Students, who had camped out at Cal Poly's Breeding Barn Thursday night, wait early Friday morning to sign up for a winter quarter. Beginning Western Equitation class. The popular class is offered only one quarter a year, and students must sign up for the class on a first-come-first-serve basis. The course is taught by animal sciences professors Roger Hunt and and Gene Armstrong.

IRA Board divides, finalizes referendum
By David Bock
Editorial Staff
The Instructional Related Activities Board made three changes to the IRA fee referendum Friday before approving it for a student vote later this month.

Before the final version reached students, however, it must first be approved by President Warren Baker.
The three changes are as follows:
• The board unanimously voted to approve the total fee increase of $43 a quarter needed to move Cal Poly sports to Division I, but altered the fee structure proposed by the athletic department.
Students will now be asked to pay an increase of $19 per quarter beginning Summer 1992, $14 per quarter by Summer 1993 and $43 by 1994, instead of paying $14, $29 and $43 respectively as recommended by the athletics.
The board's decision to front-load the fee structure was to enable athletics to get off to a quicker start and to allow the program to begin paying off its $393,000 debt.

"Our desire is to reduce the red ink in the first year," said board member Charlie Crabb, interim associate vice president for Academic Affairs. "We think the political implications of this are less a problem than the red ink is."
The change to the fee structure was not without resistance.
Board member Vicki Stover, business affairs adviser, said she was against changing the structure because the one proposed was what Athletic Director Ken Walker had said he could best work with.
"We've asked the athletic program to grow and they could work with — they've done that," Stover said. "I don't want to become a program manager. I don't think that's my job as an IRA board member to do that."

• The board, by a 4-3 vote, decided to include an IRA referendum into two initiatives — one for athletic fees and one for fees directly earmarked for activities.

853 arrested during annual Halloween partying in SB
By Scott Abbott

Despite a crowd of nearly 20,000 people, Halloween worked in Isla Vista was relatively violence-free, said Santa Barbara County sheriff's deputies.
The annual partying at the UC Santa Barbara student community was met by a combined force of 125 officers from the sheriff's department, California Highway Patrol and UCSP Police Department.
The three agencies arrested a total of 853 people during Thursday, Friday and Saturday nights. Only 79 were locked.
Sheriff's Department Cpl. Ron Rodriguez said the situation was typical of Halloween festivities in Isla Vista.
"There were a few minor scuffles, but no serious injuries," said Rodriguez. "There was some street fighting, grabbing of women and assaulting mounted units with people throwing things at the horses.
It was behavior typical of a very rowdy, intoxicated crowd," Rodriguez said.
"By far 80 to 90 percent of people don't cause any problems," he said. "It's those 10 percent looking for trouble, and those are the people we arrest.
Isla Vista resident Leslie Moore said Isla Vista is a normal Halloween area in the community.
"Every year everybody comes down here because the whole town becomes one big party," Moore said. "The first year I was here, I thought it was great, but it's not such a big deal anymore. It's kind of a hassle, but people have to have their fun, I guess."
Shannon Tucker, who also lives in Isla Vista, said the partying left the area because Halloween attracts so many people.
"It's not so fun when you've got thousands of people pissing and throwing up on your lawn."

The days of buying scalped Cal Poly commencement ceremony tickets for family and friends are gone starting with this fall's ceremonies.
Candidats for graduation now receive 10 guest passes, up from four previously, when they pay the grad fee of $20.
"Previously, we could get the students in (to the ceremony) but not all of their guests," said Roger M. Swanson, producer of commencement and associate vice president of Student Affairs.
The two fall commencement ceremonies will be held on Saturday, Dec. 14 at Mott Gymnasium.

According to Swanson, "It caps, in a very special way, their educational experience and makes people very happy to share it, said Swanson.

ISRAELIS, PALESTINIANS HOLD FIRST DIRECT TALKS

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Israelis and Palestinians on Sunday held "good, businesslike" direct talks — their first ever — and pledged to try to move on to more substantive issues such as Palestinian autonomy within a few days.

In another milestone, hard-line Syria overcame hesitations and opened its one-on-one meeting with Israel late Sunday night — the first talks between the arch-foes in 43 years.

A Lebanese delegation also held separate talks with Israel.

Following their nearly five-hour session, the Israelis and a joint Palestinian-Jordanian delegation displayed an amiable spirit, in contrast to a week of confrontation during last week's Madrid talks.

"We have a meeting room but returned a few minutes up and shot three people. Hansen said Lu left the room at Van Allen Hall but returned to finish off the wounded man, associate professor Robert Alan Smith.

Four of the five people killed were shot in Van Allen, home of the physics and astronomy department. They were department chairman Dwight Nicholson, who was shot in his office, professor Christoph K. Goertz, researcher Linhua Shan and Smith. Lu then went to another building, fatally wounding an administrator and critically wounding a secretary before killing himself.

Good nutrition can help keep mouth healthy

By Heather Richmond

Although there are disagreements as to the importance of the role of nutrition in dental health, we know at the very least it plays an indirect role in the health of gums, enamel erosion and tooth decay.

IOWA CITY, Iowa (AP) — A former student who went on a shooting rampage at the University of Iowa left a professor injured in a meeting room but returned a few minutes later and killed him, a witness said Sunday.

Paul Hansen, a research scientist in the physics and astronomy department, said professors were 10 to 15 minutes into their weekly meeting Friday when Gang Lu stood up and shot three people.

Hansen said Lu left the room at Van Allen Hall but returned to finish off the injured man, associate professor Robert Alan Smith.

PERRIS, Calif. (AP) — Bungee jumpers still are leaping into the water despite the recent death of an instructor.

Hal Mark Irish, 29, died last Sunday near this Southern California desert town when the elastic cords separated from his harness during a jump from a hot air balloon.

The leap was caught on videotape.

Irish was an instructor for The Ultimate Jump Company of Banning, which was operating in Perris without a permit.

It was the first U.S. death associated with the sport and has had little impact on the business, operators said Saturday.

Bungee Fever in Lake Elsinore, where people jump from a crane, said few people have canceled bookings.

"We had a couple of concerned phone calls," said Rico Nel operator of California Bungee of Huntington Beach, which is licensed to operate in Perris.

The CSU Board of Trustees approved a $1.77 billion budget request for 1992-93 at their Oct. 25 meeting. This is $330 million less than was requested for 1991-92, but, if met, would still represent a 7 percent increase over last year's actual state allocations.

Trustees also approved the appointment of Molly Corbett Broad to CSU senior vice chancellor of Finance and Administration. Broad is currently the executive director and chief executive officer of the Arizona Board of Regents, that state's equivalent to the CSU Board of Trustees.

The budget request includes a mandatory 10 percent student fee decrease. This will bring student fees in line with the 10 percent increase limit mandated by state law. That limit was waived last year when fees were raised 20 percent to cope with budget cuts.

The request, unlike those in past years, does not ask the state to restore past budget reductions.

"We're trying to be realistic," said Max Benavidez, a CSU Public Affairs spokesperson. In effect, this means the system will absorb $180 million in cuts, CSU budget planners said.

"This is a survival budget, one that meets only the very basic educational needs of the CSU," Chancellor Barry Mandel said in a CSU press release. Because the state's financial future does not look any more promising than the present, the CSU is not asking for a significant increase in funding, Mandel said.

No new programs or improvements to existing ones are included in the budget request. The increase mostly will cover the 10 percent tuition cutback. The budget request will be considered in the state budget deliberations next year, scheduled to be finalized in July.

If cuts are made in what the CSU has requested, the board may have to consider restricting enrollment, Benavidez said.

"At some point, we are going to have to determine whether we can continue to accept all qualified students when our resources are not keeping pace with demand," said Denny Campbell, CSU Board of Trustees chairman, in the press release.

Assuming enough resources are provided, enrollment for next year is projected to increase slightly, by about 1,355 full-time equivalent students.

The proportion of the state's budget dropped from an average of 4.52 percent in 1985-86 to 3.55 percent this year.

This decline has translated to a drop in funding per student. For instance, from 1990-91 to the current year, per student funding fell from $6,203 to $5,871, a 9.7 percent decrease in constant dollars.

The position of senior vice chancellor for Finance and Administration will have a part in how the money CSU is allocated is dealt with. Broad begins her duties in this capacity in January.

The position is new, formed in a September reorganization that led to a national search and then Broad's appointment.

The proportion of the state's General Fund dedicated to higher education has been declining, said Colleen Bentley-Adler, a spokesperson from CSU Public Affairs. The CSU share of the state budget dropped from an average of 6.52 percent in 1985-86 to 3.55 percent this year.

This decline has translated to a drop in funding per student. For instance, from 1990-91 to the current year, per student funding fell from $6,203 to $5,871, a 9.7 percent decrease in constant dollars.

The three r’s: reading ‘riting and ‘rithmetic revisited.

By Martin E. Kaliski

Back in the "old days" (even before my childhood), teachers often talked about the "Three r’s" (reading, ‘riting and ‘rithmetic) as being fundamental to our education. Now every year or so we are told something new about our current generation of students. Teachers educating school-age children have to be flexible. Despite the many requests for new approaches, however, there is always a need for the basic skills that are essential to our current generation of students. Recently I had an opportunity to talk to one of my students about the "Three r’s," and this is how she responded.

I would like to raise the following question. My sketched-out way of base) may say a lot about us students seem to be unable to express themselves clearly and concisely. (Spelling, of course, is a rapidly disappearing art.) Our faculty members feel that there is a limit to the "English instruction" that they can provide and so the obvious question of "how do we solve this problem?" arises. Why are we graduating students with such poor writing skills?

Well at least they can do arithmetic, right?

I'm not too sure about this. Students grasp their calculators and write "Shall we reduce the sports of men’s and women’s basketball, track and tennis to a glorified intramural program?" or "Shall we increase the costs of each of these sports?" or "Shall we reduce the sports of men’s and women’s basketball, track and tennis to a glorified intramural program?"

The destructive attitudes and actions of those who trespass social and legal norms of acceptable behavior are reprehensible and antithetical to standards of the community and the university. They reflect badly upon the individual and, for those who are Cal Poly students, their actions reflect badly on the university even though they are acting as private citizens. I join in urging the vast majority of Cal Poly students who are responsible citizens of the community to support the initiatives of ASI President David Kapic and Police Chief Gardner.

Martin E. Kaliski is chairman of the electronic and electrical engineering department and is a professor in the Computer Engineering Department. Arguments and views expressed are his personal opinions and do not necessarily represent the "official position" of the EE/EE Department.
Poly — undefeated and still champion

The Mustang women's cross country team remains undefeated in the California Collegiate Athletic Association after winning the championships for the 10th consecutive year Saturday at Riverside.

Since 1981 when Cal Poly entered the league, the Mustangs have yet to have their defending title toppled.

In taking the meet, Cal Poly easily outdistanced its competition scoring 29 points, well below second-place UC Riverside's 59 points and third-place Cal State Los Angeles' 70 points.

Individually, five Mustang runners finished in the top 10, each making all-conference. Senior Kristina Hand took first with a time of 17:11, a personal best. Hand was named CCAA's Women Runner of the Year.

UC Riverside has just enough to beat Poly

By Scott Abbott
Staff Writer

The men's cross country team came ahead as close as a team can to winning the California Collegiate Athletic Association championships at UC Riverside without coming out on top. Riverside beat the Cal Poly Mustangs by five points thanks to its winner Simon Vroemen, a Dutch graduate student who became eligible to race just two weeks ago.

While Riverside beat Cal Poly, 20-35, third place was a tie between UC San Diego and Cal Poly Pomona, both of which finished well back with 99 points each.

Mustangs on the rebound

Cal Poly sweeps home contests

By Neil Pascale

Days after probably the toughest defeat of the season, the Cal Poly volleyball team rebounded to win both home matches over the weekend. Cal Poly defeated Cal State Fullerton Friday in four games, 15-10, 15-7, 10-15, 15-10. The Mustangs came back the next night to finish off the Sacramento State Hornets in three straight games, 15-11, 15-11, 15-10.

The Mustangs were still reeling from Wednesday's home defeat to Fresno State after winning the first two games.

Wednesday's loss puts the Mustangs at long odds to make the playoffs. Cal Poly Head Coach Craig Cummings said, "After Fresno, it will be tough." Cummings said, "Had we knocked them off, we could've moved up in the regional rankings."

The Mustangs have also had to deal with the loss of starting setter Kim Kastai, who was suspended for two weeks, Cummings said.

The suspension occurred, Cummings said, after Kastai left during the Fresno State game. Kastai had been pulled at the beginning of the fifth game when she left the team, Cummings said.

Despite all these distractions, the Mustangs didn't let the loss of Kastai stop them. They remained strong and productive in Friday's contest.

The Mustangs had 16 straight kills, including seven in the final game.

IRA BOARD

From page 2. The American Medical Association says that poor nutrition does not cause periodontal (gum) disease, but may enable it to progress more rapidly. Periodontal disease is the main cause of tooth loss in adults. An adequate intake of B vitamins and attractive acid (Vitamin C) may provide for better periodontal health. Vitamin C is particularly necessary in gum health because it facilitates the use of calcium in the body.

Worst-case disease occurs when bone loss in the jaw leads directly to tooth loss. Consuming calcium-rich foods such as milk, other dairy products and dark green vegetables contributes to healthy gums.

There are about 20 non-athletic IRA groups, including dramas, band, KCRP, and Orchestra.

The two dissenters, Stover and Crab, strongly opposed splitting the referendum. Both argued that separating the two fees removes the IRA's ability to make adjustments in funding allocations in the future. Crab said splitting the referendum deducts the fees specifically for the two programs, which prevents them from being re-directed should the need arise.

"I don't want to tie the hands of future IRA boards," Stover said.

The board voted unanimously to increase the fee for non-athletic IRA programs from $2 to $3 per quarter for program enhancements and new program development.

There are about 20 non-athletic IRA groups, including dramatics, band, KCRP and Orchestra.

Wellness

From page 2. Originality, a $2 fee for non-athletic IRA groups was to be lumped together with the $43 for athletics.

A majority of the board argued that splitting the referendum into two separate votes will allow students greater latitude in determining which programs they want to assist.

"There could be a great deal of animosity generated from programs and people that are not serviced because a larger program (athletics) was attached to it," said board member Kristin Barnett. Board member John Grinold agreed. He said by linking the non-athletic fees with the athletic fees "WE could be dragging one down with the other, and they're completely different."
MEN

The 50-man field was dominated by Riverside and Cal Poly, which combined to take 10 of the top 12 spots.

Cal Poly runner Matt Hempel placed third in the 5-mile race with a time of 25:19.

Senior Demian Kloer was fifth at 25:31 and sophomore Dan Berkeland placed sixth at 25:32.

Cal Poly Head Coach Tom Henderson said the Mustangs' first loss of the CCAA championship in four years was disappointing but understandable.

"Overall, it was very disappointing to lose the conference championship, especially to a team that two weeks ago had no chance of beating us," Henderson said.

"For the first time we did not rest at all for the CCAA championship. We trained right through this week, focusing on the national and regional championships."

Henderson said the Mustangs' split of 38 seconds between its top five finishers was "the kind of finish you dream of in most races, only it wasn't enough to (beat) Riverside."

Hempel said a major factor that contributed to the Mustangs' loss was the slow pace on a flat course that should have produced fast times.

"The pace wasn't really slow," said Hempel. "(Riverside's) lead runners kept it slow so their other runners would do better.

Some Cal Poly runners tried to throw in some surges, but it didn't work out (for us)."

The illness of 1990 CCAA champion Scott Hempel, who did not race but is expected to come back next week, was also a factor that hurt the Mustangs.

Matt Hempel said the return of Scott Hempel, his brother, will be an important factor in the NCAA Division II Regional Meet next week.

"Scott's feeling a lot better," Henderson said. "Riverside definitely won't beat us if Scott is on."

Cal Poly is looking forward to winning the West Regionals next week.

Henderson said the Mustangs will have a good chance of winning the regionals because better runners from schools such as UC Davis and Humboldt State will create a bigger gap between the Riverside runners, and make them much less competitive.

The Napa race also will be 6.2 miles (10,000 meters), as opposed to a customary 5-mile cross country course.

"The longer (the race), the better for us," Henderson said. "We're more suited to longer distances."

If the Cal Poly Mustangs qualify at the regionals, they will advance to the NCAA Division II National Championships.

The regionals are held on Saturday, Nov. 23 at Southern Illinois University in Evansville, IL.

FOOTBALL

In the fourth quarter, McCook got the chance to get the monkey off his back.

The junior kicker missed two attempts earlier in the game and has failed on three of those attempts this season.

From 37 yards out, McCook drilled the field goal and was congratulated by teammates on the sideline.

"Kicking is like taking a swing in baseball or is like swinging a club in golf," said McCook, whose slump began two weeks ago against the Sacramento State Hornets. "I was kind of in a kicking slump."

JOE BARS!, No. 35, returns a kickoff Saturday night.
