imperial city in Japan, about an hour out of Tokyo. At this particular place the teacher, the roshi, was an 80-year-old layman who was a hospital administrator. And he had for his students a wide variety of people...it was a very international center. What was very impressive about it was the ability of people from different backgrounds to come together and study this ancient tradition—which is the Zen tradition and experience the underlying unity that exists beneath the different symbols of East and West. From the point of view in the political domain, the tremendous antagonisms between the East and West can be reduced because of the greater awareness due to communication...See BROWN, page 3
Letters to the Editor

All bike riders aren’t at fault

Editor — In response to Robert C. Fraser Jr.’s warning to bike riders, the more than 400 international organizations in more than 150 countries observe World Food Day.

World hunger is something we read about in the newspapers or see on the television in all its hideous detail whereas a famine in some distant land world countries reaches another low point or when some individual or organization does something heroic to help reduce the suffering. But what does it mean to hunger, to go without food for days on end, to live an entire life without ever being adequately fed?

It is the responsibility of each society, we all know that cars go too fast and Highway 101 is not the “Indy 500,” use your “tac­

sion to the problem. On the other hand, I am embarrassed to say that I too regret that Dr. Hallman promised a better investment in the creative arts and the performing arts. It’s difficult to say whether it’s the fault of Mr. Panetta or his ignorance of the Constitution which limits the power and size of the federal government.

The 10th Amendment reads ‘The powers not delegated to the Union by the Constitution, nor prohibited to it by the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people.” Some estimates indicate that the federal budget could be reduced by 50 percent to 75 percent. Several of the national leaders followed this amendment. Again, the question is why doesn’t Congress, after tak­ing an oath of office to uphold the U.S. Constitution, follow the 10th Amendment to the Constitution which limits the power and size of the federal government?

While answering this question, Mr. Panetta shows his ignorance of the Bill of Rights. After the 10th Amendment was read to him a second time, he suggested that this limitation on federal government was unnecessary because “we all should be involved.” As he expanded his theme of universal involvement, he showed his ignorance of the constitutional theme of checks and balances as well as the constitutional theme of limited government. He didn’t know what a 10th Amendment represents, which is part of our Bill of Rights?

While answering this question, Mr. Panetta shows his ignorance of the constitutional theme of checks and balances as well as the constitutional theme of limited government. He didn’t know what a 10th Amendment represents, which is part of our Bill of Rights?

World hunger is something we read about in the newspapers or see on the television in all its hideous detail whereas a famine in some distant land world countries reaches another low point or when some individual or organization does something heroic to help reduce the suffering. But what does it mean to hunger, to go without food for days on end, to live an entire life without ever being adequately fed?

It is the responsibility of each society, we all know that cars go too fast and Highway 101 is not the “Indy 500,” use your “tac­

sion to the problem. On the other hand, I am embarrassed to say that I too regret that Dr. Hallman promised a better investment in the creative arts and the performing arts. It’s difficult to say whether it’s the fault of Mr. Panetta or his ignorance of the Constitution which limits the power and size of the federal government.

The 10th Amendment reads ‘The powers not delegated to the Union by the Constitution, nor prohibited to it by the states, are reserved to the states respectively, or to the people.” Some estimates indicate that the federal budget could be reduced by 50 percent to 75 percent. Several of the national leaders followed this amendment. Again, the question is why doesn’t Congress, after tak­ing an oath of office to uphold the U.S. Constitution, follow the 10th Amendment to the Constitution which limits the power and size of the federal government?

While answering this question, Mr. Panetta shows his ignorance of the Bill of Rights. After the 10th Amendment was read to him a second time, he suggested that this limitation on federal government was unnecessary because “we all should be involved.” As he expanded his theme of universal involvement, he showed his ignorance of the constitutional theme of checks and balances as well as the constitutional theme of limited government. He didn’t know what a 10th Amendment represents, which is part of our Bill of Rights?

While answering this question, Mr. Panetta shows his ignorance of the constitutional theme of checks and balances as well as the constitutional theme of limited government. He didn’t know what a 10th Amendment represents, which is part of our Bill of Rights?
Do you think Bush is using racism as a campaign tactic?

I'm sure if they (the Bush campaign) had a picture of me and my father on it, I would insist fear. I don't know if the ethnic identity of rapists and murderers is particularly that big a deal. The Republicans are operating on fear. They're trying somehow to associate fear and crime and Dukakis in an unfavorable light. The emptiness of the rhetoric is proven by the fact that the federal government does not have any laws about rape. It's not in that business — that's the state's job to do that. And Bush has not advocated anything on reducing crime, other than talking about the death penalty for criminally-involved narcotics murders. Murder is already subject to the death penalty in most of the states in this nation.... It's basically part of the campaign game, the campaign rhetoric that basically clouds the airwaves. You hear it through it and see what you want.

Is that characteristic become worse in recent years?

No.

So it's still the same as before?

Maybe. It's more evasive. When Nixon ran against my father for governor, they talked about capital punishment, communism on the campuses. The Bush people are pretty clever. I believe the honesty, decency, and commitment that Dukakis represents will be very strong in the feature.

What about political television advertising?

Some of it's pretty crazy. But I think people can see through it. The political bent of the TV advertising is different from the advertising.... Do you remember a passage from Special K? A very striking woman in a tight, white bathing suit with the camera angle focused on her thigh. Then she's in the shower, the water was flowing down from her legs and they showed her whole body in her tight bathing suit. Then they switch to a bowl of Special K with big red strawberries, with white cream poured over them, connecting in to the woman in the white swimming suit. What the hell does that have to do with breakfast cereal? They're selling sex, just like the Republicans are selling fear. That's part of the advertising. The commercial with people on the cigarette initiative are selling fear of crime.

How do you feel running for the first Democratic party chair within a fragmented party?

I think it's a great opportunity to pull it all together. The Democratic party in California is the most powerful Democratic party in the nation. It's intelligent people, it should be more effective. It should help Democratic candidates. The registration figures have dropped and there's no reason for that. What I'd like to see is the Democratic party really become an organization that people want to be a part of, they want to support, and they want to use to serve their communities. I think we can do that.

So you're the one people will rally around?

There doesn't seem to be any other right now. I'd sure like to offer myself to try and give them a chance to try some new leadership.

Will people respond to this, as opposed to the Deukmejian administration?

There's not a lot the Deukmejian administration has done. After awhile, people are going to find they're going to want some intelligent Democratic party as it see if offers innovation, integrity, and effectiveness. I certainly don't see much innovation going on in the state now.

BROWN

From page 1

tion, technology, transportation, and in our growing sense of interdependence.

In this particular place I was, you had both Christians and Buddhists practicing together. There was an equal respect for the different traditions, but there was a common effort to pursue the spiritual path.

The practices of Zen are compared with the practice of Christianity. They're not incompatibile, it's not necessarily limited to Buddhism. Buddhism is a doctorate and the theology is a separate religion, but Zen as a practice is universal.

What inspired you to go to Calcutta? Why India?

I'm very impressed with the work of Mother Teresa and I wanted to see where it all began, where it was Calcutta... the reality of the practice of Zen is compared and there's no one that better exemplifies compassion than Mother Teresa.

How do you feel in general on what Desekman has done as governor?

Obviously, I believe a lot more could be done. Transportation, the environment, training people for jobs in the future, such as the California Conservation Corps.

Do you have full support behind Dukakis?

Sure. Of course he has a real chance. Like Harry Truman when he beat Dewey. I think Bush is vulnerable, I think Dukakis has real underlying strengths.
STARTS THURSDAY 7AM TO 11PM

ONE DAY ONLY!

Copeland’s Sports

MONSTER SKI SALE

OCTOBER 27

SAN LUIS OBISPO VETERANS HALL

BUY WITH CONFIDENCE

Copeland’s Sports is an Authorized Dealer for all ski equipment sold at the sale. You can be assured that your purchase at this sale will be serviced by Copeland’s Sports stores around the Central Coast. Experienced salespersons from our stores & representatives from ski companies will be on hand to insure you select the right product for yourself.

FREE ADMISSION

Due to limited dressing room space, we recommend women wear leotards. Quantities & sizes limited to stock on hand, we reserve the right to refuse sales to dealers. Visa, Mastercard & approved checks accepted.

WE’RE GIVING AWAY

$5,000 WORTH OF MERCHANDISE CERTIFICATES

FREE!

TEN DOLLAR CERTIFICATES TO BE APPLIED TO ANY PURCHASE OVER $50 WILL BE GIVEN TO THE FIRST 500 PEOPLE THROUGH THE DOORS THURSDAY!

LEAVE ONE DUPLICATE CERTIFICATE PER CUSTOMER. NO DUPLICATE PAGES ARE ALLOWED. CERTIFICATES MUST BE USED THE SAME DAY ISSUED, ONLY AT THE MONSTER SKI SALE

THOUSANDS OF SKIS, BOOTS, BINDINGS, ACCESSORIES & SKIWEAR

SAVE UP TO 80%

THE CENTRAL COASTS LARGEST PRE-SEASON SKI SALE

REGISTER TO WIN

Rossignol 4S Comp Skis 1 pair will be given away the day of the sale!

THOUSANDS OF SKIS, BOOTS, BINDINGS, ACCESSORIES & SKIWEAR

SOME EXAMPLES

SPECIAL GROUP SKIS

1987 MFG SUGGESTED PRICE

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Brand</th>
<th>Model</th>
<th>Price</th>
</tr>
</thead>
</table>
| Used Rossignol Rentals | $29.99
| With Salomon Bindings  | $79.99 |
| Pre 12005 200 & 204  |  $295.00 |
| Dynastar Sports 55 '87-88 | $89.99 |
| Rossignol 600 '87-88  |  $285.00 |
| Atomic ARC SLS '86-87  |  $199.99 |

SPECIAL GROUP BOOTS

1988 MFG SUGGESTED PRICE

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Brand</th>
<th>Model</th>
<th>Price</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Heierling Laser</td>
<td>$165.00</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Heierling Contessa 1988-89</td>
<td>$165.00</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Raichle Visa M &amp; L 1988-89</td>
<td>$180.00</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

YOUR CHOICE

99.99

SPECIAL GROUP MENS

1988 MFG SUGGESTED PRICE

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Brand</th>
<th>Model</th>
<th>Price</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Special Group Mmens 1/2 Zip Shell Jackets</td>
<td>$24.99</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Special Group Mmens &amp; Women's Parkas</td>
<td>$49.99</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Special Group Mmens Skyr Gore-tex Shell Jackets</td>
<td>$69.99</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Special Group Mmens &amp; Women's Gore-tex Pants</td>
<td>$79.99</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Special Group Mmens Stretch Pants</td>
<td>$69.99</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

YOUR CHOICE

99.99

SUNLIGHT

Sunglasses

Discontinued Styles & Colors Values To $68

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Brand</th>
<th>Model</th>
<th>Price</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Special Group</td>
<td>Scott, Smith &amp; Bole</td>
<td>$29.99</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Ski Goggles</td>
<td>$14.99</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Mens Grandoe Gore-tex Gloves</td>
<td>$19.99</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| 100% Cotton T-Neck | $24.00

1 DAY ONLY!

SAN LUIS OBISPO VETERANS HALL
The Global Picture:

The world is growing up. The United States is no longer the "big kid" on the block who exerts all endeavors he sets out on. Various countries, once considered less-developed, are slowly dethroning the United States from its position as "king of the hill." In 1970, the United States had 14 of the top 20 industrial companies ranked by assets. By 1986, that figure had dropped to less than 10, said Cal Poly management professor Robert Grant.

In 1960, Japan's Gross National Product per capita was less than one-fourth of that of the United States. Grant said as of last year that has changed. Japan now has a GNP slightly higher than America's.

In 1970, the United States had 12 of the top 20 educational institutions ranked by enrollment. By 1984, America had lost half of these positions. "This is a direct result of what the world is doing now, and then offer proposals as to what can be done in the future to promote international relations," Grant said.

California Poly is looking into a variety of ways to incorporate international awareness into the campus and the student body. One way the university is hoping to facilitate this is through the establishment of an on-campus international center. The Academic Senate made a proposal last year to have an international center whose purpose would be to coordinate all information regarding international exchanges and travel programs.

The Academic Affairs Office has set up a new division called the Office of International Planning Program, headed by Jon Ericson.

One of the immediate objectives of IPP is to make assessments of what the university is doing now, and then offer proposals as to what can be done in the future to promote international relations. Ericson sent out a memo to all faculty asking where the greatest emphasis should be placed regarding international activities.

Ericson sent out a memo to all faculty asking where the greatest emphasis should be placed regarding international activities. These statistics, and a slew of others like them, suggest that multi-national corporations based in the U.S. cannot recruit qualified personnel from their own country. A multitude of international dealings once under U.S. dominance have been taken over by foreign companies.

"The world is shrinking," said Malcolm Wilson, vice president of academic affairs, in an interview given summer quarter. "You are the new generation." To educate the new generation that will be working in the international job market requires, according to Wilson, that education become integrated with the rest of the world.

"We need more specific opportunities on campus," he said. "The world is going to need more international specialists, and all of us need to be aware of the world around us." Wilson wants to go beyond the token additions of foreign language classes by implement-
TARKENTON

From page 1
& Rowl. He received his bachelor's in business administration from the University of Georgia.

Tarkenton draws on his 18 years in the NFL, personal anecdotes, humor and practical approach to illustrate business applications to listeners. After his pro-football career, Tarkenton worked as commentator for ABC's Monday Night Football and also co-hosted "That's Incredible.'" Tarkenton is a member of the college and professional football Halls of Fame. In 1973, 1975 and 1976, he led the Minnesota Vikings to the Super Bowl.

Tickets for the dinner and presentation will remain on sale until 5 p.m. Friday and cost $30 for the public and $25 for Cal Poly students. They are available at local Chambers of Commerce, the Cal Poly School of Business office or by calling Furrer at 549-9297.

Get an IBM PS/2 now and save.

September 26 through October 28, 1988

IBM and El Corral Bookstore are offering complete personal computing packages at spectacular prices. Stop by El Corral Computer Department for more information.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>PACKAGE:</th>
<th>LIST PRICE:</th>
<th>SALE PRICE:</th>
<th>YOU SAVE:</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>PS/2 25 Monochrome</td>
<td>$2419.00</td>
<td>$1319.00</td>
<td>$1100.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PS/2 25 Color, Hd Drive</td>
<td>$3354.00</td>
<td>$1799.00</td>
<td>$1555.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PS/2 50Z Standard, 13&quot;</td>
<td>$6038.00</td>
<td>$3239.00</td>
<td>$2799.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PS/2 50Z Hi Perf, 13&quot;</td>
<td>$6638.00</td>
<td>$3999.00</td>
<td>$2639.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PS/2 50Z Hi Perf, 16&quot;</td>
<td>$9453.00</td>
<td>$5339.00</td>
<td>$4114.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PS/2 70 Standard, 13&quot;</td>
<td>$8733.00</td>
<td>$5009.00</td>
<td>$3724.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>PS/2 70 Hi Perf, 16&quot;</td>
<td>$13535.00</td>
<td>$8109.00</td>
<td>$5426.00</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

For a limited time only.
McCarthy sets attack on Wilson

Says Senator's 'go-along-to-get-along' style isn't wanted

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) - Democratic Sen. Mike McCarthy attacked Pete Wilson on Monday, promising leadership that Wilson has followed above those of Pentagon consuls and similar special interest groups, to put priorities of people and not to project early winner.

Wilson aide Bob Hudson, responding to McCarthy's charge that Wilson has written only one defense program and into education and rehabilitation. He has expanded advocating Medicare and raising-fuel efficiency standards to reduce energy consumption. Wilson saidBob Hudonsaid that Wilson has written only one "substantive" bill that has become law, said the incumbent has sponsored "some 56 bills and 42 of those succeeded."

Three networks promise not to project early winner

SEATTLE (AP) - If you've ever been robbed, says Rep. Al Swift, you know how some West Coast voters felt in the last two presidential elections when TV networks declared a winner hours before their polls closed.

"It's like being robbed - a combination of feeling violated and helpless," said Swift, a Washington state Democrat.

"It's like being robbed - a combination of feeling violated and helpless," said Swift, a Washington state Democrat.

For eight years, Swift and other Western political have looked for someone to hit, as they try to put a little suspense back into election night for their constituents.

"We are battle against the "time-zone factor" has been frustrated by congressional inaction, court challenges and lack of firm evidence that election-night projections of winners do any real harm.

Despite their crusade, election coverage on network television Nov. 8 promises to differ little from 1980 or 1984, analysts say, and it may even bring news of the winner from reporters traveling with him.

SEATTLE (AP) - If you've ever been robbed, says Rep. Al Swift, you know how some West Coast voters felt in the last two presidential elections when TV networks declared a winner hours before their polls closed.

"It's like being robbed - a combination of feeling violated and helpless," said Swift, a Washington state Democrat.

"It's like being robbed - a combination of feeling violated and helpless," said Swift, a Washington state Democrat.

For eight years, Swift and other Western political have looked for someone to hit, as they try to put a little suspense back into election night for their constituents.

"We are battle against the "time-zone factor" has been frustrated by congressional inaction, court challenges and lack of firm evidence that election-night projections of winners do any real harm.

Despite their crusade, election coverage on network television Nov. 8 promises to differ little from 1980 or 1984, analysts say, and it may even bring news of the winner from reporters traveling with him.

SEATTLE (AP) - If you've ever been robbed, says Rep. Al Swift, you know how some West Coast voters felt in the last two presidential elections when TV networks declared a winner hours before their polls closed.

"It's like being robbed - a combination of feeling violated and helpless," said Swift, a Washington state Democrat.

"It's like being robbed - a combination of feeling violated and helpless," said Swift, a Washington state Democrat.

For eight years, Swift and other Western political have looked for someone to hit, as they try to put a little suspense back into election night for their constituents.

"We are battle against the "time-zone factor" has been frustrated by congressional inaction, court challenges and lack of firm evidence that election-night projections of winners do any real harm.

Despite their crusade, election coverage on network television Nov. 8 promises to differ little from 1980 or 1984, analysts say, and it may even bring news of the winner from reporters traveling with him.

SEATTLE (AP) - If you've ever been robbed, says Rep. Al Swift, you know how some West Coast voters felt in the last two presidential elections when TV networks declared a winner hours before their polls closed.

"It's like being robbed - a combination of feeling violated and helpless," said Swift, a Washington state Democrat.

"It's like being robbed - a combination of feeling violated and helpless," said Swift, a Washington state Democrat.

For eight years, Swift and other Western political have looked for someone to hit, as they try to put a little suspense back into election night for their constituents.

"We are battle against the "time-zone factor" has been frustrated by congressional inaction, court challenges and lack of firm evidence that election-night projections of winners do any real harm.

Despite their crusade, election coverage on network television Nov. 8 promises to differ little from 1980 or 1984, analysts say, and it may even bring news of the winner from reporters traveling with him.

SEATTLE (AP) - If you've ever been robbed, says Rep. Al Swift, you know how some West Coast voters felt in the last two presidential elections when TV networks declared a winner hours before their polls closed.

"It's like being robbed - a combination of feeling violated and helpless," said Swift, a Washington state Democrat.

"It's like being robbed - a combination of feeling violated and helpless," said Swift, a Washington state Democrat.

For eight years, Swift and other Western political have looked for someone to hit, as they try to put a little suspense back into election night for their constituents.

"We are battle against the "time-zone factor" has been frustrated by congressional inaction, court challenges and lack of firm evidence that election-night projections of winners do any real harm.

Despite their crusade, election coverage on network television Nov. 8 promises to differ little from 1980 or 1984, analysts say, and it may even bring news of the winner from reporters traveling with him.

SEATTLE (AP) - If you've ever been robbed, says Rep. Al Swift, you know how some West Coast voters felt in the last two presidential elections when TV networks declared a winner hours before their polls closed.

"It's like being robbed - a combination of feeling violated and helpless," said Swift, a Washington state Democrat.

"It's like being robbed - a combination of feeling violated and helpless," said Swift, a Washington state Democrat.

For eight years, Swift and other Western political have looked for someone to hit, as they try to put a little suspense back into election night for their constituents.

"We are battle against the "time-zone factor" has been frustrated by congressional inaction, court challenges and lack of firm evidence that election-night projections of winners do any real harm.

Despite their crusade, election coverage on network television Nov. 8 promises to differ little from 1980 or 1984, analysts say, and it may even bring news of the winner from reporters traveling with him.

SEATTLE (AP) - If you've ever been robbed, says Rep. Al Swift, you know how some West Coast voters felt in the last two presidential elections when TV networks declared a winner hours before their polls closed.

"It's like being robbed - a combination of feeling violated and helpless," said Swift, a Washington state Democrat.

"It's like being robbed - a combination of feeling violated and helpless," said Swift, a Washington state Democrat.

For eight years, Swift and other Western political have looked for someone to hit, as they try to put a little suspense back into election night for their constituents.

"We are battle against the "time-zone factor" has been frustrated by congressional inaction, court challenges and lack of firm evidence that election-night projections of winners do any real harm.

Despite their crusade, election coverage on network television Nov. 8 promises to differ little from 1980 or 1984, analysts say, and it may even bring news of the winner from reporters traveling with him.
Most Mustang fans would not recognize the All-American athlete who is about to be inducted into Cal Poly's Hall of Fame and Distinction on Nov. 4.

Dressed in a suit, nylons and high heels, Sandra K. Aughinbaugh looks like the typical office professional waiting for the results of her bar exam.

Aughinbaugh, however, sheds her professional uniform to don her athletic gear and work out with the current Cal Poly volleyball team at least three times a week.

"I usually eat lunch at my desk so that at two, I can leave and play volleyball," she said.

The All-American said volleyball is a good release and helps her work better at her job with Farmer and Ready Law Corporation in San Luis Obispo.

"I transferred to U.C. San Diego, played volleyball and went to law school. It was crazy," she said. "I practiced in the afternoon and took classes at night."

She continued her volleyball career at a professional level, playing with a New York team, and still managed to finish law school, she said.

"I was not the typical law student. I would go to school all week, but on Friday, I would leave for New York to play volleyball over the weekend," Aughinbaugh said. "I did a lot of traveling."

Aughinbaugh's New York team allowed her to practice on her own during the week and flew her out on weekends to play matches.

"Law school was a full time job. There was always something to keep me busy, but I've always been the type of person that has needed something else," she said.

"I cannot channel everything into one category."

Aughinbaugh played volleyball for Cal Poly from 1980 to 1983. She was discovered in her physical education class by coach Mike Wilten her freshman year.

"Actually, when I first came to Poly, I was just going to be a regular student and give up sports a little bit," she said.

"But once I started playing and working hard, there was no way I would give it up."

Aughinbaugh did more than just "not give up," she became one of the best hitters in Cal Poly's history and one of the most feared left-side hitters in the country.

Two-time All-American Aughinbaugh was honored as the United States Volleyball Association national tournament's Most Valuable Player in 1983.

According to a press release, in 1982, the People's Republic of China Women's Junior National Team players labeled Aughinbaugh as the toughest player they faced during their unbeaten 11-match U.S. tour.

Challenge and competition are what kept Aughinbaugh going in her climb to athletic stardom, she said.

"There was always the challenge to see how good I could really be," she said. "And, the level of competition that I've been able to reach is real addictive — when I'm not competing, I miss it a lot.""

Aughinbaugh is looking into the possibility of playing on a team somewhere on the west coast, she said.

San Luis Obispo, however, is the place where she wants to settle down and work.
UCLA quarterback keeps an eye on NFL

By Lisa Parsons

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Troy Aikman knows his services will be in demand in 1989. So while he goes about trying to lead UCLA to a national championship, he keeps on eye on goings-on in the National Football League.

"Right now, it's too early for me to worry about it, but sometimes I wonder where I'm going to be next year," the senior quarterback said. "There are a few teams I'm pulling for to win and a few teams I'm pulling for to lose."

Aikman would only smile and shake his head when asked who those teams were, but he did say, "I don't like the cold."

That would seem to mean he is cheering for teams like Kansas City, Pittsburgh, Atlanta and Detroit and Green Bay to win and prefer a club like the San Diego Chargers, for example, to go for the rest of 1988.

A 6-foot-3-and-a-half, 217-pounder, Aikman figures to be one of the top, if not the top choice in next spring's NFL draft.

If the Chargers continue to lose, they would have the No. 1 pick and quite likely Aikman would be the man they would want.

Aikman, a second-team All-American last year, ranks second in the country in passing efficiency, having completed 125 of 188 passes for 1,708 yards and 19 touchdowns with only five interceptions.

His efforts have helped the top-ranked Bruins to a 7-0 record, their best start in 22 years. A win over Washington State Saturday would make UCLA 8-0 for the first time since 1954.

Aikman and the Bruins played their first game as the country's top-ranked team last Saturday and overpowered Arizona 24-3 at Tucson. Aikman led the way, completing 20 of 29 passes for 283 yards and three touchdowns.

"I thought Troy Aikman was outstanding," said UCLA coach Terry Donahue, who has repeated time after time this year that the success of the Bruins' offense is due to its quarterback.

Aikman said being No. 1 was no big deal as far as playing the games are concerned, but it was clear he likes life at the top.

"It's the same as it's been all year," he said. "I don't think it (being No. 1) changed the way we prepared for the game."

"You have to approach every game the same. We all realize we're not a good enough team to just line up and go out and beat people, so being ranked No. 1 hasn't changed anything."

The Bruins have four games remaining. They complete their regular-season schedule Nov. 19 when they face crosstown rival Southern Cal in a game which might determine the national championship. The Trojans are 6-0 and ranked third.

Aikman said it was easy to not look ahead to the Bruins' game against the Trojans.
Ice cream holdup suspect may be ‘underwear’ thief

ROWLAND HEIGHTS, Calif. (AP) — The man arrested for an ice cream parlor robbery is believed to be the “Underwear Bandit” responsible for up to 47 holdups, often taking the underwear of female employees as well as cash, authorities said Monday.

Bruce Lyons, 33, of the Riverside County town of Moreno Valley, captured after a high-speed freeway chase and crash, was held for investigation of the robbery of a Baskin Robbins ice cream store, said Capt. Thomas Vetter of the Los Angeles County Sheriff’s Department.

Bail, set at $11,000 after the Sunday night arrest, was raised to $100,000 after detectives found 10 women’s panties in Lyons’ car and determined he resembled the robber described by earlier

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gloves used in hospitals are prone to leakage, killing doctors and health care workers vulnerable to contact with AIDS, according to research according to three studies released Tuesday.

"Blood is able to penetrate through many of the vinyl and latex gloves provided to doctors and nurses working in hospitals," said a summary of a study conducted by infection control nurse Jane DeGroot-Kosolcharoen and colleagues at Middlebottorff Memorial Veterans Hospital in Madison, Wisc.

She said recommendations for health care workers to wear gloves to protect themselves from AIDS and other viruses included a nationwide glove shortage, and that "manufacturers have had difficulty supplying enough gloves without compromising quality."

The three studies found wide variations in leakage rates by brands of latex and vinyl gloves, but tended to show similar leakage rates in latex and non sterile examination gloves, and latex less leak-prone.

For some brands, more than half of second gloves leaked.

However, a fourth study found that while blood and other body fluids from AIDS patients gets on the skin of health care workers "far too frequently," the chance of one such exposure infecting a person with AIDS is no more than 1 in 1,000, said Dr. Edward Fahey, of the National Institutes of Health.

Her study of 770 employees at the NIH Clinical Center in Bethesda, Md., indicated that only one-quarter of them had gotten blood, spinal fluids or other body fluids from AIDS patients on their skin.

Nevertheless, Fahey and others said health care workers should check gloves for holes before using them, then wash their hands after removing gloves.

The findings were presented during the 28th Interscience Conference on Antimicrobial Agents and Chemotherapy, where several AIDS and infectious disease experts cautioned against unwarranted panic by health care workers.

"Gloves have been leaking for years, we’ve been wearing them and we haven’t found a lot of infections," said Barbara DeGroot-Kosolcharoen said.

She performed water-leak tests on 4,200 gloves from 24 brands of gloves. In a second test, the gloves were dunked in blood, researchers and dipped in blood and don’t leak. A third test showed average leak rates for water and blood, 1.0 to 1.4 percent, were 1.1 percent and 1.1 percent for sterile latex, 9 percent and 9.5 percent for sterile vinyl, 14 percent and 9 percent for nonsterile latex and — most leaks — 17.7 percent and 10.3 percent for nonsterile vinyl.

However, of the 24 brands, only four didn’t leak at all, and all were sterile latex gloves. Up to 52 percent of gloves in some brands leaked.

"Better quality control standards for glove manufacturers are needed," she concluded.

In the Boston area of Massachusetts Medical Center, infection control research director Helen Rosen Kotilainen tested 1,200 vinyl and 1,750 latex nonsterile examination gloves from seven brands each by filling them with a set volume of water.

Failure rates for various vinyl gloves ranged from 28 percent for vinyl gloves and from 0 percent to 6 percent for latex gloves.

She then tested which gloves would hold up longest under the simplex virus, which is similar in structure to the virus that causes AIDS. None of the latex gloves and up to 2.6 percent of the vinyl gloves let the virus through.

"We conclude that the much higher failure rate of vinyl gloves when compared with latex gloves should prompt regulatory agencies to establish higher standards for glove manufacturers," she said.

"But an official for the San Francisco AIDS Foundation said protests will continue.

The show’s later episodes unfairly depict a person with AIDS.

The controversial episode concerns a bisexual man with AIDS who is portrayed as a drug user and sex until a former lover kills him.

"We are outraged that they would try to exploit the set of our production to get a new show off the ground," said Rene Durazo of the AIDS group.

The producers said they already have made changes to show they do not condone the murder.

At first, the hero helped the lover escape. But in the revised version, he is arrested.

Protestors want the murder deleted from the plot.

Stud y: medical gloves often leak; causes fear about AIDS exposure

AIDS episode on new TV show protested

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Producers of the new television show "Midnight Caller" have obtained a court order to restrict protesters who claim that one of the show’s later episodes depicts a person with AIDS.

The show’s creator, said the show could incite violence against AIDS victims, disrupted the filming of the series last week.

A temporary restraining order issued Monday by the San Francisco Superior Court bars demonstrators from getting within 100 feet of the set or making any noise during filming.

A spokesman for Lorimar Productions said the order "established guidelines for a peaceful demonstration."

But an official for the San Francisco AIDS Foundation said protests will continue.

The show’s later episodes unfair depition of one such exposure infecting a person with AIDS is no more than 1 in 1,000, said Dr. Edward Fahey, of the National Institutes of Health.

Her study of 770 employees at the NIH Clinical Center in Bethesda, Md., indicated that only one-quarter of them had gotten blood, spinal fluids or other body fluids from AIDS patients on their skin.

Nevertheless, Fahey and others said health care workers should check gloves for holes before using them, then wash their hands after removing gloves.

The findings were presented during the 28th Interscience Conference on Antimicrobial Agents and Chemotherapy, where several AIDS and infectious disease experts cautioned against unwarranted panic by health care workers.

"Gloves have been leaking for years, we’ve been wearing them and we haven’t found a lot of infections," said Barbara DeGroot-Kosolcharoen said.

She performed water-leak tests on 4,200 gloves from 24 brands of gloves. In a second test, the gloves were dunked in blood, researchers and dipped in blood and don’t leak. A third test showed average leak rates for water and blood, 1.0 to 1.4 percent, were 1.1 percent and 1.1 percent for sterile latex, 9 percent and 9.5 percent for sterile vinyl, 14 percent and 9 percent for nonsterile latex and — most leaks — 17.7 percent and 10.3 percent for nonsterile vinyl.

However, of the 24 brands, only four didn’t leak at all, and all were sterile latex gloves. Up to 52 percent of gloves in some brands leaked.

"Better quality control standards for glove manufacturers are needed," she concluded.

In the Boston area of Massachusetts Medical Center, infection control research director Helen Rosen Kotilainen tested 1,200 vinyl and 1,750 latex nonsterile examination gloves from seven brands each by filling them with a set volume of water.

Failure rates for various vinyl gloves ranged from 28 percent for vinyl gloves and from 0 percent to 6 percent for latex gloves.

She then tested which gloves would hold up longest under the simplex virus, which is similar in structure to the virus that causes AIDS. None of the latex gloves and up to 2.6 percent of the vinyl gloves let the virus through.

"We conclude that the much higher failure rate of vinyl gloves when compared with latex gloves should prompt regulatory agencies to establish higher standards for glove manufacturers," she said.

"But an official for the San Francisco AIDS Foundation said protests will continue.

The show’s later episodes unfairly depict a person with AIDS.

The controversial episode concerns a bisexual man with AIDS who is portrayed as a drug user and sex until a former lover kills him.

"We are outraged that they would try to exploit the set of our production to get a new show off the ground," said Rene Durazo of the AIDS group.

The producers said they already have made changes to show they do not condone the murder.

At first, the hero helped the lover escape. But in the revised version, he is arrested.

Protestors want the murder deleted from the plot.

The controversial episode concerns a bisexual man with AIDS who is portrayed as a drug user and sex until a former lover kills him.

"We are outraged that they would try to exploit the set of our production to get a new show off the ground," said Rene Durazo of the AIDS group.

The producers said they already have made changes to show they do not condone the murder.

At first, the hero helped the lover escape. But in the revised version, he is arrested.

Protestors want the murder deleted from the plot.

Resistant bacteria predated to antibiotics

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Frozen corpses of two seamen who died in the Canadian Northwest Passage connecting the Atlantic and Pacific.

In 1848, the explorers, preserved bodies were among three retrieved from graves in the permafrost of Alberta in Edmonton has prompted her to speculate on the environment caused by widespread use and — most leaky — 17.7 percent and 10.3 percent for nonsterile vinyl.

However, of the 24 brands, only four didn’t leak at all, and all were sterile latex gloves. Up to 52 percent of gloves in some brands leaked.

"Better quality control standards for glove manufacturers are needed," she concluded.

In the Boston area of Massachusetts Medical Center, infection control research director Helen Rosen Kotilainen tested 1,200 vinyl and 1,750 latex nonsterile examination gloves from seven brands each by filling them with a set volume of water.

Failure rates for various vinyl gloves ranged from 28 percent for vinyl gloves and from 0 percent to 6 percent for latex gloves.

She then tested which gloves would hold up longest under the simplex virus, which is similar in structure to the virus that causes AIDS. None of the latex gloves and up to 2.6 percent of the vinyl gloves let the virus through.

"We conclude that the much higher failure rate of vinyl gloves when compared with latex gloves should prompt regulatory agencies to establish higher standards for glove manufacturers," she said.

"But an official for the San Francisco AIDS Foundation said protests will continue.

The show’s later episodes unfairly depict a person with AIDS.

The controversial episode concerns a bisexual man with AIDS who is portrayed as a drug user and sex until a former lover kills him.

"We are outraged that they would try to exploit the set of our production to get a new show off the ground," said Rene Durazo of the AIDS group.

The producers said they already have made changes to show they do not condone the murder.

At first, the hero helped the lover escape. But in the revised version, he is arrested.

Protestors want the murder deleted from the plot.

The controversial episode concerns a bisexual man with AIDS who is portrayed as a drug user and sex until a former lover kills him.

"We are outraged that they would try to exploit the set of our production to get a new show off the ground," said Rene Durazo of the AIDS group.

The producers said they already have made changes to show they do not condone the murder.

At first, the hero helped the lover escape. But in the revised version, he is arrested.

Protestors want the murder deleted from the plot.
Reagan gives veterans seat at Cabinet table

Legislation gives no extra funding or compensation

WASHINGTON (AP) — Saying America's debt to military men and women isn't being paid, President Reagan signed legislation Tuesday giving veterans a Cabinet-level voice for the first time.

"I'm saying to all our veterans what they deserve," said a Cabinet member: Welcome aboard!"

Reagan, the self-proclaimed enemy of an expanding federal government, said he had accepted Cabinet-level status for veterans.

"There were seven of us over there at the White House, and we prepared together to make a case," said a Cabinet member in a telephone interview.

"When he came in, he appeared to have written against some of his advisers, and he said he wanted to do it.

Supporters of the legislation had argued that the Veterans Administration already has the fifth-largest budget among federal agencies and merits being at the same level as other Cabinet departments.

There are some 27 million veterans and 49 million dependents or survivors, although about 2.5 to 3.5 million of them rely on the benefits of government, but that the legislation offers no new compensation or improvements in health care.

An expert in veterans affairs, executive director of the Washington office of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said he was pleased the day — last Nov. 10 — that Reagan signaled he had accepted Cabinet-level status for veterans.

"We had several of us over there at the White House, and we came prepared to make a case," said a Cabinet member in a telephone interview.

"When he came in, he appeared to have written against some of his advisers, and he said he wanted to do it.

Supporters of the legislation had argued that the Veterans Administration already has the fifth-largest budget among federal agencies and merits being at the same level as other Cabinet departments.

There are some 27 million veterans and 49 million dependents or survivors, although about 2.5 to 3.5 million of them rely on the benefits of government, but that the legislation offers no new compensation or improvements in health care.

An expert in veterans affairs, executive director of the Washington office of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, said he was pleased the day — last Nov. 10 — that Reagan signaled he had accepted Cabinet-level status for veterans.

"We had several of us over there at the White House, and we came prepared to make a case," said a Cabinet member in a telephone interview.

"When he came in, he appeared to have written against some of his advisers, and he said he wanted to do it.

Supporters of the legislation had argued that the Veterans Administration already has the fifth-largest budget among federal agencies and merits being at the same level as other Cabinet departments.
Whale rescue now possible with help of Soviet vessels

BARROW, Alaska (AP) — Two Soviet icebreakers drawing near, rescuers Tuesday stepped up efforts to free two whales trapped nearly three weeks in an icy tangle.

A third whale disappeared Friday and is presumed dead.

The international rescue, called Operation Breakthrough, was scheduled for Wednesday with the Soviet vessels, Eskimos with chainsaws and an ice-smashing tractor acting in concert.

Rescuers discovered that a pressure ridge apparently was not anchored to the sea bottom as initially feared.

This will make the icebreaking easier, said Ron Morris, a biologist with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The California gray whales must get through the tangle if they are to reach an open pathway. A pathway is four miles away, but the nearest completely open water is 200 miles away in the Chukchi Sea.

The Admiral Makarov and the ice-breaking cargo ship Vladimir Arseniev were 24 miles northeast of Point Barrow at 8 a.m., said Coast Guard spokesman Ken Freeze in Alameda, Calif.

"They're preparing a helicopter to take a NOAA (National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration) captain, a Coast Guard captain and an interpreter," Freeze said.

Capt. Joseph McClelland Jr., skipper of the Coast Guard icebreaker Polar Sea which is based in Seattle, arrived in Barrow on Monday. He is to act as liaison officer with the Soviets, but will also help guide the Soviets through the shallow water and foot-thick pan ice near Barrow.

McClelland and a NOAA official found what they believed was a penetrable area in the ice and said they were confident the Soviets vessels would be able to clear a path in a matter of hours.

Craig George, a biologist with the National Whaling Commission, said the whales overnight remained well back from a series of new breathing holes that had been cut toward the ice ridge. They appeared to be swimming in the shallow water.

There are about 12 feet of water over the 125-yard-wide shoal, George said. The whales had been in water 17- to 25 feet deep.

Two whales not vital

Species won't be harmed, so why the rescue fervor

The big rescue effort to save two California gray whales won't make a difference to the survival of the species, but it's been a public relations dream for environmentalists trying to rouse the world to save its oceans.

"Only the individual can answer if it's worth it," said Howard I. Braham, director of the National Marine Mammal Laboratory in Seattle, the chief U.S. research center on whales.

"We're dealing with the human spirit. We allow some awfully daunting things to go unchecked and then we reach out to some- thing with a tear in our eye," he said.

The rescue has thrown together an unlikely army of would-be saviors: whale-hunting Eskimos, Greenpeace environmentalists, oil companies, the U.S. and Soviet governments, wildlife experts, animal behavior specialists and chain- saw mechanics. About 40 to 60 reporters kept the world informed of any progress.

The two surviving gray whales imprisoned by the ice are part of an endangered species, meaning they are thought to be in imminent danger of becoming extinct.

But the population of grays is flourishing. There are about 21,000, which is near the historic peak of 25,000 reached when whale hunters slaughtered all but 544-9789

NO MORE All-Newsletters!
Save time and money on your next visual presentation with

Love Letters
Low-cost, high-speed typesetting

Great for:
- Architectural projects
- CRP Presentations
- Graphic Designers
- Signage & Flyers

Typesetting * Camera work * Design + Photography

DON'T PANIC! You can find what you need in Mustang Daily's Classifieds

El Corral Bookstore

12 Wednesday, October 26, 1988 Mustang Daily

Whale rescue now possible with help of Soviet vessels

BARROW, Alaska (AP) — Two Soviet icebreakers drawing near, rescuers Tuesday stepped up efforts to free two whales trapped nearly three weeks in an icy tangle.

A third whale disappeared Friday and is presumed dead.

The international rescue, called Operation Breakthrough, was scheduled for Wednesday with the Soviet vessels, Eskimos with chainsaws and an ice-smashing tractor acting in concert.

Rescuers discovered that a pressure ridge apparently was not anchored to the sea bottom as initially feared.

This will make the icebreaking easier, said Ron Morris, a biologist with the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration.

The California gray whales must get through the tangle if they are to reach an open pathway. A pathway is four miles away, but the nearest completely open water is 200 miles away in the Chukchi Sea.

The Admiral Makarov and the ice-breaking cargo ship Vladimir Arseniev were 24 miles northeast of Point Barrow at 8 a.m., said Coast Guard spokesman Ken Freeze in Alameda, Calif.

"They're preparing a helicopter to take a NOAA (National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration) captain, a Coast Guard captain and an interpreter," Freeze said.

Capt. Joseph McClelland Jr., skipper of the Coast Guard icebreaker Polar Sea which is based in Seattle, arrived in Barrow on Monday. He is to act as liaison officer with the Soviets, but will also help guide the Soviets through the shallow water and foot-thick pan ice near Barrow.

McClelland and a NOAA official found what they believed was a penetrable area in the ice and said they were confident the Soviets vessels would be able to clear a path in a matter of hours.

Craig George, a biologist with the National Whaling Commission, said the whales overnight remained well back from a series of new breathing holes that had been cut toward the ice ridge. They appeared to be swimming in the shallow water.

There are about 12 feet of water over the 125-yard-wide shoal, George said. The whales had been in water 17- to 25 feet deep.

Two whales not vital

Species won't be harmed, so why the rescue fervor

The big rescue effort to save two California gray whales won't make a difference to the survival of the species, but it's been a public relations dream for environmentalists trying to rouse the world to save its oceans.

"Only the individual can answer if it's worth it," said Howard I. Braham, director of the National Marine Mammal Laboratory in Seattle, the chief U.S. research center on whales.

"We're dealing with the human spirit. We allow some awfully daunting things to go unchecked and then we reach out to some- thing with a tear in our eye," he said.

The rescue has thrown together an unlikely army of would-be saviors: whale-hunting Eskimos, Greenpeace environmentalists, oil companies, the U.S. and Soviet governments, wildlife experts, animal behavior specialists and chain- saw mechanics. About 40 to 60 reporters kept the world informed of any progress.

The two surviving gray whales imprisoned by the ice are part of an endangered species, meaning they are thought to be in imminent danger of becoming extinct.

But the population of grays is flourishing. There are about 21,000, which is near the historic peak of 25,000 reached when whale hunters slaughtered all but 544-9789

NO MORE All-Newsletters!
Save time and money on your next visual presentation with

Love Letters
Low-cost, high-speed typesetting

Great for:
- Architectural projects
- CRP Presentations
- Graphic Designers
- Signage & Flyers

Typesetting * Camera work * Design + Photography

DON'T PANIC! You can find what you need in Mustang Daily's Classifieds

El Corral Bookstore