A 'unity in values' is shared by members of Delta Sigma Theta.

By Amy Koval
Staff Writer

Members of Delta Sigma Theta always had told that because of demographics, theirs or any other black sorority would never survive at Cal Poly. But now they're proving this assertion wrong.

Delta Sigma Theta, a historically — but not exclusively — black sorority at Cal Poly, was rechartered last month after officially becoming inactive in the 1987-88 academic year. An internationally-based sorority, Delta Sigma Theta first sprung up at Cal Poly in 1979. Since then, the group has sunk and resurfaced more than a few times.

But common values among members coupled with Cal Poly's attempt to increase ethnic diversity on campus may be the key to Delta Sigma Theta's potentially long life.

"Other predominantly black sororities are established on campus, including Alpha Kappa Alpha and Zeta Phi Beta, but with memship not reaching six per group, their chances for being chartered are dashed," said Cal Poly's Director of Student Affairs Hazel Scott serving as its advisor. Delta Sigma Theta is now eight members strong — one more than the minimum membership necessary for a chartered sorority.

The group said it is optimistic that interest in the sorority will increase, and Delta Sigma Theta President Marcie Hampton stressed that this group is "not just a sorority — we maintain a group of upholding the community through service."

"We're a public service sorority," said Alondra Thompson, chapter treasurer. "We're involved politically, and we try to help the underrepresented in the community."

In order to be considered for membership, a 2.5 GPA is required as well as experience in community service. The minimum GPA is expected to be maintained quarterly.

Among the services Delta Sigma Theta is offering to the community, one is through community service. The mini-

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Daily must give equal coverage

I did not have a chance to fill out the questionnaire about how Mustang Daily is doing, however, I thought a letter about my concerns would be a better way to express myself.

There has been a lot of good publicity in Mustang Daily about the School of Agriculture’s open house this past weekend. However, your coverage of Engineering Week activities on February 20-23 was seriously lacking publicity.

The articles present were found on almost every page, except the front page. Also, some articles were written about the events that are not in the article about Engineering Day in the Mall. We really needed a lot of support for this event from the students.

I am not stating that one school should have more coverage than another (by proximity to school of interest). The School of Engineering would have more coverage. However, I feel that equal coverage should be given to all schools.

Replace articles about who asked for deals with constructive articles about the events.

Mustang Daily should be a school newspaper, not a gossip column.

Sex, race must not be an issue

In response to Joe Engar’s letter (May 6), I would like to add one thing that he overlooked — discrimination on the basis of sex.

I am a female in a male-dominated major and was probably given extra points during my admission application review. I will always wonder if I deserved entrance into Cal Poly. Don’t get me wrong. I’m not saying it was accepted, but it would be nice to know that I was accepted solely on academic merit and extracurricular activities at the high school or junior college level.

One suggestion to this “problem” is to completely omit ethnic background and sex questions on the application form for admission. This would eliminate discrimination (or reverse discrimination) on the basis of race, color and sex.

To increase the number of underrepresented students at Cal Poly, an “outreach” program could be implemented to encourage minorities to apply for admission. This is currently being done by several clubs on campus, and I don’t see any reason why other clubs can’t do the same thing.

THE CALIFORNIA STATE UNIVERSITY BOARD OF TRUSTEES defined convention last month when it named Texas corporate raider Barry Munitz chancellor of the massive corporation which is also the largest state university system in the nation.

The accepted wisdom in choosing political appointees for the last 10 years has been to pick the best man or woman for the job, but the one who is the least controversial. This trend was at work on the national level when Congress passed on two highly-qualified applicants to the Supreme Court — Robert Bork and Douglas Ginsberg — because they had records of speaking out and taking stands on controversial issues. Finally, Congress accepted Anthony Kennedy, who had an impeccable, if somewhat bland, background.

President Bush took a lesson from that fiasco and appointed David Souter to the high court. Nobody had heard of Souter, and that is exactly why he was picked. He had not said or done any thing, so he could not have offended anybody. And the ultimate nobody-from-nowhere selection was the vice president, Dan Quayle. His primary qualification was that there were no skeletons in his closet for the press to find.

Many people feel this policy of appointing noncontroversial candidates to head the country’s top institutions is detrimental to the general good. The best and the brightest are being disqualified for the top appointments because they have been active, visible and controversial. The people who win appointments seem to have had no experience or achievements of their own.

Barry Munitz has had a life. He is not a nobody from nowhere. Munitz is a high-powered businessman, based in Texas, whose company’s power extends at least to both coasts. Munitz’s position is extremely complicated, but put simply he is number-two man to Charles Hurwitz, who was described by the Houston Chronicle as the biggest corporate raider in Houston. Hurwitz owns or controls a long list of companies, and Munitz holds leadership titles in most of them. Barrons magazine describes Hurwitz as the quintessential cut-and-slash raider who acquires the companies, and Munitz as the diplomat who runs them.

Munitz has been portrayed as an intellectual, with tact and a good reputation, smooths the way for Hurwitz’s greedy will to be done.

Hurwitz’s main holding company is Federated Development Co., of which Munitz is president and chief executive officer. One of Federated’s largest holdings is Maxxam Inc., of which Hurwitz is chairman and Munitz is vice chairman.

Maxxam owns about two dozen companies, including Kaiser Aluminum, Pacific Lumber and failed S&L, United Savings and Loan of Texas (USA). In the economically heady days of the mid-80s, Maxxam made wild, and possibly illegal, deals to finance the hostile takeovers of these companies. First, Maxxam hooked up with Michael Milken, who is now in prison, and his junk bond company, Drexel Burnham Lambert. Milken wrapped up about $1.8 billion to help Maxxam buy out Kaiser and Pacific Lumber.

Maxxam has been called before Congress and federal courts to answer allegations that it acquired Pacific Lumber illegally through a system of buying-up stock in the company before a hostile takeover, called “stock parking.” As soon as Maxxam got the company, it stripped them of their assets. It cashed in pension funds, closed plants and stepped-up clearcutting in the Northern California forests.

To repay Milken for his help in financing the takeovers, Maxxam bought nearly $1 billion in Drexel junk bonds through Maxxam-controlled USAit. The Texas S&L failed, and taxpayers bailed out the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation-insured accounts in 1988 to the tune of $1.4 billion. At the time it was the nation’s fifth-largest S&L failure.

Maxxam’s business practices in these deals have been called into question in dozens of lawsuits. The FDIC and others have charged Hurwitz and Maxxam with a number of federal crimes.

For many Californians, what is worse than Maxxam’s greedy business deals is the company’s involvement in clearcutting the state’s forests. Pacific Lumber is one of the largest holders of old-growth redwood forests in California. When Maxxam took over Pacific Lumber in 1985, it doubled the lumber output of the company and instituted clearcutting instead of logging to preserve the tall forests of 500- to 1000-year-old trees.

China frees activist, stops prison exports

BELGIAN (AP) — China, which is seeking renewed trade privileges with the United States, has reportedly promised to stop exporting prison-made goods to the United States and released a jailed labor activist.

The moves come amid growing pressure in the United States to withdraw China’s most-favored-nation trade status to punish the Beijing government for human rights violations and trade practices that are deemed unfair.

The trade status, which grants Chinese imports the lowest possible tariffs, comes up for renewal next month. Some U.S. lawmakers have proposed canceling it or attaching provisions to assure that Beijing ends imprisonment of prisoners who have been convicted of economic crimes.

Robber has difficulty with paper bag mask

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (AP) — An inept robber who wore a paper bag over his head may still be using the disguise out of embarrassment.

The bag had holes cut in it so the robber could see, but it shifted during the attempted holdup, leaving the man in the dark, Chur­lal’s Supermarket clerk Keeck Dore said Tuesday.

When he moved the bag back into place it ripped, exposing the face of a regular cus­mer.

The man demanded “Give me the register.” Ms. Dore said she wasn’t sure if that meant he wanted the whole register or just the money inside.

Accident victim gets own donated blood

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) — A woman donated blood, knowing it probably would be given to an accident victim. She turned out to be that victim.

Cheron McGeuffy, 29, suffered severe inju­ries in an April 30 traffic accident. When McGeuffy heard her doctors talking about a transfusion, she mentioned that she had donated blood the day before.

The blood was found in 30 minutes, said Trudy Sullivan of a Portland blood bank.

People often bank their own blood for planned surgery, but Sullivan said she had never heard of any donors who received emergency transfusions of their own blood.

Tornado causes more damage in Bangladesh

DHAKA, Bangladesh (AP) — With low­land areas still reeling from last week’s devastating cyclone, storms brought new misery to Bangladesh as a tornado left at least 50 people dead and leveled 15 villages, government newpapers reported today.

For seven minutes Tuesday evening, the powerful twister destroyed schools, houses and small factories around Tongi, 20 miles north of Dhaka, reports said. Latest figures indicate that at least 1,200 people were in­jured.

Officials released no casualty figures from the tornado. But the government-owned Dainik Bangla newspapers said 50 people died and 1,200 were hurt. Other newspapers reported lower death tolls ranging from 16 to 25.

Killer of four women gets life imprisonment

LOS ANGELES (AP) — The killer of four women during a birthday party bloodbath was sentenced Wednesday to prison for life, without the possibility of parole.

“I’m happy that he is forever removed from the community,” Deputy District Attor­ney Victor Davidsen said after Superior Court Judge Michael Tynan sentenced Raymond Navarro Jr.

Navarro, 28, was convicted of four counts of murder, two counts of attempted murder and multiple murder special circumstances allegations. He was also convicted of break­ing into the home where the shootings oc­curred.

Man drives 400 miles before reporting crime

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — The bodies of a woman and her young son were discovered in an apartment here after her boyfriend drove nearly 400 miles to Orange County and reported he had found them dead, officials said.

The boyfriend, Khanh Quoc La, 26, of Garden Grove, told police he drove to San Jose because he was worried about his girlfriend, who was not answering the phone.

When La arrived at her apartment, he let himself in with a key and found the bodies, he told police.

“Once he shook her and realized she wasn’t waking up, he got scared and was afraid someone might still be there,” Westminster Police Lt. Bob Burnett said.

La then drove to Orange County, where he notified police.

Cheron McGuffey, 29, suffered severe injuries in the tornado. But the government-owned Dainik Bangla newspapers said 50 people died and 1,200 were hurt. Other newspapers reported lower death tolls ranging from 16 to 25.

2,000-year-old redwoods. What galled many environmentalists further was that the profits from plundering California’s forests went straight back east to pay for Maxxam’s questionable stock ventures.

Maxxam clearly has been involved in greedy, unethical business practices, and Hurwitz is paying for it. His business is in deep trouble, and he still has legal problems. But what about Munitz? Is he responsible, for what went on at Maxxam?

The popular notion since Munitz was named CSU chancellor is that he was just another vote on Maxxam committees. What went on at Maxxam? How is Munitz connected with these business deals? Can we easily brush aside the fact that Munitz was controversial, an unlikely choice because of his background? Before Munitz’s appointment, the chairman of the Assembly Higher Education Committee, ultra-liberal Tom Hayden, called on Munitz to answer for his involvement in Pacific Lumber deals. Yet after closed-door interviews with Hurwitz, Hayden turned around and followed the Board of Trustees in supporting Munitz. Of the finalists for the chancellorship, Munitz was by far the most controversial, which is why the Board of Trustees’ decision went against accepted wisdom. The board’s decision is all the more important because it is clear that the CSU was faced with a crisis and was forced to make a choice between TX601 and TX715 on the fifth floor.

Cal Poly ‘Hopes’ for many laughs

By Amy Reardon
Staff Writer

Entertainer Bob Hope will perform in Mustang Stadium for Mother’s Day.

He has been called the “King of Comedy” and “Mr. Entertainment” and was even named the “Entertainer of the Century.”

Bob Hope said he loves to perform for students. “I’ve played so many colleges. They’ve all been great. “Students are a good audience. They’ve educated. They’ve got fresh ideas, and they know the events of the day,” said Hope. “So when Cal Poly asked me to come, I said yes.”

Hope said he will have a lot to say about San Luis Obispo and Cal Poly. “I get a fact sheet on the college and San Luis Obispo.”

Hope said he will use this information to localize his act. He said his routine will also contain the “regular things like current events, whatever is happening in the world.”

Because his performance falls on Mother’s Day, Hope said, “I’ve got a few special things to talk about.”

“I’m glad to do Mother’s Day. I’m going to talk about my own mother. She’s a very special lady.”

Hope, a legendary song and dance man, has been entertaining on radio and television for 54 years.

Hope spoke of two lessons he has learned over the years. He said, “It’s hard to come up with something great,” and “a good audience has got to have a sense of humor.”

When Hope first began entertaining, he was forced to play second billing to a trained seal in vaudeville.

He went on to become a vaudeville headliner, achieve big success in radio and on Broadway, and appear in 60 motion pictures.

Hope is famous for being a master showman who thrives on his audience. He said he just signed his 42nd annual television contract with NBC. Before television, he worked 12 years with NBC radio. He said he feels lucky to have been so successful in the entertainment industry for so long.

This year, President Bush awarded Hope the Lifetime Achievement Award, honoring Hope for more than 50 years of entertaining.

“But I’ll keep performing forever,” he said.

Hope has been making overseas tours to entertain servicemen since 1941, including a tour to Saudi Arabia to visit the Gulf War troops last December.

“It was a thrilling thing to be in the middle of the desert and look at all those faces,” he said. “I was very glad to see that it ended so quickly and that so few

Local artist compares ancient, modern day ‘greeks’ on canvas

In Aphrodite a member of Alpha Phi?

Is Aphrodite a member of Alpha Phi? Probably not, but the newest exhibit in the University Union Galerie attempts to explore the similarities between ancient Greek cultural values and modern sororities and fraternities.

The exhibit, titled “Greeks,” features about 40 acrylic-on-canvas paintings by local artist Josephine Crawford. Included in the exhibit are 34 portraits of Cal Poly sorority and fraternity members, each rendered in a colorful, contemporary expressionist style.

Crawford said she first got the idea for the exhibit about three years ago when she met a Cal Poly Zeta Tau Alpha sorority member.

“She looked like she could have been a model for one of the ancient Greek sculptures of maidens,” Crawford said. “She had a smile like the Archaic Smile that Greek statues of around 700 B.C. had. This girl had the same smile.”

From that, Crawford began inviting student Greeks to her studio to be painted. During each 30-minute visit she shot a Polaroid and sketched and chatted with each subject.

After the subjects left she would immediately begin painting based on her mental afterimage of them.

“I didn’t want to labor over the portraits because there was a danger that they would become too pompous and tight and would lose the direct impression that I had received,” she said.

“Also, that quickness of execution resulted in that balance of tight and loose that I like to show in my work.”

Crawford said that sororities and fraternities seem to aspire to many of the same ideals held by ancient Greek society such as virtue, nobility, romance, beauty and heroism. Whether those ideals apply today is what Crawford wanted to explore.

“I’m questioning the validity of sororities and fraternities and what they represent,” Crawford said. “And my answer, after having painted the portraits, is no, they’re valid. I like them and their function.”

Aside from the portraits are a number of other related works, including two massive expressionist paintings of the goddess Nike.

Professor Jeanne La Barbera, Galerie director, expressed particular excitement about those pieces.

“Tb me these are the most splendid and dramatic of the show,” she said. “They are just unbelievable. Not only are they incredible in terms of their size — they’re eight feet tall — but they also reflect something about (Crawford) and the elation she feels when she paints.”

La Barbera said she is also impressed by the expressive way Crawford depicts Nike, which

Sculptor mixes math with metal

By Kelly Gregor
Staff Writer

"New Bronze Sculpture," an exhibit coming to the University Art Gallery this week, will feature pieces by renowned California artist Bruce Beasley.

On display will be 13 sculptures, all cast in bronze. Beasley has been a significant figure in the international art world for more than 20 years. In recent years, he has gained prominence for his method of using metal to form geometric configurations.

University Art Gallery Director Kelli Klein said Beasley's work with bronze is unique. "It's one of the most interesting shows we're going to have," she said.

Beasley's current exhibit has been shown at Southern Oregon State College and Sonoma State University. It will be at Cal Poly May 9 through May 31.

Beasley will be speaking about the methods and motivation for his work on May 16 at 7 p.m. in the Dexter building; room 150. He also will address two "Fundamentals of Sculpture" classes that day.

Henry Wessels, an art and design professor, is the show's curator. Wessels said he was "knocked out" by the pieces that arrived from Beasley's studio. "I find his work inspirational," he said.

Wessels said that Beasley's development in production for his metal sculptures has been adopted by some large manufacturers and corporations and will be featured on an upcoming network television program.

George Jerich, associate art and design professor, said that what struck him about Beasley's exhibit are the images created, not only with each piece, but with the entire surrounding space. The objects are "in a dynamic state of balance," he said. "It's as if the cubes are dancing."

The opening of the exhibit will include a talk by Les Brown, owner of Metal Arts Sculpture Center in Paso Robles. Brown will discuss his experience in casting and exhibiting bronze on May 9 at 11:15 a.m. in the University Art Gallery in the Dexter building.

Exhibition hours are 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily and 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Tuesdays and Wednesdays.

"We gave a big party for them. They loved it," Hope said.

Of the newer generation of comedians, Hope said he is impressed with Steve Martin. "He's nuts." He also said he enjoyed Billy Crystal's performance in "When Harry Met Sally."

Hope said his family is used to living with a celebrity.

"How has fame affected my family? Ha-Ha! When my son Tony, who is now 50, was eight, he said to me one time as I left the house, 'Goodbye Bob Hope. Now what does that tell you?"

Three other children and six grandchildren make up the rest of Hope's family, as well as five "wonderful dogs — three poodles and two Alistan Shepherds. I love them," he said.

Hope said he will be on the road about 120 days this year. "A lot of the time I take my wife. She loves it."

He said their traveling allows him and his wife to spend quality time together.

Because he will be in San Luis Obispo for only the performance, Hope said, weekly, he will have no time to play golf.

Hope's afternoon of humor and music begins at 2 p.m. on Sunday. Musical accompaniment will be provided by a 25-piece orchestra made up of members of the Cal Poly Symphonic Band and the University Jazz Band.

The opening act will be performed by female vocalist Patricia Price.

General admission tickets are now on sale. Prices range from $18 to $25. For more information, call 756-1511.

● Caffe Affair, 6 Higuera St.

We found Caffe Affair tucked away in "The Market Place," a large warehouse of unique shops, a restaurant and an antique center. From the minute we walked in, we could tell Caffe Affair was different than other espresso bars. Even though it was small, the country charm and decor, as well as the relaxed atmosphere, gave Caffe Affair a distinct quality none of the other stores offered.

Four red and white checkered tables are the only seats available, but customers can enjoy their coffee while browsing through the other shops or while "stopping for a bite at the adjoining restaurant."

"We are different from others simply because it is quiet and also because of the other shops within Market Place," said employee Janelle Caiole of San Luis Obispo. "We get occasional tourists and a student every now and then, but other than that, it's mostly our regular customers," she said. "We're really mellow in here," she said.

The wide selection of 20 coffees, as well as 30 different varieties of teas, was comparable to any of the larger espresso bars in San Luis Obispo. Many coffee and espresso makers were for sale as well as books and recipes for tea and coffee.

Subtle differences in the way they prepared their drinks set Caffe Affair from others. For example, Caffe Affair uses whipped cream instead of ice cubes in their iced coffee drinks. Eye-catching titles were triple nut fudge, English toffee, coconut cream and raspberry cream. Most of the Koffee Klatsch's varieties were also available in decaffeinated.

Koffee Klatsch also carries a wide variety of teas (about 23 on display), including pinhead, gunpowder, Granny's apple and apricot tea.

The Koffee Klatsch currently has a retail store for tea and coffee beans and carries equipment like espresso machines and grinders and tea sets. Geisen considers this high quality equipment the store's specialty.

We recommend the Koffee Klatsch more as a coffee supply store than an actual coffee bar. Geisen had a great deal of knowledge about coffee beans and the equipment used to prepare them. If you are really into the specifics about coffee preparation or if you like to buy coffee in bulk to take home, make a visit to the Koffee Klatsch.

Koffee Klatsch has another branch located in the Central Coast Plaza shopping center.

Julian's, Cal Poly University

Julian's own "Juli's" coffee bar opened seven years ago and has been a big hit ever since. Catering to the student body as well as Cal Poly faculty and employees, Julians gives our campus a touch of culture and class.

"Julian's has always offered a consistent product, good at a good price," said University Union Food Services Supervisor Jeanette Kimball.

Besides the traditional menu of expressos, cappuccinos, lattes and blended coffees, the Koffee Klatsch also carries a wide array of gourmet candies and 16 flavors of Carl Polyn and Caramel cream.

"Our favorite drink seems to be the Mocha Flut, which is a cappuccino with ice cream and whipped cream," Kimball said. "But all of our expressos sell really well, too," she said.

The window display is full of tantalizing SLO Maid Ice Cream. (The ice cream is made in San Luis Obispo.)

"We recommend the Koffee Klatsch," said Kimball. "It's mostly our regular customers, but customers can enjoy their coffee while browsing through the other shops or while shopping for a bite at the adjoining restaurant."
New Rec Center $2 million over budget

Poly students and the state must make up the difference of the project's construction costs.

By Kelli Marlin

Cal Poly students and the State of California will be paying almost $2 million more than expected to partially construct a new Recreation Center on campus. ELS Architects estimated a budget of $11,885,000 for the Recreation Center, which will include both Physical Education and Events Center. Bids for the project were received on April 13th and McNamara Construction, a Los Osos-based Continental Heller construction company, submitted the low bid of $11,645,000.

This is a very complicated project involving a number of features, construction techniques and special equipment that are not usual in what I would call a conventional project," said Francis McNamara, owner of McNamara Construction. "The difference could probably be attributed to the use of different subcontractors. He said that Continental Heller's bid included the names of 25 subcontractors who each submitted bids for their specific portion of the work to the general contractor. The subcontractors represent 75 percent of the total bid price.

"The primary difference between the low bid and the second bid, the low bidder actually performed the work in the mechanical specification," said Gerard. "But nevertheless, we're going to work with the project and has agreed to do so." According to Gerard, the architect will now contact Continental Heller to discuss the discrepancies in the budget and the low bid. He said the additional funding needed to make up for these discrepancies will come from either the state and the city, depending on where the discrepancies are found.

The recreation center is jointly funded, with the student portion totaling 40 percent and the state paying 60 percent.

"If the overages are identified in the so-called student portion of the project, then we'll look to the students to provide the money," said Gerard. "If they are over in the state portion of the project, we'll have to go back to the State of California and ask for an augmentation to cover the project."

community are a tutorial service at a local elementary school and the presentation at Cal Poly of the second annual Gospel Night in September.

Last week, Delta Sigma Theta participated in " Take Back the Night," a march through campus to promote awareness of sexual-assault incidents at Cal Poly. Hampton said the sorority's reasons for participating in the event were twofold.

"We participated to show that we agree this issue needs to be addressed, and we participated to become more politically aware," she said.

Unity in values is the strength that is inspiring the group of women who are helpful and past members of Cal Poly's Delta Sigma Theta chapter, Crystal Culmer and Joy Bain, said they were pleased and delighted when they heard that Delta Sigma Theta "is not just to have a lot of members. That's not what it's all about."

Members say that what Delta Sigma Theta is all about is beyond the here and now.

"It's a lifetime commitment," Hampton said. "I feel that working with the community now will help me gain professional ties. And I hope to become more politically aware and instill that in others."

Two former Cal Poly students and past members of Cal Poly's Delta Sigma Theta chapter, Crystal Culmer and Joy Bain, said they were pleased and delighted when they heard that the Delta Sigma Theta chapter had been rechartered.

They said that the news was emotional for them because Delta Sigma Theta is still a part of their lives, even though they have graduated.

Delta Sigma Theta Secretary Vangie Lynn said she thinks her involvement in the sorority will have the same effect on her that it did on Bain and Culmer.

"I'm proud to be a part of a group of women who are helpful to the community," Lynn said.

"No matter where I go there will always be a group who's committed to the same thing for life," she said. "I'll always have a base to work from wherever I go."

COUNCIL

From page 1 would make like travel safer. "For 10 years I've been saying speed is crucial to this problem. And every time I've been told the speed couldn't be changed." Romero explained to Dunin and the Council that speed limits are set according to how fast 85 percent of the motorists travel on a particular road.

Studies showed that on Football Boulevard, 85 percent of the motorists travel at speeds of 40 to 44 mph, said Romero, so therefore the speed limit was set at 40 mph.

Councilwoman Penny Rappa said with irritation, "I've sat here and listened to 800 people go on and on about air pollution. We have been working on this project for six years. I think we need to be assertive and aggressive."

Rappa and Councilman Bill Robinson supported the Gaskill improvement proposal.

Jerry Reese seconded Dunin's motion to reject the proposal, but he said, "I am not rejecting the bicycle act. I am simply postponing it until an acceptable suggestion is made."
By Shea Roberts

More than 1,700 triathletes and 800 volunteers gathered last weekend at Lake San An¬ tonio for the ninth annual Wildflower Triathlon.

Student race director Brian McCooey said the weekend was a great success. "Overall the weekend was fantastic. It gets better and better every year," said McCooey, who also was race director last year. "The race went smoothly. The volunteer recruitment was incredible. And the weather was wonderful!"

Participants competed in the 26-mile race on Saturday, and on Sunday there was a 12-mile sprint course and a 70-mile long course.

Several students from Cal
Poly competed this weekend.
David Baker, a mechanical engineering senior, said the Wildflower was his first triathlon. He competed in the 25-mile short course. "At the finish, I felt really good," Baker said. "I felt I paced it well, so I didn't drop down and have to struggle to finish." He finished in the top third of the 18- to 24 year-old men's division with a time of 1:47:08. Baker said he enjoyed competing this weekend. "It's my last year in San Luis, and it was great having a lot of my ski club friends cheering me on at the top of Beach Hill Road.

Volunteers lined the course passing water and Gatorade to the competitors, helping at the start/finish line and keeping the transition area smooth.

There were approximately 450 volunteers on Saturday and 800 on Sunday, said Hilary
Ragan, who was also a student race director. "Compared to last year, we had quite a few more volunteers this year. Last year we probably only had 350 volunteers total," Ragan said.

Wildflower not only attracts local athletes. Many professional triathletes from around the world attend each weekend.

Paul Huddle of Tuscon, Ariz., took first place. The winner of last year's winner Andrew Mac-Naughton and clocked a time of 4:41:55. Sue Latshaw came in second, two minutes behind Dowling.

In the women's division, Liz called Kelling of Knoxville, Iowa, was victorious, clocking in at 4:43:58. Sue Latshaw came in second, two minutes behind Dowling.
