Students organize campus gun club

By Elizabeth Petrich
Daily Staff Writer

While guns are becoming increasingly associated with violent criminals, the four members of the newly-created Firearm Owner Advocacy Club at Cal Poly are far from becoming the next Chicago Mob.

Biochemistry junior Dan Field founded the club approximately three weeks ago out of concern regarding pending legislation which would place restrictions on firearm ownership.

In addition, he said he believes there is a lot of one-sided media attention when it comes to firearms.

"All three networks (NBC, ABC and CBS) and CNN refuse to be interviewed by the National Rifle Association or any organization in favor of firearms," he said. "However, the opposite viewpoint gets to be aired.

Pranksters splash paint on Design Village structure

Vandals struck Poly Canyon Friday night, defacing a greenhouse and spackling it with white paint.

Cal Poly Public Safety has no suspects in the case, but fingerprints were collected from the scene, according to Officer Scott Pearl.

The damaged greenhouse is part of the College of Architecture and Environmental Design's "Design Village," a collection of past architecture students' senior projects.

Spy debacle countered by expulsion

MOSCOW — Russia expelled a senior U.S. diplomat Monday to retaliate for Washington's expulsion of a Russian intelligence officer - a tit-for-tat action reminiscent of the Cold War.

Among his own spies, President Boris Yeltsin did some housecleaning, firing the head of Russia's counterintelligence agency which provides the Kremlin with reports on the political situation inside the country.

Attack first use of force in history of NATO operations

By Devon Stegeman
Associated Press

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia - NATO struck for the first time in the Bosnian war Monday when two U.S. F-16 fighter jets downed four Serb warplanes that U.N. officials said bombed an arms plant run by Bosnia's Muslim-led government.

NATO said the planes ignored several warnings to leave a U.N.-imposed no-fly zone over Bosnia or face attack and then were observed dropping bombs on a Muslim-controlled area.

Bosnian Serbs first denied involvement. One Serb army official, who spoke on condition of anonymity, confirmed that four of their planes were shot down. Bosnian Serb leader Radovan Karadzic said Serb pilots might have been making "training flights.

NATO has frequently threatened intervention to back U.N. resolutions during the 23-month war. Monday's attack was the first instance of NATO

Rabin allows concessions, Israeli clashes continue

JERUSALEM - Israeli agreed Monday to disarm settlers in parts of the occupied lands as part of a concession package aimed at coaxing the PLO back to the peace talks following the mosque massacre, diplomats said.

Just hours after Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin said he would allow international observers in parts of the West Bank and Gaza Strip, diplomats in Tunis, Tunisia, said Rabin had agreed to other concessions.

Those included disarming some Jewish settlers and an expansion of the proposed Palestinian police force, the diplomats said, speaking on condition of anonymity. Disarming settlers and an expanded police force were both PLO demands.

Rabin rejected PLO demands to dismantle Jewish settlements in the occupied territories.

Spokesmen for Rabin and the Israeli Foreign Ministry in Jerusalem said Monday night they had no information on any package from Israel.

Two Palestinians were killed in clashes with soldiers.

• When I go out, it’s pretty much the same thing every weekend.” Swar explained. “But considering the bar scene in San Luis Obispo is so small, it’s true to know I can meet up with people I know wherever I go.”

• Frequenting the hot spots each weekend has become a comfortable routine for some Cal Poly students. But those who are familiar with the night life of years past can’t help feeling deprived of their downtown playground.

• The unforgettable nights were at The Baja Bar, The Rose N’ Crown, The Dark Room, D.K.’s, The Cigar Factory, Los Hermanos, 7-8-1 Club and the Motel Inn— but the memories live on.

• Jerry Bender, a downtown Poly student and bartender at McCarthy’s, has fond memories of the Motel, in where he worked for ten years.

• The bar-restaurant opened in 1925 and closed down three years ago, he explained. “It was the most wonderful place on earth! Because it was a real oasis of ages and everybody got along well. Unless you were a regular, you didn’t know it was there.”

• But Soward said most bars started doing one-by-one during the transition from the 1980s to the 1990s.

• “Who ever thought that an Italian restaurant and an optical store would replace two of the best bars in San Luis Obispo?” Soward explained. In 1988, the city conducted a survey of residents’ opinions on broad development issues. Only nine percent of the 585 respondents said they wanted more land in San Luis Obispo used for bars and nightclubs downtown.

• San Luis Obispo residents and students have different explanations for the gradual decline in local bars.

• Bender believes stricter law enforcement in San Luis Obispo is a contributing factor to the change in the town’s night life. He thinks as the laws become more stringent, people will be less willing to go out.

• “Back in the days when you were caught drunk driving, they’d throw you in the back of the police car. Today...” there.”
Eliaa Nimeh, owner and manager of Tortilla Flats, said the number of clubs and bars closing in San Luis Obispo has to do with the shift in the economy during the past ten years.

"The 1980s was the golden era. It was good business and people spent more money," he said. "Now the economy has changed and people tend to look for deals and specials and they limit themselves to how much money they spend. To be in business, you have to be astute and innovative in the field."

Tortilla Flats will celebrate its 20th anniversary this month. Nimeh said one of the main reasons the bar is successful is because it works directly with Cal Poly and Cuesta students.

"We work with Cuesta and Cal Poly organizations and encourage their fund raisers here," he explained. "We do a lot of things with students and we like to keep it as a student bar."

Brown thinks nightlife in San Luis Obispo is failing because bars downtown lack creativity. He said if a bar entertained the bars downtown, but when we will enjoy."

Like Motel 6 — leave the light on

It’s time to crank up — not turn off — those lights in the university’s most distant parking lots. At a time in the quarter when students typically stay here late, the thought seems especially relevant. It comes to us a recent assault brought about to light a policy that keeps a large crop of parking lots in dangerous places during dark rap. Rapes, assaults and thefts are rampant in the area under relative darkness. Lighting, though not an elixir, is an important element in providing some level of comfort. It may prevent you from being attacked, but at least you might see your attacker.

Some people say drivers should simply move their cars closer to campus. But many students don’t have time. If they weren’t busy, they would have gotten in their cars and gone home. It’s a reasonable right, we feel, to pick a parking spot and expect the university to keep the light on for you.

What’s more, a policy implemented in the fall, allowing permits to be ticketed until 10 p.m. No parking on the inside after 10 p.m., lighted until 11 p.m. It sounds like some automotive version of “Muscular Chairs” — with a heightened degree of danger.

This one-hour window purports an odd scenario for someone in the University Union, the Reserve Room or the Rec Center.

We know there are only a few who remain parked in those lots late at night. Some nights, there aren’t any cars left at all. But that doesn’t mean we should consider safety of the few negligible, or feel comfort if someone else risks being attacked simply because it’s not us.

Major campus construction will soon funnel even more cars into distant lots, and do so for years to come. If they aren’t busy, they would have gotten in their cars and gone home. It’s a reasonable right, we feel, to pick a parking spot and expect the university to keep the light on for you.

Don’t let the door slam shut

Last week the Academic Senate decided to postpone a calendar-changing decision until more information is available. It was a smart move.

The delay gives everybody more time to investigate the pros and cons of the outcome. And more importantly it gives the Senate and the ASI Board of Directors a chance to plan referendums.

The fact that Cal Poly could potentially change from the quarter system to either a semester or trimester system deserves the attention of everyone. People deserve to be heard not in a passive manner, but through a direct vote.

President Warren Baker said he is willing to consider the results of a referendum. He has previously referred to the result of a full discussion and full understanding of the consequences of such alterations. We think he is right.

The warning should give both the Senate and the ASI Board the proper incentive to keep the process alive. We urge the Senate to encourage officials to delegate money to reflect this incentive by waiting too long.

Where was I when people were given the right to judge other people? Did they have to take a judgment test? Did they get a license to judge? I wish someone would have had to at least look, before they got to the stage, to know something I don’t. As a journalism major, I try to be unbiased about things, but when thinking about the side of an issue, it becomes difficult.

Tie not against the idea of freedom or opinion of the press. But I am against the fact that people tend to prejudge others. They often make decisions before they have a clear understanding of the whole picture.

On one hand we have professional judges. They understand decades of education and experience with the law. Then, we have amateur judges who don’t go through law school.

And, of course, there are a lot more amateur judges around to cloud the opinions of the rest of us. These are the ones who practically force us to string up an alleged felon before the trial is complete. Professional judges hear from as many witnesses as possible before they make a decision. Why shouldn’t amateur judges as well?

But amateur judges aren’t the only ones who are guilty of issuing premature verdicts. The media are guilty too.

People are learning that all news is biased. It is physically impossible to give completely unbiased account of anything. Most of the time, the even words chosen to describe an event can be ambiguous and misleading.

The media are gatekeepers. The media have unprecedented power to influence what we see, how we feel about what we see. Editors and producers have control over the news. The stories will be given. This is a huge responsibility and cannot be taken lightly.

To get the most complete story, a person should use numerous sources. For example, the producer of a news channel may think Tonya Harding is innocent and Jeff Gillooly guilty. But another producer might do the exact opposite.

Compare the news coverage of World War I and II to the news coverage of the Vietnam War and Desert Storm. The public reacted either favorably or unfavorably depending on the type of news released to them.

Veterans of the World Wars were given huge parades and trusted like heroes. But there wasn’t much of a hero’s welcome after the last two wars. How many of your personal image is conveyed has a huge impact on judgment. Newscasters must trust each other. Even Don Dahm was named the most trusted man in America a few years ago.

Being in the public relations concentration, I have learned that, in business and politics, image opens doors. One has to look to the past as well as act in the present. This is especially true in the media.

The television medium acts as the attorney and the public is the jury. Everyone knows that without a lawyer, all art and type of case is lost.

Media induced judgment is even more prevalent in political campaigns. I can smoke pot, lie about it, chase on my wife, dodge the draft and still get elected President of the strongest country in the world — but only if I can afford an image consultant to make me look good.

And they are expensive. Court cases and television court dramas instantly influence public judgment. The Olympic games were followed even more closely because the Eversign/Harding case was fresh in people’s minds.

Step back in time to the William Kennedy Smith rape trial. How different would society have handled it if that unknown blue dot in the witness booth had published her name and face from the beginning.

Do judges’ decisions on the Michael Jackson trial or the Menendez brothers really matter? Innocent or guilty, the public has just about hung them. Their lives as they knew them are over.

Where was I when people were given the right to understand what actually happened, and here’s the dilemma — no one will ever know.

I have to think hard, but does anyone think Lorena Bobbitt will be asked out on a date any time soon? For that matter, will anyone shake hands with John Wayne Bobbitt without a twinge in the lower gut?

Now remember, I’m all for people’s differences of opinions. Just keep it at that. Don’t do it, or in the Bobbitt.

Beware of the opinion-prone virus — heard it’s been going around

A lot of time has passed since the Academic Senate voted in favor of the Ethnic Studies minor. The passage of time has been of little help in clarifying a major area of confusion for me. While proclaiming he was in support of ethnic studies, one senator expressed a specific concern that ethnic studies faculty members are required to “integrate classroom material” with their “own opinions.” He concluded his statement with warnings about dwelling too much on the (racial) evils of the past.

Since I’ve never been a member of such an august body — and I believe, as I have been told, the Academic Senate has decision-making power regarding our guidance. Am I to assume the ethnic studies faculty is affected with some form of virus which makes them more opinion-prone than faculty in other disciplines? Or perhaps compared to other Cal Poly faculty whose opinions are less capable of distinguishing between “opinions” and classroom “material.”

The issue of course material adds another level of complication. Do we need to be concerned if ethnic studies faculty introduces “material” such as Robert Fogel’s “Time on the Cross” or Toni Morrison’s “Beloved”?

Both are 1986 Nobel Prize-winning books and both are in the institution of slavery in America. Since slavery might be considered by some as one of the “racial evils of the past,” should our concern escalate if such material finds its way into the classroom via the ethnic studies faculty?

Or, as some specific texts fall within good old all-American traditions of history and literature, perhaps we can safely trust that family to assume a professional relationship to the text. But what if good old history and literature can’t be trusted?

Perhaps we need to add yet another level of checks and balances to keep an eye on everybody.

In 1985, the first year that law enforcement officials received slung batters and documented the incidents, the districts attorney's office here received 14 cases of penal code 273.5 violations for filing consideration. By the end of 1992, the total number of cases jumped to 452, and Ramsay predicted the trend would continue to escalate.

"Nineteen ninety-three is going to be a banner year," she said sarcastically in September. "My statistics are simply off the charts. As of the end of August, I had a total of 378 cases sent up. If I keep going at this rate, this'll be over 400 before the end of the year."

By the end of December, the total number of cases reportedly surpassed Ramsay's predictions, climbing to an estimate 556 cases.

That increase, some experts say, is due to the willingness of victims to file complaints.

San Luis Obispo Police Detective Steve Bailey said he saw the same amount of spousal abuse in the county in the past three years. At the same time, he was told that the demand for services offered to battered women increases, some agencies experience the budget pinch and face the possibility of not meeting the needs of their clients.

With their offices say the amount of spousal abuse in the county is escalating, others disagree and suggest that the higher figures reflect an increase in the number of victims reporting the crime. But the statistics, according to some analysts as well as interviews with local experts, reflect a true increase.

Karen Ramsay, domestic violence case coordinator for the Victim/Witness Assistance Center in San Luis Obispo County, said that at least four million other women in the nation are battered each year. That percentage will get larger as the amount of spousal abuse in the county is escalating each year.

"Statistically, there's probably an increase of arrests," he said, "but that's just based on the state-mandated law saying that you have to arrest and at least document any situation. Before 1996, you didn't even have to document it. If you thought you handled the situation, that would be the end of it."

F-bombs shot down four Serbian aircraft allegedly involved in bombing Bosnian targets.

Political science professor Richard Krandom said he was ambivalent toward NATO shooting down the fighter jets.

"It's certainly legally unjustifiable," he said. "But if you're standing in somebody's classroom in this country, your head has a right to belong to your heart, too."

Navarro said her reason for signing a letter addressed to Congress was to put an end to 100 years of war.

"You can only talk for so long," she said. "You've got to do something before you lose all credibility."

McKibbin agreed with Krandom that the war has become a quagmire.

"There will be no winners," he said. "There are only many more losers because there has been no major breakthrough since (from U.N. and NATO)."

Both Krandom and McKibbin mentioned a looming problem from the Balkans that most likely has been exacerbated by NATO's air campaign — namely, Russia's disrepute with the Serbs.

Rabin said the attack will require an immediate return from Russia's conservative Parliament, which will visit Israel in late May or early June. President Boris Yeltsin in an uncomfortable position, since NATO's air attacks strike at Russia's disrepute with the Serbs.

Kranzdorf that the Bosnian aggression was "a free, quick, short flights by single or twin-engine planes, 8,000 feet above the ground, involved no violations by planes since September 1993."

Said Russian Ambassador to the U.S. Adm. Jeremy M. Boorda, the four destroyed planes were part of the Banja Luka, a Serb-controlled area of Bosnia, NATO officials said.

NATO said the Serbs have violated the no-fly zone in the past. The two other planes escaped by flying west over Croatia and Serbia. Both planes, said Boorda at the NATO press briefing, "are not operational and are not useful for the air campaign."

The United Nations canceled relief flights into Sarajevo and most European nations in Bosnia.

scattered among the cow pastures in Poly Canyon, northeast of campus.

Tom Wells, a fifth-year ar- chitect student at Cal Poly, the caretaker of Design Village and lives on-site in a senior project called "The Relic House," only tens of meters from the greenery.

Wells said the vandalism got the white paint off a concrete wall and door to the greenhouse. They used a stick to stroke the paint across the door joints, and there's really nothing for us to go on.

Wells said he has no idea what time the vandalism occurred, but the most likely time would have been when he was at his part-time job,if he had one.

GUN CLUB: Poly gun owners band together

Richard Robin, the primary reason for developing the club was a particular scene which was continuously aired on CNN.

"This scene was about the pending legislation to ban assault rifles," Field said. "I was watching this video clip at the time when they were talking about it and was always this guy firing a fully automatic machine gun in rapid fire."

"I don't know for sure if that was a federal agent or what," Field said. "But that particular gun is heavily restricted. You can't get a gun like that in the United States. It is basically restricted to only the ex- cepition of SWAT teams and other federal agents."

In Field's opinion, what CNN was showing had nothing to do with the assault weapon legislation intends to ban.

Field said he has talked to people who have called the network to complain about the inaccuracy in the report. "But the station continues to show it because that is the public's opinion," he said.

Not all the members in the club own a firearm.

Homes economics senior Charles Navarro does not per- sonally own a gun, but plans to buy.

"At first I didn't know any- thing about guns," Navarro said. "Then I was introduced to them and was allowed to handle them by speaking to people about why they own them."

Navarro said her reason for advocating the ownership of firearms is for personal protection.

"I want a gun to protect myself," she said. "I don't believe in relying on the police to protect me because by the time they get there, it will be too late."

Industrial engineering senior Pearlmex Navar- ro that a person should not rely solely on the police for protection.

"I own a gun because I enjoy target shooting," he said. "But I also want to be able to defend myself, my family and my home. I'm all for calling 911 if someone breaks into my house, but if it's a 3 o'clock in the morning, you hear someone coming in your window and you call 911, they're not going to get there in time to protect you."

physic Mark Horning says he believes the Second Amendment is the most important in the Constitution.

"Historically, people who are armed cannot be subdued," Horning said. "The amendment is very important against govern- ment excess and it is a way for the people to check on the government."

Members have set up a booth in the University to answer questions about guns and the pending gun control legisla- tion. In addition, they are asking students and faculty members to sign a letter addressed to Con- gressman Michael Huffington, R-Calif., in Washington, D.C., op- posing the national amendment to the crime bill.

Cal Poly's Jake Gaeir says his second PAC 10 Championship was much sweeter than his first.

By Brad Hamilton

Cal Poly's Jake Gaeir presented his father with an early birthday present Sunday.

For the present for his dad, whose birthday was Monday, was another PAC 10 Championship at the 150-pound weight class.

No. 3-ranked Gaeir wrapped the his father's present with a 6-3 defeat of Arizona State's Jeff Theiler.

The three-point decision marked the widest margin of victory between the two. Both previous contests ended 4-2. Last year's PAC 10 final match between the two ended after Gaeir scored a takedown in the second overtime period.

Sunday night in front of 1,086 at Mott Gym, Gaeir quickly overcame a 1-0 deficit with a two-point take down, whereupon Cal Poly's Wrestling Head Coach said he knew Gaeir was going to win. But to the common observer the outcome was not so clear.

With Gaeir leading 5-2 and 26 seconds left in the match, Theiler rolled over from the start to score a point and cut the deficit to 3-0. Gaeir countered with a takedown in the second overtime.

"It ends this way every time," he said. "It's hard for me to wrestle Gaeir because it's a style clash. He's awkward. I guess that is why he is so successful.

"It's like a cat and mouse game." Gaeir's "cat" is the Mustangs into fifth place in the team scoring with 78 points.

No. 1-ranked Ohio State won its 19th PAC 10 Championship, compiling 129-76 team points. No. 12-ranked Cal State Bakersfield finished fourth with 98.25, and No. 20-ranked Arizona State finished third with 93.5. University of Oregon finished fourth with 88. Cal Poly finished fifth of its points from Gaeir and two other Mustangs who earned automatic bids for the NCAA Nati

3 Ways to Avoid Traffic

Looking for a new way to avoid the heavy traffic on Route 101 between Santa Barbara, Ventura County and Los Angeles? There are now three.

3 Trains Serving the Valley

To make it easier to get around Southern California in the wake of last month's Northridge earthquake, Caltrans has added a new Amtrak San Diegan service through the San Fernando Valley.

To L.A. or Through L.A.

We now offer three daily San Diegan round trips that run through Los Angeles. And each train has reliable road connections on the north end serving Santa Maria, Pismo Beach, and San Luis Obispo.

The new train has midday departures in each direction, so most travel is in daylight hours. Heading south on new train 780, you can cruise effortlessly past the worst rush hour traffic Los Angeles has to offer.

2 for 1 Coupon Deal

With the 2 for 1 coupon below, you can bring a friend along free daily except Fridays, Sundays, and February 21. The coupon can be used on one way or round trip excursions until March 30. Here are some ideas on where to use them.

Try one of our three daily round trips linking Santa Barbara, Ventura County, and the San Fernando valley.

NEW! Train to the Plane

The San Diegans are also one of the most relaxing ways to catch a flight leaving Burbank Airport. Our newly reopened station is right within sight of the main air terminal, an easy 7 minute walk from most of the check-in counters.

Get Out of Town

The coupons are valid on California's network of trains, San Joaquin, and Capitol trains and buses serving 130 of California's best destinations daily. Try Napa, San Francisco, Eureka, Yosemite, Sacramento, Redding, or South Lake Tahoe.

See California Our Way

Forget the stress of sharing lanes with big trucks and tailgaters on car phones. On Amtrak you have the freedom to take in the view, wander down to the cafe for a snack, or catch up on your reading. Amtrak gives you quality time in a friendly, low stress setting.

Bring Along the Whole Family

Each full fare adult can bring one child (ages 2-15) as the free companion using the coupon, and one additional child at regular Amtrak children's discounts.

For more information, call your local travel agent or Amtrak® at 1-800-USA-RAIL.
