Environmental issues brought to light in UU

By Suzy Wallace

"Come gather 'round people wherever you roam, And admit that the waters around you have grown; And accept it that soon you'll be drenched to the bones; If your time to you is worth seven, then you'd better start swimmin'; Or you'll sink like a stone for the times they are a changin.'"

Chapter president calls ACLU 'conservative'

By Anthony M. Romero

The American Civil Liberties Union is the most conservative organization in the world because it believes in the Bill of Rights, said the president of the San Luis Obispo County ACLU Chapter.

"Conservative as most people perceive it is a false conservatism," said chapter president Hank Alberts. "In that contest it means blind obedience to the flag and patriotism. If you're not loyal, you're not an American. You have to take loyalty tests - that is not conservative - that is a violation of American principles and American law."

Alberts is in reference to attacks on conservative leaders like George Bush, who came to the vigil "because I think that the environmental issues are really important. If people are involved maybe they'll get interested and hopefully take a stand."

Blakely, president of the Environmental Awareness Club when he attended Cal Poly, said, "At this point, I think we're stuck with it, and for one don't want to see a nuclear waste dump in San Luis Obispo County."

On the water issue, Blakely said, "I see a lot of problems with the State Water Project. I want to see the Environmental Impact Report facts presented, that the environment on the water project alone is putting the Board of Supervisor's eggs in one water basket, and that's dangerous."

"It's time for a new direction," he said. "See ACLU, page 5";

County supervisors approve shelter on Kansas Avenue

By Christine C. Temple

The San Luis Obispo County Board of Supervisors conceptual- ly approved a plan to upgrade the Kansas Ave. homeless shelter after it rejected the recently proposed site on Prado Road and South Higuera.

Because of costs, zoning issues and neighborhood opposition, the board has approved the concept of improving the Kansas Ave. site and will present the idea to the San Luis Obispo City Council for final approval Nov. 1.

The Kansas Ave. shelter, a temporary site already accepted by the community, will be modified to include dormitory modules, plumbing modules, lobby modules, furniture and a state unit at a total cost of $337,000 for two separate shelters and $364,000 for a consolidated one.

County staff said the current shelter programs, which house two separate populations of homeless, have encountered continual setbacks which have resulted in the "quick fix" the board approved.

"The People's Shelter, which provides services for women, women with children, families, and employable men, is requesting a permit to operate its program in lease space on Johnson Ave.

The Salvation Army shelter provides overnight shelter to individuals with more serious problems, such as substance abuse and mental illness.

The People's Shelter would like to maintain separate shelters for specialized needs. But if the lease is not accepted by the Planning Commission on Nov. 1, the directors of the People's Shelter may have to house their clients with the Salvation Army clients.

Since July 29, city and county staff members of the Coalition for the Homeless have searched for separate, long-term facilities for the two shelter programs. Countless barriers have made it a constant struggle to find a solution, said County Administrative Analyst Karyne McMurphy.

Costs to build a consolidated shelter on Prado Road have been estimated at $332,000, and two separate shelters on Prado Road would cost around $364,000.

Vandalism reported in lots

Public Safety: All may be work of one

By Bruce Sutherland

Public Safety has been investigating repeated reports of vandalism at cars parked campus over the past two weekends and has come up empty-handed.

Five cars parked in the R-2 parking lot, across from Yosemite dorms, were found Sunday with smashed windows and another car was tampered with, said Sgt. Robert Schumacher.

A couple of the vehicles with broken-out windows had material stolen from them, Schumacher said.

The weekend of Oct. 15, Public Safety received eight more reports of the same type of vandalism in the same lot.

Schumacher said it looks like the same people who did it this weekend, did it the weekend before.

"They have the same modus operandi," he said.

"We don't know who is doing this," at this time, said Schumacher, but he believes they are not Cal Poly students.

"We have not caught any Cal Poly students doing this in recent time," he said.

He believes they are not professional car thieves either because "pros are a bit neater."

Another incident in the R-1 lot, not suspected of being related to the break-ins, was also reported to Public Safety: tires on ten automobiles were slashed in the parking area behind the brick dorms.

Schumacher had no clues as to the perpetrator's identity.
In less than three weeks, voters across the nation will vote for the next president of the United States. In California, voters face the largest balloons in history, with five initiatives alone that directly impact the cost of auto insurance and the workload of the courts.

When you think about the cost of insurance to the insurer and that is why these two initiatives.
Prop. 100 would reward the consumer in the long run.

Prop. 100 would reward the consumer in the long run.

Premiums have increased for a variety of reasons. In the past, sometimes, the cost of new vehicles has nearly doubled, physicians' fees have jumped by 107.6 percent, hospital room rates have increased by 151 percent, and auto replacement parts costs have grown by more than 50 percent.
Consequently, the number of cars on California roads has increased dramatically, bodily injury cases have more than tripled, and the number of victims of alcohol-related accidents has doubled.
The consumer is the one suffering the greatest hit and the insurer and that is why these two initiatives, Prop. 100 and 103, would benefit the consumer
in the long run.

Prop. 100 offers nothing to the consumer and everything to the Trial Lawyers Association. It continues a system that results in 53 cents of every dollar settled in insurance-related cases being paid to the Trial Lawyers Association. It would reward ineffective, irresponsible insurers by allowing them to sell insurance, believing that consumers would feel pressure, real or imagined, to buy insurance from the bank if they felt their loan to be at stake.

Letters to the Editor

GLSU coded—yet unfunded

Editor — Regarding the letter to the editor "Homosexuals should not yet funded" (Oct. 26).

Firstly, the GLSU is a coded group, not a funded group. Coding is a guarantee for GLSU funding. It does not guarantee the coded group fund.

Secondly, your "imperative prayer for those who have voted" should be directed toward the makers of the law. You state that if you will not take God's laws into your own hands. The GLSU will, and is required to, act according to the laws set before it by the state. To state that the GLSU is not meeting the needs of its members, is to neglect to use these words. Lightfoot stated, "I haven't heard of women being attacked due to their unattractiveness." Why beat around the bush? By "attack" is he inferring rape and/or sexual assault?

If so, let me explain one in three women will be raped some time in her life, between the ages of a few months to 97 years old, regardless of her looks.

Rape is a violent crime and sex is the weapon, it is not an act of lust. If one out of three women are raped, then how many men are raping.

Terry, as a man, should consider his risk of being a rapist, whereas we women can learn how to protect ourselves.

In that way we can take care of our ourselves, have less rapiasts and more safety in society. Lightfoot tells women "You aren't being careful" and "You are naief". As a woman who has been

The ACLU receives sexual harassment, unfair treatment in employment situations, prison conditions, overcrowding in prisons, the rights of the homeless and AIDS victims. Often times, they refer some of these grievances to other organizations.

The ACLU involved when civil liberties are concerned and dealing with the Nazis. We hate them.

"In San Luis, we sued the county jail because it was overcrowded," Blank said. "Inmates were sleeping on the floor."

"It isn't in court yet, but we're going to fight for the rights of the homeless from police harassments," he said.

Alberts concurs on the rights issue, "We don't defend a group — we defend the principle," Alberts said. "We're not defending the Nazi's. We hate them.

"We going to fight for the rights of the ACLU receives are sexual derogatory statement, Alberts said. "We're not defending the principle," Alberts said.

"It's crucial to our operation that we receive that money from the ACLU," Alberts said.

Any student can come to the garage to get help from a knowledgeable assistant, Bowman said.

He added they want to "help the students who want to work on their own vehicle and have to work on their own vehicle."

Even if someone has never worked on their car before, Bowman said they can receive step-by-step instruction.

"We show them how to turn the wrench," he said.

This year, Bowman said his goal is to let everyone know there is a garage on campus so they can choose whether they want to do their own car work.

"It's when people don't know the facility is there that the choice is made for them," Bowman said, adding he would like "everybody on campus to make their own decision to use it or not to use it."

The garage gets 19 cars in the facility on a good Saturday, Bowman said.

"We actually do end up turning people away," he said.

The garage, which is open 25 hours a week, is available Thursday through Sunday.

Hobby Garage upgrades facilities

By Brenda Suppanz

The ASI Hobby Garage continues to upgrade its service and popularity among students with the purchase of new equipment.

The garage, a student-run automotive-service facility, is located up the hill from the wash racks, behind the north mountains dorms.

This year, a new vacuum cleaner was purchased for the facility. It's a powerful two-and-a-half horse power, 32-gallon machine which Bowman said has already gotten a lot of use.

Another addition will be a $1,500 alarm system financed by ASI this year. The alarm will protect the investment of more than $10,000 worth of tools the garage has accumulated since its opening in the early 1960s.

At the garage, students, faculty and staff can do their own car repair, including anything from body work, oil changes, to complete overhauls.

Roger Bowman, garage manager, explained that it is a place for students and faculty to come and work on their own cars instead of paying high prices for repairs in town.

"When you consider the cost of car care these days," he said, "it's just an incredible bargain."

The cost to use the tools at the facility is $2 per day, $6 per quarter, and $31 for a nine-month pass.

The garage is financed through user fees along with subsidies from ASI.

ULcer illness disrupts hall

By Bruce Sutherland

A student was taken from the Agriculture Building and to Sierra Vista Medical Center yesterday for abdominal pains.

James Rest, 25, ran from his class, shortly before 2 p.m., and collapsed in the hallway, vomiting blood.

Public Safety Sgt. Robert Schumacher said he believed the student has an ulcer.

At premeium, Rest was in the Intensive Care Unit with abdominal pains, according to Sierra Vista officials.

Clean-up in the hallway took over half an hour because of the special precautions now required for the handling of blood.

"We have to be careful when dealing with bodily fluids," Schumacher said, "there's the possibility of hepatitis or AIDS..."

picture D.K.'s West Indies Bar and Restaurant "with its motif of the animals, signs and paintings on the walls — mixed edibles, cocktails and "colorfully" dressed animals anxious to begin their performance." The dimmed lights of the bar contrasted to the bright lights focused on each separate work space.

At exactly 7 Sunday night, a deep voice punctuated the quiet murmur of the spectators and performers: "Artists may now begin."

Soft music was playing in the background as artists approached their canvases and splashed their first colors upon the stark whiteness of their art paper. The hum of voices slightly increased when people began to talk to each other and artists mumbled to themselves.

This was just the beginning of a night filled with intensity, creativity and art. It was the beginning of Live Art.

ARTernatives, a Central Coast Plaza gallery and Visual Arts Forum, held their third Live Art program in the last eight months to promote contemporary art education in San Luis Obispo.

Twenty artists were invited by ARTernatives to set up and create an artwork in two hours in front of an audience. At 7 p.m., the artists stepped working and their two-hour masterpieces were auctioned to the public.

"Art is strictly a regional thing," said George Noel, an artist and the "Grandfather of Live Art" in the local art world. "Live Art is giving the public a taste of the artist, seeing how it's put together, seeing a process."

LeClair and Williams divided their paper in half and sketched with abstract expression. He put layer upon layer of various color paint on his canvas and spent the last 15 minutes of the two-hour period washing his creation.

"It creates with both emotions and reason," Kip said. "The intensity of painting brings out the emotions, and when I wash off the layers of paint, I am using my reason."

Tim Beckwith, a well-known artist in San Luis Obispo, paints spontaneously. While working, he talks to his creation until it "becomes what it wants to become." His work is an interaction between what is coming out and reacting to what is there, he said.

"I use all types of referential aspects — landscape, figures, geography, music — all sorts of associations go into my world (this creation)," Beckwith said.

Beckwith's creation sold at the auction for $85 (the highest bid of the night) to Stan Carpenter.

Carpenter was invited by an artist friend to watch, and he had no prior plans to participate in the bidding.

"The shapes and colors (of the paintings) appealed to me and caught my eye. It just jumped out at me," Carpenter said. "I'm going to hang it in my store (HIP'S Stationery) downtown."

Live Art seemed to draw spectators of all sorts — college students, other artists, even a video artist from Manhattan.

New Yorker Judy Pokras was vacationing in San Luis Obispo when she saw Live Art advertised in a newspaper. She decided to skip the movie idea and check something different.

"I never expected to find this," she said. "It demystifies art — people can actually see the artists working, and it helps to foster some kind of understanding."

New York is chaotic and a very high stressed place where there is constant noise on the street. Pokras said San Luis Obispo is calmer but still has a lot of culture for its size.

Live Art Coordinator Evan Lupinek, who also performed as an artist, was excited about the evening.

"It brought the spontaneous and creative artists out, and ARTernatives made over $550," Lupinek said.

ARTernatives, a non-profit organization, received all door admissions ($3 members, $5 non-members) and 30 percent of the auction bids (70 percent went to the artist). Lupinek said.

Proceeds from the event go to make other events possible and aid outreach and educational programs ARTernatives sponsors throughout the area.

"It was a success," she said. "And, ARTernatives is planning another Live Art for the spring."

Selections '88 showcases alumni’s graphic designs

Dave Curtis, a 1982 Cal Poly graduate, discusses commercial art during his speech Saturday at the opening of the University Gallery’s alumni exhibit.

The group garnered its name by sheer inspiration. It has nothing to do with the Trees of Mystery, a highway 101 tourist spot five miles north of Klamath, Ca. According to a spokesperson, the attractions are the unusually shaped trees, an Indian museum, and a huge Paul Bunyon statue that talks to you. At least during the summer season.

But their complete-coincidentally named counterparts have been turning heads in San Luis Obispo, with the possibility of bigger and better things. The influences of the Velvet Underdogs, the Thomas Monk and above all, Tom Waits.

“Tom Waits is God,” said J.J. “He is the only person who is always doing something new, expanding, twisting music aside from the lounge lizards... His arrangements are so simple, once you strip them down... it’s what the layers of it that makes it truly stand out.”

While aspiring to the Waits influence, Trees of Mystery want to move on. “We’re very serious about getting the best of San Luis Obispo,” said Paul. Of course, getting out may mean smuggling up with the record industry, but the Trees aren’t afraid.

As they say in unison, “It isn’t show art. It’s show business!”

Put yourself in OUR PLACE ...

...VMX/OPCOM

We are the leader in the voice messaging industry because of our commitment to provide the best in technology, applications and support for our customers.

We’re looking for students with EE or CS degrees to join us in this exciting and rapidly growing industry. We offer you a challenging opportunity to help shape the future.

If you are a student who wants to be part of a winning team, then we invite you to accept our challenge.

Our product is a PBX telephone system enhancement that immediately answers calls and provides messaging functions, database output, volume call distribution and PBX integration. Our development projects involve microprocessor-based subsystems with hard disk storage devices, signal processing technology and sophisticated real-time control software.

Engineering Opportunities Include:
- Software Engineers (real-time control)
- Firmware/Microcode Engineers
- Digital Design Engineers
- Analog/Digital Design Engineers

How can you put yourself in OUR PLACE?
Our hiring managers will be visiting your campus and look forward to meeting you. For further information on VMX/OPCOM, or to schedule an on-campus interview, please visit your placement office.

From page 1 on the Board of Supervisors," he said. "We don't need another Orange County. Let's keep San Luis Obispo the beautiful place it is."

Joe Clokey, a student environmentalist, transformed himself into the popular Captain Ecology and broke with the club's non-partisan stand.

"Environmental interest seems to be peaking right before this election," Clokey said. "Right now politics hold the greatest move we can make for the environment. This isn't always so, but it is right now.

"Look at the last eight years for the environment, they sucked!" Clokey said. "It's time to stop worrying about how objective we are and go with our hearts."

Holly Haverty, a club member, put on a slide show that "raises awareness for things in the Central Coast area from the Nipomo Dunes to trash on campus."

"I want to get people to think about what they're doing and what we can do," Haverty said. "Students for Social Responsibility has been on campus for five years. It tries to promote environmental and political issues from a non-partisan vantage. The club encourages people to get involved and make a difference. In the words of Clokey, "The earth can't take it anymore and neither can we. Have hope for the future."

This is a sign of how well Commonwealth will work for you

And with Commonwealth working with you, you may suddenly see this sign all over town. Because we process mortgages fast.

We work fast. In fact, we're so fast, we've even got a 30-day loan approval guarantee - we approve it in 30 days or the origination fee is free. And, after a home buyer signs our application, we'll lock-in his rate for 60 days at no charge.

We keep you informed. We're also one of the few companies offering computerized tracking. So your Commonwealth loan officer can tell you - at anytime - what stage the approval is in.

Call us - you'll be sold, too. The next time your client needs a mortgage, take a look at the services, the products and the people of Commonwealth Mortgage. You'll be sold, too.

Student body card or evidence of employment with Cal Poly will entitle you to a reduced discount fee, which will enable you to save up front costs.

Students want for bucks

By Sassy Wallace

Start selling

Two Cal Poly engineering students want bucks and awards after a summer of painting.

Brian Coley and Steve Bentley spent the summer working for a CA Painting Student Painters Ltd., an expanding company that is managed by students.

Both worked as branch managers, interviewing about 100 painters and 40 to 50 projects during a recent interview with David Brown, business manager of Southern California.

While Brown said the position is "only a summer job" it is also a highly lucrative one. Coley made $15,000 on $50,000 in sales and Bentley made $9,000 on $40,000 in sales.

At the California Banquet Awards, Coley received the Highest Quality Award and Bentley won the Press Coverage Award.

The Highest Quality Award went to Coley because he never used the complaint and had the highest number of references. Bentley won the Press Coverage award when the Long Beach Press Telegram wrote an article that earned the company the most interest in the area.

The company began in Toronto eight years ago and has hired only students to manage its offices.

The organization has expanded across the country and Canada and continues to prove itself from within.

Brian, "This is right up the entrepreneur's way. You have to be highly self-motivated but you run your own business."

Coley relocated to San Diego to run his office and said, "The hardest thing was getting used to a new environment and keeping up with the physical demands. We worked 60 hours a week and I learned organization and time-management skills fast."

Brown said the company only recruits for the summer but, "we invest $4,000 in promotional material alone for each manager. We take it seriously."

Coley said, "The experience was invaluable. I learned a lot about my strengths and weaknesses, and I want to use my summer experience and apply it to my future.

Both students were referred by Allen Politzky through the Career Center and attended information sessions about Brown's "rigorous" interviewing technique because of the money, but there are a lot of hours and a lot of stress. There are also a lot of rewards."

"I worked a lot on my own and I got a lot of direction as far as my goals," said Coley, "the only thing is to make sure you're making enough money because it is a large demand on your life. I'd really encourage students to get involved."

HAPPY HALLOWEEN

Rubes

Pick your company very carefully. Or you might not like the break-in period.

Companies have personalities, just like people:

- Some are trendy, some are traditional
- Some find strength in established patterns while others like to mix it up with the new and different

But each company expects its employees to fit in with its own particular style and philosophy. Some are a lot more than others.

At Chevron, we feel every employee represents a unique combination of talents and experience. We individualize assignments as much as possible to take advantage of these strengths. We hire and promote from within, providing people they just aren’t. And they fit in, work better.
