Emergency service to campus questioned

By Brad Hamilton
Daily Sports Editor

Roc Sports administrators and staff, with concerned faces, stood around the Rec Center's pool deck watching paramedics work on a Cal Poly student Wednesday at 10:45 a.m.

Heather Wolf, a city and regional planning senior, felt ill and fainted immediately after she exited the pool, according to Public Safety Director Joe Rosas.

Aside from the obvious concern for Wolf, the Rec Center staff was concerned about the time it took an ambulance to arrive, said Roc Sports Director Rick Johnson.

Due to a large number of calls for assistance around San Luis Obispo, an Atascadero ambulance had to be called in to the campus.

That ambulance took between eight and nine minutes to arrive.

“We (Cal Poly staff and faculty) have enjoyed a level of response that has been outstanding and consistent,” Johnson said, referring to the now-defunct campus fire station's service. “We are in a period of uncertainties.”

In past years, Cal Poly had an on-campus fire unit to respond to emergency campus calls. But administrators decided to close the station last spring, leaving Cal Poly dependent on the same emergency and fire services offered elsewhere in the city.

“This is not an issue of blame on the community or the campus,” Johnson said, “but it is something we need to worry about.”

Poly Royal to return with new name, focus

By Len Arndt
Daily Sports Editor

A strong likelihood exists that an “all-campus open house” — until recently known as Poly Royal — will return to Cal Poly this spring, according to ASI President Marquen Pires.

But details remain sketchy, no precise date has been set and the event still lacks an official name. More specific information should become available later next week, according to Pires.

Poly Royal open house was a spring tradition dating from 1933 which showcased the scholastic achievements of various colleges. Reinstallation of a similar festival would end a four-year suspension of the event due to budget cuts by Cal Poly.

The revised open house would be more restrained than previous fairs, according to an event proposal released in April by the Student Community Liaison Committee (SCLC), a forum composed of Cal Poly and Cuesta representatives.

Pires said he and others who were planning the return of a spring open house were concerned primarily with three areas:

• setting up the dates the event will be held;
• making sure the event had a theme;
• creating a name for the event.

Clintone unveils long-awaited health care plan

Associated Press

WASHINGTON

Proposing a massive makeover of the nation's health care system, Presi­dent Clinton called a Wednes­day night right for reforms that would guarantee every American comprehensive medical coverage that "can never be taken away." Clinton, in a speech to a national cable television ses­sion of Congress, said his plan would reform "the costliest and most wasteful health care system on Earth without any new broad-based taxes."

Laying out his rationale for the biggest social initia­tive since the New Deal, Clinton said the current system is "too uncertain and too expensive, too bureaucratic and too wasteful. It has too much fraud and too much greed."

Pointing to his own proposal, which would re­quire all employers to provide health insurance to their workers, the presi­dent said, "This system will work. You don't have to take my word for it." Clinton spoke to a House cham­ber packed with lawmakers and dignitaries.

He signaled a willing­ness to compromise over the course of what is sure to be months of debate. "On this journey, as on all other journeys, there will be rough stretches and honest dis­agreements about how to reach our destination. After all, this is a complicated journey."

He said that under his plan, some Americans would be asked to pay more but that the vast majority "will pay the same or less for your health care coverages and, at the same time, get the same or better coverage than you have today."

To help pay for it, Clin­ton said he would impose new taxes on tobacco. Also possible is a tax on corpora­tions that opt out of the health alliances and set up their own programs, and billions in cuts in Medicare and Medicaid.

SARALAND, Ala. — Amtrak's cross-country Sunset Limited, hurtled off a bridge into an inky bayou early Wednesday, plunging its sleeping passengers into a nightmare of fire, water and death.

Forty-three people were killed, some of them in cars that had piled up on the bridge, and 10 were missing just before the train stopped against a guardrail.

The cause of the wreck wasn't immediately known. One possibility officials were investigating was that a large wave may have hit the bridge before the crash.

Passenger Bob Watts, a retired firefighter from Placerville, Calif., recalled: "We were asleep and the next thing you knew we were in the water. "I thought it was a dream."

Cal Poly students who paid this quarter's registration fees early found a pleasant surprise in the mail—a refund from the university for $116. It all depends on how you look at it, he said.

Koob said the 4 percent cut was mild enough that it won't affect the college's curriculum. But since the budget provides 50 percent of the cost of a college education, admissions have to be more merciful than planned, according to Robert Koob, vice president for academic affairs.

"Quality (of Cal Poly's educational programs) won't suffer," he said. "But the (number of) students who avail themselves of those programs is reduced." And it is too early to speculate about next year's budget.

"Really, we wait for the governor's budget (proposals) in January," Koob said. "Now is not a good time to start planning.

While the time has not arrived for individual campuses to start next year's budget planning, the CSU Board of Trustees is already developing preliminary numbers for its budget request for 1994-95 fiscal year, according to Cal Poly Trustee—Adler.

Cypress Hill takes the hemp issue by the roots

By D.J. Taylor

Cypress Hill
Black Sunday
(Ruff House/Columbia)

Black Sunday is the latest white-hot release from the boys who adopted their namesake from their hometown of Cypress Hill, Los Angeles.

It is the second release following their critically acclaimed, self-titled album of 1991. Between the two albums, they spent much of their out-of-studio time onstage, either promoting their own material or making guest appearances with the Beastie Boys and others.

The group's members, Mix-master Muggs, B-Real and Sen Dog, once known as Devastating Vocal Excellence, have picked up where the last album left off. B-Real's rhymes and whines are still performed in his trademark nasal voice.

It's blatantly apparent that the lyrics and refrains are heavily lifted from their first effort. Still, the words are head-on, hard-hitting thought droppers, supported by a barrage of profanity. The back-and-forth dialogue between B-Real and Sen Dog emphasizes the reality of street society, if not society as a whole.

D.J. Muggs, Joe "The Butcher" Nicolo and Chris Schwartz produced the album, taking their analog, scratchy LP production style even further.

Known for their brash pro-marijuana stance, Cypress Hill has appeared on the cover of the premier marijuana cultivator's magazine, High Times. And their lyrics almost continually allude to pot.

But rather than rallying around the hemp issue, this album seems to butt heads with it.

The songs center themselves around the different levels of involvement in the hemp issue, from the avid smoker to the politically correct activist. But the album also explores the problems and violence related to the government's unrelenting pressure to keep the plant a "controlled substance."

There are also references to police corruption and innocent victims of street violence, but there is no escaping the controversial theme of marijuana legalization in this album.

Some standout cuts are "I Wanna Get High," the hip-pop flavored "Insane In The Brain," "Cock The Hammer," "Lil' Puto's" and "Hand On The Clock."

This album is good, if not better than the first. But beware, it's laced with profanity. So if you can't stand the heat, stay out of the kitchen, or buy the edited radio version of the album.
Poly graduates discover a way to squeeze success from a kumquat

New record company makes a deal and a buck

By Lisa Inguagi
Daily Californian

Most people would probably recognize a kumquat as a small citrus fruit, but two innovative Cal Poly graduates are producing records with it—the name, that is.

Ken Karleskint and Kristy Duncan Johnson, along with Johnson's husband Grady, formed the partnership Kumquat Records earlier this year.

The trio co-produced a band with another company and are looking to at least one other band to produce on their own.

Karleskint, 27, graduated from Cal Poly in December 1988 with a business degree in management information systems and a minor in English.

Johnson, 25, is a Cal Poly broadcast journalism alumna, who graduated in June of 1991.

Both Karleskint and Johnson were disc jockeys at Cal Poly's radio station, KCPR (91.3-FM). They said they'd always thought it would be fun to start a record company, but were concerned about having enough money to survive.

The name for the company wasn't a tough process, Karleskint said.

"We were trying to come up with a name for the record company and decided on Kumquat," he said. "We threw all kinds of names out, but Kumquat ended up the best choice. It sounds dirty, but it's not. It sounds Californian."

Karleskint was the first band signed to Kumquat Records, a Davis-based quintet thornucopia was the first band signed to Kumquat Records, a new label formed by two Cal Poly graduates.

Kumquat Records ultimately co-released the CD with Big Music. "A friend that works at a recording station in Sacramento played one of our (demo) tape and I thought it sounded cool," he said. "The band has a sound sweeping the nation as if it were a brown." Johnson said thornucopia's music is "alternative rock, with heavy emphasis on guitar and fantastic unique female lead vocal."

The band had already put a recording together but needed more financial backing, Karleskint said.

"We were trying to come up with a name for the record company and we decided on Kumquat...It sounds dirty but it's not. It sounds Californian."

Kumquat Records ultimately co-released the CD with Lather Records because the project had started before Kumquat came in on the deal, Karleskint said.

At the end of May, Kumquat Records sent CDs out to 150 radio stations in the United States. Although those consisted of mostly college stations, a few commercial and alternative stations were added to the mailing list. The response was positive.

"We were getting air play all throughout the state of New York and Minnesota," Johnson said. "We called in stations to follow up and the album charted at different stations in the top 10 and top 49."

KCP R also received a copy of the thornucopia recording.

"We put the record into rotation on May 17," said John Konop, music director of KCPR. "In one week, it charted in the top 60 of the station and peaked at No. 8, so it did pretty well."

King said once the station puts a new record into rotation it is watched for two months until it is taken out of rotation. Karleskint and Johnson work and live in the San Jose area. Karleskint said it's easier and more accessible for them to go to area shops and sell CDs. He said the CD is available in San Luis Obispo at Boo Boo Records and Big Music.

"(Kumquat) knows there are limitations, and we aren't ready to quit our day jobs," Karleskint said.

Johnson said the company has spent approximately $2,000 on this project.

"We spent $1,500 initially to get the project going and the rest of the money was spent on things like postage for mailing out the CDs," she said. "The money is coming out of our own pockets, so there is definitely the incentive to make it work."

"Mainly, we want to get good music out there," Karleskint said.

"We have open music tastes, and aren't trying to get a particular (type of music) out, just music we like and think other people would like as well," he said.

Karleskint said the company has received demo tapes from various bands but are looking at factors other than likable music.

He said the next band has to be able to be flexible and go on the road to promote themselves. Thornucopia did not have that luxury.

"We would eventually like to build a catalog of quality groups as a long-term goal," he said.
SOUL: Artist finds meaning in work

When he makes his weekly trips to Los Angeles, speaking to high school and junior college students, his artwork travels with him. He uses art and life storytelling skills to help students exercise their imaginations and manufacture their own interpretations and meaning for each piece. "Every piece has stories," he said. "You can get the rowdiest, meanest kid to forget that he's rowdy and mean." It's the satisfaction he gets from this role as speaker, mentor, and friend that provides him with inspiration and reinforces a decision he made 10 years ago.

When Martinez-Inzunza was 28 years old he resigned from an $80,000 per year job to accept a position with Cal Poly's University Outreach Services for a significantly lower salary.

"I wondered whether or not I had done the right thing because riches are very tempting," he said. "But I have more than enough evidence that I did the right thing.

This decision also fuels Martinez-Inzunza's creative fire. "The human capacity to create is inexhaustible," he said. "For every piece of work I create it gives me 10 other ideas." Currently, he has three major art projects in progress and is working towards a master's degree in fine arts from CSU-Fullerton.

He has a series of sculpture pieces and painted photographs on display at Casa Java Cafe in Shell Beach and his work will be featured in a joint exhibit in mid-October at the Excellent Center For Art and Culture in Morro Bay.

"We have only so many days to live," he said. "We might as well make them count."

Martinez-Inzunza also works as the university's assistant director of admissions. In that job, he voluntarily makes weekly trips to Los Angeles to attract and inform inter-city students about Cal Poly and the reality of attaining a college education.

The exhibit, entitled "Hoy Dios," reflects his Mexican heritage and dedication toward ensuring cultural pluralism at Cal Poly.

"Through images, whether it's verbal images or pictorial images, if you can touch people's souls and ... give people strength, that breaks all barriers of gender and ethnicity," he said.

After earning a bachelor's degree in horticulture and a master's degree in agriculture from Cal Poly over 10 years ago, he decided to pursue an art and design degree in 1986 with a concentration in photography.

His series of double exposed color photographs also explore religious themes.

"One piece features an inverted Indian dancer transposed on a righted image of Mary and Christ.

"Catholicism turned Indian faith upside-down," he said.

"As a result, Mexican faith towards Christ is the blending of the indigenous faith and the European faith," he said.

Spirituality, Martinez-Inzunza insists, is the common denominator among people of differing faiths.

"We are powerless individuals in comparison to the whole," he said. "But in reality we have the most power because it's all within the soul."

The last peaceful Poly Royal. Three miscellaneous arrests and a dog bite are the extent of the violence.

APRIL 28, 1989

Seventy police officers from throughout the county spend two hours clearing a rock and bottle-throwing crowd of 1,000 from the common grounds of the Cedar Creek apartment complex. Dogs, mace and billy-clubs are used.

APRIL 27, 1990

Fifteen law enforcement agencies respond to a riotous crowd of as many as 1,000 people on Kentucky and Fredericks streets. Before they can be dispersed, the Campus Bottle Liquor store is vandalized amid shouts of "Free beer!" Thirty participants are arrested.

APRIL 20, 1990

Eighty people are arrested and 130 are injured when police from as far away as Santa Barbara use tear gas, dogs and a water cannon to control a 1,000-strong crowd. The mob, which aggregated at the intersection of Foothill and California boulevards, was pushed as far west on Foothill as Chorro Street.

MAY 1, 1990

President Baker says he is "receptive" to reinstating some form of spring open house. He says he is not opposed to reviving "all of the good" of Poly Royal.

APRIL 19, 1993

President Baker approves the preliminary open house plan from the SCLC. "We are now moving forward with the planning process," ASI President Marquam Pena says.

APRIL 15, 1993

The Student/Community Liaison Committee (SCLC) approves a plan for an "all campus open house," to serve as a replacement for Poly Royal. The open house will emphasize scholastic achievement and take place over a weekend rather than four days.

APRIL 19, 1993

President Baker announces that Poly Royal has been suspended "indefinitely," as the final arrest tally for the weekend mayhem reaches 127.

MAY 1, 1990

Cal Poly President Warren Baker announces that Poly Royal is to benefit the university, he said in an August interview. "It provides an open forum for students to showcase their work."

Although many details are hazy, Piros said he is seeking out experts, both on-campus and in the community, to provide input. He said a clearer picture of the open house should become apparent by the later half of next week.

"There is a very, very strong chance (for an open house," Piros said. "We're good to go."

Open house: Campus, community prepare for return of festival

* stating a clear concept of the even's structure.

The SCLC proposal set a target date to hold the open house in mid-April or early May, with the events occurring over a two-day weekend. In the past, events had been held over a four-day period.

A project summary released by Piros on July 22 called for a renaming contest and the SCLC proposal made it clear that the new open house would not retain the name Poly Royal.

The marketing policy of the open house would not permit any "alcohol or tobacco vending, nor will off-campus businesses be permitted to sell on-campus," according to the report.

"Campus and community leaders wanted to able to provide an opportunity to focus on the academic contributions of Cal Poly," Piros said. "Cal Poly President Warren Baker concurred with this assessment."

"The primary reason for Poly Royal is to benefit the university," he said in an August interview. "It provides an open forum for students to showcase their work."

WELCOME TO “AGENDA,” a new section in this year’s Mustang Daily. Agenda’s mission is to provide a home base for Cal Poly students by listing upcoming campus and city events and academic information in an easy-to-use format. Agenda will also feature original articles by Daily writers providing a longer, more in-depth look at important issues. If you have information which may appeal to Cal Poly students, call assistant managing editor Len Arends at 756-1796 or drop a note in the “Agenda” box in the Mustang Daily newsroom, Graphic Arts 226. Also, you can fax us at 756-6784. Look for Agenda every Tuesday on page two. An abbreviated version of the calendar will appear on all other days on page two. — The Editors

Marvin swallowed his gum when he heard how fast we made student loans.

Sure, he expected us to provide good service, straight answers and decent follow-up on student loan applications. After all, Great Western is one of the top lenders of student loans in California, with decades of experience and know-how. But when he found out just how quickly we handle Stafford, SLS and PLUS LOANS, he grinned from ear to ear.

So what are you waiting for? For more information or a loan application, call us toll-free at 1-800-637-6767. Great Western Bank. We'll always be there!

Faculty daily between car, train a mystery

By Brooke Richardson
Daily Staff Writer

University police are still investigating an early Sunday morning train and car collision behind Mustang Stadium that killed a San Luis Obispo man.

Travis Justin Brown, 21, who was not a Cal Poly student, died after a northbound Southern Pacific freight train hit his car and dragged it about a quarter mile.

"It looks like... he perhaps tried to get across before the train," Sergeant Bob Schumacher of the university police said.

Brown was crossing the unguarded railroad tracks on a private road behind the stadium when his car was hit. The crossing, which is on a slight incline, is marked by a stop sign and small warning sign, but does not have crossing guards or bells.

The crossing is widely used as an access to Cal Poly crop buildings, houses and The Institute of Religion, a building owned by the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, police said.

Student arrested on charges of car vandalism

By Erica Eicker
Daily Staff Writer

San Luis Obispo Police arrested an agricultural business freshman early Friday morning after he allegedly ran across the top of a parked car, denting it, and then fled.

Gary Robert Dooley, 19, allegedly ran away from the car parked on Broad Street when Officer Tom Owen stopped to investigate.

Dooley was found hiding in shrubbery but escaped from pursuing officers, according to a report released by police. He was apprehended near the intersection of Mill and Broad streets, where police say he falsely identified himself.

The case has been turned over to the district attorney's office.

Judge wants explanation of military gay ban

The Los Angeles Times — A federal judge who ruled the Navy's ban on homosexuals was unconstitutional on Wednesday ordered the Secretary of Defense and others to explain why the policy remains in force or face contempt charges.

In a one-page order U.S. District Judge Terry J. Hatter Jr. instructed Defense Secretary Les Aspin, the Secretary of the Navy and the commanding officer of Moffett Field Naval Air Station to appear in court Sept. 30 or send an agent to represent them.

They must "show cause, if you have any, why you should not be held in contempt for continuing to enforce the Department of Defense's policy regarding gays and lesbians," Hatter wrote.

Maj. Jeff Lovell, a Department of Defense spokesman at the Pentagon, said officials had not seen Hatter's order and could not comment on it.

In March Hatter ruled the Navy's ban on homosexuals was unconstitutional.

WORK SMARTER.
NOT HARDER.

Engineering student? Smart.
Math or science major? Also smart.
On tests, you probably run equations over again to make sure they're right. So you're working harder.
You don't have to do that anymore. Not when you use the TI-68 Advanced Scientific or TI-85 Graphics Calculator, with their last equation replay feature — and many other smart functions.
We've spent years with students like you and educators like your professors to develop the TI-68 and the TI-85. That's why they're so highly recommended.
For engineering students, the TI-68 solves up to five simultaneous equations, has complex number functions and offers formula programming.
The TI-85 builds on the power of the TI-68 by adding a wide range of graphing capabilities. Math students can handle calculus problems more easily.
And technical students can see the functions for a better understanding of problems.
The TI-85 also handles complex numbers. Matrices.
Vectors. Lists. Strings. Plus, it offers a powerful one-equation
SOLVER.
Try a TI-68 or TI-85 at your local TI retailer today.
And start working smarter.
Instead of harder.

Delta Sigma Phi fraternity officials and the Inter-Fraternity Council (IFC) are trying to smooth out relations with the fraternity's neighbors and the police after a rowdy weekend party prompted the 13th police response to the house in the last year.

The fraternity's Sept. 18 party, held at 244 California Blvd., had 250 guests and two arrests.

As police were breaking up the party, Ion Elestrom, 18, a former Cal Poly student, opened a patrol car door, according to a police report. He was arrested on charges of tampering with the car.

After Elestrom was placed in the car, Jason Dana, 19, of San Luis Obispo, allegedly tried to free Elestrom by opening the door, according to police. Dana, who applied to Cal Poly but has yet to enroll in any classes, was arrested and charged with trying to help Elestrom escape.

Delta Sigma Phi's latest situation raised questions about how the fraternity has been handling itself over the past year.

Since September 1992 police have received 17 complaints about noisy parties at Delta Sigma Phi, according to Police Chief Jim Gardiner.

Gardiner said he was concerned that there has been a continued problem with the fraternity.

"We're back into the same old problems we had last year," Gardiner said.

He added that any time the police respond to two noise complaints for the same place within 60 days, the property owner is charged with an infraction for each of the first two complaints. If there are more than two, the property owner is charged with a misdemeanor for the third one and beyond. Delta Sigma Phi does not own the property its house is built on. Police records show fraternity has had three complaints within 60 days.

Walt Lambert, coordinator of greek affairs, said his department wasn't aware of all 17 calls. He added that the community sometimes tries to blame the school for fraternities' loud parties.

"These parties are not university-approved events," Lambert said. He added that the school doesn't get involved in a conflict about a fraternity party unless it was a university-sponsored event that got out of hand.

The fraternity and the IFC have told Lambert that they want to handle the situation themselves, Lambert said.

"I have talked to the president of the fraternity," said Lambert. "The IFC and the (fraternity) house are dealing with it now."

Delta Sigma Phi President Jeff Barbieri said the house is making efforts to lessen the tension between the fraternity members and their neighbors.

"We're going to have to do something about it," he said. "We're planning to have an open house for neighbors, to get to know them."

The Psychology behind the Citibank Classic Visa card, and the emotional security of the Photocard. The Citibank Classic Visa card instills in students feelings of safety, security, and general wellness not unlike those experienced in the womb. Therefore, it is the mother of all credit cards. Some experts attribute these feelings to the Citibank Photocard, the only credit card with your photo on it. A voice inside says, “This is me, really me.” (As opposed to, “Who the heck is that?” — a common response to the photo on one’s driver’s license.) It’s an immediate form of ID, a boost to your self-image. Of course if your card is ever lost or stolen and a stranger is prevented from using it, you’ll feel exceptionally good (showing no signs of Credit Card Theft Nervosa). Other experts point to specific services, such as The Lost Wallet Service that can replace your card usually within 24 hours. Or the 24-Hour Customer Service line, your hotline, if you will, for any card-related anxiety whatsoever. Further analysis reveals three services that protect the purchases you make on the Citibank Classic Visa card, at no additional cost. 1. Buyers Security can cover them against accidental damage, fire or theft, for 90 days from the date of purchase (preventing, of course, Insecurity). 2. Citibank Lifetime Warranty allows one to extend the warranty for the expected service life of eligible products up to 12 years. 3. And Citibank Price Protection assures you of the best price. You need only see the same item advertised in print for less, within 60 days, and Citibank will refund the difference up to $150 (hence no Post Purchase Depression).
Special student savings are particularly therapeutic. There’s the free Citibank Calling Service from MCI to save up to 26% on long distance calls versus AT&T. (You’re encouraged to call Mom and Dad regularly preventing Parenta Non-Supportus.) And a $20 Airfare Discount on any domestic flight. (Case studies indicate that a Fear of Flying is overcome when Spring Break in sunny Florida is a possibility.) Not to mention the low variable interest rate of 15.4% and no annual fee for college students. Suffice it to say, you’ll have a credit card you can depend on while building a credit history. So call 1-800-CITIBANK, extension 19, to apply over the phone (students don’t need a job or a cosigner) or to have your photo added to your Citibank Classic Visa card. If we say that a sense of Identity is the first component of the Citibank Classic Visa card, a sense of Security the second, and a sense of Autonomous Will from your newfound financial independence the third, don’t be crazy. Call.
WORK SMARTER. NOT HARDER.

We're working smarter, too. So you don't have to work harder. For us, it means an ongoing relationship with educators and professionals, striving to understand what's needed to help them make math concepts come alive. It means continually working with students like you, discovering firsthand what you expect from the calculators you select.

The TI-81 is a perfect example. It offers the most comprehensive, easy-to-use graphing features available with extensive programming capabilities. And there are others.

Plus a whole lot more. No matter what your major, no matter what the course, there's a TI scientific or business calculator that's right for you. Do the smart thing: make one of them a part of your professional personality now, and for the years to come. You'll be on your way to working smarter. Instead of harder.

The Board's tentative request for $1.84 billion, is 12 to 24 percent greater than this year's $1.48 billion CSU budget, according to a Sept. 15 press release. The increased funding request goes against recent trends in the university system's funding, which has seen total CSU allocations drop more than $200 million since 1990.

"The (CSU) usually doesn't get what it asks for," said Bentley-Adler said.

Bentley-Adler said the range of the request will be narrowed at a CSU Finance Committee meeting in Sacramento on Oct. 12.

He said that he will give neighbors his phone number so they can call the house before they call the police with noise complaints.

"(The open house) will relieve so many problems," Barbieri said. "I'm meeting with Gardiner next week to show him my plan."

Barbieri added that if the Student Neighborhood Assistance Program had been in action, this situation could have been avoided. In the near future, SNAP, an AIU and community joint project, will begin weekend patrols. SNAP volunteers will be the first to respond to noise calls.

Barbieri disagreed with Gardiner's published statement claiming "the police have tried to work with this particular fraternity and we don't seem to getting anywhere with them."

"If it's never contacted me or the house saying 'do something,' Barbieri said. He added that he has contacted the student representative in the City with noise complaints.

"He's never contacted me or the house calling 'do something,' Barbieri said. "And that we're going to have to do something." Barbieri added that the house's hearing could be avoided if they took their neighbors into consideration.

Barbieri said that the house has not had 17 parties get out of hand.

"We've had probably about 12 parties," said Barbieri. "We have had a lot of (warning) cards."

Gardiner said the police got 17 calls, only 13 of which ended in citations.

The fraternity did receive two citations in one night, according to Barbieri, when they had a band. The house wasn't aware that bands were illegal, so the police came to shut it down. They then returned later that evening to break up the party completely.
