New structure aims to alleviate campus parking pains soon

By Travis Money
Stef Sief Water

Parking congestion, as well as the simple inability to find a place to park within a reasonable distance to your classes, could be resolved by a new parking structure set to be built this year.

The structure, which will sit on top of the six closest tennis courts to Taeko Road, between the music building and Mott Gym, is currently in schematic design. It is awaiting the approval of the board of trustees of the California State University system which may come today, according to Joanne Petree, the director of facilities planning.

The structure, if approved, will begin construction at the end of April or beginning of May, Kitamura said. The project is budgeted at $8.3 million.

“One point-two-acres of land is equal to seven acres of parking” using a parking structure, Kitamura said. Peter Phillips, the architect in charge of the parking structure program, echoed Kitamura.

“It’s very efficient but very costly,” he said.

Money for the project comes from Cal Poly’s parking fund, said Cindy Campbell, Cal Poly’s parking administrator.

“Money for parking doesn’t come from tax or tuition money,” she said. “We are a self-supporting auxiliary of Cal Poly.”

There would be 1,079 spaces in the new structure. Kitamura said — 925 inside the structure and 154 in surface parking.

The building and adjoining surface parking also contain 21 landscaped spaces, according to current schematics.

At present three of the courts covered by the parking structure will be replaced, according to Kitamura. The three that are not on the construction site will also be replaced.

The staff and general parking ratio has not been decided yet, Campbell said.

“I don’t anticipate putting any residential parking in there,” Campbell said. “It’s a matter of money.”

Although the parking structures will be in place by the Performing Arts Center, the center is not the reason for more parking, Campbell said.

“A lot of people wrongly assume that this parking structure is being built because of the Performing Arts Center,” Campbell said. “You could call that the straw that broke the camel’s back. It didn’t create a potential parking problem, it just added to the one we already had.”

According to the master parking plan and the Facility Services land-use diagram, there are two more parking facilities in Cal Poly’s plan.

“With the Cal Poly Plan our enrollment will increase, but not beyond what we have on our land-use diagram,” Kitamura said. With this structure alone, we’ll have a net increase of 700 spots included in the parking we’ve lost over the last few years.

Affirmative action cuts not discussed by UCs

“This issue is conspicuous by its very absence on the November ballot,” said Ralph Corcoran, a UC regent who opposed the changes. “Someone has obviously tried to hide it out of sight by saying that you can run but you can’t hide. “

But Regent Ward Connerly, the man who proposed the changes, said he does not believe the lack of a report signals problems.

“I think it’s pretty much a non- issue. I am going to presume that they’re acting in good faith.”

The policy in question was approved by regents in a bitterly divided 15-10 vote. The 10 Regents also approved dropping race and gender from admissions, but that change does not

Poly mourns death of a peaceful leader

By Rebecca Storrick
Daily Staff Writer

World leaders mourned the violent assassination of peacemaker Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin and the tragedy spanned many miles to Cal Poly on Monday.

Hilled, Cal Poly's Jewish club, quickly organized Monday's march to honor Rabin, an Israeli military official, statesman and 1994 Nobel Peace Prize winner.

The march began at Dexter Lawn and continued to the University Union, where a candle was lighted and will remain so for the rest of the week.

Seven leaders of Hilled, clad in Yarmulkes — Jewish caps that represent reverence for God above — led the group of about 40 staff, faculty, student and community participants to the U.U. Plaza.

"He was a champion of peace," said Joel Mann, Hilled's president. "He made a lot of compromises for peace. It is a tragedy to see him go because of his work.

Throughout the last 20 years, the territorial dispute between Palestinians and Israel's Jewish factions has resulted in bloodshed.

But "the peace process will continue," Mann said.

The group sang O seh Shalom, a Hebrew religious ceremonial song which translates to, "May the One who makes peace in the heavens make peace upon us and upon the whole world."

Rabin reportedly sang the song in September after signing the peace accord in Washington, D.C. with Yasir Arafat, leader of the Palestinian Liberation Organization (PLO).

"Even in his death, Rabin moved peace one step forward by bringing together the numerous world leaders," Mann said. "Some once were considered enemies to Israel."

To conclude the march, psychology senior Erin Leesefg asked the participants to feel the warmth of their candle in the cold evening and recite Kadish on Monday.

FDA may approve new AIDS therapy

By Loren Marguard
Assistant News Editor

SILVER SPRING, Md. — The drug 3TC should be approved as the first new initial therapy to treat AIDS since the original AIDS drug AZT, scientific advisers told the Food and Drug Administration on Monday.

A combination of 3TC and AZT boosted the immune system of patients and lowered the amount of the HIV virus, which causes AIDS, in their blood.

But more significantly, the drug combination showed more effect in patients who had never taken AZT than in those who have taken AZT alone, as is standard for most patients, manufacturer Glaxo Wellcome said.

The FDA advisers agreed, although they cautioned there are a lot of unanswered questions that patients must be aware of before choosing to try the combination therapy over AZT alone.

All other AIDS drugs sold today are for use after AZT fails and are not used in combination with it.

Early data “support the argument for initial aggressive therapy,” said Glaxo research chief Marc Rubin. “3TC-AZT was consistently associated with greater and more sustained response.”

The experimental drug was discovered by Biochem Pharmaceuticals of Lowell, Quebec, Canada and licensed in 1990 to Glaxo. The drugs work by blocking a protein vital in the early reproduction phase of HIV.

But patients develop resistance to AZT’s effect rapidly. Early data indicate that adding 3TC to AZT postpones that resistance — and in some patients might even restore their AZT sensitivity, Glaxo said.

RABIN: Violent death affects people of different religions around world

Jew to take the life of another Jew.

The shock of the incident “will make the Middle East more resolved to move peace forward,” Russell said.

Israel’s Foreign Minister Shimon Peres is preparing a caretaker government since Rabin’s assassination at a peace rally in Tel Aviv.

“The whole world is affected by Rabin’s death,” said Nita Lowenberg, a math professor and Hillel’s adviser.

“Everyone is affected — it is more than just Jews.”

Rosemary Laughlin, a business graduate student, agreed. “It is not based on one person, it will still go on.”

Socialism macht frei!
by Kurt Horner

Those readers familiar with the work makes you free" sign at the gates of Auschwitz will have already grasped the title of this column from the title. In the interest of promoting a free society, I wish to counter the distortions presented by advocates of socialism, modern liberals included.

Karl Marx is considered by many to be the originator of socialist thought — including the ideas which led to the acceptance of unionism and the welfare state. Marx's economics rested on an idea called the Labor Theory of Value.

The theory goes like this: The value of a product is determined by the amount of effort put into producing it. Thus, if workers get paid less than the full amount of revenue generated by sales (i.e. if the capitalist makes a profit), they are being exploited. Profits are thus described as "excess labor" which has been "exploited" from the workers.

Marx's theory was accepted by many, especially because it caused the prevailing theory until that time had been the classical viewpoint of Intrinsic Value. Adam Smith had said that products had an intrinsic value prior determined by market forces — a far less convincing theory than Marx's.

Then in 1870 an Austrian economist, Carl Menger, came up with the Subjective Theory of Value. He said that a product has value only if people want to buy it. The greater people's evaluations of a product's value, the higher its price.

Compare this to Marx's Labor Theory. Let's say we have a sculptor who has put 1,000 man-hour's effort into a sculpture. According to Marx's theory, the sculpture should afford a high price. But that's wrong, in case if nobody wants to buy it, its value is ZERO.

Price is not a cost of production. The reason why firms always charge above cost is only because those products where price exceeds costs are produced. Profits are functions of price, not labor. It tells the capitalist whether he is producing valued goods. It encourages him to produce more valued goods (and get more sales). And it gives the capitalist the incentive to manipulate supply and demand.

MEXICANS in debt and fighting back

By Susana Hayward

MONTERREY, Mexico — Crushed by debt and ready for a fight, a huge alliance of middle-class Mexicans has become a powerful force that is pressuring the government for relief from a 10-month-old economic crisis.

The alliance lacks the machine guns or ski-mask disguises of the Indian rebels who shook Mexico with a guerrilla war. But claiming a membership of more than 1 million mostly educated, middle-class citizens, the “El Barzon” movement has spelled trouble for Mexico's leaders.

El Barzon means “even yoke.” Complaining they’ve become slaves to banks and government policy, its members have demonstrated at banks, blocked roads, lobbied in Washington — even publicly undressed to illustrate their economic desperation.

“We are people who want to pay our debts but can’t,” said Liliana Flores, 40, a former congresswoman and one of the movement’s leaders. “We are here, not hiding anything, not covering our face.”

The Zapataists rebel stormed the Mexican stage when they launched a rebellion on Jan. 1, 1994 as the North American Free Trade Agreement with the United States and Canada took effect.

By contrast, El Barzon began in 1993 as a grassroots farm movement opposed to high-interest rates on loans, and it remains peaceful.

The Barzonistas — who encompass small business owners and ranchers, housewives and professionals — want debts restructured and an end to property foreclosures.

In Mexico, interest rates can change while a loan is outstanding and are now around 50 percent. Many debtors are being forced to pay back more than double their original loans.

In Mexico, interest rates can change while a loan is outstanding and are now around 50 percent. Many debtors are being forced to pay back more than double their original loans.

President Ernesto Zedillo responded Aug. 23 by announcing a $1.5 billion government plan with the banks to cap high interest rates for 6 million consumers unable to pay off debts.

“This agreement is one step more toward the solution of the crisis,” Zedillo said.

But many called the effort inadequate.

Independent analyst Sergio Sarmiento said the plan blunted the Barzon movement somewhat, but the government victory was only partial as thousands refused to sign onto the plan.

Sarmiento said, however, that he believed El Barzon’s own figures of over 1 million members were exaggerated and that perhaps tens of thousands are hardcore members. Still, “they have enough people to generate a lot of political trouble.”

Indeed protests have been sporadic but eye-catching. The Barzonistas have blocked highways with tractors, marched in cities and carried coffins in Mexico City and Guadalajara to protest Zedillo’s debt efforts.

Dozens of Barzonistas stripped naked outside an Acapulco bank Oct. 25 as bystanders gaped speechless. “This is how the bank has left us — on the street without clothes!” a protester shouted.

And in this capital of northern Nuevo Leon state, which boasts some of Mexico’s richest companies and people, Flores said Barzon leaders have bombarded banks with 80,000 lawsuits in a bid to swamp them with litigation.

The economic crisis followed six years of economic reforms under former President Carlos Salinas de Gortari that privatized state industries and banks, attracting hordes of foreign investors as Mexico headed to a market economy.

But after Salinas’ presidency ended last December, the illusion of Mexico’s prosperity collapsed with the devaluation. Debtors who bought on credit claimed they were victims of this market “fraud.”

The Barzonistas now warn that the economic crisis will only worsen because the country and banks refuse to face the numbers, which they say point to more economic hardship.

COWBOYS: Six seniors bid adieu to another winning season

By Mark Bobiaed

WASHINGTON — The Dallas Cowboys, who won the Super Bowl last season, are in danger of losing their record-setting streak of winning seasons. The team's record for consecutive winning seasons is now at risk.

"It's hard to say, but I really don't know," said Cotton. "But, part of it is just the name." Despite having a popular name, UCLA had another advantage this season. It beat the University of Washington.

This win may just have tipped the scales in UCLA's favor. "I would love to be able to win the conference," said Cotton. "But, hey, they get to go?"

"Washington — give us another shot at playing the Bruins," said Cotton. "We're on the move - are you?"

"It's just like (the NCAA) denies us every year," said Cotton. "You've got to give credit where credit is due."

While saying that all the teams chosen deserved to be in the playoffs, Cotton did add that Cal Poly was better than some of those chosen. "This year some good, but not great, teams got into the tournament," he said. "Definitely we played better than most teams are right now and we got into the conference we would have won some games."

Cotton was surprised by the fact that only five teams from Cal Poly's region were chosen for the playoffs. "I thought our region was a lot stronger than last year," Cotton said. "But five teams made it this time, and there were seven last year."

While Cotton said he was wounded when he heard the announcement, senior midfielder Mike Wagner was demented and said that politics were what held Cal Poly back from making the playoffs. "It's so political," Wagner said. "We certainly beat teams that they didn't and I don't thing they will go very far in the playoffs."

"We're in the competitive business of sports and entertainment. In this day and age, we're not just competing against the NFL, NHL, and other sports leagues, we're competing against a number of things," said Cotton. "It's a shame."

POLY BRIEFS

Women's basketball underway

The women's basketball team will make its first public appearance, hosting an exhibition Tuesday evening. The exhibition, which begins at 7 p.m. in Mott Gym, has Cal Poly facing a team from Australia.

Head coach Karen Booker will debut along with several new players.

After serving as Assistant Head Coach at the University of Kentucky, Booker replaced Jill Orrock as Cal Poly's head coach. Orrock's contract was not renewed last season.

In total, there will be four new faces on the Cal Poly court this season.

Junior college transfers Ava Garrett and Ingrid Sigler are expected to bring an immediate impact to Cal Poly's inside game, while freshmen Jessica Cullen and Jessica Schoeter are expected to add depth to the Mustangs' bench.

Cal Poly's first scheduled regular season game is against Fresno State on Dec. 9.

Fisher named AWC offensive player of the week

Senior quarterback Mike Fisher earned the American West Conference Offensive Player of the Week for his performance against Cal State Northridge last Saturday.

Fisher tied his own school record with four touchdowns. He was 14 for 21 with 286 yards.

After Saturday's game, Fisher has thrown 2,236 yards which give him Cal Poly's career record for points and field goals - a season and third of his career.

Other football notes:

Sophomore wide receiver Kamil Loud is just one touchdown away from tying the Division l-AA level. He is ranked 14th in receptions in a season.

Sophomore goalkeeper Adam Fisher is on track to duster the Cal Poly record books for points and field goals - a season and third of his career.
