So ... Does anybody want this job?

With more opening than applicants, ASI is wondering what went wrong

By Leslie Wymore
Daily Staff Writer

With only two candidates running for ASI president and the chairman of the Board of Directors running unopposed, many on campus are asking why so few people are interested in ASI.

"I think the biggest factor is elections tend to run in a cyclical pattern," said Holly Smith, ASI public relations chair and member of the elections committee.

Smith said the elections committee isn't really sure why candidates are not running this year.

One possible reason for the apathetic turnout, said T.J. Plev, elections committee chair and an ASI College of Agriculture representative, is the timing of the filing period.

"I think the biggest factor is elections tend to run in a cyclical pattern," Holly Smith

ASI public relations chair

"The filing period and calendar are not at a proper time to ask ASI people to file during dead week, finals and the first week of school," said Plew, an agribusiness senior.

Smith said she hopes to hold elections at a later date in the future.

Like Smith, Plew said she believes the timing needs to be worked out. But on the other hand, she said she sees a positive side to the present situation.

"The advantage to the calendar being the way it is," Plew said, "is it allows more transition time for the chairman of the board and president to become more familiar with their positions before school's out."

Plew attributes the number of positions available for the Board of Directors to the amount of people graduating at See CANDIDATES, page 2

Senate agrees to reward pros who work for diversity

By Eric Messey
Daily Staff Writer

The Academic Senate unanimously passed a resolution Tuesday that adds a diversity requirement in faculty evaluations.

The resolution, which added requirements in professor evaluations, resolved that "faculty members be recognized for their diversity-related activities." In an unexpected move Tuesday, Academic Senate Chair Jack Wilson passed his gavel to his vice chair to be able to deliver a plea to the Senate members on the addition of "diversity-related activities" to a business resolution.

Wilson spoke in front of a crowded meeting containing senators and diversity supporters and described the same effort that was defeated last May. Wilson said he sees a need for Cal Poly to recognize efforts of faculty members to promote diversity, so he brought back the resolution for a Senate vote.

With only two candidates running for ASI president and the elections committee, said Holly Smith, ASI public relations chair and member of the elections committee.

Smith said the elections committee isn't really sure why candidates are not running this year.

One possible reason for the apathetic turnout, said T.J. Plew, elections committee chair and an ASI College of Agriculture representative, is the timing of the filing period.

"I think the biggest factor is elections tend to run in a cyclical pattern," Plew said, "is it allows more transition time for the chairman of the board and president to become more familiar with their positions before school's out."

Plew attributes the number of positions available for the Board of Directors to the amount of people graduating at See CANDIDATES, page 2

The resolution does not require faculty to cultivate diversity but will award extra points in evaluations to faculty members who do.

Wilson added that there is not enough discussion about diversity, which is needed to maintain campuswide unity.

"Diversity needs to be on equal footing with other important campus issues," Wilson said.

Agribusiness professor Thomas Ruesch agreed with the need to promote diversity, but not through the current resolution.

"There has to be careful examination of the diversity issue in the resolution," said Ruesch. "The resolution can be misleading and useful for us, but now it is not explicit enough.

Agribusiness professor William Amspacher endorsed the proposition and its ability to "encourage people to consider faculty's accomplishments above and beyond."

Agribusiness professor William Amspacher endorsed the proposition and its ability to "encourage people to consider faculty's accomplishments above and beyond."

Opposition to the unfriendly advent of professors with diversify activities was addressed by computer science professor Charles Dasn.

Dasn said, "This resolution is not a

See SENATE, page 3

Community service referendum will cost students $1 a quarter

By Nathan Ablar
Daily Staff Writer

Cal Poly students will vote today and Thursday on a referendum that would cost them $1 per quarter and funnel the money into community service.

The referendum is sponsored by Student Community Services.

"What we want to do is turn the right money back to the students," said BCS President Sean McGowan. "We would do that by granting senior project scholarships for service-oriented projects.

McGowan, a psychology junior, gave one example of a construction management senior project for a playground in a low-income housing project.

Another place the money would go is the clubs that do community service.

"Of all the clubs, fraternities and sororities, about 80 percent of them do some type of service project each quarter," McGowan said. "We could give money to those groups that do service projects, to help them and to encourage them to continue."

T.J. Plew, the College of Agriculture representative to the ASI Board of Directors and chair of the elections committee, said the additional money will go toward a center for community services.

INSIDE TODAY'S MUSTANG DAILY

Opinion

4

On this election day, ASI president Erica Brown urges students to offer their input

Sports

12

Mustangs men's tennis suffers 4-3 loss to University of the Pacific

Another place the money would go is the clubs that do community service.

"Of all the clubs, fraternities and sororities, about 80 percent of them do some type of service project each quarter," McGowan said. "We could give money to those groups that do service projects, to help them and to encourage them to continue."

T.J. Plew, the College of Agriculture representative to the ASI Board of Directors and chair of the elections committee, said the additional money will go toward a center for community services.

INSIDE TODAY'S MUSTANG DAILY

Opinion

4

On this election day, ASI president Erica Brown urges students to offer their input

Sports

12

Mustangs men's tennis suffers 4-3 loss to University of the Pacific

Another place the money would go is the clubs that do community service.

"Of all the clubs, fraternities and sororities, about 80 percent of them do some type of service project each quarter," McGowan said. "We could give money to those groups that do service projects, to help them and to encourage them to continue."

T.J. Plew, the College of Agriculture representative to the ASI Board of Directors and chair of the elections committee, said the additional money will go toward a center for community services.

INSIDE TODAY'S MUSTANG DAILY

Opinion

4

On this election day, ASI president Erica Brown urges students to offer their input

Sports

12

Mustangs men's tennis suffers 4-3 loss to University of the Pacific

Another place the money would go is the clubs that do community service.

"Of all the clubs, fraternities and sororities, about 80 percent of them do some type of service project each quarter," McGowan said. "We could give money to those groups that do service projects, to help them and to encourage them to continue."

T.J. Plew, the College of Agriculture representative to the ASI Board of Directors and chair of the elections committee, said the additional money will go toward a center for community services.
Scholarship and Internship Money

The California State University Real Estate and Land Use Institute (RELUI) is offering a total of $60,300 in scholarships and internships. The program is targeted at minority and disadvantaged students attending any of the 20 CSUs. The students must be enrolled in a real-estate oriented program. Applicants must be at least a part-time undergraduate or graduate during the period covered by the grant. Undergraduate students must have a minimum GPA of 2.25 and graduates a 3.0.

For applications and additional information, write to the Scholarship Selection Committee, CSU-Real Estate and Land Use Institute, 7750 College Town Dr., Suite 102, Sacramento, CA 95826-2344.

Applicants may call (916) 278-6633.

Today's Weather:

TOMORROW'S WEATHER: Mostly sunny.

TODAY'S WEATHER: Mostly cloudy, chance of showers.

Today's high/low: 74/49. Tomorrow's high/low: 67/NA.

CANDIDATES: Election officials blame timing for low candidate turnout

From page 1

The end of the year.

Ideally the board is a two-year position, but usually ends up being a one-year position when juniors run, according to Plew. "When I filed, there were six or seven other applicants," said Mike Francesconi, a candidate running for College of Engineering representative.

He said he chose to run, not because of the lack of competition, but because he "wants to become more involved in student government." "I can't understand why enough people aren't running for student (positions)," said Brad Murphy, an agribusiness sophomore who is running for the Board of Directors as a write-in candidate.

"This is the perfect opportunity... to gain leadership and college involvement," he said.

And, according to Smith, "write-ins do win."

Cal Poly students seem somewhat aware of candidates, but seem to know little about issues they support.

When asked who she knew was running for ASI, philosophy sophomore Sarah Neff said: "Cristin Brady and Mike Roos are running for specific colleges."

The actual name of Brady's opponent is Mark Bremenstein, a political science senior. "I don't know (who's running)," said physical education junior Mike Francesconi. "It's Ferguson or something like that."

Others had a clearer view of the candidates.

"Cristin Brady (is running), and she wants to have an open forum and supports quarters," said graphic communications junior Leslie Gade.

Smith said after the election results are in, the elections committee will assess changes to the election process.

He added that they intend to introduce students and faculty to the plastics industry, while highlighting the newest products.

"We want students to realize that the plastics industry is a big industry that includes students from all majors," said industrial technology senior Frank Moss, chair of the symposium. Among them, he mentioned graphic communications, food science, and industrial technology majors.

He added that there are "many career opportunities" in the plastics business that students should know about. Exhibitions provided by environmentally-conscious packaging companies will be on hand. Representatives will discuss their methods and current initiatives that are facing their business.

See SYMPOSIUM, page 3.
America needs to race to reach target health goals for 2000

By Paul R reverence

WASHINGTON — A program to improve Americans' health is making progress against the killer diseases but is faltering in caring for the poor, reducing teen pregnancy and persuading couch potatoes to start exercising.

At the halfway point in a decade-long campaign called Healthy People 2000, federal officials said Tuesday the project is faltering in caring for the poor, reducing teen pregnancy and persuading couch potatoes to start exercising.

"We have good news but not great news," said Dr. J. Michael McGinnis of the U.S. Public Health Service, which is coordinating the national program.

McGinnis said that deaths from heart disease, cancer and stroke are all moving down at a pace that will achieve the target values by 2000. But the rates of obesity, teen pregnancy, homicides and pneumonia and influenza deaths are actually worse than five years ago.

Also getting worse, McGinnis said, is a new phenomenon: efforts to provide disease preventive medical care for the poor.

"We have failed to close the gap between the rich and poor in health," said McGinnis.

Financial barriers to preventive services existed in 16 states at the beginning of the program and now exist in 17 states, the report said.

Additionally, he added, 15 percent of America's children are not covered by health insurance. Among blacks, 21 percent are not covered and 32 percent among Hispanics, he said.

Health People 2000 is an effort by the PHS, state health departments, professional organizations and voluntary organizations to systematically promote healthful habits and good medical care.

The seven-year gap in life expectancy between black Americans, at 69.8 years, and white Americans, 76.5 years, is unchanged. But for black males, life expectancy has improved by 1.2 years since 1980 and for white males, by 2.1 years.

Among the national trends getting worse:

- Homicides in 1993, at 6.8 per 100,000 for all children, 6.7 percent now, and 90 percent is the goal.
- Alcohol deaths among smoking males, 30 percent at start, 27 percent now, and 11 percent is the target.
- Tobacco use by young: 25.2 percent at start, 18 percent now, and 12.6 percent is goal.

The number of people who never exercise is stuck at about 24 percent.

Also getting worse, McGinnis said that deaths from heart disease, cancer and accident injuries, heart disease, stroke and liver disease.

The seven-year gap in life expectancy between black Americans, at 69.8 years, and white Americans, 76.5 years, is unchanged. But for black males, life expectancy has increased by 1.2 years since 1980 and for white males, by 2.1 years.

Among the national trends getting worse:

- Homicides: 6.8 per 100,000 at start; 6.7 percent now, and goal is zero.
- Alcohol deaths among smoking males, 30 percent at start, 27 percent now, and 11 percent is the target.
- Tobacco use by young: 25.2 percent at start, 18 percent now, and 12.6 percent is goal.
- The number of people who never exercise is stuck at about 24 percent.
- Teen pregnancies: 71 per 100,000, 64 percent now, and goal is 50.
- The seven-year gap in life expectancy between black Americans, at 69.8 years, and white Americans, 76.5 years, is unchanged.
- For black males, life expectancy has increased by 1.2 years since 1980 and for white males, by 2.1 years.

Among the national trends getting worse:

- Homicides: 6.8 per 100,000 at start; 6.7 percent now, and goal is zero.
- Alcohol deaths among smoking males, 30 percent at start, 27 percent now, and 11 percent is the target.
- Tobacco use by young: 25.2 percent at start, 18 percent now, and 12.6 percent is goal.
- The number of people who never exercise is stuck at about 24 percent.
- Teen pregnancies: 71 per 100,000, 64 percent now, and goal is 50.
- The seven-year gap in life expectancy between black Americans, at 69.8 years, and white Americans, 76.5 years, is unchanged.
- For black males, life expectancy has increased by 1.2 years since 1980 and for white males, by 2.1 years.
OPINION

Mustang Daily

COMMENTARY

ASI needs your input and your vote

By Erica Brown

Voting allows you the ability to choose the candidate you can speak with before elections when they are soliciting your vote, and also after the elections when they need your input and involvement most.

Your future representatives have the knowledge to ask the right questions and persuade the people right in your administration and the chancellor's office. They do this so you do not have to spend your own time and energy.

Take five minutes to pick experienced, educated and approachable representatives for ASI president, chair of the board and your college board members. Let your future voice be heard loud and clear, and take the time to vote!

As your current student body president, my term continues through June 15, 1995. I know, I know — after Thursday you think I will be a lame duck. Well, I am not going to be. I plan to finish my term, and the goals I set during the presidential campaign, with determination and success.

Just as I want to succeed in my goals, your new president will want to succeed. Please assist us with this transition by providing suggestions and concerns during my office hours: Wednesdays and Thursdays, 9 to 11 a.m.

Thank you for helping, and remember to vote!

LETTERS

Poly's Class I soil should be protected

It is incredible to witness this campus administration's wanton disregard for prime agricultural land (Class I soil) and for the "learn by doing" concept in agriculture. The decision to place the new football stadium on Class I soil adjacent to Highway One is only the latest in a long line of pending decisions and past deeds.

Also on the slate is the new perimeter road which will push the Farm Shop and the Feedmill still further out on the middle of farming.

What's going to be built where the old Poultry Unit is? The administration has yet to offer a believable answer. This land is prime for a vegetable field where it is impossible to spray or irrigate. Adjacent to that field is the Foundation Warehouse, the right questions and persuade the people right in your administration and the chancellor's office. They do this so you do not have to spend your own time and energy.

Take five minutes to pick experienced, educated and approachable representatives for ASI president, chair of the board and your college board members. Let your future voice be heard loud and clear, and take the time to vote!

As your current student body president, my term continues through June 15, 1995. I know, I know — after Thursday you think I will be a lame duck. Well, I am not going to be. I plan to finish my term, and the goals I set during the presidential campaign, with determination and success.

Just as I want to succeed in my goals, your new president will want to succeed. Please assist us with this transition by providing suggestions and concerns during my office hours: Wednesdays and Thursdays, 9 to 11 a.m.

Thank you for helping, and remember to vote!

LETTERS

Poly's Class I soil should be protected

It is incredible to witness this campus administration's wanton disregard for prime agricultural land (Class I soil) and for the "learn by doing" concept in agriculture. The decision to place the new football stadium on Class I soil adjacent to Highway One is only the latest in a long line of pending decisions and past deeds.

Also on the slate is the new perimeter road which will push the Farm Shop and the Feedmill still further out on the middle of farming.

What's going to be built where the old Poultry Unit is? The administration has yet to offer a believable answer. This land is prime for a vegetable field where it is impossible to spray or irrigate. Adjacent to that field is the Foundation Warehouse, which again puts people in non-agricultural endeavors in the middle of farming.
WASHINGTON — You can read it, debate it with Republicans praise and Democrats trash it. And now, a small number of Americans can also wear GOP "Contract With America" underwear.

Yes, they're here: artist-created, limited edition "Contract With America" underwear for men and women.

The 10 main points of the GOP's 1994 campaign agenda are on the back of the cotton briefs. On the front: a hand-made, silk-screened picture of House Speaker Newt Gingrich, R-Ga.

"There is a personal threat here to our personal lives and liberties, to reproductive rights and sexual orientation," said Marshall Shaw, 39, who created the underwear with fellow artist Nora Ligorano. "So we thought, let's make a really ridiculous, absurd product.

"We feel they're trying to censor us, in a way," said Ligorano, 28. "The contract is a very serious issue. You sit on the contract. It is a metaphor."

Reese and Ligorano, both of Reese and Ligorano, both of

A Hayden bill to add brackets that set up the financial disclosure requirements.

Are other legislators also approached the $1 million business worth $100,000 checks the same box as Donald Trump.

Quackenbush, a former legislator, said he had more than $250,000 in investments in a family trust, plus more than $12,000 in cash in local investments last year from the sale of computer software.

Jones, another ex-lawmaker, reported more than $200,000 in investments, mostly San Joaquin Valley farmland. He had more than $45,000 in outside income last year, more than $30,000 of it from investments.

Connell and schools chief are keenly aware the Republicans want to lose their fat-cat jobs. "It's a lot of fancy talk right now trying to impress us," said Mary Ellen Bowes, a 71-year-old credit specialist in Sun City, Ariz. "I still have my doubts.

"I don't expect miracles," said MaryEllen Bowes, a 59-year-old credit specialist in Sun City, Ariz. "I still have my doubts."

"It seems like sometimes Congress thinks we're a bunch of little kids who don't understand what's best for the country," Merritt said. "Do they do what they want to do.

"It's a lot of fancy talk right now trying to impress us," said MaryEllen Bowes, a 71-year-old credit specialist in Sun City, Ariz. "I still have my doubts."

"I don't expect miracles," said MaryEllen Bowes, a 59-year-old credit specialist in Sun City, Ariz. "I still have my doubts.

"It seems like sometimes Congress thinks we're a bunch of little kids who don't understand what's best for the country," Merritt said. "Do they do what they want to do.

"It's a lot of fancy talk right now trying to impress us," said MaryEllen Bowes, a 71-year-old credit specialist in Sun City, Ariz. "I still have my doubts."

"I don't expect miracles," said MaryEllen Bowes, a 59-year-old credit specialist in Sun City, Ariz. "I still have my doubts.

"It seems like sometimes Congress thinks we're a bunch of little kids who don't understand what's best for the country," Merritt said. "Do they do what they want to do.

"It's a lot of fancy talk right now trying to impress us," said MaryEllen Bowes, a 71-year-old credit specialist in Sun City, Ariz. "I still have my doubts."

"I don't expect miracles," said MaryEllen Bowes, a 59-year-old credit specialist in Sun City, Ariz. "I still have my doubts.

"It seems like sometimes Congress thinks we're a bunch of little kids who don't understand what's best for the country," Merritt said. "Do they do what they want to do.

"It's a lot of fancy talk right now trying to impress us," said MaryEllen Bowes, a 71-year-old credit specialist in Sun City, Ariz. "I still have my doubts."

"I don't expect miracles," said MaryEllen Bowes, a 59-year-old credit specialist in Sun City, Ariz. "I still have my doubts.

"It seems like sometimes Congress thinks we're a bunch of little kids who don't understand what's best for the country," Merritt said. "Do they do what they want to do.

"It's a lot of fancy talk right now trying to impress us," said MaryEllen Bowes, a 71-year-old credit specialist in Sun City, Ariz. "I still have my doubts."

"I don't expect miracles," said MaryEllen Bowes, a 59-year-old credit specialist in Sun City, Ariz. "I still have my doubts.

"It seems like sometimes Congress thinks we're a bunch of little kids who don't understand what's best for the country," Merritt said. "Do they do what they want to do.
CHICAGO — M-B's. That’s microbus blacks. That’s “male blacks.”

When the phrase cropped up in a police talk for “male blacks” and “party” it led to a sit-in that has shut down the student newspaper at DePaul University.

Black students also have charged that campus security officers who broke up the Feb. 10 fight made racial slurs that weren’t reported in the article.

Following the complaints, the newspaper published an editorial saying the two reporters who covered the fight did not intend to write an unbiased or insensitive article.

The editor in chief, who has argued that the DePaulia has come under attack because we’re a “big university,” Martin said in an interview last week.

“We are sorry for the impact the article had on the community,” Martin said in an interview Tuesday. He added: “It’s a larger university issue. It just seems that the DePaulia has come under attack because we’re a ‘big university.’”

Cautious in the middle is Randall Sawyer, a black DePaulia sophomore. He defended the article on free-speech grounds but also said he agreed with the protesters that racism pervades the university.

Sawyer said the administration is not taking the protesters seriously and, that, in itself, is another example of institutional racism.

Earlier this week, university spokeswoman Denise Metson said officials viewed the situation as a “learning experience for the students and administrators” and had no plans to eject the protesters.

Leda Hacin, another school spokeswoman, denied the charge of institutional racism but did say the university had suspended public relations.

“This is a tough situation for all of us,” she said.

APRIL 11 & 12, 1995

By Lindsey Tanner

CHICAGO — M-B’s. That’s microbus blacks. That’s “male blacks.”

When the phrase cropped up in a police talk for “male blacks” and “party” it led to a sit-in that has shut down the student newspaper at DePaul University.

Black students also have charged that campus security officers who broke up the Feb. 10 fight made racial slurs that weren’t reported in the article.

Following the complaints, the newspaper published an editorial saying the two reporters who covered the fight did not intend to write an unbiased or insensitive article.

The editor in chief, who has argued that the DePaulia has come under attack because we’re a “big university,” Martin said in an interview last week.

“We are sorry for the impact the article had on the community,” Martin said in an interview Tuesday. He added: “It’s a larger university issue. It just seems that the DePaulia has come under attack because we’re a ‘big university.’”

Cautious in the middle is Randall Sawyer, a black DePaulia sophomore. He defended the article on free-speech grounds but also said he agreed with the protesters that racism pervades the university.

Sawyer said the administration is not taking the protesters seriously and, that, in itself, is another example of institutional racism.

Earlier this week, university spokeswoman Denise Metson said officials viewed the situation as a “learning experience for the students and administrators” and had no plans to eject the protesters.

Leda Hacin, another school spokeswoman, denied the charge of institutional racism but did say the university had suspended public relations.

“This is a tough situation for all of us,” she said.

Former Cuesta student allegedly dupes Yale for nearly two years

By Brigitte Greenberg

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Len Grammer desperately wanted to go to Yale University. As a result of a forger, he was accepted at a obscure California community college, which would have seemed a long shot. But Grammer managed to get in anyway.

Two years later, he was a month away from picking up an Ivy League diploma when campus police picked him up instead.

Grammer’s downfall came after he bragged to him about getting j

In December, Grammer was indicted in New Hampshire on forgery charges in connection with the Jeep. New Hampshire police contacted Yale in January. At Yale, Grammer maintained an average of 3.7 and had no plans to eject the protesters.

Leda Hacin, another school spokeswoman, denied the charge of institutional racism but did say the university had suspended public relations.

“This is a tough situation for all of us,” she said.

Former Cuesta student allegedly dupes Yale for nearly two years

By Brigitte Greenberg

NEW HAVEN, Conn. — Len Grammer desperately wanted to go to Yale University. As a result of a forger, he was accepted at a forger's university. He was accepted at a obscure California community college, which would have seemed a long shot. But Grammer managed to get in anyway.

Two years later, he was a month away from picking up an Ivy League diploma when campus police picked him up instead.

Grammer’s downfall came after he bragged to him about getting j

In December, Grammer was indicted in New Hampshire on forgery charges in connection with the Jeep. New Hampshire police contacted Yale in January. At Yale, Grammer maintained an average of 3.7 and had no plans to eject the protesters.

Leda Hacin, another school spokeswoman, denied the charge of institutional racism but did say the university had suspended public relations.

“This is a tough situation for all of us,” she said.
WEDNESDAY, APRIL 12, 1995

State to reopen 1-5 spans washed out by floods

By Sandra Orobi

Sacramento — Little more than a month after raging storm waters tore twin bridges apart, the state will reopen new bridges along Interstate 5 in the San Joaquin Valley on Wednesday.

Seven people tumbled into raging Arroyo Pasajero creek and were killed as they drove along the interstate while flood waters roared down from the Coast Range to the west the night of March 26. One motorist survived by clinging to branches of bushes along the road until he was rescued an hour after the bridges were washed downstream.

Reno's PBS station expanding despite uncertainty in government support

By Sara Burns

Reno, Nev. — Big Bird and Barney may be dodging bullets on Capitol Hill, but in Reno they're getting a bigger and better plane to call home.

Groundbreaking ceremonies were held Tuesday for the E.L. Cord Public Telecommunications Center, a new $2.2 million facility to house Reno's public television station, KNPB Channel 5.

"We're not willing to fold up our tent and go home because there's a raging debate about public broadcasting," said KNPB General Manager Jim Pagliarini.

As the fate of federal funding for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting is deliberated in Congress, supporters here are confident public television will reign over moves to cut federal dollars.

House Speaker Newt Gingrich and others have suggested eliminating CPB funding after 1997.

"The Corporation for Public Broadcasting is going to win," predicted Sen. Harry Reid, D-Nev., adding that when Gingrich first proposed eliminating funding for turning public broadcasting over to private industry, his office was deluged by letters and calls from Reno residents opposing the cut.

"We received more letters from Reno than from Las Vegas, which has four times as many people," Reid said. "People here know what we spend on public broadcasting in infinitesimal, 1/200th of 1 percent of the federal budget.

"It's a unique form of broadcasting," Reid added. "If you turned it over to the private sector, it wouldn't be the same TV." Pagliarini said station supporters raised about $2.9 million in donations over five years to construct the 19,000-square-foot facility.

Attention June Graduates

El Corral Bookstore presents

GRADUATION DAYS

A special 3-day event for all June Graduates

Order your graduation:
Class Rings (save up to $130 on Gold Rings), Personalized Graduation Announcements, Thank You Notes, Custom Seal Note Cards, Certificates of Appreciation & Diploma Plaques.

Don't miss this event! Information available on graduation & senior portraits. Prize drawings for graduation items.

April 12, 13 & 14

(Wednesday-Friday) 10AM-4PM

3-DAYS ONLY!!
Women-owned businesses hiring and expanding rapidly, study reports

By John D. McOoin

WASHINGTON — The number of women-owned businesses jumped 18 percent between 1991 and 1994 and they now hire more workers in the United States than Fortune 500 companies do globally.

"This new data strongly documents that women-owned businesses are an increasingly potent economic force," Laura Henderson, who chairs the National Foundation for Women Business Owners, said Tuesday in announcing the results of national formation Services.

"Women-owned businesses are growing more rapidly than the overall economy and are major contributors to the nation's economic health and competitiveness," she added.

The study found the 7.7 million women-owned firms generated 11.5 million jobs in 1991, provided jobs for 15.8 million people in the United States last year. That compared to 11.5 million jobs generated worldwide by the largest U.S. companies, up from 5.4 million four years earlier, according to the study, "Women-Owned Businesses: Breaking the Boundaries."

"Women are expanding beyond traditional retail trade and service companies, although 72.5 percent of women-owned firms remain in those two industries. The number of women-owned construction firms grew 19.2 percent between 1991 and 1994. Transportation and communications was up 19.5 percent. Manufacturing growth averaged 14.3 percent. Women are in quick-credit trade, finance, insurance and real estate grew at a significantly faster rate than the overall average for these industries. Female owners also were found in agriculture and mining.

Henderson, who heads Prospect Associates, a Washington-area health communications firm, said women traditionally have had difficulty borrowing capital. One-third of the foundation members have indicated problems dealing with banks, she said.

The study found "women-owned businesses are as financially sound and creditworthy as is the typical firm in the U.S. economy," said David T. Krueger, senior vice president of D&B Information Services.

"They pay their bills as promptly and are no greater risk of failing than other firms," he added. "In fact, women-owned firms are more likely to have remained in business over the past three years than the average U.S. firm."

The study was based on information from the Census Bureau, the Internal Revenue Service and the Small Business Administration.

Clinton signs new health insurance measure despite Murdoch provision

WASHINGTON — With tax returns due in less than a week, President Clinton signed legislation Tuesday giving 3.2 million self-employed people the right to deduct part of the cost of health insurance.

But he did so reluctantly, complaining because Congress included in the bill a special exemption for Rupert Murdoch's $63 million tax break.

Clinton also complained that Congress failed to use the bill to close a loophole enabling billionaire to avoid their federal tax responsibility by renouncing their citizenship.

The president told a midday news conference he could have dealt with the Murdoch situation had Congress given him line-item veto authority enabling him to kill a specific part of a spending or tax bill. He urged Congress to quickly provide such authority.

But as matters stand, he said, the interests of self-employed business people and farmers who generally pay high health insurance premiums override his objections to the Murdoch break.

"It did it because tax day is April 17, and these people are getting their records ready, and there are millions of them, and they are entitled to this deduction; it was wrong for it ever to expire in the first place," Clinton said.

The new law permits some 3.2 million people to claim a 25 percent deduction for health insurance premiums they paid in 1994. The benefit will increase permanently to 30 percent this year.

Clinton said he favors increasing the health insurance deduction to 100 percent.

"Increasing the amount of the deduction will make health insurance more affordable for self-employed small-business people who are today paying some of the highest insurance premiums in the nation," Clinton said.

But the president voiced regret the bill also repeals current tax treatment of the sale or exchange of radio and television stations and cable television systems to minority-owned businesses.
WASHINGTON — Border Patrol agents routinely abuse people seeking to enter the United States from Mexico — and it contends that the Immigration and Naturalization Service, a Justice Department agency, is doing little to remedy its "abysmal human rights record."

INS officials didn't return repeated telephone calls seeking comment Tuesday. But the agency has dismissed earlier reports by the group as a string of unfounded allegations.

The study is the third in a series of highly critical reports of U.S. immigration agents issued by the group, formerly known as Americas Watch. The study, entitled "Crossing the Line," was based on a fact-finding mission along the southwestern border last July.

"The Clinton administration has abdicated its responsibility to correct the ongoing abuses problem by failing to follow through with its pledges of reform and by refusing to consider alternatives, such as an independent review of Border Patrol agents," alleged Allyson Collins, a principal author of the study.

At least 3.5 million people are believed to be in the United States illegally, with another 300,000 or more entering without permission each year.

Human Rights Watch is advocating creation of an independent commission that would receive and investigate complaints against Border Patrol agents. The U.S. Commission on Immigration Reform, headed by former Rep. Barbara Jordan, D-Texas, also has urged establishment of a complaints process that could be monitored by the public.

Currently, complaints generally end up in the Justice Department's civil rights division. The division's criminal section received 1,322 complaints against INS personnel, including Border Patrol agents, between October 1988 and September 1994. Human Rights Watch says of those, only 16 cases were presented to a grand jury for possible indictment. Of the 12 Border Patrol agents indicted on federal civil rights charges since September 1983, two were convicted, the group said.

INS has long said it has only 1 complaint per 17,000 apprehensions, which compares favorably to the rates of other law enforcement agencies.

Complaints are to be expected given the nature of the Border Patrol's job, said University of Texas professor Frank D. Bean, who wrote a recent Border Patrol apprehension study for the U.S. Commission on Immigration Reform.

---

Classified Advertising Order Form

Check ONE Category Only

- Campus Clubs
- Announcements
- Miscellaneous
- Sports
- Arts & Entertainment
- Employment
- Campuses

Classified Advertising Policies

- All advertising copy and materials are subject to acceptance by the Mustang Daily. The Business Manager reserves the right to reject all or any portion of the copy or art submitted at any time prior to publication, even if material has previously been accepted or published.

Manuscript Requirements

- Minimum three typewritten, double-spaced pages

---

MANUFACTURING MANAGEMENT TRAINEE

America's premier provider of print and print related services will be recruiting on campus in May.

The ideal candidate will have a strong knowledge of business including financial and strategic planning, be achievement oriented, and flexible enough to cross train in Customer Service, Human Resources, Engineering and Manufacturing. Learning the overall operation may require working shifts, weekends and overtime. The goal of the program is to identify strong candidates to go into manufacturing supervision with a potential for moving into management.

Requirements:

- MBA or MBA candidate or graduate of Engineering Management Program
- BS in Engineering, Industrial Technology or Graphic Communications
- Previous business experience; manufacturing a plus
- Excellent interpersonal and communication skills

Contact the Placement Office for more information.

R. R. DONELLEY & SONS COMPANY
Reno Manufacturing Division
Equal Opportunity Employer M/F/V/D
Women and minorities encouraged to apply A Drug Free Workplace

---

Classified Advertising Order Form

Check ONE Category Only

- Campus Clubs
- Announcements
- Miscellaneous
- Sports
- Arts & Entertainment
- Employment
- Campuses

Classified Advertising Policies

- All advertising copy and materials are subject to acceptance by the Mustang Daily. The Business Manager reserves the right to reject all or any portion of the copy or art submitted at any time prior to publication, even if material has previously been accepted or published.

Manuscript Requirements

- Minimum three typewritten, double-spaced pages
WINNIE MANDELA CHALLENGES DISMISSAL IN COURT

By Patrick McDonnell

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa — Winnie Mandela has a question for her estranged husband: Why was I fired? Dismissed last month as deputy minister of arts, culture, science and technology, Mrs. Mandela filed court papers this week against her estranged husband, President Nelson Mandela, to explain why.

Moses Mabandla, Mrs. Mandela's lawyer, said Tuesday that the president's office had yet to receive any documents. He had no comment.

The court action deepens a rift in the ANC leadership headed by her husband. Mrs. Mandela was one of the most prominent anti-apartheid activists during the 27 years her husband was in prison. She has built a following among poor blacks whom she says her husband's government has done too little to help.

Despite a conviction for kidnapping in 1991 and her separation from Mandela in 1992, she retained enough clout to garner a Cabinet post; she remained an ANC member of parliament and head of the Women's League.

But she has faced controversy. Her lawyers have demanded a hearing could be held by April 25, responding within 10 days. A hearing could be held by April 25, ruling today.

Mrs. Mandela has maintained no comment.

The court action deepens a rift between Mrs. Mandela and the mainstream ANC leadership headed by her husband.

Mandela refused to give reasons for firing her March 27. The dismissal involved only her Cabinet post; she remained an ANC member of parliament and head of the Women's League.

Arizona college can sue loan guarantor

SAN FRANCISCO — An Arizona trade school with mostly ethnic minority students can proceed with a discrimination suit against an organization that cut off its student loan guarantees, a federal appeals court ruled Tuesday.

Parks College of Business can try to prove that United Student Aid Funds, designated by Arizona to operate a college loan-guarantee program, was guilty of racial discrimination, said the 9th U.S. Circuit Court of Appeals. But the court said the school cannot sue the organization for allegedly violating federal education laws.

Parks has a campus in Tucson and says most of its students are ethnic minorities. In February 1992 its participation in the statewide loan-guarantee program was ended by United Student Aid Funds, USAF is a nonprofit corporation chosen by the state to run a federally funded program of loan guarantees for Arizona students at eligible colleges.

The school, which had taken part in the guarantee program since 1989, contended it was still eligible for the program because of an existing agreement with the U.S. Department of Education. Parks sued USAF and Gov. Fife Symington, who had chosen the organization to run the program.

Parks later arranged loan guarantees from another source but cannot count on their continuance, said the school's lawyer, David O. Drake.

Car was illegally passing before crash

SEARCHLIGHT JUNCTION — A fiery crash that left three dead and five others seriously injured occurred when an illegally passing car ran head-on into another vehicle, investigators said Tuesday.

The crash occurred Monday on Highway 65 near the California-Nevada border.

A convertible carrying three people tried to pass a car in a no-passing zone, colliding head-on with a late-model sedan, said California Highway Patrol spokesman Don Wolfe.

The convertible burst into flames, leaving all three of its occupants dead, Wolfe said. The three were to be identified from dental records later this week, he said.

The other car's occupants included John Marshall, 21; his wife Vicki Marshall, 20; and two nieces and one nephew, ages 8, 10 and 11, respectively, Wolfe said.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Team</th>
<th>Wins</th>
<th>Losses</th>
<th>Ties</th>
<th>Points</th>
<th>Pct.</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Los Angeles</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Boston</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Cal</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Chicago</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Montreal</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Montreal</td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Montana expected to call it quits

Misty Eden, a five-year veteran of the Montana women's volleyball team, said she expects to announce her retirement after the regular season ends.

"I think it's time," Eden said. "I've had a great five years at Montana, and I'm ready to move on."
SPORTS

Newest Cal Poly coach faces tough task ahead

By Ajoy Bhamboni

Jeff Schneider has been the head coach less than 10 hours and already his Poly men's tennis team is on the new step in his career.

"There are even people knocking at his door applying for a possible assistant coaching position," said an assistant coach who was asked about an assistant coach appointment.

While his office is empty, his schedule is more than full. "He's definitely known what he wants to do. He's definitely determined to take us to the next level," Pat Magee, freshman forward.

Jeff Schneider

"We're really happy (for him) — but kind of sad — we lost a great coach and personal friend," Kevin Eastman, Head Coach at Washington State.

"I want the games to be challenges, organizational challenges and challenges to get the community involved. In my mind he's going to see them as opportunities," Kevin Eastman, Wash St. head coach.

"He's got recruiting challenges, organizational challenges and challenges to get the community involved. In my mind he's going to see them as opportunities," Kevin Eastman, Wash St. head coach.

"I want to bring in a Rick Pitino-style of play," Schneider said, referring to the head coach at the University of Kentucky. "It's a style of play that the student body will gravitate towards, it will give us an identity and players want to play in that system."

Sprewell lashes out at Warriors organization

By Ajoy Bhamboni

Sprewell, last season's rookie of the year, and Owens are close friends of Sprewell, who has protested their departure by wearing their jerseys on his sneakers all season.

Sprewell, in his third season with the Warriors, said he's been radarly altered the team and plunged the squad into chaos. "You've gotta look at where we were last season (17-32) and where we are right now (24-51)," Sprewell said. "It was a combination of a lot of things, but he has to take a large part of the responsibility."

When asked if he thought he and Hardaway could coexist next year on the same team, Sprewell said, "I don't think we can.

Hardaway, out for the rest of the season after

No. 1 singles player Chris Maggy tops a backhand in Mon.'s match / Daily Photo by L. Scott Robinson.

UOP ends Mustangs win streak

Kendall Smith

University of the Pacific snapped Cal Poly's eight-game winning streak by defeating the Mustangs 4-3 Monday.

Cal Poly (10-7), which was coming off its Mustang Invitational title last weekend, lost all three doubles matches to lose the game.

The Tigers won into the singles — which follow the doubles matches — up one at No. 6 singles. Pacific won doubles. No. 4 singles and MEN'S TENNIS

Three of the six matches were tight all the way at Pacific won the No. 1 and No. 2 doubles matches both by a score of 9-7. It took the 55th doubles match to lose the game.

The loss was the Mustangs first since losing to Washington March 20. Monday's contest also marked Cal Poly's last home match of the season as the team was to travel for three matches on the road.

SPOBTS

Oakland, Calif. — Latrell Sprewell, speaking publicly for the first time since returning from a two-game suspension, said the Golden State Warriors' disciplinary action for missing a team function was too severe.

"I thought it was un- fair and that they didn't have the right to do that," said Sprewell, who was not paid while on suspension. "They could have fined us but two games is a little severe.

"To me, if I'm someone they want to keep around, they wouldn't have done that. Personally, right now, I feel they want to trade me. I kind of feel they're against me."

Sprewell reserved his harshest remarks for Hardaway and Nelson, who traded away Billy Owens and Chris Webber.

Webber, last season's rookie of the year, and Owens are close friends of Sprewell, who has protested their departure by wearing their jerseys on his sneakers all season.

Sprewell, in his third season with the Warriors, said Nelson's moves radically altered the team and plunged the squad into chaos. "You've gotta look at where we were last season (20-32) and where we are right now (24-51)," Sprewell said. "It was a combination of a lot of things, but he has to take a large part of the responsibility."

When asked if he thought he and Hardaway could coexist next year on the same team, Sprewell said, "I don't think we can.

Hardaway, out for the rest of the season after

Schneider began his career as a graduate assistant.

"He's a guy who is definitely ready, and for Schneider, this isn't just a Division I coaching job. He is one he really wanted."

So what expectations does Schneider have now

AN INSIDE LOOK AT JEFF SCHNEIDER

Ajoy Bhamboni

"We're really happy (for him) — but kind of sad — we lost a great coach and personal friend."

Kevin Eastman, Head Coach at Washington State.

"He definitely knows what he wants to do. He's definitely determined to take us to the next level."

Pat Magee, freshman forward.

SPOBTS

Oakland, Calif. — Latrell Sprewell, speaking publicly for the first time since returning from a two-game suspension, said the Golden State Warriors' disciplinary action for missing a team function was too severe.

"I thought it was unfair and that they didn't have the right to do that," said Sprewell, who was not paid while on suspension. "They could have fined us but two games is a little severe.

"To me, if I'm someone they want to keep around, they wouldn't have done that. Personally, right now, I feel they want to trade me. I kind of feel they're against me."

Sprewell reserved his harshest remarks for Hardaway and Nelson, who traded away Billy Owens and Chris Webber.

Webber, last season's rookie of the year, and Owens are close friends of Sprewell, who has protested their departure by wearing their jerseys on his sneakers all season.

Sprewell, in his third season with the Warriors, said Nelson's moves radically altered the team and plunged the squad into chaos. "You've gotta look at where we were last season (20-32) and where we are right now (24-51)," Sprewell said. "It was a combination of a lot of things, but he has to take a large part of the responsibility."

When asked if he thought he and Hardaway could coexist next year on the same team, Sprewell said, "I don't think we can.

Hardaway, out for the rest of the season after that he has finally landed one of the 302 Division I head coaching jobs!

"I want to bring in a Rick Pitino-style of play," Schneider said, referring to the head coach at the University of Kentucky. "It's a style of play that the student body will gravitate towards, it will give us an identity and players want to play in that system."

Sprewell tries to envision a program that will have support from the student body and respect from future Big West foes.

He compares the task at hard for him to the building hard for which they have taken place at University of Mas-achusetts, University of Wisconsin-Green Bay and at University of Tulsa.

"I know the 302 (rank ing) and I've studied the program. It is the 39 percent shooting," Schneider said.

But the son of a former coach said he wanted this job because of the potential he saw with this program.

"I want the games to be fun," Schneider said. "I want this to be like Duke University."

Duke University has for years packed its stadium and receives tremendous support from its student body.

But before Schneider can think about winning games, he will be working on himself with his first recruiting class. With today being the first day schools are allowed to begin signing players to letters of intent, Schneider has his work cut out for him.

"I'm excited about being at Cal Poly," Schneider said. "I'm not nervous because this is where I want to be."