Feinstein stresses crime prevention, urges political campaign reform during visit to SLO

By Jennifer Oltsman
Daily Staff Writer

Senator Dianne Feinstein stressed crime prevention and gun control as she addressed a crowd of several hundred supporters at the Plumbers and Steamfitters Union hall in San Luis Obispo Friday.

"It is cheaper to prevent crime than to incarcerate after the crime," Feinstein said. "Sound crime prevention plus more enforcement equals reduced crime."

Feinstein promoted the crime bill which is up for a vote by Congress this summer.

She explained that the bill has three equal parts. Feinstein said one-third of its funding is for additional enforcement, one-third is for county jails, state prisons and public defenders and one-third is for crime prevention programs.

Feinstein said the crime bill will put an additional 100,000 police officers on the streets in the next several years.

"Women of war don't belong on our streets," Feinstein said. "And guns of any kind don't belong in our schools."

Every day, Feinstein said, 135,000 youngsters bring guns to schools in the country.

Feinstein introduced legislation that led to the first-ever ban on semi-automatic assault weapons. The measure bans the domestic manufacture and sale of 10 types of semi-automatic assault weapons. Feinstein has also co-sponsored three other measures dealing with gun restriction.

Richard Kranzdorf, a Cal Poly political science professor, atteneded Sunday's gathering in support of Feinstein's fight against Proposition 187 and to hear what she had to say about her opponent, Michael Huf-fington.

If passed, Proposition 187 would prohibit illegal immigrants and education and to illegal im-

Wilson, White House officials say Brown's campaign is broke

By Steve Geissinger

STOCKTON—Gov. Pete Wil-son and White House officials both said Saturday they believed Democratic governor candidate Kathleen Brown had run out of money.

Brown's campaign canceled expensive television ads last weekend over the race that seemed only days away in the waning days of the Nov. 8 election, they said.

"We pray you will bless them and what they have done and their heads in prayer Sunday to thank God for his healing hand to slow the progress of this disease."

He also criticized the anti-illegal immigrant initiative Proposition 187 and characterized Wilson's platform as "bo red, not cutting-edge, and gives me a paycheck for four years."

Brown attacked both Wilson and Brown as "either a blâmer or a builder or a blâmer" and warned his voters not to act on their cynicism and anger towards government.

"If you do it this time, you will regret it for the rest of your life," he said. "The choice this year is to vote for a crowd that wants to take a chance on him.

Rallying for support

White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta stops in San Luis Obispo to lend support to a local Democrat; Republicans say they re not out to impress

By Cynthia Jenkins

Rallying for support

White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta stops in San Luis Obispo to lend support to a local Democrat; Republicans say they're not out to impress

By Jeff Wilson

LOS ANGELES—Woo-shippers at former President Ronald Reagan's church bowed their heads in prayer Sunday to ask for God's "healing hand to slow the progress of his Alzheimer's disease.

Reagan disclosed during the weekend that he has been diagnosed with the mind-crippling affliction."

"We pray especially today for our president Ronald Reagan for his golfing hobby and his Alzheimer's disease," the Rev. Paul Pierson said in leading morning services, Pierson said.

Unfortunately, "He seems fine. We just want to express our love for him deeply. He seems fine. We want to express our love for him and what they have done for the nation."

The pastor said he was asked not to do any interviews, but wouldn't say at whose direction.

He also criticized the anti-illegal immigrant initiative Proposition 187 and characterized Wilson's platform as "bo red, not cutting-edge, and gives me a paycheck for four years."

Brown attacked both Wilson and Brown as "either a blâmer or a builder or a blâmer" and warned his voters not to act on their cynicism and anger towards government.

"If you do it this time, you will regret it for the rest of your life," he said. "The choice this year is to vote for a crowd that wants to take a chance on him.

Rallying for support

White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta stops in San Luis Obispo to lend support to a local Democrat; Republicans say they're not out to impress

By Cynthia Jenkins

Rallying for support

White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta stops in San Luis Obispo to lend support to a local Democrat; Republicans say they're not out to impress

By Jeff Wilson

LOS ANGELES—Woo-shippers at former President Ronald Reagan's church bowed their heads in prayer Sunday to ask for God's "healing hand to slow the progress of his Alzheimer's disease.

Reagan disclosed during the weekend that he has been diagnosed with the mind-crippling affliction."

"We pray especially today for our president Ronald Reagan for his golfing hobby and his Alzheimer's disease," the Rev. Paul Pierson said in leading morning services, Pierson said.

Unfortunately, "He seems fine. We just want to express our love for him deeply. He seems fine. We want to express our love for him and what they have done for the nation."

The pastor said he was asked not to do any interviews, but wouldn't say at whose direction.

He also criticized the anti-illegal immigrant initiative Proposition 187 and characterized Wilson's platform as "bo red, not cutting-edge, and gives me a paycheck for four years."

Brown attacked both Wilson and Brown as "either a blâmer or a builder or a blâmer" and warned his voters not to act on their cynicism and anger towards government.

"If you do it this time, you will regret it for the rest of your life," he said. "The choice this year is to vote for a crowd that wants to take a chance on him.

Rallying for support

White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta stops in San Luis Obispo to lend support to a local Democrat; Republicans say they're not out to impress

By Cynthia Jenkins

Rallying for support

White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta stops in San Luis Obispo to lend support to a local Democrat; Republicans say they're not out to impress

By Jeff Wilson

LOS ANGELES—Woo-shippers at former President Ronald Reagan's church bowed their heads in prayer Sunday to ask for God's "healing hand to slow the progress of his Alzheimer's disease."

Reagan disclosed during the weekend that he has been diagnosed with the mind-crippling affliction."

"We pray especially today for our president Ronald Reagan for his golfing hobby and his Alzheimer's disease," the Rev. Paul Pierson said in leading morning services, Pierson said.

Unfortunately, "He seems fine. We just want to express our love for him deeply. He seems fine. We want to express our love for him and what they have done for the nation."

The pastor said he was asked not to do any interviews, but wouldn't say at whose direction.

He also criticized the anti-illegal immigrant initiative Proposition 187 and characterized Wilson's platform as "bo red, not cutting-edge, and gives me a paycheck for four years."

Brown attacked both Wilson and Brown as "either a blâmer or a builder or a blâmer" and warned his voters not to act on their cynicism and anger towards government.

"If you do it this time, you will regret it for the rest of your life," he said. "The choice this year is to vote for a crowd that wants to take a chance on him.

Rallying for support

White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta stops in San Luis Obispo to lend support to a local Democrat; Republicans say they're not out to impress

By Cynthia Jenkins

Rallying for support

White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta stops in San Luis Obispo to lend support to a local Democrat; Republicans say they're not out to impress

By Jeff Wilson

LOS ANGELES—Woo-shippers at former President Ronald Reagan's church bowed their heads in prayer Sunday to ask for God's "healing hand to slow the progress of his Alzheimer's disease."

Reagan disclosed during the weekend that he has been diagnosed with the mind-crippling affliction."

"We pray especially today for our president Ronald Reagan for his golfing hobby and his Alzheimer's disease," the Rev. Paul Pierson said in leading morning services, Pierson said.

Unfortunately, "He seems fine. We just want to express our love for him deeply. He seems fine. We want to express our love for him and what they have done for the nation."

The pastor said he was asked not to do any interviews, but wouldn't say at whose direction.

He also criticized the anti-illegal immigrant initiative Proposition 187 and characterized Wilson's platform as "bo red, not cutting-edge, and gives me a paycheck for four years."

Brown attacked both Wilson and Brown as "either a blâmer or a builder or a blâmer" and warned his voters not to act on their cynicism and anger towards government.

"If you do it this time, you will regret it for the rest of your life," he said. "The choice this year is to vote for a crowd that wants to take a chance on him.

Rallying for support

White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta stops in San Luis Obispo to lend support to a local Democrat; Republicans say they're not out to impress

By Cynthia Jenkins

Rallying for support

White House Chief of Staff Leon Panetta stops in San Luis Obispo to lend support to a local Democrat; Republicans say they're not out to impress

By Jeff Wilson

LOS ANGELES—Woo-shippers at former President Ronald Reagan's church bowed their heads in prayer Sunday to ask for God's "healing hand to slow the progress of his Alzheimer's disease."

Reagan disclosed during the weekend that he has been diagnosed with the mind-crippling affliction."

"We pray especially today for our president Ronald Reagan for his golfing hobby and his Alzheimer's disease," the Rev. Paul Pierson said in leading morning services, Pierson said.

Unfortunately, "He seems fine. We just want to express our love for him deeply. He seems fine. We want to express our love for him and what they have done for the nation."

The pastor said he was asked not to do any interviews, but wouldn't say at whose direction.

He also criticized the anti-illegal immigrant initiative Proposition 187 and characterized Wilson's platform as "bo red, not cutting-edge, and gives me a paycheck for four years."

Brown attacked both Wilson and Brown as "either a blâmer or a builder or a blâmer" and warned his voters not to act on their cynicism and anger towards government.

"If you do it this time, you will regret it for the rest of your life," he said. "The choice this year is to vote for a crowd that wants to take a chance on him.
FEINSTEIN: Candidate considers her experience a plus in Senate race

From page 1

No representatives from Huffington's campaign were present at the rally to discuss his campaigning tactics. Huffington also could not be reached at his campaign headquarters in Santa Barbara.

Feinstein said she has experience from spending many years in public office.

"Iavor legislation as a personal service to the people," she said.

And with the election being less than 72 hours away, Feinstein supporters are pushing for her victory.

"I think it's going to be close," Kranzdorf said of the election.

"I'm cautiously optimistic," San Luis Obispo City Council candidates Pat Veesart and Bill Roisman and mayoral candidates Allen Settle and Penny Rappa also attended the rally.

"I can't believe how close this race is," said New Times cartoonist Russell Hodin.

Hodin attended the rally to get ideas for next Wednesday's post-election cartoon.

Sheriff Ed Williams attended as the representative of the California State Sheriffs Association, which endorsed Feinstein.

"I am very privileged to have experience from spending many years in public office."

"I have to change the face of politics," Feinstein said.

Feinstein's second priority would be to solve California's immigration problem.

"Illegal immigration has to be fought at our borders with laws that make sense," Feinstein said.

"We have to stop illegal immigration at its source—at the border," Feinstein said.

To register or for more information, call 546-3132.

The safest route to and from Cal Poly at night!
By Clark Moray
Daily Staff Writer

MONDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1994

Cal Poly student, alum open tavern in downtown SLO

Mother's Tavern, a new bar and restaurant on Higuera Street in front of the restaurant, finally opened on Saturday at 10 a.m.

Owners Paul Brown and Phil De' Ak have successfully created a work of art — from the jazz band and the classic decorations to the overall atmosphere of the bar.

De' Ak have successfully created the windows of Mother's Tavern to the overall atmosphere of the bar.

The bar itself is a 42-foot masterpiece made of Honduran mahogany. It extends 19 feet up into a circular mirror with an etching of Mother's Tavern.

According to Brown, the bar itself took six weeks to plan and build.

"They just don't make these anymore," local artisan Jim Ellsworth said. "The scope of it all is amazing."

The restaurant and bar will be open seven days a week.

"It is 10 times more beautiful than I thought it would be," Brown said. "I just want people to walk in and say, 'Wow.'"

According to Brown, planning for Mother's started more than a year ago. The tavern was originally scheduled to open in July, but getting proper renovation permits from the city took longer than expected, according to the owners.

The bar itself is a 42-foot masterpiece made of Honduran mahogany. It extends 19 feet up into a circular mirror with an etching of Mother's Tavern.

According to Brown, the bar itself took six weeks to plan and build.

"They just don't make these anymore," local artisan Jim Ellsworth said. "The scope of it all is amazing."

The restaurant and bar will be open seven days a week.

Local businesses say they are excited for the opening of the tavern. "It brings some healthy competition to the area," said Julie Gray, marketing coordinator of F. McIntock's. "It creates a friendly competition."

According to SLO Brewing Co. manager Pat Johnson, the opening will bring more people to the downtown area.

"It will be just like they did in 'Old Town Pasadena,'" Johnson said. "People won't have a destination, they'll just go downtown and figure out where to go when they get there."

San Luis Obispo Chamber of Commerce executive director David Garth agreed that the opening will be beneficial to the city.

"Any business that has made a major investment like that should have a positive impact on the community," Garth said. "I've looked inside and it looks really beautiful. They've invested a lot of money into the community and that's great."

Bruckeck's manager Bill Hales said he likes the fact that it creates another option for people who come downtown.

"There's more to do and it brings people downtown," he said. "On any Thursday, Friday or Saturday night, there's a line to get in most places. There's plenty of people to go around."

"It brings some healthy competition to the area," said Julie Gray, marketing coordinator of F. McIntock's. "It creates a friendly competition."

According to SLO Brewing Co. manager Pat Johnson, the opening will bring more people to the downtown area.

"It will be just like they did in 'Old Town Pasadena,'" Johnson said. "People won't have a destination, they'll just go downtown and figure out where to go when they get there."

San Luis Obispo Chamber of Commerce executive director David Garth agreed that the opening will be beneficial to the city.

"Any business that has made a major investment like that should have a positive impact on the community," Garth said. "I've looked inside and it looks really beautiful. They've invested a lot of money into the community and that's great."

Bruckeck's manager Bill Hales said he likes the fact that it creates another option for people who come downtown.

"There's more to do and it brings people downtown," he said. "On any Thursday, Friday or Saturday night, there's a line to get in most places. There's plenty of people to go around."

"It brings some healthy competition to the area," said Julie Gray, marketing coordinator of F. McIntock's. "It creates a friendly competition."

According to SLO Brewing Co. manager Pat Johnson, the opening will bring more people to the downtown area.

"It will be just like they did in 'Old Town Pasadena,'" Johnson said. "People won't have a destination, they'll just go downtown and figure out where to go when they get there."

San Luis Obispo Chamber of Commerce executive director David Garth agreed that the opening will be beneficial to the city.

"Any business that has made a major investment like that should have a positive impact on the community," Garth said. "I've looked inside and it looks really beautiful. They've invested a lot of money into the community and that's great."

Bruckeck's manager Bill Hales said he likes the fact that it creates another option for people who come downtown.

"There's more to do and it brings people downtown," he said. "On any Thursday, Friday or Saturday night, there's a line to get in most places. There's plenty of people to go around."

"It brings some healthy competition to the area," said Julie Gray, marketing coordinator of F. McIntock's. "It creates a friendly competition."

According to SLO Brewing Co. manager Pat Johnson, the opening will bring more people to the downtown area.

"It will be just like they did in 'Old Town Pasadena,'" Johnson said. "People won't have a destination, they'll just go downtown and figure out where to go when they get there."

San Luis Obispo Chamber of Commerce executive director David Garth agreed that the opening will be beneficial to the city.

"Any business that has made a major investment like that should have a positive impact on the community," Garth said. "I've looked inside and it looks really beautiful. They've invested a lot of money into the community and that's great."

Bruckeck's manager Bill Hales said he likes the fact that it creates another option for people who come downtown.

"There's more to do and it brings people downtown," he said. "On any Thursday, Friday or Saturday night, there's a line to get in most places. There's plenty of people to go around."
By Rebecca Starrick

The Daily is starting to make me sick. First, there was the penile Arts and Entertainment article testing for AIDS before the test was available. At first, his article didn’t bother me, but just the headline got my attention. It gave the impression that phone sex leads to the empowerment of women. Does a woman have power because she is making a lot of money talking nasty on the phone? NO! Money talking nasty on the phone? NO! Women are essentially disempowers women. Maybe it works for that particular individual in her situation. The women’s movement has fought for women to be able to open their mouths, to break from silence. Only to have this woman open her mouth and voluntarily insert a dick.

For women as a group, it is extremely disempowering because the underlying message is that women are just good for sex, fantasies and temporary pleasure. The women in the article had complete lack of respect for herself. The paper should consider a follow-up story in a few years. I bet Mrs. Phone Sex will be getting divorced. Her husband must not respect her either. The woman admitted the men who call her have no respect for women. She is only reinforcing their views. Why is she discussing women further?

For women as a group, phone sex is extremely disempowering because the underlying message is that women are just good for sex, fantasies and temporary pleasure.

Women should choose whatever profession they want — but from combat duty to prostitution, women should choose their career carefully. They should remember how they got the luxury to choose their destiny. Maybe then, they wouldn’t continue to undermine the effort of their predecessors.

The second reason for this piece is the editorial from Oct. 27 by Robert Taylor. This man feels we can solve the problems of the world by legalizing prostitution. He should not be taken seriously. The author of “Why Don’t We...” is obviously uneducated about AIDS, criminal psychology and self-esteem. To consider his idea for a moment, there are problems that he failed to address.

If prostitution is legalized and supervised with AIDS testing and condom use as the article implied, what about the people who have AIDS but pass the test? Condom use only reduces the risk of contracting AIDS; it doesn’t prevent the disease completely.

The author is also undutiful in the matter of responsible technology. Rape is done to accomplish the feeling of power. (In fact most rapists don’t ejaculate, so pleasure is not involved in rape.) Rape would still occur.

Why don’t we NOT oppress each other. Then the intellect of all educated men and women can solve the problems that an oppressive, undemocratic, male-dominated society created years ago.

Insect is also not just a sex issue. Insect are some one who commits incest was a victim of the act themselves. So incest would remain an issue.

And how prostitution will help a marriage, this writer will never understand. Marriage is based on trust and extramarital activity undermines this sacred relationship.

Drug use and sale would still exist. An underlying issue of drug use and sale is lack of self-esteem, the very issue that leads to women selling themselves.

Women would lack self-esteem if prostitution was legalized. Policymakers would be sending the message of women being objects. Women would be completely disempowered. They would find themselves in the same situation as the men who have AIDS. You would see women in the same situation.

Just one woman (i.e. phone sex woman) can effect the way her whole gender is perceived.

Through these problems, the United States is still the strongest nation.

Why don’t we focus on real resolutions without degrading anyone, empowering all of us.

Why don’t we NOT oppress each other. Then the intellect of all educated men and women can solve the problems that an oppressive, undemocratic, male-dominated society created years ago.

• Rebecca Starrick is a journalism junior. This is her first quarter reporting for Mustang Daily.
How important is one vote?

- In 1645, one vote gave Oliver Cromwell control of England.
- In 1649, one vote caused Charles I of England to be executed.
- In 1776, one vote gave the United States the English language instead of German.
- In 1845, one vote brought Texas into the Union.
- In 1868, one vote saved President Andrew Johnson from impeachment.
- In 1875, one vote changed France from a monarchy to a republic.
- In 1876, one vote gave Rutherford B. Hayes the presidency of the United States.
- In 1923, one vote gave Adolf Hitler leadership of the Nazi Party.
- In 1941, one vote saved Selective Service — just weeks before Pearl Harbor was attacked.

Vote Tuesday
Nov. 8th
Walter Capps for Congress
SMART: Eighth graders receive extra guidance in college preparation

From page 1

"There's a variety of programs at the universities to help with remedial stuff once they're here," Burton said. "They're wonderful, but we're trying to target a group that can still invest their time wisely in high school."

The students involved in SMART are from Mesa Junior High School in Nipomo and Juddkins and Pudding Junior High Schools in Arroyo Grande.

The program is funded by Pacific Gas and Electric and co-sponsored by Cal Poly's College of Science and Math.

"When they get here, they're wide-eyed," Burton said. "We take them into different classes to show that college can be fun."

This is the sixth year for the SMART program. Last year, students from the first program were enrolled in universities throughout the state.

"We don't have any way to measure whether it's working or not, but it looks as though it's snowballing," Burton said.

She said 140 to 150 eighth graders were on campus Friday including roughly 120 student volunteers.

"I want to go to Allan Hancock (College's) first," said student Kelli Black from Mesa. "I plan to be accepted to Cal Poly, then UC-Davis and become a veterinarian. I love animals."

Burton said SMART day is not the only part of the program.

"In fall we bring them up to the (College of Math and Science)," she said. "In spring it's (the colleges of) Architecture, Liberal Arts, Engineering, Business and Agriculture. We have no idea what these eighth graders might be good at and neither do they.

"If they want to be English teachers or astrophysicists, it's still the same package in high school. We show them their choices," she said.

BROWN: Wilson says Brown out of money, ideas as race winds down and Proposition 187 with equal fervor.

From page 1

"We don't have any way to measure whether it's working or not, but it looks as though it's snowballing," Burton said.

She said 140 to 150 eighth graders were on campus Friday including roughly 120 student volunteers.

"I want to go to Allan Hancock (College's) first," said student Kelli Black from Mesa. "I plan to be accepted to Cal Poly, then UC-Davis and become a veterinarian. I love animals."

From page 1

"The reality is that you have got to make tough choices," Panetta said, as he pounded his fist on the podium. He said Capps would deliver.

Panetta, while his face turned red under the hot sun, said representatives — regardless of their political ideology — need to take strides to take care of their constituents. Representatives need to support the environment, education and quality of life, he said.

"I think that's the keystone of success," he said. "I couldn't care less whether a person is a liberal, conservative, Republican or Democrat ... if they listen."

After speaking to the crowd, Panetta said he realizes young people are frustrated with government. But, he said certain issues affect them across the board. He cited jobs, health care and keeping higher education affordable as issues young people should be concerned about.

"It's in three areas that went through public education in this state," Panetta said, adding that he understands the importance of keeping college costs down.

"We've got to make sure we keep education open for all people."

Panetta said the president's education plan, Goals 2000, the Student Loan Program, which gives 20 million students low-interest loans and the work-service program AmeriCorps are ways the Clinton Administration is helping with higher education.

Capps — a UC-Santa Barbara theology professor — also said higher education is a priority for See PANETTA, page 7
From page 6

"Coming from within the [University of California] system, I have to make sure we don't finance education on the backs of student," Capps said. "Congress can have a lot of influence on fees," he said, adding that if he wins, he will be meeting with administrators of the UC system to discuss solutions for rising fees.

Capps said he is concerned about the environment. While student issues concern the candidate, Capps also said he is concerned about the environment. "This is a matchless environment," Capps said. "We need to keep this one. There are people in Washington, who can put the interest of the people, and the interest of the nation, above partisan interest."

While Capps said his campaign is trailing three points behind his opponent Republican Andrea Seastrand, the candidate said his campaign is "peaking at the right time."

"In some ways, I've done my work," he said. Eight weeks ago, Capps said, he was 20 points behind Seastrand.

"It's up to all of us to get the vote out," he said. "We are ahead in some polls, but we are not resting."

The collective "we" Capps talks about includes both the general public and many of his campaign workers.

Campaign worker Steve Enders, a Cuesta College student, said getting people to vote is a tough job.

"There hasn't been much of a response at Cal Poly and Cuesta," Enders said. "But I think the work we do will make a difference."

Cal Poly political science senior Jeff King — another Capps volunteer — agreed.

"You feel like people are apathetic. It's hard to convey the message you want," King said. "We are going to hit student neighborhoods (to get students to vote)."

Panetta's visit comes at a time when Democrats are grasping to gain a stronghold for the Nov. 8 elections. A poll taken last Tuesday by Political-Media Research, Inc. showed Diane Feinsteins leading Michael Huffington 62 percent to 36 percent, with 12 percent undecided. But in other races, Democrats are slipping.

State Treasurer Kathleen Brown is struggling to unseat Republican Gov. Pete Wilson, and the Associated Press reported Sunday that her campaign is out of money. Officials with Capps' campaign said the recent visits of high-profile Washingtonians — including President Clinton's senior adviser George Stephanopoulos and Department of the Interior Secretary Bruce Babbitt — is just a way to rally the forces.

While the Central Coast has been inundated with well-known Democratic supporters, local Republican organizers say they have also brought in their fair share of backers.

Ralph Wunder, Seastrand's press secretary, said recent visitors have included House Minority Whip Newt Gingrich, Senate Minority Leader Bob Dole and Bill Bennett, a Bush Administration official.

"We're referring to Leon Panetta's visit as the last-ditch tour to save Bill Clinton in '96," Wunder said. Another Seastrand worker, Brad Kyle said the Republicans have "kept quiet" for a reason. "We're getting our voters out there," Kyle said. "We're not trying to impress anybody."

And getting people to the voting booths was the message Democratic volunteers received Saturday from President Clinton in a conference call to 60 Democratic precinct offices throughout the state.

"I just want to say how profoundly important this election is to the future of California and to the future of the United States," Clinton said. "In the next ... days, you can unleash the power of the state. The whole country is going to look at you for direction."

---

AFRICAN AMERICAN LINDY

What?!! — you mean you didn't know about African American Lindy? Come savour the social rapture of the '20's through '40's, Harlem's heyday, which once again is taking the world by storm. Swing through the best of Charleston, Lindy, Jitterbug, Boogie-Woogie, and Jive. See how this high-energy athletic dance style keeps you in shape while you socialize, salute history and live vintage culture.

New four week session begins 1-11-94

Wednesdays Beginners 7-8pm, Intermed. 8-9pm

543-4409

2072 Parker (near S. Higuera and South St.)
San Luis Obispo at Pat Jackson's American Dance
Taught by Jeff and Luanne

---

This coupon will put a smile on your face.

Next time you want the finest, fresh roasted coffee and expertly prepared espresso beverages, you don't have to go far. Just visit the new Starbucks in San Luis Obispo. And if you bring in this coupon we'll give you a complimentary coffee beverage of your choice. Now that's something to smile about.

---

MARC BRAZIL

SLO-Grown Student

As a Cal Poly student, I am the only candidate for SLO City Council who can guarantee that your concerns are fairly represented!

Vote on November 8!
VOLLEYBALL: Freshman’s pep talk proves vital in team’s come-from-behind victory over Pepperdine Thursday

From page 12

he said.

Cummings tried changing strategies on Northridge, but the closest the Mustangs got was the game two loss, 15-13.

“We tried juggling the line-up,” he said. “But nothing was working.

“We weren’t really prepared,” said Cummings.

In Mott Gym Thursday, the Mustangs were defeated 15-12 and 15-9 in the first two games against Pepperdine before rallying for 15-7, 15-13, and 15-11 victories in the last three games.

Senior middle blocker Natalie Silliman credited freshman defensive specialist Ashley Estabrook with giving the team the impetus to beat the Waves.

“We did some nice things in the first and second games that gave us some confidence,” Silliman said. “Then Ashley turned around and said, ‘Let’s just have fun.’

“Having fun and that confidence let us win,” she said.

Cummings credited both the improved confidence and strategy with the victory.

“Pepperdine’s middle attack is pretty darn good,” Cummings said. “In the third and fourth games we kept the ball away from their middle and they made some unforced errors.

“We didn’t make as many attacks and forced errors,” Cummings added.

Cal Poly started fast in the first game, pulling ahead 10-4 when the Waves decided they had seen enough and began to fight back.

The Waves took the game 15-12.

The second game also started in Cal Poly’s favor. The Mustangs pulled ahead to a 4-1 lead when a serve fell short giving the side out to Pepperdine. The Waves pulled ahead and won the match 15-9.

After Estabrook’s pep-talk, Cal Poly took control of game three and led 8-0 before Pepperdine managed to score. The Mustangs won the game 15-7 when freshman outside hitter Amy Aberle scored the game winning point.

Cal Poly would tie the match at two by winning game four 15-13. The game seesawed back and forth with neither team enjoying a clear advantage until a Pepperdine return of serve, landed out and ended the game.

Cal Poly seized control of game five quickly. The Mustangs lead grew to 6-0 before the Waves would score. Eventually, Silliman scored the game winning point, giving the Mustangs an 18-11 victory and the match.

Silliman lead the Mustangs with 17 kills and two service aces. Other top Mustang performances included Aberle with 13 kills and senior setter Carrie Bartkoski with three aces.

Cummings summed up the match with a quick analysis.

“Pepperdine is straight forward,” Cummings said. “You have got to try to stop them — our serving helped make it easier to play defense.”

He tells the truth

Endorsed by the Mustang Daily • Submitted by concerned citizens. Paid for by Settle for Mayor

Robert E. Griffen, Treasurer P.O. Box 345, San Luis Obispo, CA 93406

Free Parking • Open 7 Days

Ford Custom Printed
GRADUATION ANNOUNCEMENTS On Our Stationary
Prices Starting At Only
$22.50 for Announcements

Ogdens Hallmark
984 Foothill • University Square
544-3303

For years, I have worked for free bus service for students and safe bike lanes citywide.

Ride your bike to the polls & vote!
FOOTBALL: Poly scores 14 in the 4th quarter but don't threaten NAU

From page 12

Northern Arizona scored quickly on a 24-yard touchdown run by Galbreath. Cal Poly's next drive ended with a blocked field goal and the Lumberjacks scored soon thereafter to take a 21-7 lead.

Frustration continued to build as Cal Poly's next possession stalled at the NAU 26-yard line and resulted in a missed field goal. "I felt we moved the ball at will offensively but couldn't come up with the plays," Patterson said.

Adding a safety and two more touchdowns the Lumberjacks cruised to a 37-7 halftime lead. Cal Poly scored two touchdowns in the fourth quarter to make it 44-21, but it was too little too late.

The Mustangs recorded four sacks on the night and held NAU to 97 yards on the ground, but couldn't contain the Lumberjack passing game. Lumberjack quarterbacks passed for 468 yards and four touchdowns. "Athleticism and speed played a part on defense," Patterson said. "Their skill guys were the difference in their passing game. Their wide receivers and quarterback are good."

Mustang sophomore cornerback Fació Benevides was frustrated with the performance. "Their receivers were average guys, not anything great," he said. "I really couldn't say why they got the yards. "We just self-destructed. It is not the best team we've seen. We just hurt ourselves."

Cal Poly will travel to Cal State Sacramento Saturday for a 7 p.m. game.

Jason Stephens is a reporter for The Lumberjack—the student newspaper for NAU.

WHEN COYOTE HOWLS
A Lavaland Fable
Robert Franklin Gish

"Absolutely first rate."
—Max Evans

"Robert Gish is a modern myth maker."
—V. B. Price

"When Coyote Howls is charming."
—Frank Waters

"This first lavaland tale is like coyote... both subtle and wise."
—Ann Struthers

This story of Coyote's quest to find his lost voice redeems the literary cliche of this mythic figure.

Cloth: 0-8263-1528-3 $24.95

Now Available at ElCerrito Bookstore

Restoring the California Promise
Vote on Nov. 8th

KATHLEEN BROWN
for Governor

Paid for by the California Faculty Association, Political Action Committee

Restoring the University as a "Learning Treasure"
Restoring the CSU as "Our State's Top Priority"
Restoring "Jobs and Economic Stability"

GRAND OPENING
Jewel of India

Restaurant
2115 Broad Street • San Luis Obispo, CA 93401 • 543-3558

Daily Lunch Buffet $4.95
Sunday Brunch $7.95

Monday to Saturday 11:30am to 2:30pm
over 15 items
SOCCER: Cold weather welcomes Hawaii

From page 12

any non-Division I opponents —
Cal Poly played Division II Sonoma State and Cal State San Bernadino as well as Division III Westmont this year.

Crozier went on to say that he will try to drop some lower-caliber opponents off next year’s schedule in hopes of attracting higher-ranked teams.

One move will be to cancel games with San Diego State and Arizona in hopes of scheduling games with Portland and Stanford — two top-20 ranked teams in this year’s tournament, Crozier said.

Mustangs and success with victory

Cal Poly finished out the season with a bang Thursday, defeating Hawaii 6-0 on a chilly night at Mustang Stadium.

The Mustangs jumped out early when senior midfielder Catlies Cardoza scored her third goal of her career with only 5:51 left into the game.

Cardoza said it was nice to get a goal in her last game at home.

“I’ve been struggling this year,” said Cardoza. “But, it has still been a great, successful year.”

Cardoza added that not knowing whether or not the game was the last of her career was difficult for her and the other seniors.

Crozier said he felt that Cardoza played the best game of her career.

Hawaii generated some attack after the first goal of the game, but it fizzled when the Mustangs capitalized on a mistake by Hawaii’s defense.

Sophomore forward Patty Geeuman anticipated a deflection off a Hawaii defender and scored a wide shot at 13:25.

Cal Poly didn’t stop storming Hawaii defense with its barrage of attacks. Only 13 seconds after the second goal, junior midfielder Kollen Kassis sliced the defense with a pass to新鲜man defender Alison Murphy, who finished the attack with the third goal for the Mustangs.

Kassis, who is recovering from a thigh injury, finished the game with a goal and two assists.

“The injury is a lot better, but with the tape around my thigh, it feels a little bit constricted,” said Kassis.

Hawaii tried to bounce back from Cal Poly’s immediate lead, but couldn’t generate any offense. The Mustang defense, led by senior defender Janet Kreb, stopped Hawaii’s desperate offensive attacks.

Cal Poly continued to apply offensive pressure and scored its fourth goal only 24:10 into the game. Geeuman scored her second goal of the game on a crossing pass from Kassis.

“We needed a high-scoring game,” said Kreb. “We wanted to blowout Hawaii and prove a point.”

Cal Poly dominated every aspect of the first half with 19 shots on goal while Hawaii had none.

Cal Poly was not finished applying the pressure on the Hawaii defense when the game resumed. Just eight minutes into the second half, sophomore midfielder Nicole Gursten hooked an angled shot that sailed into Hawaii’s goal.

With a five-goal lead late in the game, Crozier’s team continued to be the aggressor offensively.

“We didn’t stop attacking,” said Crozier, and noted that the short passing game had been successful.

Kassis added to the 5-0 lead with her 11th goal of the season.

The Mustangs finished the game with 17 shots on goal and held Hawaii to only one.

“Everything about the game was great except it was cold,” concluded Crozier.

“Faith in our state and country starts with our families. If we want jobs for our children in the future we must keep businesses from leaving California today.”

The right answers for your future

Steve MacElvaine for State Senate

Paid political advertising

• No promises she can’t keep.
• Just someone you can depend on.
• After 12 years of proven experience, integrity and hard work!

Deputy County Clerk/Acting Department Head
Julie Rodewald is the only candidate with experience in countywide, state, and federal elections, and in a county clerk recorder’s office.

Mustang Village offers an economical way to share the expense and the experience of college. With our INDIVIDUAL LEASES, you are only responsible for your portion of the lease. Be an individual, while sharing the best in student housing.
NCAA decision ends Poly's season

Team's omission from tournament due to schedule, committee says

By Ajoy Bhambani

Disappointing news hit the Cal Poly women's soccer team hard Sunday as they were denied an invitation to the 24-team NCAA Division I Women's Soccer Championship.

In a telephone press conference held by the women's soccer selection committee in Kansas City, the top four teams in each region - West, Midwest, East and South - were selected along with eight at-large teams.

Team selections were based on win-loss record, strength of schedule and win-loss record of opponents.

Fourteen teams with more losses than Cal Poly were chosen including St. Mary's - which posted a 11-5-1 record. Washington State, Santa Clara, Oregon State, Washington, Stanford and Portland were all chosen from the West Region.

The Mustangs (14-3-1) lost to Santa Clara and Washington but defeated Oregon State this season.

Philip Buttashoff - a member of the selection committee - said the fact Cal Poly was in its first year at Division I played no part in the committee's decision to overlook the Mustangs.

"Being a first-year team had nothing to do with not being selected," Buttashoff said. "Just with the factors we looked at, the committee did not feel that we should select Cal Poly."

Another member of the committee reiterated Buttashoff's comments by adding that he didn't even realize Cal Poly was in its first year at Division I.

Cal Poly Coach Alex Crozier said - disappointed that the team's 14 wins weren't enough to earn a spot in the tournament - talked in his players in a team meeting Sunday night after the conference call.

"I really told them they had a great season and that was really proud of them," Crozier said.

Crozier added.

"I'm real disappointed," said Cal Poly Coach Wolfgang. "We had at least five scoring opportunities and didn't take advantage of them," he said.

"When you play a good team like NAU you can't drop the ball at all," Gartner said. "When you play a good team you can't make it two or three to nothing," Gartner said.

Missed chances lead to Mustang demise at NAU

By Jason Stephens

Missed opportunities was the theme Saturday night in Flagstaff, Ariz. as the Mustangs played well at times, but weren't able to capitalize on numerous scoring opportunities in a 44-21 loss to Northern Arizona University.

"It was us, not them," Patterson said next to a couple weeks of hard practice.

Cal Poly Coach Rich Firman was afraid of the competition as his team just couldn't keep up with the competition at the Western Intercollegiate Invitational this past weekend at University of the Pacific in Stockton.

In an assessment that felled some of the best teams in the nation, Firman said the Mustangs could have been better - but they just couldn't take advantage of what we had.

"I thought we'd be in at 14-3, but at 17-2, we've definitely off," Gartner added.

The third-year coach said next year's schedule will not include See SOCCER, page 10

Men's soccer ties 1-1 in darkness

On a rainy late afternoon in Sacramento Friday, Cal Poly men's soccer team tied Sacramento State 1-1 after 105 minutes of play and the overtime period in account of darkness before the second overtime.

Cal Poly played on a goal by freshman midfielder Doug Clark in the 17th minute into the second half. But with three minutes remaining, the Hornets knotted the game when Brandon Cavigg got a shot past Mustang freshman goalkeeper Greg Aikars.

Cal Poly Coach Wolfgang Gartner said he didn't think the tie hurt the team's outside chance at getting a berth in the MAC clinic.

"It was a difficult game," Gartner said. "We had a few chances to make it two or three to nothing." Gartner said.

With the tie, Cal Poly stands at 7-6-1 on the season and Sacramento State is 7-0-4.

The Mustangs placed at Cal State Northridge Sunday but results were unavailable at press time.

Volleyball finds victory and defeat

By Mike Stapler

The Cal Poly volleyball team fell back from a two-game deficit to beat the Pepperdine Waves - three games to two - Thursday evening but lost the straight games in a defeat at the hands of Cal State Northridge on Saturday.

The game scores from Saturday's match were 15-4, 15-13, 15-7, 15-10 and 15-6.

"Northridge was playing really well," said Head Coach Craig Cummings. "It was senior night there and they had a lot of emotion going for them selves," he said, referring to the seniors' last home game of the season.

"After our win (against Pepperdine), it might have been too much to play well again," See VOLLEYBALL, page 8