Panel to study SUPA wage increase issue
Talks over salaries at a standstill
By Jeff Brunnings
Staff Writer

Negotiations are deadlocked between the California Polytechnic State University Association (SUPA) and the California State University Employee Relations. Any system over wage increases and acquisitions has been formed to review the issues.

During the first day of mediation on Jan. 31, 1989, the SUPA made a salary proposal that provided for 17 percent and 19 percent pay raises over the next 21 months and included an immediate raise of 4 percent upon ratification of the contract by both parties.

SUPA declined the proposal.

"They've gone to impasse mediations," said Bob Negran­ti, staff personnel officer at Cal Poly. "They've talked with the Employer-Employee Relations Act, the impasse procedures require that both parties to utilize mediators in the negotiations. The mediators, however, could not settle the dispute and the fact-finding panel was organized and will report to the CSU Board of Trustees. The hearing is expected to be held in May.

Employees affected by the proposal include public safety officers, investigators and supervising officers who fall under the Unit 8 bargaining unit of SUPA. There are about 10 officers at Cal Poly within this unit, Negrant said.

The personnel under Unit 8 have not received salary increases since July 1986. They were not included when the last group of staff employees received a salary hike 16 months ago. Representatives of the parties met again last month but could not reach an agreement.

Under current guidelines, employees can receive wage increases on an annual basis. At the end of a year's period, each employee's performance is reviewed and if found sufficient will allow them to go on to a higher step which brings an increase in wages. The change in salary is known as the merit salary adjustment (MSA) and it is a "focus of debate on the bargaining table."

"Ratification of the CSU proposal may deny employees any MSA for a period of one year after acceptance of the proposal. The union representing SUPA has taken an opinion that may nullify the MSA denial, but the union declined the offer, said Samuel A. Supracta, CSU negotiation chief."

"The union has been unwilling to meet on a frequent basis and has cancelled meetings," and it seems to be an endless process of the negotiations, Supracta said.

The proposal also includes benefit enhancements for employees including health and dental care coverage. It does not include however SUPA's desire for contract language that would guarantee the tape recording of grievances meetings at all levels of the grievance procedure, union See SUPA, page 8

Abortion protest held in Union by six YAFers
By Ron Espojo
Staff Writer

Students passing through the University Union during activity hour yesterday saw a group of students playing music, but also an anti-abortion demonstration.

Six protesters from the Young Americans for Freedom set up next to the Burger Bar and carried placards saying, "Why has child abuse increased 500 percent since 1973?" and "Abortion Today, Euthanasia Tomorrow."

"The woman has already made it her choice to have sex, we have to accept the consequences, positive or negative," said Paul Fanni, organizer of the protest.

Several heated arguments ensued between passersby and protesters. People in the crowd included students who had noticed the protest and detractors who had not. "It's people like you who take away people's liberties," said freshman Jennifer Hanes, 50 percent of the time.

Members of the club were all wearing blue t-shirts that had Patrick Henry's "Give Me Liberty or give Me Death," a quote made famous by Patrick Henry.

Kennedy's budget cuts new book orders, 200 periodicals
By Christine J. Pocan
Staff Writer

Available money for new periodicals is disappearing rapidly from the Kennedy Library funds. According to library officials, 245 new periodicals were added to the library's 3,500 periodical subscription list last year. Over the last two years the library has been unable to respond to more than 100 requests for new subscriptions. "It's a problem that doesn't have any immediate solutions," said Gordon Smith, assistant director of the CSU Library Affairs. "Over the next few years libraries are going to have to make some tough adjustments."

Smith said most of the library's acquisitions are in periodicals and specialized collections.

"It doubtless has a chilling effect on faculty research and their instruction to students when we are unable to respond to requests," said Smith.

The reduction in periodicals is due to a sluggish increase of less than 1 percent in the acquisitions budget as compared to the 9 percent increase in the cost of periodicals. The extra money could keep up with inflation as compared to the $3,230 titles subscribed to in 1986. The serial budget accommodates for a 1 percent increase, according to David Welch, dean of Library Services.

The library acquisitions budget of $1,214,018 for 1988-89 was only a half of a percent raise from last year's budget of $1,207,838. An additional $48,000 increment was allotted to the library this year as a restoration from a legislative cut made last July. All of the money was used to support the periodicals.

Cal Poly has the unique problem of being a polytechnic institution in the CSU system. According to the American Library Association the average cost for a periodical subscription at Cal Poly is $168.22. The national average is approximately $350.

"We've got an underlying cause of every worldwide problem. "Universities, politicians, governments and leaders seem to think environmental growth is good," said Governor Brown.

Actually, Brown said people need to consider what kind of growth they can afford. He said the costs of increased population include acid rain, global warming, loss of species and, especially, addiction to energy.

Brown said humans need to learn to get by with the energy they have instead of looking for more ways to exploit nature. His suggestions for "living lighter on the earth" include restoring transportation "as it used to be." Recalling his childhood in Berkeley, Brown encourages cities to return to electrified rail lines and ferries where possible. He also promoted the benefits of personal transport See LIBRARY, page 6

Panel to study SUPA wage increase issue
Talks over salaries at a standstill
By Jeff Brunnings
Staff Writer

Negotiations are deadlocked between the California Polytechnic State University Association (SUPA) and the California State University Employee Relations. Any system over wage increases and acquisitions has been formed to review the issues.

During the first day of mediation on Jan. 31, 1989, the SUPA made a salary proposal that provided for 17 percent and 19 percent pay raises over the next 21 months and included an immediate raise of 4 percent upon ratification of the contract by both parties.

SUPA declined the proposal.

"They've gone to impasse mediations," said Bob Negrant, staff personnel officer at Cal Poly.

"They've talked with the Employer-Employee Relations Act, the impasse procedures require that both parties to utilize mediators in the negotiations. The mediators, however, could not settle the dispute and the fact-finding panel was organized and will report to the CSU Board of Trustees. The hearing is expected to be held in May.

Employees affected by the proposal include public safety officers, investigators and supervising officers who fall under the Unit 8 bargaining unit of SUPA. There are about 10 officers at Cal Poly within this unit, Negrant said.

The personnel under Unit 8 have not received salary increases since July 1986. They were not included when the last group of staff employees received a salary hike 16 months ago. Representatives of the parties met again last month but could not reach an agreement.

Under current guidelines, employees can receive wage increases on an annual basis. At the end of a year's period, each employee's performance is reviewed and if found sufficient will allow them to go on to a higher step which brings an increase in wages. The change in salary is known as the merit salary adjustment (MSA) and it is a "focus of debate on the bargaining table."

"Ratification of the CSU proposal may deny employees any MSA for a period of one year after acceptance of the proposal. The union representing SUPA has taken an opinion that may nullify the MSA denial, but the union declined the offer," said Samuel A. Supracta, CSU negotiation chief.

"The union has been unwilling to meet on a frequent basis and has cancelled meetings," and it seems to be an endless process of the negotiations, Supracta said.

The proposal also includes benefit enhancements for employees including health and dental care coverage. It does not include however SUPA's desire for contract language that would guarantee the tape recording of grievances meetings at all levels of the grievance procedure, union See SUPA, page 8
What are you doing to conserve water?

Michelle Bittner, graphic communications junior
"My roommates and I make sure the dishwasher is full before we run it."

James West, civil engineering senior
"I wash the car half as much as usual, and I store drinking water in the refrigerator."

Linda Shleene, human resources development junior
"I save the dishwasher until it needs to be dumped."

By April Karys

"Health Secretary orders revision of U.S. sex survey."

Yes, folks, you read it right here in the Mustang Daily: Not only has this government been spending our tax dollars on an official peek into our bedrooms, but the darn thing's been botched and needs a rewrite.

I don't know about you, but I have a problem with my money being used to ask someone I don't even know when they last had sex, what they did, and whether they did it with a man or a woman.

Granted, probably only about 50 cents worth of my taxes went into the survey. But unless I go into hiding, that thing is probably going to land on my front step, complete with handy peep-off return address label, and I will have paid 50 cents to be asked about my sex life. And you watch -- they'll probably make us buy a stamp to mail it back.

So, there you go, and only in America. We will each have paid at least 75 cents for the privilege of revealing our sexual practices and preferences to the beady eyes and sweaty palms of some Washington paper shuffler.

Now, I know the Department of Public Health is conducting the survey so that it can get a better handle on how to stem the AIDS crisis in this country. But I have to question how much the government hopes to learn from a survey that explores the most intimate part of our lives but for which it can't even get the questions right (Health Secretary Louis Sullivan said in a statement carried by The Associated Press that he had a "great deal of difficulty understanding how many of the questions are related to essential public interests").

It's 9 a.m. and I've been making calls to our fair capital because I want to know exactly how much was spent on writing up the first study and how much this revision is going to cost.

And I want to know why the paper shufflers didn't think to consult university faculty members for information before they consulted my wallet. There are probably thousands of studies being conducted right this very minute by professors who have made psychology and human sexuality as their lives' concerns, and by others who have made a cure for AIDS their focus. I have a feeling that America's citizens would more readily answer questions about their sexual lives if they were asked by scientists and educators rather than by the government.

But, after all, what can I do? Nothing, really, except complain, and make fruitless phone calls to government officials who claim to know nothing about what I'm asking about. And sit on my porch with the certain knowledge that eventually the lovely revised and Health-Secrertary-approved version of the sex survey will hit my mailbox in quadruplicate; one for me and one for each of my roommates.

Boy, would I have a field day with it.

April Karys is editor of the Mustang Daily. She has yet to answer our version of the survey.

Letters to the Editor

Bulimia photo misleads readers, turns off sufferers

Editor -- I am writing in response to Nicole Jones' article ("Being a friend," April 12) on bulimia. I feel bulimia and other eating disorders are a major problem on college campuses. The picture accompanying the article, however, does exactly what the article says is a major cause of eating disorders. It presents an "image of the 'perfect' woman which is not real and cannot be obtained."

The picture does nothing to aid in the understanding of eating disorders. Nor does it do anything to further the idea of "being a friend." The picture probably does not even attract the attention of those who are most in need of the article, as they would probably be turned off at the sight of another skinny, "perfect" girl. About the only thing the picture does is act as a nice wall hanging for some guy's apartment.

Finally I would like to add that even being a friend cannot cure a person with an eating disorder. People with eating disorders must seek medical help from professionals who specialize in this area.

Jason Wells
Nutritional Sciences
Texas Ranger's 42-year-old Ryan loses sixth no-hitter in 8th inning

MILWAUKEE (AP) — At age 42, Nolan Ryan could be working his cattle ranch in Texas instead of working over big league hitters the past 21 years.

But pitching is more profitable, especially when neither you nor your fastball show signs of slowing down.

Even at that, there seems little left to accomplish — save another World Series championship — for the newest member of the 300 wins club.

His biographies and accompanying records occupy 19 pages in the press guide.

Ryan holds 41 major league records, including most career strikeouts. He's thrown five no-hitters.

Who can top that? Maybe Ryan himself. Not this time.

Wednesday night against the Milwaukee Brewers when he lost a bid for a sixth no-hitter in the eighth inning.

"I got his first victory of the season and his ability to still dominate a game was evident," Rand said. "He started from finish as he overpowered the Brewers with his 90 mph fastball and teased them with his changeup. He gave up only one hit in his eight innings, walking two and striking out a club-record 15, including six straight at one point.

"I would like to throw another no-hitter," says Ryan, who has gone nearly eight years between hitless masterpieces. "But my attitude about it is, if it happens, that's fine. That's not something you can work towards.

The attitude is that last year I lost one in the ninth so I don't start anticipating those things. The main thing is to win the game."

He is still working to return the hitters in the American League, at least the ones still around from his last days with the California Angels in 1979 before he joined the Houston Astros.

The Lady Mustangs have an overall record of 18-4 and are currently the top-ranked team in the nation.

Abilene Christian University is ranked second while Illinois University at Edwardsville is ranked third.

Nolan Ryan is Cal Poly's number one singles player. Debbie Matano is number two while her sister Tracy Matano fills the number three position for Cal Poly.

The Lady Mustangs have three strong doubles teams. Kanter and partner Janet Armstrong are ranked first in the nation.

The Matano sisters are Cal Poly’s number two doubles team and the third spot is filled by Amy Barber and Susan Norman.

Six of the eight Lady Mustangs competing in this year’s nationals already have experience in a national meet.

The depth of the Lady Mustang squad gives Coach Phelps confidence going into this year’s nationals. "It’s not going to be an easy task, but we expect to win the national championships," he said.

The Lady Mustangs have a great chance to test his optimism when the Mustangs take on UC Riverside for a three-game series this weekend. The series will include a doubleheader on Saturday beginning at 1 p.m.

The loss of last season’s top three players has put a lot of pressure on the team to perform well this year. "Our success has relied on our consistency and a lack of jealousy between the players," said Platt.

Sophomore Alex Havileneko is the Mustang’s number three singles player. He and Fresenius are currently the number one doubles team in the nation.

The Mustangs travel to Ojai on April 27 for their last tournament before the national championships. This year’s national meet will be held at the Lake of the Ozarks in Missouri from May 15 to 21. "This is the first time in five years that Poly will travel out of state for the nationals. It should be nice," said Platt.

The women’s team has three home meets this weekend but has already clinched the CCAA title. "We should go unbeaten in conference play," said Head Coach Miguel Phelps, who is in his third year of coaching for Cal Poly.

The Lady Mustangs will face UC Riverside on Friday at 2 p.m. and meet Cal State Bakersfield Saturday at 11 a.m. Their final home match will be against Cal State Los Angeles at 10 a.m. on Sunday.

"Our realistic goal is to not just be acceptable, especially when neither you nor your fastball show signs of slowing down."

The team to beat Sacramento State this Fri­

season. The matches will begin at 2 p.m.

Father Baseball Coach Steve

"Our pitching, on the other hand, has been inconsistent. We need to win every game left to accomplish — save another World Series championship — for the newest member of the 300 wins club.

His biographies and accompanying records occupy 19 pages in the press guide.

Ryan holds 41 major league records, including most career strikeouts. He's thrown five no-hitters.

Who can top that? Maybe Ryan himself. Not this time.

Wednesday night against the Milwaukee Brewers when he lost a bid for a sixth no-hitter in the eighth inning.

"I got his first victory of the season and his ability to still dominate a game was evident," Rand said. "He started from finish as he overpowered the Brewers with his 90 mph fastball and teased them with his changeup. He gave up only one hit in his eight innings, walking two and striking out a club-record 15, including six straight at one point.

"I would like to throw another no-hitter," says Ryan, who has gone nearly eight years between hitless masterpieces. "But my attitude about it is, if it happens, that's fine. That's not something you can work towards.

The attitude is that last year I lost one in the ninth so I don't start anticipating those things. The main thing is to win the game."

He is still working to return the hitters in the American League, at least the ones still around from his last days with the California Angels in 1979 before he joined the Houston Astros.

The Lady Mustangs have an overall record of 18-4 and are currently the top-ranked team in the nation.

Abilene Christian University is ranked second while Illinois University at Edwardsville is ranked third.

Nolan Ryan is Cal Poly's number one singles player. Debbie Matano is number two while her sister Tracy Matano fills the number three position for Cal Poly.

The Lady Mustangs have three strong doubles teams. Kanter and partner Janet Armstrong are ranked first in the nation.

The Matano sisters are Cal Poly’s number two doubles team and the third spot is filled by Amy Barber and Susan Norman.

Six of the eight Lady Mustangs competing in this year’s nationals already have experience in a national meet.

The depth of the Lady Mustang squad gives Coach Phelps confidence going into this year’s nationals. "It’s not going to be an easy task, but we expect to win the national championships," he said.

The Lady Mustangs have a great chance to test his optimism when the Mustangs take on UC Riverside for a three-game series this weekend. The series will include a doubleheader on Saturday beginning at 1 p.m.

The loss of last season’s top three players has put a lot of pressure on the team to perform well this year. "Our success has relied on our consistency and a lack of jealousy between the players," said Platt.

Sophomore Alex Havileneko is the Mustang’s number three singles player. He and Fresenius are currently the number one doubles team in the nation.

The Mustangs travel to Ojai on April 27 for their last tournament before the national championships. This year’s national meet will be held at the Lake of the Ozarks in Missouri from May 15 to 21. "This is the first time in five years that Poly will travel out of state for the nationals. It should be nice," said Platt.

The women’s team has three home meets this weekend but has already clinched the CCAA title. "We should go unbeaten in conference play," said Head Coach Miguel Phelps, who is in his third year of coaching for Cal Poly.

The Lady Mustangs will face UC Riverside on Friday at 2 p.m. and meet Cal State Bakersfield Saturday at 11 a.m. Their final home match will be against Cal State Los Angeles at 10 a.m. on Sunday.
Yippie Hoffman dies in his sleep at age 52

NEW YORK (AP) — Abbie Hoffman, the Yippie who clung to his '60s ideals amid an onslaught of '80s yuppiedom, was remembered Thursday as a radical and a joker who could provoke a laugh even as he outraged and informed.

"It's like a hallucination," Jerry Rubin said of Hoffman's death. "I still don't believe it. Frankly, I still think it's an Abbie media event."

Hoffman, 52 years old and still anti-establishment as ever, died peacefully in his bed Wednesday according to Michael Waldron, his landlord in New Hope, Pa. An autopsy was scheduled to determine the cause of death.

Rubin, who co-founded the Youth International Party with Hoffman during the heyday of drugs, sex, rock 'n' roll and pie-throwing, recalled that "Abbie was a very, very serious person. But he did it all with a smile."

"During the Chicago (Seven) trial, he got the prosecution laughing, he got the judge laughing, he got the jury laughing — he blew kisses to the jury. He was extremely charming," said Rubin, now an entrepreneur.

His hair a tangle of long, wild curls, Hoffman could be seen with the word "FREE" written on his forehead. He was arrested 42 times, the last two years ago when he protested CIA recruitment at the University of Massachusetts.

In a satiric gesture, he threw dollar bills on the floor of the American Stock Exchange in the late '60s, and people scrambled to pick them up. He went on television in the early '70s and talked about censorship, while his upper body was blacked out because he was wearing an American flag shirt.

"He was always thinking ahead and always laughing," agreed folk singer Pete Seeger, who most recently worked with Hoffman on environmental causes.

Hoffman's chutzpah also carried him through six-and-a-half years on the run.

In September 1980, he turned himself in to New York police. See HOFFMAN, page 6
When a parent turns to alcohol to solve their problems, they aren't the only ones whose lives can be destroyed. The effects of alcohol on children are rarely considered. Yet, they are the ones who must grow up trying to figure out why mom or dad do what they do. Children often think they are to blame for their parent's disorder. In 1982, Dr. Claudia Black recognized this problem and formed a group called Adult Children of Alcoholics (ACA). The first ACA was located in Laguna Niguel, Calif., just outside of Newport Beach. Some of the characteristics of an ACA client include isolation, fear of people and authority figures, being frightened by angry people and by personal criticism, having an overdeveloped sense of responsibility and being more concerned with others rather than themselves. "An adult child is one who has some childhood issues, some developmental needs that may not have been met. We are the only special group that raises our kids such a long time for adulthood. Looking at that time frame, we should teach children about themselves," said Debbie Vath, a local ACA counselor.

"The majority of our life is spent in adulthood," she said. "Not allowing us to be children while we're children is like picking fruit before it's ripe. We need to learn how to play, share, put things away, and other key lessons. When you have a normal situation, you'll discover that children just love life. But, when a child is required to enter adulthood before it's time, you lose them." One Cal Poly student, who requested that she not be identified, can relate to this. She will be called Lisa.

Lisa's mom started drinking when Lisa was 12 years old. "I would say that my mother's drinking interfered with my active life," she said. "There were times that I wanted to take part in after-school sports like cross country and track, but I would stop and tell myself, 'No, I need to be home working.' I did all sorts of work around the house because ... I thought that the more that I would do, the more she would be likely to quit." —Lisa

"There were times that I wanted to take part in after-school sports like cross country and track, but I would stop and tell myself, 'No, I need to be home working.' I did all sorts of work around the house because ... I thought that the more that I would do, the more she would be likely to quit." —Lisa

"All the time that the children are at home they feel a sense of loyalty to the parents. Once they move out on their own however, especially to college, they start to fall apart. All the stress they have not allowed themselves to feel precipitates up against their will," said Vath.

As children grow up in the home of alcoholics, there are four possible types of role models that will influence them. The first is the family hero. This is the child who is looking to be bigger and better. As the child grows older, they can provide for the family, and usually wind up being successful at what they do. The family hero does not like to receive credit for what they do. The second type is the scapegoat. This child acts the role of an imperfect child and feels good about it. This child could wind up in juvenile hall or some other form of punishment. They will unconsciously act out in order to keep the family together.

Next is the masochist. The masochist hates all forms of anger and hostility, and will go around trying to stop it. Masocs try to make everybody happy, which usually winds up making them angry in the end.

Finally there's the lost child. This person is born, goes into the room, comes out when they're 18. This child is the hardest to help, they're usually isolated, depressed, and don't even know how to ask for help.

"There are just some of the characteristics of our ACA clients," says Vath. "However, there are several special characteristics that help the children make it through. The most popular one is the 'cookie person,' someone special who helps you by telling you that you're all right.

Back home, Lisa saw some of these characteristics within herself and her family. "My dad was apathetic and frustrated. He felt like he couldn't change her life or didn't want so he felt stuck. My mom took secret routes to the liquor store and would hide the beers once she got home. She probably thought she was getting away with it. The fights were far and few, I would get frustrated and cry often. I threw out all her liquor once, but she asked me to put it back. One time my brother and I went as far as to put pickle juice in the drink. But no matter how many times we had these conflicts, it would always bring my brother, sister and I closer together." Despite the influence of her mother, Lisa was able to keep herself from going down the wrong direction once she got into college. "My mother's abuse of alcohol turned me off more than anything else. When I first went to junior college I did get drunk a couple of times but I stopped almost immediately. I didn't like the lack of control that being drunk caused." Vath says in order to treat ACA clients they do a number of things. "We role-play to analyze situations," she explained. "But you have to be careful in these situations. Most older children have analyzed and analyzed all their life. We also provide basic testing skills. For example, one of the more popular things to do is to give the clients some crayons and construction paper and ask them to draw a scene from their youth. We like to do things that are more experimental instead of analytical." Lisa said she encourages adults who may be in similar situations to get help. "I'd definitely recommend that the student get in touch with ACA," said Lisa. "It helps you step out of denial, it doesn't allow you to dwell in the past, but to deal with it so you can live a healthy future."
From page 4

Hoffman

From page 4
authorities on a 1973 charge of selling 3 pounds of cocaine. For three years, he had lived as screenwriter Barry Freed in Fineview, N.Y. — playing on a softball team against the U.S. Customs Service and speaking on local television and radio shows about environmental issues.

As Freed, he even testified before Senate subcommittee hearings — and posed for a picture with an unaware Sen. Daniel Patrick Moynihan.

"The humor promoted the message," said fellow 60s denizen Mark Rudd, now an author and lecturer living in Albuquerque, N.M. "He was a genius at crystallizing people's feelings."

"Once, in 1968, we are at a movement conference that was getting too serious. He got up while I was talking and put on a great show of skill with his electric yo-yo."

But there was a darker side, as well.

Friends reported that Hoffman had seemed depressed before his death, according to Bucks County District Attorney Alan M. Rubinstein.

"A longterm depression was the flip side of his high. The thing about Abbie is that he was a visionary, possibly because he was manic-depressive," Rudd said.

"He was 52 years old and I think he gave up," said his brother, Jack Hoffman, of Framingham, Mass. "I know he was disappointed in the young people of today. He didn't feel he was getting through to them. He was disenchanted."

"The question of disillusionment? Never, never, never," Rudd said. "He had never given up. He was very hopeful."
Resignation

A resolution recommending that a moratorium be placed on the installation of bicycles and skateboards on campus was introduced at the Student Senate meeting on Wednesday.

Resolution 89-09 states that "Cal Poly students need reliable, efficient and inexpensive transportation such as bicycles and skateboards around campus, and restrictions and bans have already been placed on such modes of transportation on campus, and are inadequate."

Dan Dunn, a student senator from the School of Professional Studies and Education, and sponsor of the resolution, said that it basically asks "to leave policies as they now stand." Dunn is a member of the CSU Chancellor's Office asked each of the campuses to outline the potential for accidents by bicycles and skateboards on campus for safety reasons, and because of two lawsuits that evolved from accidents on CSU campuses, said Bob Schumacher, graduate of Public Safety.

A committee has been formed to look into two proposals for decreasing accidents. One would require students to walk their bicycles on the inner perimeter area of campus, said Schumacher.

"This area (inner perimeter) is where the greatest potential for accidents exist," said Schumacher. Schumacher estimates that there are anywhere from four to six bicycle accidents a quarter, but adds that these usually involve serious injuries.

"There are probably two to three times as many bike accidents by students as there are reported," said Schumacher.

According to the 1989 parking regulations for campus, skateboards are prohibited "from any building, on any roadway, in any bicycle lane, and anywhere in the parking area, which is defined as the area bounded by North Perimeter Road and a line from South Perimeter Road to College Avenue."

The resolution is not in effect from midnight Friday through Monday and on Wednesdays, and skateboards are allowed on the outer perimeter of campus.

Both of these proposals are only in the discussion stages, said Schumacher.

Resolution 89-09 will be voted on by the Senate on Wednesday. In other business, Charley Mathews, student senator from the School of Engineering and chair of the Intercollegiate Committee, announced a new elections rule that no campaign posters, calendars or bumper stickers can be placed on the poll. This would prohibit candidates from placing their campaign literature on or near the polling tables. The polling locations for Wednesday and Thursdays are to be determined by the Student Union.

The polling locations will be at the Kennedy Library in information-the Travel Center of the University.

Business Directory

Food

California style CHEESECAKE is the best we've had. Great Cheesecake. Call and reserve a table. Varina,Chocolate Cherry Amoreto

Homes for Sale

AABSPRESSED CONDOS & HOMES & CONES AVAILABLE, ON CALL MARGUERITE CENTURY 21 541-3432
Buying a House or Condo? For a FREE LIST of all the most recent Homes & condos for sale call 546-8601 & leave message, Marie Smith

For Sale

ROOM FOR RENT ON RANCH HOME FOR SALE IN SLO, FOR MORE INFO CALL 541-5950 FOR MORE INFO:

ROOM FOR RENT ON RANCH HOME FOR SALE IN SLO, FOR MORE INFO CALL 541-5950 FOR MORE INFO:

RESUMES
PROFESSIONAL RESUMES ON CALL 546-8992
RESUMES,GRAPHICS LAYOUT PRINTS 541-6223

TYPING
R & B WORD PROCESSING 541-2591
FAXING TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD, PRICING BY THE PAGE & BY THE DAY.

Business Directory

Food

California style CHEESECAKE is the best we've had. Great Cheesecake. Call and reserve a table. Varina,Chocolate Cherry Amoreto

Homes for Sale

AABSPRESSED CONDOS & HOMES & CONES AVAILABLE, ON CALL MARGUERITE CENTURY 21 541-3432
Buying a House or Condo? For a FREE LIST of all the most recent Homes & condos for sale call 546-8601 & leave message, Marie Smith

For Sale

ROOM FOR RENT ON RANCH HOME FOR SALE IN SLO, FOR MORE INFO CALL 541-5950 FOR MORE INFO:

ROOM FOR RENT ON RANCH HOME FOR SALE IN SLO, FOR MORE INFO CALL 541-5950 FOR MORE INFO:

RESUMES
PROFESSIONAL RESUMES ON CALL 546-8992
RESUMES,GRAPHICS LAYOUT PRINTS 541-6223

TYPING
R & B WORD PROCESSING 541-2591
FAXING TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD, PRICING BY THE PAGE & BY THE DAY.

Business Directory

Food

California style CHEESECAKE is the best we've had. Great Cheesecake. Call and reserve a table. Varina,Chocolate Cherry Amoreto

Homes for Sale

AABSPRESSED CONDOS & HOMES & CONES AVAILABLE, ON CALL MARGUERITE CENTURY 21 541-3432
Buying a House or Condo? For a FREE LIST of all the most recent Homes & condos for sale call 546-8601 & leave message, Marie Smith

For Sale

ROOM FOR RENT ON RANCH HOME FOR SALE IN SLO, FOR MORE INFO CALL 541-5950 FOR MORE INFO:

ROOM FOR RENT ON RANCH HOME FOR SALE IN SLO, FOR MORE INFO CALL 541-5950 FOR MORE INFO:

RESUMES
PROFESSIONAL RESUMES ON CALL 546-8992
RESUMES,GRAPHICS LAYOUT PRINTS 541-6223

TYPING
R & B WORD PROCESSING 541-2591
FAXING TO ANYWHERE IN THE WORLD, PRICING BY THE PAGE & BY THE DAY.
Latest condor egg found fertile

SAN DIEGO (AP) — The latest California condor egg laid at the San Diego Wild Animal Park is fertile, bringing to four the number of live eggs produced this year in a captive breeding program designed to save the dying species.

Condor keepers declared the egg fertile on Wednesday after holding it up to a high intensity lamp and detecting the early stages of a developing embryo, park spokesman Tom Hanscom said.

The egg was the second produced this breeding season by the condor couple who last year became famous as the parents of Moltoko, the first California condor to be both conceived and born in captivity.

Like the first egg, the second egg is being artificially incubated. Hanscom said the pair's first egg, laid February 21st, is progressing toward an expected hatching by late next week.

The second egg was laid Sunday.

"This is their double-chuèeh egg," Hanscom said, explaining the first egg was removed from its nest to encourage the birds to breed again.

When the second egg was laid, it too was removed for artificial incubation and replaced in the nest by a ceramic egg.

If the condors continue incubating the fake egg, park officials eventually plan to replace it with an Andean condor egg. That would allow the birds to complete the natural nesting cycle while allowing condor keepers to gather valuable information on parenting behavior, Hanscom said.

Seven condor eggs have been laid at the park and the Los Angeles Zoo during the condors' current breeding season. Two laid by sexually immature condors were infertile and a third was found broken in its nest. Only 28 California condors are known to exist, and all are in captivity. Fourteen of the birds are at the Los Angeles Zoo and 14 at the Wild Animal Park, which is affiliated with the San Diego Zoo.

It is hoped that the population of North America's largest land bird can eventually be rebuilt, through the captive breeding program, to the point condors can be released into their former range.

Calendar

*Community service projects are needed for the sixth annual Good Neighbor Day which will be held from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on April 15. For more information call 756-5828.

Sunday

•Cesar's Latin All-Stars, a salsa band from San Francisco, will play at the Paso Robles City Park from 1 to 5 p.m. The proceeds will benefit a student-run organic farm and the Martin Luther King Farm Worker's Service Center.

PROTEST

From page 1 meetings to discuss internal business with on-duty officers and the discontinued use of patrol cars once they have at- tained 85,000 miles.

“I don’t see a resolution com- plete to address these issues,” Negranti said. CSU hopes to come to an agreement before June 30, the fiscal year expiration date.

805-543-1452

Palm Theater

817 Princeton St. SLO

ALL SEATS $2.50

*IDER BERN \(I I I \) MONS

Good Cine

Workshops: 7 & 9:30 pm

Sat 4:30, 7 & 9:30 pm

THE ACCUSED

(ABS) best actors

Workshops: 7 & 9:30 pm Sat 4:30 & 7 pm

NEW YORK STORIES

Directed by

Wendy Allen

Martin Scorcese

Francis Coppola

Workshops: 7 & 9:30 pm

Sat 4:30, 7 & 9:30 pm

Sun 4:30 & 7 pm

PROTEST

From page 1 abortion deaths were on display at their table.

A pro-choice march was held over the weekend at Santa Rosa Park and Vanni said they would have been there if they had heard about it. Vanni is not sure when and where the club will hold its next march.

555 Ramona Drive
805-543-1452