ASI postpones state budget bill

Confusion over fees, CSU funds still unresolved

By Kathy Kenney

The ASI Board of Directors postponed two resolutions Wednesday night because of confusion about student fees and budget cuts in the California State University system.

Resolutions 91-03 and 91-04 were introduced to the Board last week in response to budget cuts by the state legislature in the California State University system.

Mark Denholm, ASI Chairman of the Board, said resolution 91-03 was postponed because the Board wanted to add a couple of amendments and make the resolution more specific. He said that there was also confusion about some of the wording in the resolution and that there were doubts if the intent of the resolution was worded correctly, he said.

Most of the confusion centers on the part of resolution 91-03 which says that $11.8 million raised from an increase in CSU student fees is being used in the state's General Fund for general services. The resolution asks the state legislature to reallocate 100 percent of the fee increase to the CSU system in the 1991-92 budget.

An official from the CSU Chancellor's office, however, said last week that the money that is collected from student fees is already earmarked for the CSU's portion of the General Fund.

Denholm said that even though money from the fee increase goes back to the CSU system, the state legislature is still making cuts in CSU funds. The state legislature knows it can make CSU budget cuts, he said, because of the increase in student fees.

There also may be a few changes to resolution 91-04, Denholm said, which calls for a statewide grassroots media campaign to inform people about the need for the reallocation of funds back into the budget for higher education. He said those changes may include local radio stations and more newspapers as targets for the campaign.

Both resolutions, Denholm said, will be voted on next week.

The ASI Board also postponed a motion from the Union Executive Committee (UEC) recommending the on-campus placement of a Wells Fargo automatic teller machine.

The UEC would like to install the machine on campus provided there is a location for it.

Den Hofer, ASI vice president (Halloween) was mid-week this year.

The conclusion of most of the deputies was that this was one of the calmest Halloweens in recent years," said Tom Gracey, public information officer for the Santa Barbara Sheriff's Department.

"It's probably because it (Halloween) was mid-week this year," Gracey said. Therefore, many out-of-towners came only for the weekend nights and did not remain in Santa Barbara for Halloween.

Gracey said approximately 15,000 revelers roamed the streets of Isla Vista on Halloween night.

Approximately 200 people were arrested, most for alcohol-related violations, he said. Most were cited and released, while 77 were booked on various charges.

The total number of arrests for Friday, Saturday and Halloween Wednesday was about 330, Gracey said.

Over the weekend there were approximately 320 arrests, Gracey said. One serious weekend injury occurred when a male partier fell from a 70-foot cliff. He remained in Goleta Valley Hospital on Thursday.

Police estimated that 20,000 people roamed the streets of Isla Vista Friday and Saturday nights.

Isla Vista's famous Halloween bash lost a little of its riotous nature this year.

"Cal Poly is on the cutting edge of volunteer programs," said a coordinator of the Student Community Service (SCS) network at Cal Poly last week.

"Volunteerism began as a trend of the '90s to propel us out of the 'me' generation of the '80s," Tom Jackson Jr. said.

Jackson oversees the residence hall community service program called Adopt-an-Agency. The nine residence halls work with 13 different charity organizations, assisting them in fundraising, special events and donating labor for various projects.

Glen Breden, a biological sciences freshman, is the student community services coordinator for Tenaya Hall. Breden and fellow Tenaya residents work with the Economic Opportunity Commission Homeless Shelter. He said they will be participating in the Night-on-the-Streets program on Nov. 15.

This will be the third year of the Night-on-the-Streets program. The premise of the event, said Breden, is to have students go out on the streets from 6 p.m. to 6 a.m. the following day. Legalizing drugs will help U.S.

On Wednesday you printed an editorial which, although those opposing drug prohibition may have the facts isn’t ready for drug legalization yet and to call for an end to the drug war “is a foolish thing to do.”

I only wish your editorial was as suspicious of the status quo as it was a proposal for change. Your editorial speculated that if drugs were legal, American junkies might become a huge cash crop, drug use would be widespread and more people would be crime in the cities and dysfunctional families.

I hate to rain on your parade, folks, but we all have these problems already. The drug war hasn’t helped. In fact it has caused far more problems than it has solved.

The drug war has turned a pastime which is arguably unwise and unhealthy to an individual sport, which has led it into a cancer, rotting out the heart of our culture and civilization.

The drug war is killing people. People who die in drug-funded gang killings are casualties of the drug war. People who die from overdoses and all sorts of drugs because no measured legal alternatives exist are casualties of the drug war.

Other casualties of the drug war are freedom and justice. Searches and seizures based on anonymous tip, police detention of property with the burden of proof resting with the accused, police ‘no knock’ raids, drug raids alone breaching doors and terrorizing innocent citizens are what the drug war has brought us.

You say that to call for an end to drug prohibition before the country is ready is a foolish thing to do. I ask how many more people must die and how much further our civil liberties be whittled away before we start casting a skeptical eye on drug prohibition.

The status quo is not worth defending. The drug war, not illegal drugs, is the problem. Legalization, not prohibition, is the solution.

Be responsible when choosing.

I feel that people should have the choice, whether or not to wear seatbelts and motorcycle helmets. I also believe, however, that we should probably be required to choose as to whether we want to pay the bill for medical stays and extended life support.

I personally couldn’t care less if someone is stupid enough to use a motor vehicle without adequate measures of protection, but if they are in an accident they shouldn’t expect the government to limit my choice as to whether they receive medical attention at taxpayers’ and in surance holders’ expense.

So, if people accept the financial responsibility of their right of choice, more power to them. If they can’t afford their own medical expenses, I still support their right of choice. If they get into an accident, however, they shouldn’t come crying to me. I have no money to pay for it.

Media should not blame Israel

This letter is in regards to Steve Jones’ commentary “U.S. should vacate the Middle East” (Nov. 1) and to most of the American media that has covered a story on the Middle East.

First off, I would like to say that I am in agreement with Steve’s viewpoint of evacuation, and I agree that it is time that we learn form mistakes of the past (Vietnam) and apply our knowledge to the future before our brothers and sisters come home broken. Although I would also like to argue this point, it is not the reason I am writing this letter.

I am writing in reference to Steve’s use of Israel as an analo­ gy to compare the occupancy of Kuwait to Israel’s occupancy of the West Bank. I truly wish the media would stop labeling Israel as an “aggres­sive” until they explain the background of the country. I say this because if you know Israeli history, you would know that Israel did not invade the West Bank out of the blue. They were first invaded by the surrounding Arab nations and in the heat of defense, pushed the Arab nations back, in protection of their country.

Now as far as Israeli intentions of making peace, I believe they are legitimate (especially after the return of the Sinai to the Egyptians in trade for peace) Now, I am not saying the Israelis have not made their mistakes, but the Arab nations have also, and I think the media has not been aware of the Israeli viewpoint as well as the Arab viewpoint.

So be the media of our own people and not allow them to explain both sides of the story, and let Americans judge for themselves. After all, plenty of Israelis have met their fate in this conflict. But, of course, we won’t have to hear about them, will we?

Forest workers spot rare tigers in China

BEIJING (AP) — Forest workers recently spotted a Manchurian tiger and cub in the wild, ending a three-year controversy over whether the animal has survived in China's forests, the Xinhua News Agency reported Thursday.

The tigers were seen on the northern slope of Mount Changbai in northeast Jilin province. Zoologists estimated that only 30 Manchurian tigers roamed the region's wooded mountains by the early 1980s due to hunting and destruction of their range by farmers and foresters.

About 100 Manchurian tigers live in Chinese zoos. About 300 survive in the wild, according to the China Wildlife Protection Association.

Affirmative action candidate:
Give me support or forget it

By Dan Shargel

If he doesn't get strong sup­port from the administration, then he doesn't want the job, said the sixth candidate for af­firmative action director Wed­nesday at an open forum.

If chosen as director, "I'd be here to have an impact," Antonio Garcia said. "So if the position is just a window-dressing, then I don't want the job."

Garcia said that as director he would need support from the president, vice-president, deans, department heads and faculty for affirmative action to be suc­cessful. He said he sensed the president was sincere about his desire for a successful affir­mative action program.

This drew laughter from the 20 faculty and staff members at the forum. One faculty member told Garcia that he must have had a communication problem some­where to believe that. Garcia then said that if support was not demonstrated to him in concrete ways, he was not interested in the job.

Spikers lose to San Jose State, Santa Clara on northern swing

At 12-18, Poly probably won’t make playoffs

By Katie Cooper

The light at the end of the playoff tunnel is becoming dimmer for Cal Poly’s women’s volleyball team. The team lost two on the road this week against Santa Clara University and San Jose State, making any chances of post-season play for the 12-18 Mustangs close to nonexistent.

Tuesday, the Mustangs lost to the Bronco in four games 11-15, 15-9, 11-15, 4-15. Sophomore outside hitter Lulie Perstrom led the team with a .267 hitting average and 11 kills. Jennifer Jeffrey followed with 10 kills. Surprisingly, middle blocker Jill Myers hit for a negative hitting average of .182.

Santa Clara’s statistics were not very impressive with a team hitting average of .144. Santa Clara’s Genie Holmes had by far the team’s highest hitting average with .355.

Wednesday, the Mustangs were crushed by San Jose in one hour 15-7, 15-3, 15-9. San Jose’s record for the season after this match is 17-4; the Spartans are the ninth-ranked team in the nation.

The Mustangs had only 21 kills for the match and hit a dismal .208. Sonja Van Winden led the Mustang team with eight kills, a hitting average of .402, 13 attempts, four blocks (of the team’s six for the match) and two errors.

San Jose State had a phenomenal hitting average of .390 for the night.

Cal Poly has the weekend off and will play 10th-ranked Pepperdine in Mott Gym on Tuesday.

Men’s Soccer vs. Chapman. Head coach Wolfgang Gart­ner’s squad, 10-6-2 (5-1-1 in league) must win this game in order to stay in contention for the NCAA Division II playoffs which will begin next week. The Panthers bring a 24-1 record into Mustang Stadium including an 0-7 mark in the California Collegiate Athletic Association. On Wednesday, Cal State Bakersfield thread the Panthers 9-0, so if you’re into high-scoring games, this one could be your ticket for the weekend. Kickoff is at 7 p.m.

Saturday, November 3

Football at CSU North­ridge. The season has boiled down to one game for head coach Lyle Setenceh’s Mustangs and the Matadors. The scenario is simple. If Poly wins, they will share the Western Football Conference title with Northridge, but the Mustangs will probably qualify for the NCAA Division II playoffs ahead of Northridge because they will have beaten them earlier in the season. If they lose, it wins the WFC outright and ventures to the playoffs regardless of what they do against Long Beach State in the last week of the season.

Both teams are 7-1 overall; the Mustangs have not won eight games in a season since 1980 when they went 10-3 — three of those wins were in the post-season, though. Kickoff is at 7 p.m. and will be broadcast live on KVEQ radio (905 AM).

Women’s Cross Country at Western Regionals at UC Riverside. First-year head coach Deanne Johnson will look to her team to dominate at Regionals in the same man­ner it did at the California Col­legiate Athletic Association championships last weekend. Last Saturday, the top-ranked Mustangs scored an almost­ perfect 15 points in winning the OCAA. Johnson’s team is the favorite for both the regionals and the nationals, which will be held in two weeks.

Women’s Cross Country at Western Regionals at UC Riverside. After a disappoint­ing one-point loss to CSU Northridge at last year’s regionals, the Mustangs will do battle with Humboldt State, Sonoma State and Cal Poly Pomona for this year’s regional crown. Head coach Tom Henderson’s team, which won the OCAA last week, is ranked third in the nation.

Women’s Soccer vs. Loyola Marymount. The Mustangs are hoping to rebound from a 1-0 loss to UCLA last weekend. Head coach Keith Coleman’s team is 10-2-2 overall and 8-1-1 in the California Collegiate Women’s Soccer Conference. The Mustangs lost their leading scorer, Kate Burel, who was injured last weekend against the Bruins, but for­wards Jill Dickson, Michelle Milton and Karl Fink should provide the goal scoring for the team. Poly tied the Lions 0-0 earlier in the year. Game time is 11 a.m. at Mustang Stadium.

Sunday, November 4

Women’s Soccer vs. Long Beach State. After a 9-0 win against the Bruins a few weeks ago, the Mustangs will be looking for an easy time in the confines of Mustang Stadium. Kickoff is set for 10 a.m.

Men’s Soccer vs. UC Santa Barbara. This will be the final regular-season home game for the Mustangs in 1990. The team already may know its future in terms of post-season play. Kickoff is at 5 p.m. in Mustang Stadium.

"They aren't necessarily sleeping," Braden said. "If they want to sleep they'll have to find some spot downtown. Finding a spot to sleep will be a learning experience in itself.

Student community services coordinators also will be working to make sure that the problems of previous years don't come up, namely that the homeless people aren't offended by the students.

Last year some homeless people felt they were being molested, be said.

"We will be working to make this as serious as possible," Braden said. "We want to integrate the students with the homeless people and talk with each other."

Braden said Tenaya residents also have volunteered themselves for projects such as cleaning out the shelter and constructing a new entrance way to the shelter. Much of the volunteers' value, he said, is in the labor they can provide to such charities.

Dede Olsen of the B.O.R. Ranch in San Luis Obispo said their organization would not survive without the volunteer labor of different groups such as Cal Poly's Muir Hall.

"The B.O.R. Ranch," Olsen said, "is a non-profit organization that provides a therapeutic ranch experience for physically, mentally and developmentally disabled individuals."

Olsen volunteers from Muir Hall will help with general upkeep of the ranch, cutting weeds and doing repairs.

"With three people on our regular staff and 14 acres of land," Olsen said, "the help of volunteers is essential."

Katrice Rose, an aeronautical engineering freshman and SCS coordinator for Muir Hall, said, "Like all the other residence halls, we try to balance the serious work days with the fun activities when helping the organizations."

One of the fun programs took place Wednesday evening when Muir Hall put on a Halloween carnival for the kids and parents from the ranch.

"We had games like pin-the nose-on-the-pumpkin and a pinata," she said. "You could tell by the kids' faces that they were excited and having a fun time. We had a great time too," she said.

The goal was to provide a safe Halloween for these kids, Rosen Brock said. They were looking forward to trick-or-treating in Muir Hall. "We had 30 kids participating in this," she said.

Santa Lucia Hall residents sold coupons for Halloween "safe treats" to benefit their agency, the Easter Seals Foundation.

Shayna Rayner, a social science freshman and SCS coordinator for Santa Lucia Hall said that the coupons could be redeemed for products around San Luis Obispo, and the money raised goes directly to the charity.

Rayner said that Santa Lucia Hall and all of the other halls will be participating in the Skip-a­Meal program Nov. 14. Students from the residence halls are asked to skip a meal that day, and the money saved by these skip­peared meals will be given to the Easter Seals.

Other residence halls' adopted charities include St. Jude's Ranch and the Women's Shelter and the Rape Crisis Center. Student House is assisting in the Special Olympics and Trinity Hall working with the Friendship School and the Hospice of San Luis Obispo County.

Many students," said Christine Tindell, coordinator of student development for Sequoia Hall, "are interested in volunteering but don't know how to get involved. The student community service network for the residence halls may be quite a bit easier.

Not only are the organizations benefiting but the students get a lot out of it."
Winged Beauties...

Professor Dennis Frey's Zoology 437 animal behavior class captured and marked about 500 monarch butterflies Thursday at a eucalyptus grove near Pismo Beach. Frey estimated that there are close to 20,000 monarchs "over-wintering" at this grove, the third largest assemblage of monarchs in the state. These winged beauties are conserving energy for their March breeding frenzy.

By marking the wings of the insects, their migration can be monitored as they travel from as far away as Canada to California's west coast.

Another arrest was made when a man attacked a mounted officer.

As for injuries, the only incident was a young female partier who fell off a balcony. She was released from Goleta Valley Hospital and her condition Thursday morning was unknown.

"It was fun, but a lot more mellow this year," said Erin Jacobs, a Cal Poly industrial engineering junior. She said students probably did not drink on Halloween because they were burnt out from weekend parties.

But that wasn't the only reason. "The students were really bitter at the cops," Jacobs said. It was "police overkill," she said. "Every two houses they would be standing in a yard. Even if you lived there and showed proof of residency, the police wouldn't let you in."
