Bombing investigation stumped by road blocks

Two weeks after explosion, several questions remain unanswered

By Fred Boyles

Two weeks after a bomb shattered downtown Oklahoma City, the investigation has yielded one steely suspect who's keeping his mouth shut, a cast of odd characters, several dead ends and plenty of questions.

While there have been frustrations in the past few days, those knowledgeable about major investigations say the public shouldn't conclude the case has bogged down.

"The time that has passed since this incident is merely days. There's no reason the government shouldn't take another couple of weeks to gather all the evidence before making a final charging decision."

Former federal prosecutor

...There's no reason the government shouldn't take weeks to gather all the evidence before making a final charging decision," said a former federal prosecutor who insisted on anonymity because of current involvement in a government case. There have been initial successes: the arrest of Timothy McVeigh, a rich harvest of evidence linking him to the bombing, and connections to James and Terry Nichols, two Michigan brothers now in custody who shared his penchant for bomb-making and anti-government rhetoric.

There have also been high-profile failures. Most notable the dramatic arrest and subsequent midnight release of Gary Alan Land and Robert Jacks, two drifters whose travels seemed to connect them to McVeigh.

Despite the release of the pair, the FBI is still checking their movements. On Wednesday, two agents interviewed the manager of Gene's Motel in Marshall, Mo., where Land and Jacks reportedly stayed last.

"It's a shame when the school that you pay money to won't let you play sports," he said.

But according to Dwayne Head, public education and kinesiology department head, this sort of situation has occurred before.

"This is nothing new," Head said. "It's been happening for the last 15 years."

Head explained that budget cuts have held the department back from hiring the additional instructors needed to add more classes.

"The problem is that we've had to cut back on the number of 200-level classes that we usually offered to all students," he said. Priority in 200-level PE classes has always been given to PE majors, Head said. Students of See CLASSES, page 9

Amnesty Int'l chapter fights for women's human rights

By Lisa J. Hersdi

"It's a shame when the school that you pay money to won't let you play sports."

Tom Mobley

Political science senior

American singer Jill Knight strummed and hummed tunes Wednesday afternoon in Back Stage Pizza. Knight will sing tonight at The Forum Unplugged, featuring acoustic music with local artists. Daily photo by L. Scott Robinson
TODAY'S WEATHER: Low clouds, partly cloudy

TOMORROW'S WEATHER: Variable clouds, 20 percent chance of showers.

Today's high/low: 65/49 Tomorrow's high/low: 64/NA

Polypalooza 2, an outdoor concert featuring several local bands, this past weekend. The second weekend of spring is neighborhood relations.

They even have a position in the community. "It's unfortunate because of the negative stereotypes that come with the city because of the fraternities," Kennedy said. "Locally, organizations like Grass Root, Casa De Vida, People's Kitchen and the thorne Elementary School all benefit from IPC fraternities."

"We're going to do a bovine bonfire," he said. "The Cal Poly football field will be covered with squares and a cow will be let loose on the field. The squares will be sold, and wherever the cow (drops the bomb), that square wins."

"If the referendum is approved, students will pay a $4 increase beginning fall quarter. The fee will increase by $1 every two years until fall quarter of 2004."

"We also try to do small projects around Cal Poly like cleaning the P during the floods," he said. "We helped the fire department put sand bags around downtown and push cars out of flooded areas. We give a lot to the community and hope not to be a burden on it."

Every fall quarter, students find a giant half-pipe in the University Union. Lambda Chi Alpha builds a ramp and holds the annual Thrash-a-Thon to raise money for their philanthropy. This year they worked with ASI to set up a scholarship fund for nutrition majors. Their goal was to raise 10,000 for the fund. "We're still working on raising the money," said Dave Stenseth, an agronomy junior and member of Lambda Chi. "But we're close to reaching our goal."

Along with this major event, Lambda Chi also participates in a national canned food drive. "Locally, we donated 14,000 pounds of food," Stenseth said. "Nationally, along with other Lambda Chi chapters, the two million pounds of food were donated."

Stenseth said he thinks the Greek system is often overlooked for its many philanthropic efforts. "It's important that we keep to our neighborhood clean," Meray said. They even have a position in the house dedicated to just that — a neighborhood relations.

The local chapter of D.A.R.E. benefited this year from Phi Kappa Psi's major philanthropy event, they make an effort to keep their neighborhood clean. Meray said. They even have a position in the house dedicated to just that — neighborhood relations.

"It's unfortunate because of the all the good we do," he said. "We're still working on raising the money," said Dave Stenseth, an agronomy junior and member of Lambda Chi. "But we're close to reaching our goal."

"We also try to do small projects around Cal Poly like cleaning the P during the floods," he said. "We helped the fire department put sand bags around downtown and push cars out of flooded areas. We give a lot to the community and hope not to be a burden on it."

Every fall quarter, students find a giant half-pipe in the University Union. Lambda Chi Alpha builds a ramp and holds the annual Thrash-a-Thon to raise money for their philanthropy. This year they worked with ASI to set up a scholarship fund for nutrition majors. Their goal was to raise 10,000 for the fund. "We're still working on raising the money," said Dave Stenseth, an agronomy junior and member of Lambda Chi. "But we're close to reaching our goal."

Along with this major event, Lambda Chi also participates in a national canned food drive. "Locally, we donated 14,000 pounds of food," Stenseth said. "Nationally, along with other Lambda Chi chapters, the two million pounds of food were donated."

Stenseth said he thinks the Greek system is often overlooked for its many philanthropic efforts. "It's important that we keep to our neighborhood clean," Meray said. They even have a position in the house dedicated to just that — neighborhood relations.

The local chapter of D.A.R.E. benefited this year from Phi Kappa Psi's major philanthropy event, they make an effort to keep their neighborhood clean. Meray said. They even have a position in the house dedicated to just that — neighborhood relations.

"It's unfortunate because of the all the good we do," he said. "We're still working on raising the money," said Dave Stenseth, an agronomy junior and member of Lambda Chi. "But we're close to reaching our goal."

Along with this major event, Lambda Chi also participates in a national canned food drive. "Locally, we donated 14,000 pounds of food," Stenseth said. "Nationally, along with other Lambda Chi chapters, the two million pounds of food were donated."

Stenseth said he thinks the Greek system is often overlooked for its many philanthropic efforts. "It's important that we keep to our neighborhood clean," Meray said. They even have a position in the house dedicated to just that — neighborhood relations.

The local chapter of D.A.R.E. benefited this year from Phi Kappa Psi's major philanthropy event, they make an effort to keep their neighborhood clean. Meray said. They even have a position in the house dedicated to just that — neighborhood relations.

"It's unfortunate because of the all the good we do," he said. "We're still working on raising the money," said Dave Stenseth, an agronomy junior and member of Lambda Chi. "But we're close to reaching our goal."

Along with this major event, Lambda Chi also participates in a national canned food drive. "Locally, we donated 14,000 pounds of food," Stenseth said. "Nationally, along with other Lambda Chi chapters, the two million pounds of food were donated."

Stenseth said he thinks the Greek system is often overlooked for its many philanthropic efforts. "It's important that we keep to our neighborhood clean," Meray said. They even have a position in the house dedicated to just that — neighborhood relations.

The local chapter of D.A.R.E. benefited this year from Phi Kappa Psi's major philanthropy event, they make an effort to keep their neighborhood clean. Meray said. They even have a position in the house dedicated to just that — neighborhood relations.
Conference explores combination of drugs, alcohol in spread of HIV

By Kelly Racing

The issue concerning the deadly combination of alcohol, drugs, sex and HIV will be the underlying theme to be discussed at a Cal Poly conference today.

The conference — Exploring an Intimate Connection: Alcohol, Drugs and HIV — is set to take place at the Embassy Suites Hotel and will last through tomorrow. It is the first of its kind and is designed to coordinate efforts to prevent alcohol and other drug abuse and to slow the spread of HIV infection.

There is a definite link between alcohol and drug use and the spread of HIV. "Information alone doesn't get things seem okay that might not otherwise be," Rojean Dominguez said. "We are teaching and educating about this intimate connection so the conference participants can go back to their campuses and share their knowledge and start a program to stop the infection of HIV."

According to Keifer, 17 colleges — 11 of them community colleges — from Fresno, Kern, Madera, Monterey, San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara counties will be represented at the conference.

"We want to make this connection (between alcohol, drugs and HIV) clear to today's college students. "Alcohol and sexuality are very much intertwined," Conference Coordinator Thomas Keifer said. "Just look at the beer ads on T.V. We can't pretend it doesn't exist."

"Workshops, panels and demonstrations dealing with information, strategies, programs, materials and policy regarding the education of alcohol, drugs and HIV will take place.

"The colleges, along with nurses and other peer educators, will be participating in the presentation of workshops and demonstrations. "Information alone doesn't get young people to change their behavior," Keifer said. "We want to make this connection (between alcohol, drugs and HIV) clear to these student leaders and hope they can begin changing the culture on their campuses."

Dominguez projected that the number one killer of college students in 20 years will be AIDS because of the long incubation period, the lack of information about the spread of HIV and the high risk factors, like drugs and alcohol, that affect today's college students.

"Alcohol and sexuality are very much intertwined," Conference Coordinator Thomas Keifer said. "Just look at the beer ads on T.V. We can't pretend it doesn't exist."

According to a report from the American College Health Association, protection and communication skills are impaired under the influence of alcohol and other recreational drugs. The report also said that effective campus education about HIV infection must include skill-building in keeping alcohol and other drugs out of sexual situations.

According to Keifer, 17 colleges — 11 of them community colleges — from Fresno, Kern, Madera, Monterey, San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara counties will be represented at the conference.

"Information alone doesn't get young people to change their behavior," Keifer said. "We want to make this connection (between alcohol, drugs and HIV) clear to these student leaders and hope they can begin changing the culture on their campuses."

Dominguez indicated this is why Cal Poly's Student Affairs Division decided to sponsor this informational conference.

"This is a show and tell conference," Dominguez said. "We are teaching and educating about this intimate connection so the conference participants can go back to their campuses and share their knowledge and start a program to stop the infection of HIV."

"There is a definite link between alcohol and drug use and the spread of HIV. Alcohol reduces inhibitions and makes things seem okay that might not otherwise be."

Rojean Dominguez
Student Health Services Educator

WE RACE
YOU WIN!

Professional racing is hell on a car. Every mile on the track is like a hundred on the street. As race car builders, we follow a car through its entire life span — often only a matter of hours. What we've learned at Le Mans and Daytona applies directly to the way we maintain your car. We'll tune it for top performance and make the minor repairs that can save you a major overhaul further down the road.

Our prices are reasonable and our service is the best. Our trusted customers say so. Professional car owners trust us, shouldn't you?

Specializing in Porsche, Audi, BMW, Mercedes, Volvo & VW Auto

273 Pacific Street, San Luis Obispo 543-7473

MUSTANG DAILY

THURSDAY, MAY 4, 1995 3

RECRUITMENT UPDATE

Hi there!

My name is Brian Lyons, and I'm the former Mustang Daily Editor-in-Chief. I've been asked to return to lead Mustang Daily into its next year...

I'm looking to replace my current editor-in-chief, who has almost finished serving his one-year sentence. If you're a full-time Cal Poly student who has reported for Mustang Daily, and you have a strong background in college or professional journalism, please contact Brian Lyons at (805) 772-2047 for more information. A cover letter, resume and proposal for the position are due Monday, May 8.
Reflecting on pre-Coyote personas

Spring takes me away from the horrors of the news and my inability to do anything about it. Spring takes me to the fields and the array of California wildflowers, to the flight of the mourning doves, to the Makos flying into my eyes. Yes, Coyotes have flies, too.

I was graduated or graduating, still call me by that name, by some, and still call me by that name, and sometimes it's used playfully, somewhat deprecating. But that's OK. My job is to help the people who are less fortunate, to help those who need it the most. And I think it's healthy to see some of those more official names: factotum, teacher, director.

I feel the not-so-secret bond of brotherhood. I learned the secret pledge, the secret handshake, and those other more official names: factotum, teacher, director. It's a Chumash word which means "first to leave the nest," and I liked that idea — leaving the nest of the Mid- west like I did become director of ethnic studies. Some of my early days here, all of them either graduating or graduating, still call me by the moniker.

The other names are "Running Turkey" and "Speaking Bull." You can see why I prefer "Pawnee" or "Coyote." If you deconstruct all these names and search through the contexts and the subtitles, you see that they are ambivalent names — somewhat noble, somewhat ignoble.

They are, from certain dominant, inside perspectives, somewhat deprecating. But that's OK. My job here has been to engage in a bit of "transvaluation," to take the outsider, the "other" and try to get some greater acceptance.

I begin to feel insecure, self-conscious and experience sudden drops in self-esteem. The program was designed to counteract these feelings and expose girls to the workplace.

As I sat through the informative presentation and read about the numerous Coleman events, I was thinking on the importance of the day. It was nice to see as many young people taking an interest in themselves and what they want to do.

Then, I suddenly realized that this day totally excludes boys. Why isn't there a "Take Our Sons to Work" program? Whatever gave them the idea that boys don't feel that and the career world is a picnic for us?

program, or, better yet, "Take Our Children to Work Day." If I recall correctly, boys also get to a certain age where they start feeling awkward and insecure. It's called puberty. This is when our voices start to change and all the not-so-secret brotherhoods are still a few feet tall.

This, to me, is grounds for low self-esteem. How come we don't have a day set aside to "counter" these feelings? Don't we need a day to build self-esteem and be exposed to the workplace? Are we not interested in work?

When I was young, I loved to go down to my father's workplace. It was fun to come up with different excuses, varying in degree of difficulty, for why a 10-year-old needed a cup of coffee. But, even without the promise of a coffee, it was fun to sit behind my dad's desk.

I believe it would be equally beneficial for boys and girls to see where their fathers and mothers work.

Even though the mentality that women should stay at home to raise the family and take care of the house is dead (almost), it is still important to show boys that their mothers do work, earn money and, yes, have a life outside the house. A day that includes boys would be an excellent opportunity to start implementing these thoughts into their skulls at an early age. Perhaps this is pure speculation, but, maybe an integrated "Take Our Children to Work Day" could make existing sexual stereotypes obsolete in years to come.

By Dale Myers

Dale Myers is a journalism senior and a Daily staff writer.
JIMMY FINDS OUT AT AN EARLY AGE THAT DIALING 1-800-COLLECT IS A LOT EASIER THAN USING DAD'S HOME DENTISTRY KIT.

1-800-COLLECT
Save The People You Call Up To 44%.
SATURDAY, MAY 6, NOON- 5 PM
COUNTY GOVERNMENT CENTER, SLO
“Celebrating Getting from Here to There On Bicycles”

San Luis Obispo will be brimming with bicycles Saturday, May 6, at the Fourth Annual Bike Fest! Bike Fest, sponsored by the SLO Regional Rideshare Program and its partners, starts at noon and goes to 5 PM. Come on down to the County Government Center on Monterey Street in San Luis Obispo to get LOW-COST BIKE TUNE-UPS, FREE BIKE MAPS, AND OTHER FUN STUFF!

KIDS! The law says you’ve got to wear a helmet to ride. So we’re giving FREE BIKE HELMETS to kids who don’t have them. Free helmet fitting by the Cal Poly Wheelmen. We’ve got about 500 helmets, so get there while supplies last!

Bicyclists will also be eligible to WIN A MOUNTAIN BIKE donated by K-OTTER!

Get your bike tuned up for five bucks at the Wheelmen Bike fix, sponsored by the Cal Poly Wheelmen Cycling Team.

If you can’t get all the way to the County Government Center, put your bike on the CCAT bus and ride into town all the way from Nipomo, San Simeon and Paso Robles.

If you have questions about Bike Fest, call 541- CARS
Approximately one hour north of San Luis Obispo lies a 5,000-acre lake resort where a 16-mile long body of water is embedded below a backdrop of semi-green rolling hills.

There is a serene peacefulness to this area as boats with fishing-crazed goers drift in search of striped bass, bluegill, and channel fish which inhabit this natural lake.

So calm is the setting that one can hear a motorboat buzzing through the water in the far off distance. While closer; the rippling motor of a jetski is enough to frighten away nearby dogs.

Although it may seem to be just a normal spring afternoon at Lake San Antonio Park, things are becoming increasingly hectic at this time of year.

At the lake-view cafeteria, employees are stocking up on extra spaghetti and Parmesan cheese, and at the adjacent market, workers are increasing their inventory of Gatorade and bottled water, not to mention their supply of alcohol which will soon be booming in sales.

Park rangers and maintenance personnel are grading the trails, setting up stations, making road markings, and posting signs.

Preparations are underway in this small town of Bradley - located in the southern part of Monterey County - as the locals brace for its biggest event of the year:

For the thirteenth-straight year, thousands of people will descend upon this area this weekend from all parts of California and neighboring states as they have been doing since 1983 for the Wildflower Triathlons Festival.

See FESTIVAL / Page B4
Geniuses in art

"They are fun. I’m not too good with technology, I wouldn’t have the time to experiment as much as I’d like if I had to paint everything."

Dan Piel, Artist

He admitted to a definite bias toward art and music, commenting that, "I have made an extra effort in the sciences."

Piel also said that he tries to paint in the style of the painter he is honoring. He painted a Jackson Pollock in Polio’s style, dropping the paint instead of using a paint brush.

"(Piel) has such an interesting history," said Jeanne La Barbera, Galerie director, "It is one of our own doing this."

"In 1984 we had the pleasure of presenting 'Stars, Songs, Faces,' a spectacular multimedia exhibition," La Barbera said, "which subsequently traveled throughout Southern California and was later purchased by a partisan art gallery owner for display in France."

"They are fun. I’m not too good with technology, I wouldn’t have the time to experiment as much as I’d like if I had to paint everything."

Dan Piel with his larger than life painting of Michelangelo Buonarroti. Piel’s paintings are on display at the U.U. Galerie / Daily Photo by L. Scott Robinson.
Giant Ant Farm's 'carnivalistic' sound strays from the norm

By Natasha Collins

If Pee Wee Herman was having nightmares about carnivals, Giant Ant Farm's music would accompany it.

That is the way lead vocalist Dren McDonald describes his group's music.

"We're not the kind of band that really fits into a niche," McDonald said. "You won't hear us playing with Pearl Jam or groups like that ... we've created our own niche and established a new identity for alternative music."

"We've taken elements from such bands as Tom Waits, Nick Cave, The Fugitives and They Might Be Giants, Giant Ant Farm offers an escape from mainstream rock."

The unusual name of the band incorporates the accordion, clarinet, trombone, banjo, upright bass and strangely con­structed pop vocals in their music and on their new compact disc "Fortune!"

"We use a lot of whistles, drums and banjo in our songs. We don't have anything to do with electric guitar solos ... We are more acoustically based." Dren McDonald Musician

McDonald said, "We already have a pretty good following ... Hopefully the tour will increase it."

This band has been referred to as "What you might be hearing in a cabinet in Nazi Germany if Disneyland had won the war," by the Long Beach Press Telegram.

"We're looking forward to spending time in San Luis Obispo and throughout the Bay Area. They also will be touring the western states this summer and Europe in the fall."

"We aren't that appreciated in the Los Angeles area," McDonald said. "We tend to be more accepted up north ... We have to accommodate the people and their sound in the intimate setting of the local coffee houses and book stores, places they say allow them to get close to their audience."

"It's a chance for us to work with local acts and for us to work on a professional level," Bob Liepman Musician

The show will be at 8 p.m. Tick­ets are $12 at the door.

"It's a chance for us to work with local acts and for us to work on a professional level," Bob Liepman Musician

Giant Ant Farm will play at Boo Boo Records Friday night at 6 p.m. / Photo by Miki Yasue
FESTIVAL: More than a triathlon

From page 81

For this once-a-year occasion, this area's best half-marathon will be replaced by a barrage of competitors from full-out training to world swimming through the lakes, running through the trees, traversing hills and biking through winding and sloping trails. And then there will be the bands of volunteers and spectators who will have an opportunity to take part in all sorts of festivities ranging from exhibits and food galleries to bands scheduled to perform. Last year an estimated 15,000 people flocked to the area, some just to spend a day, while others brought their tents and camping gear and made a weekend out of it.

This is no ordinary triathlon. Besides being a qualifying event for the Ironman Triathlon World Championships to be held in Hawaii this summer, Cal Poly brings together intensely trained athletes, college party-goers, families and entertainers for a weekend of non-stop excitement.

The weekend races will be categorized into three different levels:

- The Long Course Triathlon: 1.2-mile swim, 56-mile bike and 18-mile run.
- The Olympic Course Triathlon: 400-yard swim, 40-kilometer bike course and a 10-kilometer run.
- The Mountain Bike Triathlon: a 25-mile swim, a 10-mile bike and a 2-mile run.

While the races won't begin until Saturday morning, more than 1,500 volunteers — 800 from Cal Poly alone — will arrive Friday to find a campsite before the camping grounds become too crowded. Everyone will try to avoid the Friday night distractions, spectators tend to arrive Saturday morning just hours before the races are set to begin. The area attracts competitors and visitors, will feature bands of various types of music that would make most pimply-faced fans faint.

On the down side, a full list of "Grandpaw Would" gets into just about everything though the album isn't only barely over 40 minutes long.

But his lyrical quirkiness and teenage perkiness has the ability to turn on any social gathering in a Pizzazz prescription party.

So, go ahead give Ben Lee a try, Grandpaw would.

The lyrics of "Grandpaw Would" take love songs and pop music to a higher educational level. His mastery of literary devices has Lee confident enough to sing "I don't think that's a suitable metaphor," on "How Can That Be?"

And as if telling us what he's learned in school today, Lee whispers out his vocabulary list, abandoning words like "pissable," and "malleable," and urges us to be "more dutiful" like him.

Maybe it's because he's Australian, or maybe because Lee is barely old enough to get a driver's license in the U.S., but it's cute when he rhymes "stir" to "syrup," "sir," and "sheat" with "masterpiece."

Lee's (or Lea's) youthfulness is bound to be only temporarily continuing some of the guest stars on the record. Lea Phaire's one-line turn on "Away With the Pixies" is sweet and low, and Rebecca Gates from the Spinanes joins Lee on "Pop Queen."

These are the kind of singers that would make most pimpily-faced kids faint.

On the down side, a full list of "Grandpaw Would" gets into just about everything though the album isn't only barely over 40 minutes long.

But his lyrical quirkiness and teenage perkiness has the ability to turn on any social gathering in a Pizzazz prescription party.

So, go ahead give Ben Lee a try, Grandpaw would.

The lyrics of "Grandpaw Would" take love songs and pop music to a higher educational level. His mastery of literary devices has Lee confident enough to sing "I don't think that's a suitable metaphor," on "How Can That Be?"

And as if telling us what he's learned in school today, Lee whispers out his vocabulary list, abandoning words like "pissable," and "malleable," and urges us to be "more dutiful" like him.

Maybe it's because he's Australian, or maybe because Lee is barely old enough to get a driver's license in the U.S., but it's cute when he rhymes "stir" to "syrup," "sir," and "sheat" with "masterpiece."

Lee's (or Lea's) youthfulness is bound to be only temporarily continuing some of the guest stars on the record. Lea Phaire's one-line turn on "Away With the Pixies" is sweet and low, and Rebecca Gates from the Spinanes joins Lee on "Pop Queen."

These are the kind of singers that would make most pimpily-faced kids faint.

On the down side, a full list of "Grandpaw Would" gets into just about everything though the album isn't only barely over 40 minutes long.

But his lyrical quirkiness and teenage perkiness has the ability to turn on any social gathering in a Pizzazz prescription party.

So, go ahead give Ben Lee a try, Grandpaw would.

The lyrics of "Grandpaw Would" take love songs and pop music to a higher educational level. His mastery of literary devices has Lee confident enough to sing "I don't think that's a suitable metaphor," on "How Can That Be?"

And as if telling us what he's learned in school today, Lee whispers out his vocabulary list, abandoning words like "pissable," and "malleable," and urges us to be "more dutiful" like him.

Maybe it's because he's Australian, or maybe because Lee is barely old enough to get a driver's license in the U.S., but it's cute when he rhymes "stir" to "syrup," "sir," and "sheat" with "masterpiece."

Lee's (or Lea's) youthfulness is bound to be only temporarily continuing some of the guest stars on the record. Lea Phaire's one-line turn on "Away With the Pixies" is sweet and low, and Rebecca Gates from the Spinanes joins Lee on "Pop Queen."

These are the kind of singers that would make most pimpily-faced kids faint.

On the down side, a full list of "Grandpaw Would" gets into just about everything though the album isn't only barely over 40 minutes long.

But his lyrical quirkiness and teenage perkiness has the ability to turn on any social gathering in a Pizzazz prescription party.

So, go ahead give Ben Lee a try, Grandpaw would.
American prisoner back in jail after brief hospitalization

By Sally Grapely

BAGHDAD, Iraq — One of two Americans imprisoned in Iraq was briefly hospitalized for medical tests, then returned to his cell when no problems were found, an Iraqi official said Wednesday.

The statement by Information Minister Hamad Yousef Humadi contradicted a U.S. State Department announcement Tuesday that both David Daliberti and William Bartson had been hospitalized with chest pains.

"Only one of the prisoners was admitted to the hospital for medical tests and not two," Humadi said. "He is receiving very good medical care. He has been taken back from the hospital in very good condition and the doctors have found no problem."

There is no need to "exaggerate and sensationalize" reports on the prisoners' health, Humadi added.

Humadi did not say which of the two men was hospitalized or give the exact nature of his ailment. But informed sources in Baghdad said Daliberti's health was worse than Bartson's, even though Daliberti is known to have a heart condition.

Earlier, diplomats said both Daliberti and Bartson were hospitalized after complaining they felt ill during a meeting Monday in the Abu Ghraib prison with their wives.

"We believe that on medical grounds alone there is every reason to release these two guys," State Department spokesman Nicholas Burns said Tuesday in Washington.

Zulu nationalist leader Man
gosuthu Buthelezi says cutting off federal funds would mean schools and hospitals would have to close. He denies his Inkatha Freedom Party is inciting violent opposition to the Mandela government or fomenting a revolt.

But a march by about 20,000 armed Inkatha supporters demanding greater autonomy marred the first anniversary of South Africa's first all-race elections.

Four people died in violence around the province following the march in Durban last week.

It's One Of The Most Useful Credit Cards On The Planet. Unless You've Stolen It. Your MasterCard® is stolen. You panic, get angry, panic some more. Then you call and cancel it. Now the thief is in possession of, oh, about seven cents worth of stolen plastic. (Maybe he can use it as a coaster when he entertains at the hideout.) So relax. You only have to pay for stuff you bought, and you can get a new card the next day. It'll be accepted at millions of places, one of which must sell wallets. MasterCard. It's more than a credit card. It's smart money.

Mandela threatens tough action against Zulus to end violence

By Alexander Zonis

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — President Nelson Mandela threatened again Wednesday to cut off federal funds to Zulus who have become increasingly violent in their demands for regional autonomy.

Zulu nationalist leader Man-
gosuthu Buthelezi says cutting off federal funds would mean schools and hospitals would have to close. He denies his Inkatha Freedom Party is inciting violent opposition to the Mandela government or fomenting a revolt.

But a march by about 20,000 armed Inkatha supporters demanding greater autonomy marred the first anniversary of South Africa's first all-race elections.

Four people died in violence around the province following the march in Durban last week.

It's One Of The Most Useful Credit Cards On The Planet. Unless You've Stolen It. Your MasterCard® is stolen. You panic, get angry, panic some more. Then you call and cancel it. Now the thief is in possession of, oh, about seven cents worth of stolen plastic. (Maybe he can use it as a coaster when he entertains at the hideout.) So relax. You only have to pay for stuff you bought, and you can get a new card the next day. It'll be accepted at millions of places, one of which must sell wallets. MasterCard. It's more than a credit card. It's smart money.

Mandela threatens tough action against Zulus to end violence

By Alexander Zonis

CAPE TOWN, South Africa — President Nelson Mandela threatened again Wednesday to cut off federal funds to Zulus who have become increasingly violent in their demands for regional autonomy.

Zulu nationalist leader Man-
gosuthu Buthelezi says cutting off federal funds would mean schools and hospitals would have to close. He denies his Inkatha Freedom Party is inciting violent opposition to the Mandela government or fomenting a revolt.

But a march by about 20,000 armed Inkatha supporters demanding greater autonomy marred the first anniversary of South Africa's first all-race elections.

Four people died in violence around the province following the march in Durban last week.

It's One Of The Most Useful Credit Cards On The Planet. Unless You've Stolen It. Your MasterCard® is stolen. You panic, get angry, panic some more. Then you call and cancel it. Now the thief is in possession of, oh, about seven cents worth of stolen plastic. (Maybe he can use it as a coaster when he entertains at the hideout.) So relax. You only have to pay for stuff you bought, and you can get a new card the next day. It'll be accepted at millions of places, one of which must sell wallets. MasterCard. It's more than a credit card. It's smart money.
Civil rights week speaker deplores government interference with gaming casinos

By Tara Bradley

On this third day of Cal Poly's Civil Rights Awareness Week, eight people filed into University Union Room 220 to listen to Santa Ynez Tribal Chairman Dave Dominguez speak.

Dominguez, who also is the vice chair for the National Indian Gaming Association, runs the Santa Ynez Indian Casino near south of Santa Maria.

"I am responsible for the well-being of my tribe," Dominguez said.

"I am a plumber by trade. I did this because Nevada wants to control gaming," Dominguez said. "We use the exact same machines as the state lottery and Keno do."

This idea in the basis of the ongoing lawsuit that will have Dominguez visiting Congress' floor for an undetermined amount of time.

There are presently 32 bills in the Senate at the state floor for an undetermined amount of time.

"They call us criminals," Dominguez said. "We use the state decisions they have made to change the law."

"We have wiped out Indian tribes for 100 years and will continue to do so if we don't stop them," he said. "That's where I come in."

College Life:
A Few Things To Know

Hey, on college campuses those "in the know" are the ones who rule. And it's not just about being smart in the classroom, it's about being wise with your wallet as well. So if you want a great low price on a collect call, just dial 1 800-CALL-ATT. It always costs less than 1-800-COLLECT. Always.

There are lots of tricky things for you to learn at college, but here's something that's easy: KNOW THE CODE, and save the person on the other end some serious money. You'll be glad you did.

AT&T. Your True Voice.

"Kamp's Pizza Place is open 30 minutes or it's free" pizza place always takes exactly 30 minutes.

There are presently 32 bills in the Senate at the state floor for an undetermined amount of time.

"They call us criminals," Dominguez said. "We use the state decisions they have made to change the law."

"We have wiped out Indian tribes for 100 years and will continue to do so if we don't stop them," he said. "That's where I come in."
AMNESTY: Local chapter writes letter to imprisoned women to give them help and hope

From page 1

"Amnesty International shines a light into the dark corners of the world," Clause said. "Even the logo is representative — a candle shining through the Barbara wire."

The national organization divides the responsibilities so different areas of the country can write letters and concentrate their efforts on specific people.

"If a group is particularly small, sometimes they will adopt just one person and concentrate on only them," Clause said. "It's very exciting to see it work."

Student groups often focus on young people who are persecuted in different countries. The organization got its start because of two Portuguese children who were arrested and sentenced to seven years in prison for "toasting and hopes meetings will start next fall."

"I was disappointed that a student branch of Amnesty International wasn't here on campus," Lawlor said. "The people who had been active graduated and no one was left to run it."

Lawlor and Jessica Niland, also a journalism freshman, are taking on the responsibility of getting things started again.

According to Lawlor, "Jessica was really involved with the Amnesty International club in high school. She'll be president."

Lawlor points out that even with the two of them filling officer positions, there's still plenty of room left for other officers and members. And, it's a chance to make a difference.

"A lot of people are not as free as we are — you feel so small in the world — and this is one way to make a difference," Lawlor said.

While Amnesty International is concerned with human rights for everyone, the local chapter headed by Clause is presently concerned with the rights of women.

"Women are imprisoned for the same things as men — religion and politics among other things — and they're tortured the same as men," Clause said. "But there are also very specific things done only to women."

"Women refugees are often raped by guards and soldiers," Clause said. "It's enormously fulfilling when we hear from the national organization that someone on whose behalf we were writing letters has been released," Clause said.

"We rarely hear from the government itself, after all, they want to keep this secret," she said. "But you know it was your onslaught which helped free them. It makes it all worthwhile."

Clause closed with some haunting poetry from Alicia Partnoy, a woman who was once imprisoned in Argentina but now lives in exile in Washington, D.C., with her daughter.

Her poems are written in Spanish and then translated into English. They tell the story: "Testimony of Sonia from El Salvador."

Of the 20 as we were studying there:
1 disappeared
2 sentenced
5 imprisoned
10 exiled
1
not involved. Yet.

From page 1

"I've heard of non-majors getting kicked out to make room for PE majors, but I've never seen it myself," he said.

DESIGNER CATALOGUE LIQUIDATION 50% TO 80% OFF RETAIL

4 Days Only!
May 4, 5, 6 & 7

- Thurs. 10-9 - Sat. 10-6
- Fri. 10-6 - Sun. 10-4

- Designer Catalogue Close-outs and more
- Tweed's Catalogue
- World's Leading Fashion & Lingerie Catalogue (that is "Oh-so-secret")
- Namebrands so hot we can't mention
- Designer Samples
- one 212 Catalogue

H & G SALES
CASH & CHECK ONLY

Swaters • Shoes • Pants • Career Wear • Jeans • Tops • Swimsuits • Shorts • Dresses • Jackets and MUCH, MUCH MORE!

Veteran's Building • 801 Grand Avenue, San Luis Obispo (Corner of Monterey and Grand) • 528-2947

From page 1

other majors are allowed to enroll in these sections only if the spaces haven't been filled by PE majors.

But Cal Poly Class Scheduler Debbie Arsenault said classes are available to all students unless "majors only." The words "majors only" are written below the call number in the CAPTURE schedule.

The spring class schedule listed only one class out of the 49 physical education classes as "majors only."

The Cal Poly catalog does explain that classes considered Professional Activities (PE 206-229) give priority to PE majors. But unless the students call the department, Arsenault said, they may not know that they're being dropped until the first day of class.

Thomas Brodaker, a physical education junior, said the overbooked classes haven't affected him.

"I've heard of non-majors getting kicked out to make room for PE majors, but I've never seen it myself," he said.
Pregnancy hormone may help treat AIDS-related condition, study says

By Malcolm Ritter
Associated Press

NEW YORK — A hormone found in pregnant women may be useful for treating Kaposi's sarcoma, an AIDS-related condition that causes disfiguring skin lesions.

The hormone killed Kaposi's sarcoma cells in the laboratory, and in mice it shrank tumors caused by injections of Kaposi's sarcoma cells, Dr. Robert Gallo said.

Gallo, chief of the Laboratory of Tumor Cell Biology at the National Cancer Institute in Bethesda, Md., reports a series of experiments in Thursday's issue of the journal Nature with colleague Dr. Yasto Lunardi-Lakan­ dar and others at the National Institutes of Health and elsewhere.

The researchers reported that Kaposi's sarcoma cells that normally create tumors in mice were unable to do so if they were exposed for a week before being injected into the animals. In addition, mice that were treated with the hormone for a week before being injected with the cells showed no tumors or much smaller tumors than in untreated mice.

Gallo said other experiments indicated that hormone treatment could shrink established tumors in mice.

The paper also describes two women with Kaposi's sarcoma whose skin lesions disappeared during or after pregnancy.

Dr. Alvin Friedman-Kien, a professor of dermatology and microbiology at New York University Medical Center, called the Nature report "fasci­ nating."

So long, George: Congress considers replacing dollar with coin

The Congressional Budget Office estimates the savings at $120 million to $180 million a year.

Since 1963, when switching to coins will save millions for private industry while offering added convenience to public and commerce alike. No longer would commuters riding public transportation in Rhode Island to Manhattan have to pay with quarters — twice a day — because New York City buses don't accept dollar bills. No longer would large hotels in downtown Washington have to feed meters with quarters to park for two hours. No longer would the Chicago Transit Authority have to pay 20 full-coins.

CNBC, Vanity Fair hire former White House press secretary

Myers, 33, will also join the profession whose members she carried with at the White House. Vanity Fair magazine named her the veteran political Washington editor, a newly created post.

She will direct the magazine's political coverage.
PAN EL DISCUSSION
Thursday May 4 @ 11 AM Big Room
Everyone Welcome

Announcements

Campus Clubs
SPJ PANEL DISCUSSION

Greek News
Order of Ω
Initiation Banquet May 7th 7pm
UO 2D

Φ
Get Ready for a GREAT EVENT! 100% of the price goes to the University of Oregon Women’s Athletics should have taken over $350 & 361.
Applications are available from the Office of Student Activities. Applications to win $100 in the C.G. open 7th annual Greek Olympics. All Greek organizations are encouraged to participate in the Olympics.

Events
ATTENTION ALL CLUBS!
GOOD NEIGHBOR DAY FORMS ARE
MASSIVE IN AN O H 27 17 A
Lost & Found
Santa Teresa M CONGRATULATIONS ON BEING A T NEATHEARD & SET YOUR HOT SEALING IRON AT 5/20
Lost & Found
773-9477
773-9477
Lost-working in front of Bldg 10
class REWARD For book12
Lost working AT Santa Monica 318-318

Travel
DO EUROPE $269 ANYTIME!
A First-class travel to Europe in the

AirHitch
AirHitch
310-394-0550

Classifieds

To advertise in Mustang Daily Classifieds, Call 756-1142

Graduate from High School to High Tech.

from page 10
"His behavior was completely out of character and is a source of personal embarrassment to him," DuMouchel said. "The entire in-

"skin-deep"

Graduate from High School to High Tech.

Look in the mirror. You’ll see a young person who could probably quality for high-tech training in the U.S. Army.

"voice and digital systems...computers...lasers...fiber optics..."

The Army gives you a choice of over 50 specialty skills on the cutting edge of today’s technology. Any of them will give you a big edge on a bright future.

Look in on your local Army Recruiter and ask about high-tech training for your future in today’s modern Army.

1-800-USA ARMY
ARMY. BE ALL YOU CAN BE.
Baseball fans becoming volatile

By Rick Warren
Associated Press

In Pittsburgh, fans littered the field with wooden pennant sticks and delayed the game for 17 minutes. In New York, three people wearing "Crest" T-shirts ran onto the field at Shea Stadium and threw dollar bills at the players.

And in Detroit, the Tigers almost had to forfeit their home opener after fans tossed whiskey bottles, cigarette lighters and a metal napkin dispenser at players, and at least 20 people were taken off the field by security guards.

Clearly, fans are in a foul mood following the longest strike in baseball history.

"They feel they've been screwed," said Thomas Tukt, a psychology professor at San Jose State. "This is their way of showing their anger at the players.

Many fans, frustrated over not showing up. Through Tuesday night's games, the average attendance of 27,481 was down 13 percent from last year's average of 31,411. But the most powerful sign of discontent have been the rowdy outbursts in Pittsburgh, New York, Detroit and Milwaukee, where a fan dumped beer on Chicago White Sox outfielder Mark Kotsay.

The most vivid example of fan frustration occurred Tuesday in Detroit, where the scene got so scary that Cleveland general manager John Hart called the American League office during the game to demand protection for his players.

"I've never played in worse conditions," said Indians outfielder Kenny Lofton, who was nearly hit by a baseball thrown from the stands. "I've never seen anything like this. I wasn't focused on the game today. I was just worried about what was going on. When you're trying to injure somebody, that's ridiculous."

Although no players were injured by the debris, the AL and NL officials promised to tighten security for Wednesday night's game at Detroit. Major league security director Kevin Hallman traveled there to coordinate the efforts.

"I think everyone was appalled by what happened there," AL spokeswoman Phyllis Merhige said. "And we want to make sure nothing like that happens again.

Tukt, who specializes in sports psychology, said it's a volatile situation.

"If you're not careful, these kinds of things can escalate and get out of hand very quickly," he said. "I think we're just a hair-and-a-half away from a real disaster.

Unruly fans are nothing new in baseball.

In 1954, St. Louis outfielder Ducky Medwick was forced to leave the seventh game of the World Series after Detroit fans, angry over his hard slide into second base, threw rocks at him from the stands.

"They feel they've been upset, but isn't concerned about his safety.

"I expected the fans to be unhappy," Smith said before Wednesday's home game against Pittsburgh. "We have to try to win them back by playing at our best. ... I think things will settle down once the season gets in full swing.

Michigan coach's behavior 'out of character'

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. — Michigan football coach Gary Moeller was so intoxicated after his arrest last week that jail officials didn't even bother to admit him, suggesting he be taken to a hospital to check for alcohol poisoning, police reports indicate.

Moeller was arrested Friday night outside the Excalibur restaurant, punching an officer in the chest. Earlier, he had harassed a waitress, bothered other restaurant patrons and challenged the manager to a fight.

At Providence Hospital, Moeller screamed profanities at patients and officers until nurses asked police to isolate him in a room, reports indicate.

Officers said Moeller told them at the hospital: "Take these handcuffs off," then threatened them.

The university on Tuesday named a department assistant Keith Molin to head its internal investigation of Moeller's conduct. Meanwhile, Moeller has been suspended with pay from his $130,000-a-year job while defensive coordinator Lloyd Carr takes over his duties.

Heisman trophy director Joe Roberston said he and university president James Duderstadt will make a final decision after reading the report.

Obviously, we're delighted to receive this," Harris said at a news conference. "It's a compliment to our team. It means the team did well. The team is the players and coaches.

With that, Harris introduced assistants Bill Bertka, Michael Cooper and Larry Drew.

"The players are the ones that make it happen," Harris said. "It's a compliment to our team. They deserve this award."

Harris introduced assistants Bill Bertka, Michael Cooper and Larry Drew.

"The players are the ones that make it happen," Harris said. "It's a compliment to our team. They deserve this award."

Harris has received the Red Auerbach Trophy, named for the president of the Boston Cel­ ltics, who led the team to nine championships between the 1956-57 and 1966-67 seasons.

"It's a compliment to our team. It means the team did well. The team is the players and coaches.

"The players are the ones that make it happen," Harris said. "It's a compliment to our team. They deserve this award."

Lakers' Del Harris wins Coach-of-the-Year honors

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Del Harris, who guided the Los Angeles Lakers to a 15-game improvement from last season and back into the playoffs after a one-year absence, was chosen the NBA's Coach of the Year on Wednesday.

"When they canceled the World Series, it became absolute­ly clear to fans that they don't matter to the players or the owners," Tukt said. "They've just fed up with the narcissism and greed from both sides.

"The most vivid example of fan frustration occurred Tuesday in Detroit, where the scene got so scary that Cleveland general manager John Hart called the American League office during the game to demand protection for his players.

"I've never played in worse conditions," said Indians outfielder Kenny Lofton, who was nearly hit by a baseball thrown from the stands. "I've never seen anything like this. I wasn't focused on the game today. I was just worried about what was going on. When you're trying to injure somebody, that's ridiculous."

Although no players were injured by the debris, the AL and NL officials promised to tighten security for Wednesday night's game at Detroit. Major league security director Kevin Hallman traveled there to coordinate the efforts.

"I think everyone was appalled by what happened there," AL spokeswoman Phyllis Merhige said. "And we want to make sure nothing like that happens again.

Tukt, who specializes in sports psychology, said it's a volatile situation.

"If you're not careful, these kinds of things can escalate and get out of hand very quickly," he said. "I think we're just a hair-and-a-half away from a real disaster.

Unruly fans are nothing new in baseball.

In 1954, St. Louis outfielder Ducky Medwick was forced to leave the seventh game of the World Series after Detroit fans, angry over his hard slide into second base, threw rocks at him from the stands.

"They feel they've been upset, but isn't concerned about his safety.

"I expected the fans to be unhappy," Smith said before Wednesday's home game against Pittsburgh. "We have to try to win them back by playing at our best. ... I think things will settle down once the season gets in full swing.

Michigan coach's behavior 'out of character'

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. — Michigan football coach Gary Moeller was so intoxicated after his arrest last week that jail officials didn't even bother to admit him, suggesting he be taken to a hospital to check for alcohol poisoning, police reports indicate.

Moeller was arrested Friday night outside the Excalibur restaurant, punching an officer in the chest. Earlier, he had harassed a waitress, bothered other restaurant patrons and challenged the manager to a fight.

At Providence Hospital, Moeller screamed profanities at patients and officers until nurses asked police to isolate him in a room, reports indicate.

Officers said Moeller told them at the hospital: "Take these handcuffs off," then threatened them.

The university on Tuesday named a department assistant Keith Molin to head its internal investigation of Moeller's conduct. Meanwhile, Moeller has been suspended with pay from his $130,000-a-year job while defensive coordinator Lloyd Carr takes over his duties.

Heisman trophy director Joe Roberston said he and university president James Duderstadt will make a final decision after reading the report.

Obviously, we're delighted to receive this," Harris said at a news conference. "It's a compliment to our team. It means the team did well. The team is the players and coaches.

With that, Harris introduced assistants Bill Bertka, Michael Cooper and Larry Drew.

"The players are the ones that make it happen," Harris said. "It's a compliment to our team. They deserve this award."

Harris has received the Red Auerbach Trophy, named for the president of the Boston Cel­ ltics, who led the team to nine championships between the 1956-57 and 1966-67 seasons.

"It's a compliment to our team. It means the team did well. The team is the players and coaches.

"The players are the ones that make it happen," Harris said. "It's a compliment to our team. They deserve this award."

Lakers' Del Harris wins Coach-of-the-Year honors

INGLEWOOD, Calif. — Del Harris, who guided the Los Angeles Lakers to a 15-game improvement from last season and back into the playoffs after a one-year absence, was chosen the NBA's Coach of the Year on Wednesday.

"When they canceled the World Series, it became absolute­ly clear to fans that they don't matter to the players or the owners," Tukt said. "They've just fed up with the narcissism and greed from both sides.

"The most vivid example of fan frustration occurred Tuesday in Detroit, where the scene got so scary that Cleveland general manager John Hart called the American League office during the game to demand protection for his players.

"I've never played in worse conditions," said Indians outfielder Kenny Lofton, who was nearly hit by a baseball thrown from the stands. "I've never seen anything like this. I wasn't focused on the game today. I was just worried about what was going on. When you're trying to injure somebody, that's ridiculous."

Although no players were injured by the debris, the AL and NL officials promised to tighten security for Wednesday night's game at Detroit. Major league security director Kevin Hallman traveled there to coordinate the efforts.

"I think everyone was appalled by what happened there," AL spokeswoman Phyllis Merhige said. "And we want to make sure nothing like that happens again.

Tukt, who specializes in sports psychology, said it's a volatile situation.

"If you're not careful, these kinds of things can escalate and get out of hand very quickly," he said. "I think we're just a hair-and-a-half away from a real disaster.

Unruly fans are nothing new in baseball.

In 1954, St. Louis outfielder Ducky Medwick was forced to leave the seventh game of the World Series after Detroit fans, angry over his hard slide into second base, threw rocks at him from the stands.

"They feel they've been upset, but isn't concerned about his safety.

"I expected the fans to be unhappy," Smith said before Wednesday's home game against Pittsburgh. "We have to try to win them back by playing at our best. ... I think things will settle down once the season gets in full swing.

Michigan coach's behavior 'out of character'

SOUTHFIELD, Mich. — Michigan football coach Gary Moeller was so intoxicated after his arrest last week that jail officials didn't even bother to admit him, suggesting he be taken to a hospital to check for alcohol poisoning, police reports indicate.

Moeller was arrested Friday night outside the Excalibur restaurant, punching an officer in the chest. Earlier, he had harassed a waitress, bothered other restaurant patrons and challenged the manager to a fight.

At Providence Hospital, Moeller screamed profanities at patients and officers until nurses asked police to isolate him in a room, reports indicate.

Officers said Moeller told them at the hospital: "Take these handcuffs off," then threatened them.

The university on Tuesday named a department assistant Keith Molin to head its internal investigation of Moeller's conduct. Meanwhile, Moeller has been suspended with pay from his $130,000-a-year job while defensive coordinator Lloyd Carr takes over his duties.

Heisman trophy director Joe Roberston said he and university president James Duderstadt will make a final decision after reading the report.

Obviously, we're delighted to receive this," Harris said at a news conference. "It's a compliment to our team. It means the team did well. The team is the players and coaches.

With that, Harris introduced assistants Bill Bertka, Michael Cooper and Larry Drew.

"The players are the ones that make it happen," Harris said. "It's a compliment to our team. They deserve this award."

Harris has received the Red Auerbach Trophy, named for the president of the Boston Cel­ ltics, who led the team to nine championships between the 1956-57 and 1966-67 seasons.