Small fire closes Rec Center Monday

The Rec Center was closed Monday after a fire started in the fitness room (aerobics room) when an electric battery on a golf cart being stored there caught fire.

According to a university police news release, the fire started at approximately 4 a.m. Cal Poly Public Safety was notified by a fire alarm signal at the Rec Center.

Interim Director for Rec Sports Mark Harriman said the fire was contained to that room, which sustained water and smoke damage.

Harriman said that no one was hurt, but in order to be safe, Rec Sports needed to close it for the day in order to let the smoke air out.

He said the Rec Center will be open for regular hours as of this morning. At this time, there are no estimates on the damage costs.

Recent rains postpone building of Prado Center

More than 45 volunteers are waiting to get their hands dirty. The Prado Day Center's ground breaking ceremony was on October 5, but rain has since delayed construction.

The center was created by business leaders, charities, religious organizations and others in the community who wanted to provide more help for San Luis Obispo County's homeless and others in need.

There are approximately 2,300 homeless people in San Luis Obispo county, according to Ann Travers, county homeless services coordinator.

The center has received building material donations and plenty of volunteers are waiting to help with construction.

Volunteers will help with different.

Harpist and music professor Jennifer Sayre and vocalist Susan Azaret-Davies entertained at the opening of Women's Week in the PAC.

Spotlight on female composers opens Women's Week

By Keela Kachmar Doily Staff Writer

Women composers took the spotlight Sunday afternoon in the gala opening of Cal Poly's 15th anniversary of Women's Week.

The concert, performed by women, delighted an audience of community members at the Performing Arts Center Recital hall.

"I think a lot of people were curious about women's music," said Pat Harris, interim director of the Women's Center. "I had a gentleman tell me 'I thought women's center draped themselves with Maruska's canvases while several other paintings covered the walls of the recital hall.

The chamber music Sunday was performed by Jennifer Sayre, harpist and Cal Poly music professor. Susan Azaret-Davies sang and played the piano and Virginia Wright played the clarinet.

Sarah Pillow, a native of San Luis Obispo, came from New York City to take part in the performance and sing in her hometown. Pillow said she enjoyed singing a historical survey of music, along with the challenge of singing in other languages.

"As far as I know there has never been a concert in San Luis Obispo of just women composers," Sayre, the concert coordinator, said. "I feel it's something that has been neglected because traditional women have been at home and did not consider themselves worthy to be played out, but their music is equally as good as men."

Cal Poly professor Alyson McLamore gave a pre-concert lecture in the University Union for concertgoers. She talked about each of the composers, and the kinds of music to be performed at the concert. A moderate crowd attended the event, with a handful of students also in attendance.

Catherine Riedstra, first-year graduate student, said, "I am a women's studies minor, interested in art and women's contributions to the world which are overlooked in our mainstream education. In order to get a full education I have to supplement it with performances like this."

Poly Plan to get national attention at Washington higher education meeting

By Brian Johnson

The Cal Poly Plan will be getting national attention soon.

The American Council on Education (ACE) has asked Cal Poly to share the plan in Washington D.C. during its annual conference from Feb. 22 to 25.

Representatives from Cal Poly will speak Feb. 25th.

ACE, an umbrella group for all higher education associations in the country, includes most colleges and universities throughout the United States.

School leaders will go to the conference and attend higher education meeting Wednesday.

The Victim

Two Cal Poly freshmen were arrested late Sunday on suspicion of burglarizing a home on the 1400 block of Slack Street.

According to police, the victim heard a noise and called his roommates, Eric Held, 18, and Christopher Bielecki, 18, breaking into his house.

The victim, Josh Fernandez, told police he witnessed the two suspects preparing to take items from his living room.

The suspects fled on foot back to campus. Fernandez caught up with the suspects, tackled one of them and searched his backpack for possible missing items. No items were recovered.

The two suspects then fled again, and Fernandez had reportedly seen them both running toward Yosemite Hall. Fernandez flagged down Cal Poly Police, who then contacted the San Luis Obispo Police Department.

Authorities went to Yosemite Hall and questioned the residents and hall advisers. One RA had a photo album of current residents. Fernandez identified both Held and Bielecki from the photographs.

The two suspects returned to their residences and practically walked into the police officials, and Fernandez.

They were both arrested and booked in San Luis Obispo County Jail.

International students face problems with registration

Many international students said they had problems using Cal Poly's Touchtone Registration (CAPTURE) system. A spokesperson for the university's registration office said that the health insurance holds on the student's policies if they were not approved.

"It's terrific," Zingg said. "It's a nice honor, and a very fine recognition of what we are doing."

ent aspects of the construction work, from basic carpentry to moving and storing materials. In fact, volunteers from Habitat for Humanities will be framing the building.

And once the center is completed, the Economic Opportunity Commission (EOC) will be in charge of operating it. Dick Warren, president of Interfaith Coalition for the Homeless, is the person who took care of most of the paperwork and finances needed to begin the project.

He said that although there are enough volunteers for now, additional volunteers may be needed for different phases of construction.

Lillian Judd, acting director for the EOC, said that once the center's doors open, volunteers will be needed to help run the center because there will only be three paid employees.

Both Warren and Judd hope the center will be completed by April. The center doesn't have sleeping quarters, but will provide services that will include access to showers, rest rooms, and storage spaces, a rest area and professional and volunteer support services for those in need.

However, the center does not provide overnight shelter. The Economic Opportunity Commission, Homeless Shelter (EOC) on Orchard Road—the only shelter in the county—has been providing overnight shelter and will continue to do so.

The shelter has about 75 beds available. The center will also be the permanent site for People's Kitchen, which provides noon meals seven days a week for the hungry.

People's Kitchen is presently located near the EOC shelter. With more than 2,000 homeless, Judd said the shelter is often overwhelmed.

The shelter provides people with blankets, bathing facilities, clothes, toiletries, morning and evening meals and other services.

Along with the shelter and the EOC, the People's Kitchen, local churches work with the EOC to help the homeless during the winter months.

Despite the number of places the homeless can go to for help, it's still not enough.

Judd said residents living near the shelter have been worried about the number of homeless people wandering around their neighborhood.

She said this is because People's Kitchen is about four blocks away from the shelter. Since the shelter only provides morning and evening meals, the homeless wait around for People's Kitchen to begin their noon meal service.

Judd estimated that 75 people show up at the shelter each night. She said she understands how the neighbors and merchants feel.

"They certainly don't want to see people who are unkempt and a little rough around the edges," Judd said.

She hopes the Prado Day Center will help with the overload of homeless who go to the shelter and help resolve resident complaints.

"The homes that belong to us," she said. "We're just doing the best we can to help them survive."

Judd expects to serve about 200 people when the center's doors open.

As for the actual start of construction of the center, Warren said he is worried about the weather to be good.

"It's our best we can to help them survive," Judd said recently residents living near the shelter have been worried about the number of homeless people wandering around their neighborhood.

"We're basically right now, wait­

For the weather to be good," Gardiner said.

The center's hours will be from Monday thru Fridays, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday, from 12:30 p.m. to 1:30 p.m., as the People's Kitchen can serve their noon meals.

Taming Cal Poly's concrete jungle

Kari Gamber

In the more impressionable years of our life, when we were young, we played, ran around, energized ourselves with ice cream from the ice cream man and lived in the grass. The best place to do these activities of time past and present was in a natural environment. There is something wonderful about the soft green grass, swaying trees and smell of flowers and bushes. These natural places allowed for easier living. Those natural places were always preferred over the concrete jungle when we were young, and today as well.

What is the concrete jungle? The concrete jungle is what surrounds us everyday. The concrete jungle is a building with a rough form that makes up the buildings and the streets is made with hard colors of gray and white. Some bushes and nature are much better for you. Ewoks or not touch a pebble in a stream bed,

Just recently covered by the new Performing Arts Center, Breezes - the gay bar - or Guys, Lesbians & Bisexuals United (GLBU), they attend fraternities, sororities, campus clubs, and hang out at the bars downtown. To know them is all about the right place and right time. Completi stes are with them somewhere at breakfast, if they stay for it.

Steve

There are three social rings of homes here. The first ring is made up of older, established homes that pay little key for their own personal reasons. The second ring is made up of important than the O.J. trial? The third ring can be fan, annoying and immature, and simply vulgar. Enough said here, since I don't think I am giving a clear picture, and there are really good people involved with this group.

As you know, Cal Poly is a minority-hate plagued environment. My first quarter here results in the being harassed in the dorms for being gay. So did my sec.

Drunk and I don't do anything to impress a girl. I just don't care. Since it kept my girlfriend wouldn't understand my needs, especially when I am drunk and I don't care, since I don't check my phone. My first really bad experiences

I find the editorial "Just Say No-D" printed in the Feb 6 Mustang Daily quite ironic, in that it ran the same day as the cover story concerning student apathy at Cal Poly. Steve Kedersa wants to know why "everyone still seems to care" about the O.J. Simon trial, why it is considered a newsworthy event and he is "sick of people's interest in it."

Well, Mr. Enders, some of us are concerned, and do believe it is a newsworthy event, not so much with regard to Simon himself, but for the families of two people whose lives were taken unnecessarily, for two children and five other people, all the same domestic footstep as Nicol Brown Simon.

Some of us are tired of our justice system having been turned into a mockery of (read: criminal trial), and we are meant to find Simon being made an example by being found guilty in the civil trial.

Ignorance of such a prominent story is in, my opinion, the very "apathy" Mustang Daily is guilty of itself in reporting.

Editor

There were a couple of things that bothered me about Steve Enders' opinion article published in Thursday's Mustang Daily. First of all, what makes Steve think that the president of the State of the Union address is any more important than the Speech of the Union is an event almost devoid of substance. In terms of political importance, the president's annual address is almost unparalleled in its uselessness, especially if the state involved was so important, why there was no mention of it at all in the next day's Mustang Daily.

Steve listed seven criteria that determine news value. There were: timeliness, impact, prominence, proximity, conflict, the unusual and curiosity. There is too few stories that fit all of those criteria so well as the whole O.D. deba face it, it would make the most money. In spite of my best efforts, I never had a long-term, serious relationship here. I made the best out of what life had to offer, and as a result of that, I have had a few more partners than I would have liked. So, when I read or hear about the same desires from others, I just crack up, because it is usually coming from someone who had a partner, but was out swimming out walls everywhere possible.

The straight scene behaves no different. I've noticed. Maybe it is how we deal with societal pressures. I am not sure, you know for sure you'll know for sure what a long, strange trip it's been.

Letters to the Editor

The analysis that occurred in every journalistic medi um in the world was for good reason. There was a great number of judicial and sociological matters that were of great interest and importance.

Although I think that the Simon trial was worth of occasional coverage, that isn't what really worries me. The first part of Steve's article was not that I think he was above a newsworthy event, but that he actually used his power to withhold the news. Obviously he is quite passionate about this, or he never would have written his article in the first place. I find it a little frightening that Steve is censoring my news. I don't know Steve, so I am not so sure he can trust him to print everything that should be printed. It makes me wonder if Mustang Daily is withholding other news stories because they are not deemed worthy. (Or are events being ignored because they don't conform to the ideological standpoint of the editors?)

It would be far better for Steve and his empirists to simply follow his own aforementioned journalistic criteria, rather than deciding what is and is not news. If people want to know what is going on, he has a responsibility to print it. Mustang Daily is not the editorial staff's play ground, in which they can make up their own rules. A large ego and feelings of self-importance belong in opinions, not on the front page. If news exists, it should be printed.

A newspaper editor is a gatekeeper for the community's information resources. The job - the profession, really - is to screen out the unnecessary and find a room for the essential. Cal Poly is fortunate in having a newspaper editor (Mustang Daily Editorial, Feb. 6) who knows the responsibility and the power of words.

Marcin Rosso, Journalism Lecturer

We're young and it is easy to fall into. It happens a lot around here. However, we are not supposed to be gay relationships.

The second ring is notorious for treating their own personal relationships. They may not mind this cluttered and unnatural mess, but it affects us in many ways, even in the ways we speak and use language affect the way we think and the way we think affects our lives.

We're looking for people who look at this glass and say: “There’s gotta be other glasses of water.”

We need people capable of going beyond half-full or half-empty thinking. People who are constantly challenging their own thinking and are thirsty for new ideas and knowledge.

You’ll have a degree from a top school. Getting a job won’t really be an issue. The question is: which job? Which industry? You don’t want to get locked into one area and then discover three to five years from now that you don’t like it. By then you’ve invested too much.

Andersen Consulting offers you the chance to work on a variety of projects—with clients in a wide range of industries.

We are the leader in helping organizations apply information technology to their business advantage. Every hour of every business day, we implement a solution to help one of our more than 5,000 clients worldwide.

What makes that possible is the quality of our people. And the quality of our training. We’re known for both.

Because business and technology are ever-changing, we see training as a continuing process. And our $123-million Center for Professional Education in St. Charles, Illinois, is just one measure of our commitment. We train you for a career—not just a job.

Are you the kind of person we’re talking about? The kind of person with an unquenchable desire for challenge and professional growth?

If so, come talk to us. And find out more about a career with Andersen Consulting.

Hathaway was also listed in the "Fah 50" selection team. She earned four First-Team All-Northern League selection honors (1993-96), was league MVP in 1995 and also earned two All-Santa Barbara County selection team honors (1995-96). "(Hathaway) is a quick, dynamic athlete," Schlick said. "Her explosive jump and speed, combined with her volleyball skills, will make her fun to watch."
Signing frenzy scores recruits in football, volleyball, soccer

By Melissa M. Geisler Daily Assistant Managing Editor

Last Wednesday was a busy day for three Cal Poly coaches. Head football coach Andre Patterson, head volleyball coach Steve Schlick and head women's soccer coach Alex Crosier all announced they have signed recruits for the 1997 fall season.

Football

Twenty student-athletes have signed national letters of intent to enroll and play football at Cal Poly.

"This is the most well-rounded class out of the four classes I have been part of recruiting," Patterson said, and added that the congratulations on successful recruiting should really go to his assistant coaches. One of Patterson's top recruits for next fall is quarterback Chris Czernek.

Czernek (Newbury Park High School, Newbury, Calif.) was the first quarterback in the country to throw back-to-back 4,000 yard passing seasons and he set a state record with 4,269 passing yards in 1995 — ranking him first in the state and fourth in the country. Among other awards, he was named Marmonte Offensive Player of the Year and Los Angeles Times Offensive Player of the Year.

"Chris is a tremendous gift for us," he said. "He brings some great things to our program."

Other recruits Patterson commented on were wide receiver Anthony Ramos (Dos Pueblos High School, Goleta, Calif.) and two local offensive linemen from Atascadero High School, Sonny Smart and Tim Troutman.

Ramos had more than 6,000 yards in total offense in his high school career and had 45 touchdowns passing in two seasons. He was named Santa Barbara County Player of the Year and earned All-County and All-League honors last year.

"I haven't seen an athlete with quickness and speed like Ramos in a long time," Patterson said. He added that Ramos will be one of the players to watch next season.

Smart was an All-League First Team star for Atascadero High School and played for four straight CIF Championship teams (1993-96). Troutman was named Student Sports Magazine High School Academic All-American last year and was team captain.

Other recruits are:
- Bryan Andrews, running back, Bishop O'Dowd High School, Oakland, Calif.
- Billy Bietz, defensive lineman, San Lorenzo Valley High School, Santa Cruz County, Calif.
- John Broussard, defensive back, Wasco Union High School, Wasco, Calif.
- Mikadoa Fitzer, defensive back, Lompoc High School, Lompoc, Calif.
- Russ Havens, tight end, Centennial High School, Bakersfield, Calif.
- Scott Herzog, offensive lineman, Leland High School, San Jose, Calif.
- Ryan Hightower, defensive back, Wasco Union High School, Wasco, Calif.
- Chris Jones, wide receiver, Scripps Ranch High School, San Diego, Calif.
- Craig Knowles, defensive lineman, Calabas High School, Lompoc, Calif.
- Ryan Pittman, offensive lineman, Las Lomas High School, Walnut Creek, Calif.
- Amier Ross, defensive back, Kennedy High School, Richmond, Calif.
- Jeff Shaw, fullback, Carpenteria High School, Carpenteria, Calif.
- Joe St. Meyers, wide receiver, Hancock College, Whittier, Calif.
- Jeff Wallace, offensive lineman, Santa Ynez High School, Santa Ynez, Calif.
- Mike Younghood, wide receiver, Kennedy High School, Richmond, Calif.

Volleyball

Two student-athletes have agreed to enroll and participate in the women's volleyball program at Cal Poly.

Nathaniel Lones, defensive lineman, Mammoth High School, Mammoth Lakes, Calif.
- Ryan Pittman, offensive lineman, Las Lomas High School, Walnut Creek, Calif.

"We needed help with ball control lets," Schlick said. "They are quality student athletes." Eiler was listed in the 1996 Volleyball Magazine's "Fab 50" selection.

Women's Tennis vs. Santa Clara

Singles

No. 1: Karen Apra (CP) def. Lindsey Colker (SC) 6-4, 6-3
No. 2: Donna Tam (CP) def. Jill Hamilton (SC) 6-4, 7-6 (7-4)
No. 3: Karly Kolb (CP) def. Tara Reagan (SC) 6-0, 6-0
No. 4: Kim Westerman (CP) def. Sandy Needam (SC) 6-3, 6-3
No. 5: Natalie Grub (CP) def. Jaren Hamilton (SC) 7-5, 6-0
No. 6: Sara Duncan (SC) def. Hanna Brummett (CP) 6-3, 6-0

Doubles

"Cal Poly won all three doubles points by default

Final Score: 8-1

Santa Maria, Calif.

Both recruits are outside hitters.

"Both were recruited heavily," he added. "They are quality student athletes."

Eiler and (Hathaway) add another dimension of firepower to our team.
