Students elect new president in run-off vote

Taylor defeats Gomes by more than 100 votes

By Tara Murphy

Adam Taylor will face his first experience in Associated Students, Inc. as ASI president.

In last Wednesday's run-off election, Taylor was elected president for 1990-91 by receiving 125 more votes than his opponent Mike Gomes.

Taylor said he feels "pleased and blessed" by the election results. "I've been blessed with God's strength to win," he said.

Taylor said the first thing he wants to do is to get together with ASI executive secretary Linda Lee Thoresen and current ASI President Ricardo Echeverria to discuss current issues and policies in ASI.

"The first thing to do is to get adjusted," Taylor said. "I want to take care of things Ricardo has set up. I also want to see how we can make Poly a better place."

He said he is also interested in getting the students involved.

"I'd like to take a lot of things straight to the students," he said. "Santa Cruz just banned plastics. I don't see why we couldn't do the same thing if it was warranted."

See TAYLOR, page 12

Riots erupt at Poly Royal

Eighty arrested, more than 130 injured as Poly Royal festivities become violent

By Mike McMillan

Poly Royal ended Saturday, but Poly Riot raged until early Sunday morning.

On Friday night, the streets of San Luis Obispo belonged to a frenzied mob of vandals who left their mark on this normally quiet community.

But Saturday night an army of 250 officers battled back, making 80 arrests with an assault tempered with full riot-gear, tear-gas, water-cannons and an angry company of man's best friend.

The city's three hospitals reported treating more than 140 people for lacerations, head injuries and dog bites.

Sierra Vista, the hospital nearest the riot's focal point at California Street and Foothill Boulevard, was busiest, treating more than 100 high-school and college-aged students.

Officers from as far away as Santa Barbara joined a local police, sheriff and CHP task force organized at a field command-post in Santa Rosa Park.

At about midnight, several dozen officers clad in riot gear formed a skirmish line and began working their way down California Boulevard in a series of advances on the rock and bottle-throwing mob.

The tactical assault continued for more than an hour, each advance yielding several arrests.

See SATURDAY, page 12

Second Poly student dead from car crash

By Jason Foster

A single-vehicle accident involving three Cal Poly students that occurred in the early afternoon of April 22 claimed its second life Wednesday.

Burt Salisbury, 19, a fruit science freshman from Sacramento, was taken off life-support systems Wednesday afternoon at Arroyo Grande Community Hospital, a nursing supervisor said Sunday.

Salisbury had been in critical and unstable condition from "multiple injuries" sustained when the car he was riding in jumped off the northbound lanes of Highway 101 in Arroyo Grande and hit an oak tree.

"His father called me on Wednesday and told me that the ordeal was over," said David

See CRASH, page 10

Reacting to the riots...

Columnist Marianne Biasotti comments on the Poly Royal turmoil this past weekend, and raises the questions of what can be done to prevent them.

Be kind to animals...

Animal rights activists march in SLO-town to protest the use of animals in lab experiments. They also suggest some alternatives.

In SPORTS MONDAY...

Men's Basketball coach Steve Beason dismisses three players on charges of a lack of commitment. The players believe otherwise.
Editorial

What to do about Poly Royal

Somewhere along the line, Poly Royal turned ugly. It has become an opportunity for college-aged adolescents with a "pillage and plunder" attitude to run wild with high school graduates. Where along the line, Poly Royal became a time when conventional rules of behavior didn't apply and having fun became something incredibly destructive.

We are now left with the question, what is to be done? Honestly, we don't know. To know how to control a person who would throw a bottle at a police officer for no better reason than pure defiance is to somehow understand that person, and we don't. So what we are unfortunately left with is cancelling Poly Royal. But be fore we go that far, let's hear what the community says.

Both Cal Poly and the city have tried to dissociate Poly Royal with its Party Royal image. They have worked with local liquor store and beverage distributors to stop that connection. But obviously, they were unsuccessful in breaking that connection. So people are still going to flock into town expecting the rite of Poly Royal, and have heard about so much.

We must ask ourselves if we can control such a crowd, because after this year's well-publicized bashes, the mobs of thrill-seekers are not going to dwindle. Increasing the police force was tried this year and there are limits to how far we can go in this direction, short of calling in the National Guard. Perhaps the only way we can stop the madness is to self-police. This can be done on an individual basis, with Poly students discouraging destructive behavior around them, or by patrols of students (possibly fraternities) on the streets without making it official, but going to the police when they see trouble.

We can possibly get greater efforts to both limit and control the crowd size. Not only to attract the future Poly Royal, but there are no guarantees. We need to ask ourselves if we are prepared to handle repeats of the last two years.

This leaves the Poly Royal Board with some tough decisions to make. We don't envy them.

Letters to the Editor

Some problems with admissions

Your report in the April 24 issue about the new admissions system did not go into all of the concerns with the new system and I'd like to correct a few of the impressions your article gave.

First, admissions criteria in the past was a departmental matter (within the general constraints set by the University and State). The new system was put into place by the administration without departmental consultation. Departmental criteria tried to match student aptitudes with the potential of that student for specific majors. The new criteria are University-wide. The new system also resulted in many departments admitting 90 percent of all applicants (as opposed to the previous 50 percent), and also had bonuses for underrepresented and minority students (as based on even the skewed new system's ratings).

Second, the previous system also had bonuses for underrepresented and minority students. The new system increased the bonuses.

Vice President Bailey gives the impression that the administration doesn't agree with the way the admissions system does things as a racist. Viewpoints like this do close the door on sincere debate over a serious issue. Vice President Bailey seems to imply that ethnic diversity is the overriding issue -- certainly Activists mourn the deaths of laboratory animals; stage march

Marchers want more clinical research

By Joe Tarica

Gazing out from the poster, the dog looks sadly from its collapsed position, its insides torn open.

"Imagine having your body left to science while you're still in it," reads the bold headline above the picture.

The sign rested against the rock wall behind one of the nearly 50 protesters who gathered Thursday evening in the Mission Plaza in San Luis Obispo for a candlelight march in memory of the millions of animals who have died in laboratory experiments.

"Medical researchers tell us that we're uninformed; that we're ignorant," says Cathe Compton, co-coordinator of the Animal Rights Network (ARN) of San Luis Obispo County, to the group before her. "I disagree."

Compton, along with co-coordinator Linda Owen, organized the vigil in conjunction with World Laboratory Animal Liberation Week (April 23-29), chosen in honor of a leading pioneer in the animal rights movement, Lord Cornwall Dowding, whose birthday was April 24, 1892.

"We're trying to give recognition to the number of animals that die in laboratory research and experimentation," Owen said. She said that three animals die every minute "in the name of science."

While acknowledging the argument that human lives are saved through animal research, Owen said that those experiments are no longer justified with today's technology.

"All of the research is questionable as far as I can see," said Owen. "We can use a more logical approach to the overall picture."

Owen proposed using "more clinical and pure research," or research on the species itself. "If a dog is sick, you don't experiment on cats," she said.

"We've accepted that laboratory animals are the way to find out things about man," she said, adding that experimentation should be "directed toward research that's more human-based."

Owen felt that the links between humans and animals are not close enough to merit the experimentation that occurs. "It seems like a great idea to experiment on animals," she said, "but it doesn't really extrapolate (to humans)."

Owen emphasized using new techniques that eliminate animal suffering. Some of those include studying cells and organ cultures in industry and using computers to produce models.

Accordingly, the ARN is not

See MARCH, page 8

SLO center to help finance adoptions for animal rights week

By Joe Tarica

In conjunction with the upcoming "Be Kind to Animals Week" (May 6-13), the Woods Humane Society in San Luis Obispo is making a special effort to bring attention to the need for animal care and adoption.

For the upcoming week, the Humane Society will provide coupons for veterinary assistance to help pay for the costs of spaying and neutering, Fears said.

"A lot of people want to adopt pets, but they work to place homeless animals with people who will care for them," said Leonard Fears, manager of the shelter. See ANIMALS, page 8

I n C e l e b r a t i o n o r E a r t h D a y t h e B o o k s t o r e w i l l p r o v i d e B u g s b y r e q u e s t o n l y . F o r e v e r y B a g S a v e d w e w i l l d o n a t e 2 ¢ f o r t h e p l a n t i n g o f a T r e e o n C a m p u s .

sponsored by
EL CORRAL BOOKSTORE
MORTAR BOARD
SEND A HONORS SOCIETY
O. H. DEPARTMENT

HERE'S A GOOD DEAL!
A K Q J 10
FOR JUST A FEW BUCKS YOU CAN TRY ONE OF OUR GREAT DAILY LUNCH SPECIALS MON.-FRI.

FOR JUST A FEW BUCKS YOU CAN TRY ONE OF OUR GREAT DAILY LUNCH SPECIALS MON.-FRI.

SPECIALS MON.-FRI.

SPECIALS MON.-FRI.

SPECIALS MON.-FRI.

SPECIALS MON.-FRI.

SPECIALS MON.-FRI.

SPECIALS MON.-FRI.

SPECIALS MON.-FRI.

SPECIALS MON.-FRI.

SPECIALS MON.-FRI.

SPECIALS MON.-FRI.

SPECIALS MON.-FRI.
A mob turned on law enforcement officials with bottles and rocks as police and paramedics tried to assist an injured person who was allegedly hit by a car. Isolated fights kept up the momentum of the crowd as police from throughout the county, clad in riot gear, tried to bring some order to the melee. Police were showered with bottles, rocks, bricks and street signs. Fifteen law enforcement agencies were called in to break up the crowd, but initial attempts seemed to have little effect. Police later resorted to tear gas and water cannons.

The crowd, estimated by police to be as large as 1,000, vandalized vehicles, set objects on fire and destroyed private property. Crowds members used a stop sign to break the windows of the Campus Bottle Shoppe on the corner of California Boulevard and Hatway Avenue while chanting “Free Beer! Free Beer!” Others in the crowd chanted “Save Campus Bottle.” Campus Bottle employees fought off an attack of beer bottles by throwing champagne bottles back.

Saturday morning, members of Sigma Alpha Epsilon and other fraternities worked at cleaning up California Boulevard and boarding up the windows of Campus Bottle Shoppe.

Rumors that this could be the last Poly Royal spread across campus on Saturday after the first night of rioting. A point press release from the City of San Luis Obispo, Cal Poly and the Associated Students, Inc. said, “We share a tremendous amount of regret and disappointment over the events of last night.”

“The city, the University and student leaders have worked extremely long and hard over the last several months to avoid just such an episode. We feel that every possible effort has been made to protect the fundamental freedoms of every student, staff member and employee.”

See FRIDAY, page 12

Alleged gang members with bats injure eight in SLO brawl Friday

Brandon K. Engle

A group of people who had decided to avoid Friday night crowds were attacked by alleged gang members wielding baseball bats and rubber tubes filled with sand on Murray Street near Casa Street.

Gang members allegedly sought revenge for one of their members who had fought with bystanders the night before.

According to one bystander, who asked that his name be withheld, words were exchanged between an alleged gang member and passers-by on Thursday night.

The alleged gang member became angry and tore an antenna off a car and started whipping people with it. A passer-by was whipped in the face, and a fight broke out that involved other bystanders.

The alleged gang, believed to be from Paso Robles, returned Friday night to settle the score. Alleged gang members approached the occupants of the house where the previous incident happened.

After more words were exchanged, alleged gang members brought out bats, pipes, knives and garden hoses filled with sand.

Witnesses said that the group numbered more than 25 and beat two people until they were unconscious. One victim was knocked out and kicked while he was unconscious. A girl who attempted to help the victim was hit in the face with a bat and knocked unconscious.

“They came in swinging bats,” said another eyewitness who also wished to remain anonymous.

Three people were treated at Sierra Vista Regional Medical Center and released Friday night as a result of the brawl, according to a hospital supervisor. Five others were injured.

Victims were told Saturday by San Luis Obispo police that the group could return with guns.
Beason dismisses 3 players

By Dave Taylor

Three Cal Poly men's basketball players have left the team, stating that head coach Steve Beason is unqualified.

Coby Naess, Shawn Reed and Pete DelVaglio said they were released from the team during a mandatory early-morning run last Tuesday. The departures led Beason to say he's excited for the opportunity to cleanse the program.

Reed, Naess and DelVaglio said in an interview Saturday that the "team" decided they wanted Beason removed.

"Our complaint is that he's just unqualified to coach at the college level," Naess said. "This is not just a spur of the moment decision; it's been building up since he (Beason) got here four years ago. The reasons why we as a team feel that he is unqualified (range) from the way he handles the team in game situations to his leadership abilities in running the program. Over the past four years his respect in the eyes of the players has dwindled. Two years ago we boycotted a practice to view our opinions and thoughts we might have been able to open his eyes. But last (season) proved it didn't work."

Beason, who was in Los Angeles on Sunday, was unavailable for comment, but had earlier been quoted as saying, "I'm not abusive, I'm not mean-spirited, we don't have a terrible graduation rate."

Naess, Reed and DelVaglio, all of whom would have been seniors next season, said all eight returners along with D.C. Cashman who finished his playing career last year, men with Athletic Director Ken Walker and presented a report detailing the disapproval of Beason along with seven unopened letters from recent basketball alumni that support the team's stance.

The team held a mandatory early-morning run last Tuesday because they boycotted a hall session on Monday. At that run, Beason dismissed Reed from the team, later stating that Reed's dismissal was due to the fact that he missed three out of five study halls and showed a lack of commitment to the team.

Naess then said, "If Reed goes, then I go." Beason said if anyone else felt that way then he should stay behind; otherwise start running. DelVaglio stayed behind.

"I missed two study halls and the third one was the one we were asked to stay behind," Reed said. "I served my punishment without a single complaint. I was not the only person that missed study halls. Other players missed study halls as well; I don't know why he singled me out. I showed my commitment for the team by serving my punishment. Beason never approached me with the reason why I was dismissed and I had to find out through the papers."

"It's not just the three of us," Naess said. "Everyone on the team feels the way we do but we were the only ones that were able to act on those thoughts."

"I think the other players were put in certain situations where they can't voice their opinions as strong as we can," DelVaglio said. "They're financially bound because their scholarships had been threatened."

When the team met with Walker, they also presented him with a report written by Cashman on behalf of "the present and former players of Cal Poly." Five charges against Beason came from the report: inept handling of the team, a lack of communication between coaches and players as well as between the coaches themselves, inability to motivate players and a lack of respect by players.

Naess said he has no regrets for the decision he made but what he is doing is not a personal attack on his former coach.

"Coach Beason is a good-natured, nice man, but the simple fact remains: he has not shown what it takes to be an effective coach at Cal Poly."

See DISMISSAL, page 10

Reed, Naess and DelVaglio leave, say coach is unqualified

Mustangs perform well at home meet

By Neil Pascale

Instead of making their usual weekend expeditions, the men's and women's track teams enjoyed a rare home meet on Saturday.

The Cal Poly Slomotion Invitational drew athletes from eight different colleges as well as Cal Poly alumni. Collectively, the Mustangs grabbed first place honors in 14 separate events.

"We had some great marks today and a ton of lifetime bests," Tom Henderson, the track coach Ed Crawford. "For some of these guys, either they have another meet or its the end of the season," Henderson said. "So this a crucial meet for over half of the team."

The Mustangs' Ben Holback responded by leaping 51-01 in the triple jump, a personal best.

See TRACK, page 11

Track

Vicki Allegri stretches for the distance in the triple jump.

KeVIN MARTIN/Mustang Daily

Mustangs perform well at home meet

By Neil Pascale

Instead of making their usual weekend expeditions, the men's and women's track teams enjoyed a rare home meet on Saturday.

The Cal Poly Slomotion Invitational drew athletes from eight different colleges as well as Cal Poly alumni. Collectively, the Mustangs grabbed first place honors in 14 separate events.

"We had some great marks today and a ton of lifetime bests," Tom Henderson, the head coach Ed Crawford. "For some of these guys, either they have another meet or its the end of the season," Henderson said. "So this is a crucial meet for over half of the team."

The Mustangs' Ben Holback responded by leaping 51-01 in the triple jump, a personal best.

See TRACK, page 11

Vicki Allegri stretches for the triple jump.
POLY ROYAL '90

The Good...
The Bad...

& The Ugly
ANIMALS

From page 3
don’t want to pay for the spaying or neutering,” he said. He hoped this program would encourage more people to visit the center and give homes to the animals there.

Fears said “Be Kind to Animals Week” would be celebrated by shelters nationwide and has been very successful in the past.

“It helps to create more interest in the Humane Society and in the adoption of animals,” Fears said.

Recently, he said, animals have been abandoned more frequently as people move from place to place. “People are moving around. Landlords are being picky,” he said.

The Woods Humane Society, however, only accepts owner turn-ins, not strays and abandons, because the shelter is not government-funded, Fears said.

As a result, the organization is often hindered by a lack of money, said Fears, and now is covered only by county donations. While he said there have been difficult times, the shelter usually does okay. “We’ve been doing it that way for 35 years and we’re doing pretty good,” Fears said about their method of funding through donations.

The shelter’s policy is to hold animals for 30 days while attempting to place them in homes. After 30 days, the animal is put to sleep, unless there is enough room to hold it longer. “The bottom line is how much space there is available,” Fears said.

The purpose of “Be Kind to Animals Week,” then, is to educate the general public, and make people aware that animals are abandoned, Fears said. He encouraged interested people to take advantage of the program and come down to the shelter, located at 4679 Broad St., to see the animals that are available.

MARCH

From page 3 anti-research, as their literature states. Owen does not condemn those who work in animal research, however. “Maybe the researchers satisfy some morbidity curiosity,” he mused.

“I really don’t think researchers are sadistic or mean to be,” Owen said. “They don’t have the sense that what they’re doing is affecting individual beings.”

From an overall view, Owen stressed that alternatives to the current situation were vital. “We’re trying to cure man’s diseases and animal’s diseases too, but we’ve lost sight,” she said. “We’re not in control. We do fit somehow within nature.”

As the group collected before the protest march, Owen and Compton circulated among the participants, welcoming friends and handing out candles, flowers, and pamphlets on the ARN’s non-violence protest code. When everyone had arrived, Compton addressed the black-clad group. “We are in mourning for the animals who have died,” she said.

“There are alternatives... this doesn’t have to happen,” Compton said. After speaking for a few minutes, Compton assembled the group into a line two by two and headed up Monterey Street toward Farmer’s Market, candles glowing, signs in-hand.

To Your Health

Poly sees outbreak of ‘preventable’ measles

By June Thompson

Measles may be called a childhood disease but its not child’s play.

Eight Cal Poly students have German measles, Dr. James Nash, director of Student Health Services, said.

German measles is an acute infectious viral disease of children and young adults for which there is prevention but no cure, he said. “It irritates me” to see students catch measles because they have not been immunized.

Common symptoms, he noted, are “feeling mildly ill, fever, headache, sore eyes, swollen glands behind the ears, slight runny nose and then a body rash, which spreads fast.”

The rash could start on the chest, neck or arms, but everybody is different.”

German measles, which is rubella, he pointed out, should not be confused with the more severe measles, or rubella. Rubella is a highly contagious viral disease that can cause serious secondary infection.

Although German measles is generally mild and uncomplicated, if contracted during the first three months of pregnancy it can cause serious damage to the fetus, Nash said. The fetus can die in utero. The baby can be born deaf, blind or both; have significant brain damage; and/or have heart problems. He said that, to his knowledge, none of the female students with measles are pregnant.

Since the fall term of 1986, students entering or applying for admission to Cal Poly who were born after Jan. 1, 1957, are required to show evidence of immunization against measles, rubella and German measles.

Further details of this requirement are found in the class schedule. (Neither Helen Linstrum of admissions or her next in charge, were available for comment at press time).

Students may be vaccinated at the health center, Nash said. There may be a $24 charge, however, if the center has to buy vaccine because of demand caused by the outbreak of measles statewide.

Barbara Schwenok, nursing supervisor for San Luis Obispo County, said a total of 13 students are there in shelters for 30 days while at- tenting to place them in homes. After 30 days, the animal is put to sleep, unless there is enough room to hold it longer. “The bottom line is how much space there is available,” Fears said.

The purpose of “Be Kind to Animals Week,” then, is to educate the general public, and make people aware that animals are abandoned, Fears said. He encouraged interested people to take advantage of the program and come down to the shelter, located at 4679 Broad St., to see the animals that are available.

MARCH

From page 3 anti-research, as their literature states. Owen does not condemn those who work in animal research, however. “Maybe the researchers satisfy some morbidity curiosity,” he mused.

“I really don’t think researchers are sadistic or mean to be,” Owen said. “They don’t have the sense that what they’re doing is affecting individual beings.”

From an overall view, Owen stressed that alternatives to the current situation were vital. “We’re trying to cure man’s diseases and animal’s diseases too, but we’ve lost sight,” she said. “We’re not in control. We do fit somehow within nature.”

As the group collected before the protest march, Owen and Compton circulated among the participants, welcoming friends and handing out candles, flowers, and pamphlets on the ARN’s non-violence protest code. When everyone had arrived, Compton addressed the black-clad group. “We are in mourning for the animals who have died,” she said.

“There are alternatives... this doesn’t have to happen,” Compton said. After speaking for a few minutes, Compton assembled the group into a line two by two and headed up Monterey Street toward Farmer’s Market, candles glowing, signs in-hand.

To Your Health

Poly sees outbreak of ‘preventable’ measles

By June Thompson

Measles may be called a childhood disease but its not child’s play.

Eight Cal Poly students have German measles, Dr. James Nash, director of Student Health Services, said.

German measles is an acute infectious viral disease of children and young adults for which there is prevention but no cure, he said. “It irritates me” to see students catch measles because they have not been immunized.

Common symptoms, he noted, are “feeling mildly ill, fever, headache, sore eyes, swollen glands behind the ears, slight runny nose and then a body rash, which spreads fast.”

The rash could start on the chest, neck or arms, but everybody is different.”

German measles, which is rubella, he pointed out, should not be confused with the more severe measles, or rubella. Rubella is a highly contagious viral disease that can cause serious secondary infection.

Although German measles is generally mild and uncomplicated, if contracted during the first three months of pregnancy it can cause serious damage to the fetus, Nash said. The fetus can die in utero. The baby can be born deaf, blind or both; have significant brain damage; and/or have heart problems. He said that, to his knowledge, none of the female students with measles are pregnant.

Since the fall term of 1986, students entering or applying for admission to Cal Poly who were born after Jan. 1, 1957, are required to show evidence of immunization against measles, rubella and German measles.

Further details of this requirement are found in the class schedule. (Neither Helen Linstrum of admissions or her next in charge, were available for comment at press time).

Students may be vaccinated at the health center, Nash said. There may be a $24 charge, however, if the center has to buy vaccine because of demand caused by the outbreak of measles statewide.

Barbara Schwenok, nursing supervisor for San Luis Obispo County, said a total of 13 students are there in shelters for 30 days while at- tenting to place them in homes. After 30 days, the animal is put to sleep, unless there is enough room to hold it longer. “The bottom line is how much space there is available,” Fears said.

The purpose of “Be Kind to Animals Week,” then, is to educate the general public, and make people aware that animals are abandoned, Fears said. He encouraged interested people to take advantage of the program and come down to the shelter, located at 4679 Broad St., to see the animals that are available.
Study: Drug abuse, bigotry plague country's colleges

NEW YORK (AP) — Alcohol, drug abuse, crime and bigotry are breaking down the social and intellectual fabric at many college campuses, according to a report released Sunday.

"The idyllic vision so routinely portrayed in college promotional materials often masks disturbing realities of student life," concluded "Campus Life: In Search of Community."

The findings were based on visits to 18 campuses, interviews with teachers, students and administrators across the nation, and national surveys of 382 college and university presidents and 355 chief student affairs officers conducted in 1989.

Among the survey findings:

•52 percent of the college presidents considered sexual harassment a "moderate" or "major" problem, and an additional 11 percent said they were working on one.

•Two-thirds of the presidents said their campus had a written policy on bigotry, and an additional 1 percent had considered a harassment policy.

•One out of four presidents said campus crime was a greater concern than a few years ago.

•Two-thirds of the presidents said alcohol abuse a "moderate" or "major" problem, and another 4 percent said they were working on it.

Presidents surveyed said they didn't yearn for the days when college had strict behavior rules. But many are confused about how to cope with social ills — how, for example, to combat bigotry without becoming censors.

Too many have "sought to sidestep rather than confront the issue," the report concluded.

Among the survey findings:

•Two-thirds of the presidents said racial tensions were a "moderate" or "major" problem, and 48 percent said the same of drug abuse, crime and bigotry.

•43 percent said campus crime had increased over the past five years.

•52 percent of presidents at research-oriented universities said sexual harassment was a "moderate" or "major" problem, and 48 percent said the same of drug abuse, crime and bigotry.

"Too many have sought to sidestep rather than confront the issue," the report concluded.

Among the survey findings:

•Two-thirds of the presidents said racial tensions were a "moderate" or "major" problem, and 48 percent said the same of drug abuse, crime and bigotry.

•43 percent said campus crime had increased over the past five years.

•52 percent of presidents at research-oriented universities said sexual harassment was a "moderate" or "major" problem, and 48 percent said the same of drug abuse, crime and bigotry.

"Too many have sought to sidestep rather than confront the issue," the report concluded.
Soviet Union unexpectedly boosts natural gas supply to Lithuania

MOSCOW (AP) — The Soviet Union unexpectedly eased part of its economic blockade against Lithuania, almost doubling the amount of natural gas flowing into the Baltic republic, Lithuania said Sunday.

Residents of the republic, which had independently declared itself March 11, organized a bicycle rally to show their defiance before the Kremlin's decision to shut off oil supplies. The republic's television and radio stations also planned to play Beethoven's Ninth Symphony as a symbol of hope and freedom.

Announcement of the sudden easing of the gas restriction came after both President Vytautas Landsbergis of Lithuania and a spokesman for President Mikhail S. Gorbatchev praised a proposed compromise to their dispute offered by France and West Germany. The two Western countries proposed Lithuania delay implementing its independence without rescinding the declaration itself.

"The Soviet Union has started supplying the fertilizer plant at Jonava, which practically stopped operating, with natural gas," said Valdis Vihrie.

"From the beginning of the blockade, Lithuania had been receiving 3.5 million cubic meters of natural gas per day. We need just as much for everyday household needs," it said in a statement.

Van de Kamp wins endorsement in recount

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Attorney General John Van de Kamp, who fell two votes short of winning the California Democratic Party endorsement for governor on April 8, has won 931 votes or 43.35 percent of the total vote in a recount, the party said Sunday.

After the state party staff conducted the recount, Van de Kamp worked with 395 votes or 40.08 percent of the total vote, the party said Saturday.

Van de Kamp had asked for a recount because he said there were irregularities.

"Mainstream Democrats from across the state voted to elect me and my campaign to change California through cleaning up the environment, cleaning up government and cleaning up our streets of drugs and crime," he said. "I am proud to be endorsed by the people who make up my party."

Van de Kamp had asked for a recount because he said there were irregularities of fraud and voting irregularities.

DISMISSAL

From page 10

"I think that they thought they could just go to the athletic director and bosh and expect something to happen like with the women's volleyball team," Beason said. "But it doesn't work like that. Sorry guys, but you goofed."
From page 5

Hohbach not only won the event, but also qualified for the National Championships. In the pole vault, Frank Burke's jump of 17 feet, 7 inches, raised him to a first place finish and set a personal best for him. Although he barely missed the school record of 18-11, Burke's effort placed him a near tie for second in the nation.

Chris Carter's putt of 52 feet, 1 1/4 inches, in the shot put was a personal best and one of the top marks in the conference this year.

In the 5000 meters, freshman Scott Hempel captured first place by running his fastest time ever. Tom Halaszynski and Steve Neumann each sprinted to new lifetime bests in the 400 meters and placed second and third, respectively.

In the 1500 meters, the men grabbed four of the top five places.

"Actually, it was one of the best meets we've had; the weather cooperated and the guys competed very well," Henderson said.

Campus Clubs

"CAL POLY ACCOUNTING CLUB" Holds scholarship preferences, Monday 11:00 a.m. at Bldg 241, freshmen welcome all. Business Council Elections May 7th.

"PACIFIC COAST LIMOUSINE" "PACIFIC COAST LIMOUSINE" For any special occasion, call 545-2577.

"DIET SUGAR" Diet sugar. Call 541-8550.

"COODE" COODE. Call 544-7717. Rents 50c, buys 10c.

"HORSE SENSE" Horse Sense. Call 544-7717. Rents 50c, buys 10c.

"CAL POLY SADDLERY" "CAL POLY SADDLERY" Rents 50c, buys 10c.

"CAL POLY SPORTS" CAL POLY SPORTS. Call 544-7717. Rents 50c, buys 10c.

"CAL POLY TRAVEL" CAL POLY TRAVEL. Call 544-7717. Rents 50c, buys 10c.

"CAL POLY WIND\" CAL POLY WIND\". Call 544-7717. Rents 50c, buys 10c.

"CAL POLY \"EAGLES\"" CAL POLY \"EAGLES\". Call 544-7717. Rents 50c, buys 10c.

"CAL POLY WIND\" CAL POLY WIND\". Call 544-7717. Rents 50c, buys 10c.

"CAL POLY WIND\" CAL POLY WIND\". Call 544-7717. Rents 50c, buys 10c.

"CAL POLY WIND\" CAL POLY WIND\". Call 544-7717. Rents 50c, buys 10c.

"CAL POLY WIND\" CAL POLY WIND\". Call 544-7717. Rents 50c, buys 10c.

"CAL POLY WIND\" CAL POLY WIND\". Call 544-7717. Rents 50c, buys 10c.

"CAL POLY WIND\" CAL POLY WIND\". Call 544-7717. Rents 50c, buys 10c.

"CAL POLY WIND\" CAL POLY WIND\". Call 544-7717. Rents 50c, buys 10c.

"CAL POLY WIND\" CAL POLY WIND\". Call 544-7717. Rents 50c, buys 10c.
Echeverria said he was surprised at the low voter turnout. Roughly 7 percent surprised at the results of the transition. "I think if we can give him some more?" he said. "We need more bottles."

Animal science junior Marie Lindsey said there were several members of Cal Poly's amrner radio club who came to the aid of rescue personnel in evacuating an injured man who had been unconscious for over half an hour.

"The ambulance couldn't get near the scene without being parked with rocks," she said. "They (radio club members) put a board under the victim and transported him by the hood of a jeep to safety. After contacting the medics on the radio, they met the ambulance."

The victim's identity and condition were unknown at press time.

Officials from the city and Cal Poly said that the police response has been "appropriate and measured." Cal Poly also expressed gratitude to the San Luis Obispo Police Department and outside agencies that assisted in riot control.

Scott Hight, Polv Royal Executive Team Superintendent, feels that these riots will tarnish the image of Poly Royal. Events during the day "went smoother then they ever have in the past," Hight said. "The biggest problem was lost children... but we had a response time (for reuniting parents and kids) of four minutes."

The PAC has demonstrated before it can raise substantial sums quickly. It had $5,400 on hand at the end of June 1989 but raised $460,000 in the second half of the year.

Most of that money, however, was spent on special congressional campaigns that failed. But not all Poly students had good intentions. One source, re¬ quested to remain anonymous, said she saw several Cuesta and Poly students participating in the riot.

"A girl staying at my house was throwing rocks," she said. "I don't know what more can you do?" she said. "This was very damaging for everyone.

Abortion rights group raises seven million more than Right to Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — The leading candidate for the National Abortion Rights Action League raised more than $300,000 in the first three months of this year, while the National Right to Life PAC raised $70,000, according to federal disclosure reports.

NARAL's PAC ended the quarter with $347,000 in the bank, compared with $51,000 for National Right to Life, according to Federal Election Commission records.

The lopsided pace of fund raising could end soon, however. An anti-abortion rally in Washington on Saturday attracted some 200,000 people, and the National Right to Life PAC is preparing to launch its annual direct mail campaign this spring.

The PAC has demonstrated before it can raise substantial sums quickly. It had $5,400 on hand at the end of June 1989 but raised $460,000 in the second half of the year.

Most of that money, however, was spent on special congressional campaigns that failed. But not all Poly students had good intentions. One source, re¬ quested to remain anonymous, said she saw several Cuesta and Poly students participating in the riot.

"A girl staying at my house was throwing rocks," she said. "I don't know what more can you do?" she said. "This was very damaging for everyone.

Abortion rights group raises seven million more than Right to Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — The leading candidate for the National Abortion Rights Action League raised more than $300,000 in the first three months of this year, while the National Right to Life PAC raised $70,000, according to federal disclosure reports.

NARAL's PAC ended the quarter with $347,000 in the bank, compared with $51,000 for National Right to Life, according to Federal Election Commission records.

The lopsided pace of fund raising could end soon, however. An anti-abortion rally in Washington on Saturday attracted some 200,000 people, and the National Right to Life PAC is preparing to launch its annual direct mail campaign this spring.

The PAC has demonstrated before it can raise substantial sums quickly. It had $5,400 on hand at the end of June 1989 but raised $460,000 in the second half of the year.

Most of that money, however, was spent on special congressional campaigns that failed. But not all Poly students had good intentions. One source, re¬ quested to remain anonymous, said she saw several Cuesta and Poly students participating in the riot.

"A girl staying at my house was throwing rocks," she said. "I don't know what more can you do?" she said. "This was very damaging for everyone.

Abortion rights group raises seven million more than Right to Life

WASHINGTON (AP) — The leading candidate for the National Abortion Rights Action League raised more than $300,000 in the first three months of this year, while the National Right to Life PAC raised $70,000, according to federal disclosure reports.

NARAL's PAC ended the quarter with $347,000 in the bank, compared with $51,000 for National Right to Life, according to Federal Election Commission records.

The lopsided pace of fund raising could end soon, however. An anti-abortion rally in Washington on Saturday attracted some 200,000 people, and the National Right to Life PAC is preparing to launch its annual direct mail campaign this spring.

The PAC has demonstrated before it can raise substantial sums quickly. It had $5,400 on hand at the end of June 1989 but raised $460,000 in the second half of the year.

Most of that money, however, was spent on special congressional campaigns that failed. But not all Poly students had good intentions. One source, re¬ requested to remain anonymous, said she saw several Cuesta and Poly students participating in the riot.

"A girl staying at my house was throwing rocks," she said. "I don't know what more can you do?" she said. "This was very damaging for everyone.