Students may pay to keep athletic programs at Poly

By Dan Shargel

Students will vote as early as winter quarter on a fee increase that, if approved, might save several sports teams from certain financial death.

The proposed five-year fee would amount to an additional $8 per student each quarter for the first three years, and $7 each quarter per student for the last two years, said Frank Lebens, a member of the Instructionally Related Activities board (IRA).

The IRA funds programs such as athletics, Mustang Daily, 91.3 KCPR campus radio, agricultural judging teams and other co-curricular programs.

Students currently pay $5 per quarter to fund the various IRA programs. About two-thirds of this money goes to athletics. Students also pay $4 in ASI fees for athletic scholarships.

If approved by the students, the board agreed that this would set a precedent in the California State University system because funding for athletics would come from the students in a predetermined amount.

"It commits in concrete what the athletic teams are going to get," rather than the IRA Advisory board setting the budget, said Shawn Reeves, IRA Board Chairman and ASI Vice President of Finance. If approved, the fee increase would fund the 17 IRA sports such as football and baseball, but not club sports, such as rugby and crew, which are partly funded by ASI, Reeves said Friday.

The IRA Board met Thursday to discuss the proposal. Eight of the 10 board members were present. Members included representatives from Student Affairs, Academic Affairs, the ASI Business Office and the Academic Senate.

Local poets recite works of struggle

Authors talk of racism, aging, sexism, AIDS

By Sabrina L. Garcia

Two local female poets read their stories and shared their thoughts of struggle, solitude and humor last week to an audience of about 120 students, staff members and friends in the Cal Poly Sandwich Plant.

Gloria Velasquez Trevino and Willi Coleman have read their works all over the world and each have won awards and honors.

Coleman, coordinator of Cal Poly's Center for Women and Ethnic Studies, is an African-American literature scholar and poet. Her Ph.D. dissertation at the University of California, Irvine was among her early ethnic works, called "Keeping the Faith and Disturbing the Peace: 19th century Afro-American women as social activists.

Coleman's poetry is mostly about black women. She usually read with a soft, breathy voice, but occasionally would switch to "Black English," as she called it.

"It's calls 'em as I sees 'em; I's 't a k a b o u t

"I am critical of the universe, and I talk about everybody (in my poems). I have no favorites, everybody is on my list — black men, white men, white women... they've all screwed over black women at one time or another. So if you don't hear yourself in my first few poems, stick around, I'll get to you.

Velasquez Trevino read three stories. One titled "The Fugitive," about a young boy who died of AIDS, was especially moving. It talked of God, angels and the AIDS tragedy. She read with great animation, and her writing painted vivid pictures in the minds of her audience.

"I am very pleased about reading here tonight," Velasquez Trevino said. "Mostly because of the audience — it is so diverse. I looked up and saw Afro-Americans, Chicanos and Anglos, and they are who the message in our writing is for. I'm feeling good; I don't know if Cal Poly is ready for our writing, but I'm very pleased," she said.

Computer science senior Dale Duncan said, "I liked listening to both Vel and Gloria. I know Willi personally, and I try to listen to her whenever she reads."
Letters to the Editor

'Obscene' is up to each person

On Oct. 9, a letter written by Mike Finkelstein appeared in Mustang Daily. He seemed to be very opinionated on the subject of obscenity as it relates to the first amendment of the Constitution.

He states, "One should also remember that religion is not protected by the first amendment, nor has it ever been.

That word is quite like the language of most when I make this statement.

The following is the text of the first amendment:

"The Congress shall make no law respecting an Establishment of Religion; nor prohibit the free exercise thereof; or abridge the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the government for a redress of grievances."

I don't see any mention of obscenity. What is this amendment for? Is there a need for a different interpretation?

Speech is communication of thoughts, ideas and feelings, whether by the path of voice or audio, visual or in some other form.

Obscenity is speech that some people consider offensive. Exactly what is obscene depends on who you talk to. It may have no problem at all with people using the term 'witty witc' in reference to women in society. I'm sure, but there are many people who would find this offensive.

The most of the people in Florida might even find 2 Live Crew's music obscene, but most of the people in Florida were not forced to buy or even listen to the said music. Therefore, people who were not freely purchased and listened to the music of 2 Live Crew were the only people who's definition of obscenity was relevant. If one doesn't like it, don't buy it.

In all likelihood will be very unpleasant.

Write to soldiers in Saudi Arabia

Many American men and women are serving in Saudi Arabia today. Waiting for something to happen; something that in all likelihood will be very unpleasant.

If war does not break out, our service people will still have to continue fighting the extreme boredom that is associated with the middle of a desert.

I have heard that in the military, especially during a crisis such as this, mail call means more to the soldiers and sailors than pay day.

Wilson insulates the Constitution

Senator Pete Wilson is co-sponsoring a bill in the U.S. Senate that flat-out defies what the Constitution establishes. That is, Senate Bill 2245 justifies illegal search and seizure as well as cruel and unusual punishment.

All this in the name of the senseless and corrupt "War on Drugs" that has cost the taxpayers millions in what should be considered theft of private revenue. The tradition of forced taxation to fund oppressive policies of the U.S. federal government must be tolerated no longer.

S 2245 suspends the judicial right of habeas corpus, the essence of the "immemorial" proven, guilty fundamental right. Upon arrest for a particular drug-related activity, the bail option to avoid unjust imprisonment is denied. This scenario becomes one of "cruel and unusual punishment". Now that's a crime.

S 2245 would, to forfeit federal funds to any educational institution that does not employ mandatory drug-testing. This includes public and private students, like yourself here at Cal Poly. There are measures in the bill to test school children as well.

Nations quarrel over asylum for general

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — Lebanon and France quarreled Sunday over the fate of Gen. Michel Aoun, whose 11-month mutiny in the Christian heartland was crushed by a Syrian-led military blitz. Aoun remained inside the French Embassy, where he fled during Saturday’s attack and was granted asylum.

Lebanese officials were insisting that the 55-year-old general remain in the country for possible trial on charges including the alleged theft of $75 million from the state treasury.

Staccato bursts of machine-gun fire echoed across the pine woods surrounding the shell-shattered presidential palace in the Christian suburb of Baabda. Helmeted Syrian troops searched the hills for supporters of the defeated general.

The final casualty toll from the eight-hour crackdown on Aoun’s enclave stood at 160 dead and 800 wounded, by police count.

The deaths included 32 Syrian soldiers killed and 85 wounded. Their bodies were brought Helms out in public.

Helms avoids media in congressional race

RALEIGH, N.C. (AP) — Democrat Harvey Gantt found a bright spot in President Bush’s recent campaign appearance on behalf of his GOP rival, Sen. Jesse Helms. It brought Helms out in public.

Helms refuses to debate Gantt, and the conservative GOP senator has been limiting his public appearances this year.

His distrust of the news media runs so deep that his campaign takes reporters’ questions only by fax machine. The answers are sent back the same way.

“The major papers in this state are biased, and they misquote and take out of context what our campaign says,” said Beth Burrus, Helms’ spokeswoman. “This is a way to keep them accountable.”

Helms often criticizes the “liberal media.” As in past campaigns, Helms has flooded the airwaves with television advertising.

However, the fax machine has been almost the only way for the news media to communicate with the Helms camp.

Gantt has criticized Helms’ reclusive campaign style.

The university gives three scholarships to students on the basis of scholastic achievement, character and financial need. "This year (1990-91) 30 scholarships were given for the Helen Sandercock and 20 were given for the William & Adelaide Scholarship," Dimmitt said. Each recipient is awarded $600.

The Helen V. Sandercock Scholarship is funded by the original $257,000 endowment. The second, her parents' scholarship, is funded by income from the building.

The property owned by Cal Poly is half of the original building that once housed Sandercock Transfer Co., said Mark Hall-Patton, director of the San Luis Obispo County Historical Museum.

The other half is now 852 Higuera, which is occupied by The Chocolate Bar candy store. Hall-Patton said that this building was one of the original buildings constructed when San Luis Obispo was developing in the 1860s and 1870s.

"It (Sandercock Transfer Co.) got to be one of the earliest businesses still functioning in this county," Hall-Patton said. In fact, Sandercock Transfer Co. is the oldest family-owned business in San Luis Obispo still operating.

Public records show that it is one of the oldest businesses still in operation in San Luis Obispo, second only to the Telegram-Tribune, which was founded in 1869.

"We originally handled things that were brought in by rail," said Ken Theming, general manager of Sandercock Transfer Co. "We hauled a lot of materials for the building of Hearst Castle."

Last week Cal Poly Plant Operations finished repair work at 856 Higuera. Workers replaced a wooden deck overing up a stairway and ramp leading down beneath the building to San Luis Creek.

"All the boards (on the old dock) were rotting," said Lorie Adoff.

In the old days of Sandercock Transfer Co., the walkway beneath the dock was used by people who walked their horses down the ramp to the creek to water them.

Mustangs battle warm weather, finish sixth at SLO Invitational

By Angie Carlevato

The Cal Poly Men's Cross Country team was definitely affected by the heat this weekend. But luckily for Head Coach Tom Henderson's third-ranked Mustangs (NCAA Division II), the rest of the field also was slowed by the warm conditions, and Poly finished in sixth place overall and third among collegiate teams in the 14th Annual SLO Invitational Saturday.

Cal Poly's top runner, sophomore Scott Hempel, placed ninth overall. "Scott ran real well despite the fact that he wasn't feeling great during the race," Henderson said. Hempel's time on the five-mile course was 24:46, just 28 seconds behind the winner, Danny Gonzalez of the Reebok Aggies. The only two collegiate runners finishing ahead of Hempel were Mitchell Sloan of the University of Southern California and Sonoma State's Mike Stone; both finished the five-mile course in 24:42.

Heat was a major factor in the race. Last year's finisher, Ivan Huff of the Reebok Aggies, won with a time of 23:28, more than a minute faster than Gonzalez' time this year, Henderson said. "The whole race was slower," he said. "The pack was unwilling to go out quick (because of the heat)."

Turnovers contribute to Mustang loss, 20-17

By Neil Pascale

At Mustang Stadium Saturday, the Cal Poly football team ended one streak and continued another one.

With nine seconds left in the game, Cal State Sacramento left the Mustangs and a crowd of more than 6,000 stunned with a winning 42-yard field goal to upset the Mustangs, 20-17.

The Western Football Conference (WFC) loss ends Cal Poly's six-game winning streak dating back to last season. The Mustangs are now 5-1 and 1-1 in the WFC.

The Hornets, meanwhile, beat Poly for the fifth consecutive year. Among those victories was a 21-13 win in 1987 that ended another Mustang six-game winning streak.

Poly's chance of a perfect 6-0 season start looked in order after the opening minutes of the first quarter.

It took only three offensive plays for the Mustangs to register their first — and only offensive — touchdown of the game.

Quarterback David LaFerty caught the Hornets blitzing and set up a screen pass to running back Joe Fragiadakis. After eluding a tackler at Sacramento's 30-yard line, Fragiadakis raced into the end zone for a 7-0 lead.

Less than two minutes later, Poly padded their lead to 14-0 when defensive end Pat Moore intercepted a pass and rambled 45 yards for the touchdown.

Sacramento, however, failed to fold as Head Coach Bob Mattos watched his Hornets come back. "We gave them a cheap one on that interception, and I think that's hard to overcome that kind of stuff," Mattos said. "If we could get out of that first quarter, I just thought we couldn't get rattled tonight."

The Hornets did better than just survive the first quarter — they nearly tied the game. In fact with one minute gone in the second quarter, Sacramento evened the score when Hornets' quarterback Randy Payne hit tight end David Booth with a 6-yard touchdown pass.

Sacramento's first touchdown came in the first quarter when Hornets' quarterback Randy Payne hit tight end David Booth with a 6-yard touchdown pass.

Hire propels Poly past Master’s

Senior striker scores twice in shutout victory

By Grant Landy

Tim Hire likes to score goals.

The ups and downs of the Cal Poly men’s soccer team have been marked by an inconsistent force so far this season: Hire’s ability to put the ball in the net.

The senior striker added two more goals to his team-leading six, propelling the Mustangs to a 3-0 victory over Master’s College Friday night in Mustang Stadium.

Since being moved from the midfield to forward by Head Coach Wolfgang Gartner, Hire has scored five goals in the last six games.

"I’m much happier up front,” Hire said. “I like to put the ball in the net."

Hire and the Mustangs struck early Friday night against a physical Master’s College team. Only four minutes into the match, midfielder Mike Black blasted a shot from the right side of the penalty box that was deflected by Master’s defender and goalkeeper Allan Bowden. The ball came out to the middle of the penalty box to an oncoming Hire, who beat Bowden on his right side to put the Mustangs up 1-0.

The first half was marred by fouls against both teams, including the center referee’s distribution of three yellow cards and one red card. With five minutes to go in the half, the referee awarded a red card to Master’s College midfielder Chris Palm for unsportsmanlike conduct.

Junior defender Jim Murphy (in white) helped the Mustang defense shut down Master’s College in a 3-0 win Friday.

Finishing second for Cal Poly and 34th overall was Scott’s twin brother, Matt, with a time of 25:29.

"It’s good to have Matt move closer to the front,” Henderson said. After the Mustangs’ last meet in Riverside, Henderson said he’d like to see the gap closed between Scott Hempel and the team’s number two runner. Close behind Matt Hempel was sophomore Bill Davison placing 38th with a time of 25:34.

Benny Grant from the Gardena Valley Runners helped his team take first-place honors, placing second overall with a time of 24:23. Another club team, Artian, was second and the Boesk Aggies were third.

"Obviously, the clubs were the class of the meet,” Henderson said. "Ten of the top 15 (finishers) were from clubs.”

Fresno State led all universities, finishing fourth with 136 points, followed by UC Irvine.

Henderson said that by pulling out the club teams' finishers, he could assess how his squad compared with the best collegiate teams.

to be conscious of and responsible for your drinking. According to Gallup polls "no other U.S. population has a larger proportion of drinkers than college students."

- In our colleges you can easily forget that alcohol is actually a drug. After all, alcohol is a legal (for those 21 or older), and you can buy it almost everywhere. But, it is the cause of the number one drug problem in the country today.

- Nearly two out of five of the nation's 13 million college students are alcohol abusers. This means they admit to having drunk to the point of vomiting or to having driven while drunk. Alcohol is involved in the highest number of substance-related campus problems, including injuries, property damage, unwanted pregnancies, sexually transmitted diseases and accidents. Alcohol-related traffic accidents are the leading cause of death for young Americans. Someone dies as a result of drunk driving every 22 minutes. Also, problem alcohol use in college interferes with interpersonal relationships, good health and academic performance. And chances are that these students will join the estimated 45 million Americans who are alcoholics.

Robin Wilson, president of California State University Chico, had a lot to say at a recent Intercollegiate Forum in San Diego. Wilson discussed being on a campus which has a liberal drinking tradition and a reputation as a "party school." He spoke of "the culture that celebrates drunkenness." He said "our problem was, and is, simply too damn much booze. That's the norm folks — too damn much beer." With this view Wilson has taken a very early and aggressive approach to confronting the problem. He has suggested denying parking permits to students with DUl (driving under the influence) convictions and informing parents of students involved with drinking. He has successfully passed resolutions withdrawing campus recognition and funding of any student organization involved in alcohol-related violence, he has created an alcohol-free campus (faculty and staff functions included), and he has banned any type of alcohol sponsorship or advertising on campus. At the same time, he has increased funding for alcohol education and established a Campus and Drug Education Center. The Alcohol and Drug Abuse Peer Educators believe that it is time for Cal Poly to take a look at the role of alcohol on its campus. Although we are acknowledged as a "dry" campus, we are really?" The impact of the drunken riots during Poly Royal is still felt. Let's confront the issues on our own campus now.

According to Wilson, "No campus would ever allow the fact that drinking too much and throwing up in the residences and getting into fights and abusing one another would be a major class assignment and flunking out of school and wasting their parents' money and their own investment of time and the investment of the state of California, which is very considerable — that unbridled intoxication — just plain isn't cool."
