Allocation of faculty will be examined

By Craig Andrews

The Cal Poly Provost's Office is currently estimating student enrollment for next year and trying to project faculty allocations to eliminate a backlog of students still needing general education courses.

For the present academic year, the Provost's Office estimates there are about 2,400 students who are still trying to get general education and breadth requirements area A courses. Area A includes composition, critical thinking and two speech courses. All Cal Poly students, regardless of their major, must fulfill area A requirements before receiving a degree. This backlog statistic only refers to the present academic year, said Frank Lebens, director of operations in the Provost's Office.

Lebens said there may still be more than 3,100 students from the 1984-85 academic year who need area A courses. This represents a need for 113 additional class sections.

There may be more than 5,500 students who are waiting for area A courses. These students are the accumulated spillover from the past year and a half. This represents a need for 199 class sections. Lebens said these figures are only rough early estimates.

There may be as little as 3,780 unaccommodated students in area A, he said.

Not all general education distribution areas are in the same impacted condition as area A.

There is no way to arrive at absolutely precise figures, said Lebens. This is partly because it is difficult to determine to what extent transfer students have fulfilled general education requirements.

The Provost's Office will make estimates. See FACULTY, back page.

600,000 have lost touch

Alumni sought in drive

By Craig Andrews

The California State University Alumni Council announced this month a drive to contact 600,000 alumni who have lost touch with their alma maters.

The promotion, intended to involve more graduates in campus events and raise donations, is financed by a $200,000 grant to the CSU system from the Hewlett Foundation of Palo Alto.

Television and radio spots, along with billboards, newspaper advertisements and famous alumni endorsements will help identify and locate former students who are out of contact with their respective See ALUMNI, back page.

Group will look into election procedures

By Craig Andrews

A group to examine election procedures for members of the Cal Poly Foundation Board of Directors was appointed last week by the Academic Senate Executive Committee.

The Foundation is an auxiliary unit to Cal Poly, with a primary role to support the university in special functions. Its business takes many forms, from selling hamburgers to funding agriculture-enterprise projects.

Harvey Greenwald, Cal Poly mathematics professor, took initial concerns about Foundation board elections to the Academic Senate in late January. The Executive Committee agreed Tuesday to appoint four Cal Poly instructors to the special committee.

Candidates to serve on the Foundation board are nominated by a nomination committee consisting of three elected members of the existing board appointed by the chair of the board. There are seven elected directors on the board.

The Foundation bylaws state the seven elected directors shall serve in staggered terms, with two new directors elected each year, except for each third year, when three are elected. "It's actually the Foundation board that does the electing. It elects itself," said Greenwald.

Foundation board election policy is standard for corporations, said Executive Director Al Amaral.

The Foundation is a corporation, Amaral said. The Board of Directors is not a university committee.

"The Board of Directors are the only members of the corporation. We have no stockholders per se," said Amaral. The Foundation does have a trust responsibility for funds received as See ELECTION, back page.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

AIAI

Free marketplace of ideas is necessary

Editor — I was impressed by your coverage of Accuracy in Academia (AIA). I am sure faculty share concerns of students for free exchange of ideas. That's what a university is all about. Any attempt to censor free exchange of ideas and opinions is not only unwise, but a threat to freedom.

Monday I had lunch with professors from Iran, India, England, Haiti and Mexico. Of the people at the table, only one was native born! We talked about Duvalier, Marcos, the Pope, Savimbi, the Ayatollah and the Shah, Khaddafy, terrorism, hunger, communism and American foreign policy. I learned a lot.

In my classes, I have students from mainland China, Taiwan, Japan, Hong Kong, Mexico and the Philippines, as well as native-born students from some of these countries. What do your readers think about the idea of getting faculty from various backgrounds together to discuss mutual concerns? Regardless of the AIA?

Sorry your excellent article did not mention teachers of biology and English as targets of AIA. We are also endangered species!

Judy Carlson, graphic communication, junior

I think it's unfair because some teachers don't have the qualities to be teachers. Some of them fall back. It's sort of like a security blanket for them.

Sandy McCrerry, child and family development, junior

It goes both ways, actually. For a teacher it's good. They get more security. But if they're bad, you get stuck with them for 10 years.

Chris McNairy, agricultural engineering, sophomore

I think the tenure system doesn't take into consideration the quality of teachers. Once they get too old we can't get rid of them. There's got to be checks and balances but once they get their tenure they're safe.

Mylene Brooks, senior, biological chemistry

I think it's a good system — the ones who do are few and far between.

April Kary, junior, home economics

I'm not too sure I like it. It seems like there is a good chance for it to be abused. I don't think students' input is taken into concern at all.

Dining areas are for eating, not studying

Editor — This letter is addressed to those of you who study in our school dining facilities. It's very studious of you to sacrifice lunchtime to prepare for class; however, it is quite inconsiderate of you to sacrifice the space and all eat our lunch. Last week, I went to the Sandwich Plant to have lunch and seven tables were occupied with homework, books, paper, calculators, etc. This cuts down on the number of patrons who would like to use the dining area for eating.

Please, we have a University Union, a library and many other places to study, so use them and allow the rest of us to eat.

I would also like to address the management of the dining facilities to adopt a policy of reserving the tables for those of us who would like to eat. After all, the library has a no eating, drinking or smoking policy.

MATHW WISEBEY

US is as cruel to people as Soviets are

Editor — Why is it that our government is always reminding us that the Soviets are evil and are cruel to their people? The American people are by no means naive enough to believe that the citizens in the U.S.S.R. are treated the same way that those in the U.S. are. We are aware of what is going on over there — a violation of human rights.

But wait! Let us turn our gaze from that distant "Evil Empire" as Reagan so fondly labels it and look at our own country. Do we not have enough problems here to solve without trying to worry about some other country's internal policy? It is very hypocritical to show such concern toward the people there and then to be so apathetic toward the ones who are suffering here.

It is not very humane to rob the old of social security, the sick of medical care and the poor of social problems. (All of which the Reagan Administration is doing.) It is not humane or just to have Caucasian organizations such as AIA which watch and then reprimand those who do not agree with the policies of the government or with the history that is taught to us. Is it not a right for an American to be able to speak his or her mind about dissolution with the government? Is it humane to have such a high rate of unemployment so that some people out of work are actually starving?

How can the government get away with hiding from its own problems by spewing forth redundant rhetoric about the atrocities going on in the Soviet Union? It is time that those who are wearing blinders crafted by the government which point the wearers' heads to the Soviet Union remove them and look around at their own surrounding — not their immediate surrounding but those in other parts of the country. We have been led down a side street to shield us from the ugliness of the bouquet.

George Washington once said: "The nation which indulges toward another habitual hatred becomes a slave. It is a slave to its animosity which is sufficient to lead it astray from its duty and interest." This statement betrays the point I am trying to make — people in glass houses should not throw stones. In other words, the U.S. government had better clean up its own backyard before it points out the dirtiness of another's because the junk in our backyard is beginning to pile up.

Filipino troops shoot at civilians

MANILA, Philippines (AP) — Troops guarding the palace of President Ferdinand E. Marcos opened fire early Tuesday on civilians demonstrating in support of military rebels. Doctors said four people suffered gunshot wounds and others were hurt fleeing.

Three of the gunshot victims were in serious condition, said Dr. Jun Javelosa at the University of the East Memorial Hospital. He said one 25-year-old man was shot in the chest and the others were shot in the thigh.

In addition, three people suffered minor injuries from glass splinters and barbed wire, apparently as they fled the gunfire and hoses turned on them by the loyalist troops.

The shooting at about 1:20 a.m. (12:20 p.m. EST) was the first time troops loyal to Marcos opened fire on civilians since top defense officials began their rebellion Saturday.

US wants to pull back missiles

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Reagan called Monday for eliminating U.S. and Soviet medium-range nuclear missiles in both Europe and Asia "by the end of this decade."

But Reagan said the United States is not ready to consider Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev's proposal for elimination of all nuclear weapons within 15 years.

In a formal response to Gorbachev's most recent arms control plan, Reagan said his negotiators in Geneva on Monday put forward "a concrete plan calling for the elimination of U.S. Pershing II, ground-launched cruise missiles and Soviet SS-20 missiles, not only in Europe but in Asia as well."

The proposal is similar to Reagan's "zero option" plan put forward in 1982.

Dress for success to be taught

By Julie Williams

A fashion show and seminar on the best way to dress for job interviews will be presented by the American Marketing Association this Wednesday in Chumash Auditorium.

"It will be a community service event for both students and a charity," said Kristin Stansbury, director of activities for AMA and one of the coordinators for the event, called Dress for Success.

Speakers for the event include Richard Equinoa from the Placement Center who will give interviewing tips. Marla Peterson, district manager of Clothesline, will talk about what clothes are best to wear for successful dressing and color consultant, Jacquelyn Kiedaisch will give a slide show and discuss which colors are most suitable for different people.

The event will end with a fashion show of volunteer student models from AMA, the business council, Human Resource Management Club and the Sigma Society of Professional Women.

"Last year there were some problems with businesses lending clothes so each model this year will provide his own clothes," said Stansbury.

Models will first dress incorrectly and then go back and correct whatever mistake was made.

"Where else do you get this kind of information except from a book? I think when you see it visually, it's a lot easier to understand," said Stansbury.

Dress for Success will be held Wednesday at 7 p.m. Admission is $2 and tickets will be sold at the University Union Box Office and at the door. All proceeds from the event will go to the American Heart Association.

Stansbury stressed that the seminar is open to all majors and ages. "Freshmen should come too. If you know these things before you buy your first interview outfit, you won't make expensive mistakes."

Tracksters lose to UCSB

By T. Williams

Although the Cal Poly men's track team lost a close meet Saturday to UC Santa Barbara 88-75, the Mustangs still managed to record 37 season bests and 17 lifetime bests.

Mustang coach Tom Hender- son said the meet was "the most exciting and competitive duel meet for the Mustangs in the last five years."

The Mustangs were even with UCSB going into the final event — the mile relay. Dave Johnson led off for the Mustangs and handed the baton to Erik Josephson with the lead. Josephson, running his second 400-meter race of the day, held on to the lead and passed the baton to Craig Griffin, who was passed early by a UCSB team.

However, Griffin caught him at the turn and handed the baton to Richard Batiste running the anchor leg. Batiste ran an exceptional 47.4 leg, but was nipped at the tape by a UCSB runner.

Nonetheless the Mustang time of 3:15.3 was more than three seconds faster than they have run this season.

The Cal Poly women's track team lost to a tough Division I team Saturday at UC Santa Barbara, 99-34.

But coach Lance Harter isn't too concerned with the loss. "This is the last of our low-key, shake-out type meets," he said. "We have two weeks of shake-out type meet up and despite the setbacks due to the weather, our performances Saturday were exceptional."

The Mustangs recorded 12 lifetime bests, 10 national qualifying marks and set two new school records.

Celeste Paquette, a freshman, broke the old school discus record of 151', set by Colleen Cam in 1984, with a high of 154'2".

Sharon Hanson ran a 60.7 in the 400-meter low hurdles, which broke the old Cal Poly record set by Laura Held in 1982. Laurie Hagan ran a 61.6 which also broke the old Mustang record.

Felicia Saville won the 200 meters in 25.3 and was also part of the 400-meter relay team that won in a time of 47.4.

Patrice Carpenter won the 400 meters in 55.6, which was a personal best and good enough to qualify her for nationals, and she was also part of the 400-meter relay team.

In addition to winning the discus, Paquette won the shot put with a put of 42'7¾", also a personal best.

Danielle Sharkey won the long jump with a mark of 17'9½" and the triple jump with a jump of 37'2½".

Friday night at the Los Angeles Indoor Games, before the UCSB meet, Hanson ran an 8.06 in the 60-yard high hurdles, which was good enough to earn her fifth place.

This week the Mustangs have an invitational to attend. Saturday the tracksters will travel to San Diego for the Aztec Classic track meet.

Women hoopsters face Pomona

By Chris Counts

By Tim Robinson

By Hugh Bream

The Cal Poly women’s basketball team has its hands full tonight. It is the first time it is defending Division II national champion Cal Poly Pomona, but assistant coach Jill Orrock is un- daunted.

"We can be had," Orrock said. "We’re excited."

Pomona defeated Cal Poly 73-61 early in the season, with a record of 11-0 in conference play, in first place in the California Collegiate Athletic Association.

"We gave them a run for their money the first time we played and that was in Pomona," Orrock said. "We’re just hoping we can beat them tonight and not have to face them in the first round of the playoffs."

Regardless of the outcome tonight, Orrock is still confident the Mustangs can beat the defending national champions.

"If we can beat them, and we are confident that we can, then we will clinch third place in the conference," Orrock said. "Regardless of the outcome, though, we’ll play them again in the playoffs and that’s a charm."

"To reach the conference playoffs, Cal Poly had to win both its games this past weekend. On Thursday night, the Mustangs, 7-4 in league play, coasted to an easy 71-53 victory over Cal State Dominguez Hills. Cal Poly, however, was looking ahead to the Saturday game against UC Riverside."

"We knew Saturday’s game would be tough," Orrock said. "We were definitely thinking about UC Riverside on Thursday."

"In the first half of the game against UC Riverside, it looked that they’re still an extremely strong team, but it’s important to remember that we’ve been playing some of the best Division I teams in the country," said Hugh Bream, coach of the team.

"I’m very happy with where we are at this point in the season. I am very confident that we’ll play a very strong match against Chapman, and I’m predicting it will go 5-4 one way or the other," said Bream.

Bream added that with Paul Landry and Bob Zoller, who are seeded number-one and number-two respectively, the Mustangs have as strong of a one-two punch as they have ever had in

It amounted to little more than a tune-up for the Cal Poly men’s tennis team.

The Mustangs gained their first victory of the season at the expense of Cal Poly Pomona and used the match for preparation for the nation’s number one-rated Chapman College on Saturday.

Thursday in the season, and with a record of 8-1, and despite the Mustangs’ 0-4 start, they served notice to their conference and division foes that they will be a force to reckon with.

"It’s a good indication of the quality of Division II team we are," for people to hang in when a team starts out 0-4.

"It is, however, the Chapman match that will be the true test, and Bream believes it will probably be a two-team race for the conference crown.

"We were definitely thinking about UC Riverside."

"In the first half of the game against UC Riverside, it looked as though the Mustangs’ playoff hopes were fading. Going into the second half, Cal Poly was down by six points. But the Mustangs’ confidence came back strong in the second half, easily defeating UC Riverside 79-66."
BThom Daeves leads members of the Men's Chorus during their performance Sunday in the Cal Poly Theatre.

MBA PROGRAMS AT SANTA CLARA
FEBRUARY 26-UNIVERSITY UNION

A member of the admissions office from Santa Clara University will be in the U.L. February 26, 1966 from 11:00 A.M. to 1:30 P.M. to speak with students interested in obtaining a general MBA or an MBA in Agribusiness.

MBA Programs at Santa Clara have high standards for admission, a strong curriculum and a distinguished faculty. The programs are accredited by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business (AACSB). Classes are offered in the late afternoon and evening for the full-time or part-time student.

Santa Clara University is located near San Jose in the "Silicon Valley", the leading center for high technology and business innovation.

Gibson and Washington Redshins general manager Bob O'Connell said last year alumni donated $120,000 and parents of alumni contributed approximately the same amount to Cal Poly. There are about 10,000 alumni and 15,000 parents of alumni who have donated money, said Stanley Halpern, director of Cal Poly Annual Giving. Parents give more money because they have more, he said.

Three-fourths of Cal Poly alumni are younger than 35. Fifty percent are under 30.

"Up until the mid-70s we were a small agriculture school. The student body was under 5,000," Halpern said. This accounts for having so many young alumni. This fiscal year, $117,000 has already been raised, said Halpern. He expects to end the year receiving more than $200,000.

"The alumni group is donating with more and more regularity. They're getting older and more in a position to donate," he said.

"We have another problem — selling an alum to donate when his kid can't get into Poly but can go to Berkeley."
