Public Safety works to stem the tide of drugs

Has alliance with local task force

By Terry Lightfoot

Public Safety is a visible entity on the Cal Poly campus. What isn't so obvious is its alliance with the Narcotics Task Force.

Investigator Ray Berrett of Public Safety said the task force and campus police have worked together for quite a while in an effort to "stem the tide of narcotics on campus."

The Narcotics Task Force is a county organization that is supervised by the California Department of Justice. It was formed in October 1981 to help coordinate county drug enforcement efforts.

The task force is made up of detectives from San Luis Obispo, Atascadero, Arroyo Grande and Paso Robles, along with two sheriff's deputies and two investigators from the District Attorney's office.

Special agent Jim Christian, coordinator of the task force, said that 195 narcotics-related arrests were made in San Luis Obispo county, last year, slightly up from the year before, and more than $20 million in drugs were confiscated along with $600,000 in assets and proceeds from drug deals.

The concerted efforts of Public Safety and the task force resulted in the recent arrest of William Clifford Kamphaus, a Cal Poly graduate student, for the sale and possession of $1,400 worth of marijuana, which is a felony.

Kamphaus was targeted when an anonymous call came to Public Safety early in January about someone selling drugs in Killian Hall. Kamphaus was approached by a task force undercover agent and a deal was set up for a drug sale on Jan. 20, at which time Kamphaus was arrested. He has since been released on bail.

Despite this recent arrest, Berrett said there weren't many arrests made on campus last year.

"Due to the small department, there are no undercover officers that are required to handle a covert operation," Berrett said.

But the use of drugs at Cal Poly has increased, Berrett said. "We don't know if it is because of awareness or what, but we do seem to be getting more reports about drugs," Berrett said. "The problem at Cal Poly is just as much a problem anywhere else."

The liaison between the Narcotics Task Force and Public Safety will continue, Berrett said: "We will be using all the tools available to get at the problem of drugs on campus."

Travel Center offers student guide training

By Lisa Parsons

For students who dream of leading a band of travelers across French countryside, through Hawaiian wilderness or on a tour of a famous American city, the ASI Travel Center offers information and training opportunities.

The travel center, which operates out of the Student Union Plaza, helps students get international student I.D. cards and youth hostel passes. The center also organizes trips and trains students to lead trips.

Dave Havemann, a student leader who planned a bicycling tour of Loire Valley in France, said, "I wanted to take some people to Europe because the two times I went, I found it was impossible to explain about the trip."

Havemann said, "No matter how many pictures you take or how much you tell someone about it, they'll never get the feel of it unless they go."

Travel Center can help you plan a trip across France or a "functional" bicycling tour of Loire Valley. For more information, contact the Travel Center.

Public Safety works to stem the tide of drugs

By Steve Harmon

An uncontrollable cough triggered by laughter caused a crash Tuesday in front of Footlockers, which destroyed the car driven by a former Cal Poly professor.

Robert Andreini, a former speech professor who retired last fall, said he is just getting over the flu that hit the campus recently. And once he started coughing, last week, he couldn't stop.

He was traveling at approximately 25 mph on Foothill Boulevard toward Cal Poly with his wife, Viola, when she told him a joke that started him laughing, then coughing.

The car swerved from the roadway, hit a parking sign and a 25-foot tree. He and his wife were unhurt.

Andreini said, "Seatbelts! Buddy, seatbelts..." were the last words he and his wife were able to say.

"No 'get well' cards are needed," Andreini said. "We're fine; we're damn lucky."

He said Cal Poly students from nearby apartment complexes were very helpful after the crash.

Dr. James Nash, Cal Poly Health Center director, said the flu outbreak is one of the largest epidemics he's seen in a number of years.

"It seems to be hitting the entire county and state," Nash said. "We've had so few students drop out of classes and a few drop out of the quarter."

Of the 300 people that visit the Health Center each day, he said, two-thirds are for the flu.

"We've had people sick for five weeks," Nash said. "Symptoms include headaches, fatigue, muscle aches, congestion and a persistent cough. Nash said. And treatment seemed to involve the Society must be brother's keeper

In American society the rights of the individual are so ingrained that they have become sacrosanct. Individual rights are one of America's greatest blessings. But individual rights to the fullest is anarchy. It's a small world and we need understandings and respect for each other; which is impossible unless we all respect each other. People of differing views are coming from presuppositions. If our presuppositions are based on democratic beliefs, we will have no problem with, then obviously our conclusion will show that we are legal for such authorities to conjoin that person against his or her will. (I have been witness to such situations).

Another example is the use of illicit drugs that destroy bodies and minds. Civil authorities go to great lengths to eradicate this type of self-destructive behavior. Even though, it can be claimed that drug intake affects the user on one does it only affects the user. Or must not society also bear the negative external effects and costs? A person's right to do with their body "whatever they decide it may be" is challenged by others. Especially if this is being done with the motive of love and concern. After all, shouldn't we sometimes be more one another's keepers?

In American society the rights of the individual are so ingrained that they have become sacrosanct. Individual rights are one of America's greatest blessings. But individual rights to the fullest is anarchy. It's a small world and we need understandings and respect for each other; which is impossible unless we all respect each other. People of differing views are coming from presuppositions. If our presuppositions are based on democratic beliefs, we will have no problem with, then obviously our conclusion will show that we are legal for such authorities to conjoin that person against his or her will. (I have been witness to such situations).

Another example is the use of illicit drugs that destroy bodies and minds. Civil authorities go to great lengths to eradicate this type of self-destructive behavior. Even though, it can be claimed that drug intake affects the user on one does it only affects the user. Or must not society also bear the negative external effects and costs? A person's right to do with their body "whatever they decide it may be" is challenged by others. Especially if this is being done with the motive of love and concern. After all, shouldn't we sometimes be more one another's keepers?

In American society the rights of the individual are so ingrained that they have become sacrosanct. Individual rights are one of America's greatest blessings. But individual rights to the fullest is anarchy. It's a small world and we need understandings and respect for each other; which is impossible unless we all respect each other. People of differing views are coming from presuppositions. If our presuppositions are based on democratic beliefs, we will have no problem with, then obviously our conclusion will show that we are legal for such authorities to conjoin that person against his or her will. (I have been witness to such situations).

Another example is the use of illicit drugs that destroy bodies and minds. Civil authorities go to great lengths to eradicate this type of self-destructive behavior. Even though, it can be claimed that drug intake affects the user on one does it only affects the user. Or must not society also bear the negative external effects and costs? A person's right to do with their body "whatever they decide it may be" is challenged by others. Especially if this is being done with the motive of love and concern. After all, shouldn't we sometimes be more one another's keepers?
Commentary

Life on Planet Earth
By Michael Warriner

In its Jan. 2 issue, Time magazine named the "Enlightened Earthman" as "Planet of the Year" in a departure from its traditional "Person of the Year"-contention to the rash of environmental disasters that topped the news in 1988. In doing so, Time has taken an outcome of its position to create national awareness with its plea to save the planet. At an environmental conference it sponsored in November, experts from around the world discussed the threats and recommended solutions to mankind.

It is not an easy task to band nations and people together for such a purpose. Politically, the international cooperation needed for the task seems almost impossible. The earth has already become an interdependent entity, which makes it impossible for mankind to be environmentally minded, and have tried to address my attitude to my surroundings with that in mind. Upon reading the Time articles, I began to question my own intent on environmental issues. I realized that not only have our leaders been avoiding these "politically sensitive" issues, but that ignorance and the one-person world view can no longer continue.

It is not enough to say, "I am aware of the situation." If mankind is to survive, we must do so as a whole race. If one nation cuts back on garbage production, and another continues to dump toxic waste, there is no benefit. This must become a worldwide effort and every nation must have an active part.

Most of the solutions are aimed at the pocketbook of the consumer. We have a responsibility to the environment and to speak of far-reaching natural disasters, which could occur in 20 to 100 years from now. As a whole we must start conserving, creating a national awareness with its plea to save the planet.

Honorablesirs:

Shalom averachot Peace and blessings, I am writing in regard to a concerned Zionists, American and Jew. I would like to urge all of you to advocate just and viable peace settlement between the State of Israel and the Palestinian people. Aware of the history of the Middle East conflict between Israel and her Arab neighbors, I accept the fact that we as a State of Israel was created in 1948, the Palestinian refugee problem was created not by Israel but by the surrounding Arab nations. They refused to absorb the displaced population, making the Arab residents of Palestine into international refugees in a high stakes chess match. For this reality, I suspect that the Palestinian's heartache has been at least as much for resentments for those who fled from the่อ of the Jews as for their own suffering. History also tells us that problems are created by either side, and that the Liberation Organization, created in 1965, two years before Israel occupied the West Bank and Gaza, had as its original intent the creation of a Jewish state within the unoccupied territories of Israel and Jordan in order to create a viable, independent Palestinian State.

The March 1988 "Time" article "Mutual Stereotypes" also mentioned the growing gap between the two nations which should affect even the most staunch environmentalists. None of the problems are minor and none of the solutions are easy. Desperate times call for desperate measures. As a whole we must start the battle here on this campus. We are the future leaders and we must lead the fight to save planet Earth.

Time has taken an outspoken position to create national awareness with its plea to save the planet.

In the interest of peace, I must urge you to take a moment to try to see the situation from the eyes of another Jew and another Arab. I am writing to you as a member of the American Jewish Committee. As a Jew I am flattered that the commitment to the Pax Israel is an organization within the Peace in the Middle East. I am confident that any one of you, as a Jew, would like to see the following steps taken. The Palestinian people. The reality is that the Palestinian people do exist as a national entity in 1989 even if their nationalism is new founded. As a Jew I am flattered that the Palestinian national movement has copied the Zionist movement of Weizmann and Ben Gurion. How similar the Palestinians are to the Jews! Both people are a diaspora with a highly successful, affluent exile community. Like Jews in America, Palestinians have risen to prominence in the legal, medical and education professions, among others. Like Jews throughout the Middle East, many Palestinians have achieved prominence in the legal, medical and education professions.

Time magazine named the "Enlightened Earthman" as "Planet of the Year" in a departure from its traditional "Person of the Year"-contention to the rash of environmental disasters that topped the news in 1988. In doing so, Time has taken an outcome of its position to create national awareness with its plea to save the planet. At an environmental conference it sponsored in November, experts from around the world discussed the threats and recommended solutions to mankind.

Israel must no longer rely on force to govern Palestinians

By Harry Manhoff

The issue that dominates any discussion on peace in the Middle East is the Israeli-Palestinian dispute. Both sides claim the area of their ownership. Arafat's rightists inhabitants are, both sides are there to stay. No actions on their part will forcefully set the other out. By the same token, the mode to find a solution has been violence. Each side has used the methods of violence most accessible to them. Whether civilians are killed by an Israeli fighter, or a guerrilla, or a soldier, they are still dead. Israelis should not wish to condemn the use of terrorism, as they have used others. Israel's recent treatment of the Palestinians and Brit­ish while fighting for an independent Jewish state. By the way, this is not new. The debate of the death of individuals is ongoing.

The eye-for-an-eye game has been played out i...
Jacksonville, N.C. (AP) — A friend of a Marine who died when his unit was left behind in California's Mojave desert after a train exercise testified Monday he had asked about his friend's whereabouts a day before he was reported missing.

"Everybody was like spazzing" when they realized Lance Cpl. Jason Rother was not at the camp, Lance Cpl. Kevin Robertson said at the special court martial of Rother's platoon sergeant. "They didn't know where he was, and it was total confusion."

Sgt. Christopher Clyde is charged with dereliction of duty and disobeying an order. Rother, 19, of Minneapolis, died when he was left at his post as a road guide, after a training exercise Aug. 30. He was not reported missing until nearly two days later and his remains were not found until Dec. 4.

A hearing is scheduled Tuesday for 1st Lt. Allen Lawton, who also is charged with dereliction of duty. His general court martial is expected to start Feb. 7. A third Marine, Sgt. Thomas Turnell, faces a special court martial Thursday.

Turnell was Rother's squad leader. Lawton was in charge of placing road guides on the evening of Aug. 30 at the Marine base at Twentynine Palms, Calif.

During the military exercise "Rother wasn't making it. He fell behind. He was suffering bad back pain and becoming a heat casualty," Robertson testified.

He said Clyde told him the night of Aug. 30 he had placed Rother on an easy work detail, an apparent reference to the road guide assignment, in which he was supposed to march through the desert. He was not called up when the exercise was over.

Flag lowered as U.S. staff departs embassy in Kabul

KABUL, Afghanistan (AP) — Marine guards lowered the flag for the last time Monday and the U.S. Embassy staff prepared to depart before the Red Army leaves Kabul's fate to Afghan soldiers and Moslem guerrillas who wait in the hills.

"As we say goodbye, we say, "God bless the United States,"" said Charge d'Affaires John D. Glauman, the ranking American diplomat still in Kabul, at the solemn ceremony.

"Today we leave at a moment that is both happy and sad, pleased that the people of Afghanistan are going to be relieved of their suffering, but we know their struggle is not over."

"The people of the United States are with them," Glauman said, raising the folded flag above his head in a salute. "We will be back when the conflict is over."

Marine guards brought down the Stars and Stripes, gently folded the flag and handed it to Glauman, who walked to a small slab of marble on the other side of the compound that honors Adolph Dubs, the former U.S. ambassador.

Dubs was kidnapped, then killed along with his abductors when soldiers tried to rescue him Feb. 14, 1979. U.S. officials still do not know the motive.

Soviet soldiers entered Afghanistan's civil war nine years ago and are to be gone by Feb. 15 under a U.N.-mediated agreement. Moslem insurgents, who get most of their support from the United States and Pakistan, were not parties to the agreement and predict victory soon after the Red army is gone.

Yuri Maslyukov, Soviet deputy premier, arrived to meet with Najib just after Soviet Defense Minister Dmitry Yazov ended a three-day visit to Kabul. A Western diplomat in Islamabad, Pakistan, said the visits were meant to "boost the sagging morale of the communist government."

Embassy officials would not say when the American staff of two diplomats, four Marine guards and five others would leave on a chartered flight to New Delhi, India. The Kabul airport was closed Monday by a three-inch snowfall.

The State Department said last week the embassy would be closed because of fears that Afghanistan's conscript army could not protect foreign diplomats. All foreign missions in Afghanistan, all missionaries.

West Germany was the first country to withdraw its diplomats. After the U.S. closure was announced, Britain, France, Japan and Austria followed suit.

The Soviet Embassy has said it will continue operating after the military withdrawal, but with a greatly reduced staff. Some of the Kremlin's East European allies have indicated they may leave.

Najib's government accused the United States of closing the embassy as a means of inciting the guerrillas to more intense warfare after the Red Army departs.

Moslem guerrillas began fighting after a communist coup in April 1978. Soviet soldiers arrived in December 1979 and totaled an estimated 115,000 when the withdrawal began May 15. Half were gone by Aug. 15.

Although the most leave until Feb. 15 to leave, the final Soviet convoy is expected to head north later this week on the Salang Highway, the 250-mile route through the rugged Hindu Kush mountain range to the Soviet border.
Swimmers trounce Fresno

By Tom Viskocil

The Cal Poly men's and women's swimming teams lost a hard-fought match to the 4th-ranked Cal Berkeley Bears in the MACS pool on Saturday.

After falling behind early two games to none, the Mustangs turned the tables and won two games to none, the Mustangs added that the majority of the players on the team have played volleyball for five years — most of them longer. Currently, the Mustangs have five returning players and seven new players.

The Mustangs are coached by two-time All-American Mike Fitzgerald. "He's done a great job of coaching our team at Cal Poly," Danninger said.

The Mustangs started the season with wins over Sonoma State, University of Pacific, and UC Santa Cruz. Currently Cal Poly is competing in the Northern California Collegiate Volleyball League with UC Santa Cruz, Cal Berkeley, Fresno State, and University of Santa Clara.

Danninger said the two toughest teams in the league appear to be Cal Berkeley and Fresno State.

With the loss to Cal Berkeley, the Mustangs move to 1-1 in league and 3-1 overall.

Men’s volleyball club split weekend matches

By Anthony M. Romero

The Cal Poly men's volleyball club split weekend matches last Friday. The Mustangs started the season with wins over Sonoma State and Mankato State 13-2. Gabe Cortina finished fifth, with a forfeit over Wyoming's Eric Voloshin to round out Poly's placewinners.

The Mustangs return home this week to wrestle Stanford and San Francisco State Friday night at 6 p.m. The Mustang's dual meet record is 5-7 and can reach the .500 mark with victories Friday and Saturday.
Sports

Poly reaches goal in meet

By Anthony M. Romero

The Cal Poly women's gymnastics team finished third in a tri-meet Saturday at San Jose State, but they realized a team goal as they topped the 176-point prediction head coach Tim Rivera set out for them.

"Last week we set out to score 176 points," Rivera said, "and we ended up scoring five points over our season high."

Oregon State won the meet with a whopping 188.35, which Rivera said is the highest score of any college team this year.

San Jose State narrowly edged out the Mustangs scoring 178.65. "Oregon State is the big time," Rivera said.

The Mustangs were led in the all-around by Marci Lacert and Kim Wells, who scored season highs with scores of 35.05 and 34.8. Elise Anderson scored an all-time personal best in the floor exercise at 9.15.

"Kim (Wells) is back in all-American form right now," Rivera said. "She'll compete in the all-around from here on out."

The Mustangs were led in the balance beam by Amy Reardon, fifth, and Karen Travis and Wells who tied for sixth with a score of 9.2. Minie Phrase competed for the first time since Jan. 14 on the vault, and had enough form to earn a 9.0 to tie for seventh place with teammate Theresa Bell. Mary Kay Humble fell one place behind them as she scored an 8.95 to finish eighth.

Lacert added a season high in the bars to go with her performance that earned her a 9.0. Julie Bolen scored an 8.95 to finish right behind her.

"With the confidence we got on Saturday, we're ready for the top Division II teams," Rivera said. "Our score was the third highest score in the Division II rankings."

The Mustangs will get that chance against a Division II team this Thursday when they travel to take on the number-one ranked Seattle-Pacific squad. The team will take on the Univ. of Anchorage on Saturday.

SWIMMERS

From page 5

Roland Firman said was a very difficult performance.

"To be able to do that almost back to back with just that little break in between, that's a tough double. One of the toughest doubles in the meet," Firman said.

The women jumped out to a fast start taking a 49-25 lead after the first four events and then held on as Fresno State made a late rush winning the last three out of five events. But the depth of the Mustangs prevailed as the Bulldogs could not get closer than 19 points.

Poly was led by freshman Amy Johnson who won both the 100-yard breaststroke and 100-yard butterfly. Other winners included Tania Ziegert in the 1,650-yard freestyle and Liz Scheetz in the 50-yard freestyle and Liz Schertz in the 50-yard freestyle.

Even though the women lost some events toward the end of the meet, Coach Firman was quite pleased with the way things went.

The Mustangs will be hosting their last home meet this Friday at 3 p.m. against UC Davis.

Special "HEART FRAME"

up to 5 words boldface

Only $5

Write your ad copy here

NAME: ____________________
CAMPUS CLUB ASI ACCT. #: ____________________
PHONE: ____________________

ADS MUST BE TURNED IN BY TUESDAY, FEB 7 BY NOON!

AD RATES

REGULAR: $1.10 PER LINE

*14 POINT LETTERING: $2.20 PER LINE

24 POINT: $4.40 PER LINE

*BOLDFACE: EXTRA $1.00

(# OF LINES) (SPER LINE) (EXTRA CHARGE) (TOTAL DUE)

CHECKS ONLY PLEASE-PAYABLE TO MUSTANG DAILY
TRAVEL

From page 1

"Miami Vice" actor nabbed burglar

LOS ANGELES (AP) — In true "Miami Vice" fashion, actor Don Johnson showed up as an intruder in a hotel room as the alleged burglar would-be thief rifled through the purse of his fiancee and new wife Melanie Griffith, police said.

Johnson, 39, who portrays a hard-nosed but flashily dressed department and the Constitution and see the actual pieces of paper they won on," he said.

He planned the trip using information from files in the travel center and publications from the Smithsonian Institution. The cost of the Washington trip is $354.

Most student leaders get their travel information from research.

Sara Schwendt decided to lead a bike trip to Kauai and a week of bicycling on the island of Oahu.

"One of the lava flows is 4,000 feet down, so we're renting a car because no one will want to come right back up," she said.

The approximate cost for the trip is $700.

The qualifications for leading a group are simple, said William Havemann, assistant director for student services.

"Ideally, they need enthusiasm, time and to be good with groups," said Crew.

He said research is one of the key elements for getting information on a trip. An earlier visit to a location isn't necessary to lead a group.

Prospective student leaders must design trips and implement trips. He said students go through a screening process, but basically the screening process, but basically it's more "hand-holding" than screening.

The ASI Travel Center is also sponsoring a weekend trip to Catalina at a cost of about $78 per person.

"If they don't know one," he said, "it's a great time to learn because you get immersed in the language they learn in school."

The 12-day trip begins Sept. 1. The $294 cost includes airfare, the train ride to and from Paris and other activities on the Eurotunnel.

European excursions are not the only trips planned by students, however.

Paul Avelinger, Poly student, Roger Bowman, is leading a trip for ASI to Hamburg, Germany.

Bowman scheduled the itinerary of his Washington trip on places he wants to visit, such as the Smithsonian Institute and the Library of Congress.

"I want to look at the documents like the Declaration of In-
PHOENIX (AP) — Arizona’s relatively light funding for shelters and mental-health care has forced the homeless here to live in conditions which rival those of India for squatters, officials of the Roman Catholic Phoenix Diocese said Monday.

“The work is to be done among those with chronic mental health problems, AIDS victims, and the homeless in general,” said the Rev. Dale Fushek, the diocesan vicar for worship. “(It the visit) was mostly due to perseverance on the part of Bishop (Thomas J.) O’Brien and his concern for the poor.

The recipient of the 1979 Nobel Peace Prize, Mother Teresa was to fly from Tijuana, Mexico, to San Francisco on Tuesday and then to Phoenix early Wednesday, he said.

During a two-day visit, the 78-year-old “living saint” will preside over the opening of the 16th U.S. foundation of her Missionaries of Charity in Calcutta, India. The order has grown to include 3,000 nuns in 40 countries, operating about 450 foundations.

Four men — two from India, one from Bangladesh, and one from France — will operate the foundation here, said Mirel Parker, executive director of an affiliated organization, Co-Workers of Mother Teresa.

The foundation is a three-story former residence close to downtown and to the Catholic-run St. Vincent de Paul Society dining and the Central Arizona Shelter.

It has been stripped of all signs of worldly wealth, Mrs. Parker said.

The living room will be turned into a chapel, she said. The only other non-bedrooms are the kitchen and a small room which will be used as a greeting area, Mrs. Parker said.

14 shots kill man pointing toy gun

GARDEN GROVE, Calif. (AP) — A man who allegedly pointed a toy gun at two police officers on Sunday was killed in a fusillade of gunfire, police said.

The two officers fired 14 shots at Dennis Gonzales, 20, who died after allegedly coming to the door of a friend’s home early Sunday, pointing a plastic pistol, police said.

The unidentified officers were questioning Gonzales’ girlfriend, Paige Richelieu, who had summoned them, saying Gonzales was holding a plastic gun.

“Keep on yelling at them to stop,” Ms. Richelieu said. “Don’t let him be holding a plastic gun.”

Police Chief John Robertson defended the actions of his officers, whom he declined to identify, saying they were well-trained and believed their lives were in danger. He said one officer fired eight shots, the other, six.

But he refused to say how many times the man fired.

The Orange County District Attorney’s Office was in frankness the shooting. Ms. Richelieu placed a 911 call shortly after midnights to report that Gonzales was beating her.

But when police arrived, Gonzales was gone, police said.

The third Annual Campus Store TREASURE HUNT IS ON!

Win a $100.00 Certificate

The campus Store is open until 10:00pm 7 days a week

SPECIAL PURCHASE OF

POP/ROCK/JAZZ & FOLK CLASSICS

AVAILABLE FOR A LIMITED TIME
SHOP EARLY FOR BEST SELECTION
AFFORDABLE PRICES