PARIS - Profiting from voter anger over unemployment and a colossal miscalculation by President Jacques Chirac's center-right coalition, leftist parties scored stunning victories in parliamentary voting Sunday and won the right to share power with the president.

The results represented an extraordinary comeback for the French left after its crushing defeat in parliamentary elections four years ago and an equally dramatic setback for Chirac, who now will have to share power with a left-leaning government.

The results initially were deemed an extraordinary comeback for the French left after its crushing defeat in parliamentary elections four years ago and an equally dramatic setback for Chirac, who now will have to share power with a left-leaning government.

The elections were an extraordinary comeback for the French left after its crushing defeat in parliamentary elections four years ago and an equally dramatic setback for Chirac, who now will have to share power with a left-leaning government.
TOP OF THE AGENDA FOR June 2-17, 1997

Wednesday

Big Brothers and Sisters of SLO invites anyone interested in volunteering their time as an adult mentor to an at-risk child, or those interested in donating their time and expertise with the agency, to attend a meeting June 4 from 6 to 7 p.m. at the Juvenile Services Center in SLO. For more information, call 781-3662.

Friday

ECOSLO and HopeDance presents “Living More with Less,” a hands-on workshop focusing on ideas and solutions for simplifying life, including reducing consumption, clutter and excess, cutting spending and increasing savings. The free workshop will be June 6 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Community Room of the City-County library. For more information, call 546-8334.

ASI Children’s Center and SLO County Child Development Consortium bring Sandy Sparrow McDaniels to speak to parents and teachers about positive parenting. The talk “Getting Out of the Spin Cycle” costs $5 and will be June 6 from 8:30 a.m. to noon at the Performing Arts Center lecture hall. Tickets are available at the Children’s Center, 756-1267.

Monday

SLO Nightwriters, a writer’s group, will feature novelist Boyd Johnson who will discuss his recently published first novel “Seeker” and work on a second novel at its next meeting, June 9 at 7 p.m. at the community room of the SLO County/City Library. For more information, call 549-9656.

- Children’s Careline

ECOSLO and HopeDance presents “Living More with Less,” a hands-on workshop using on ideas and solutions for increasing savings. The free workshop will be June 6 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Community Room of the City-County library.

ECOSLO and HopeDance presents “Living More with Less,” a hands-on workshop using on ideas and solutions for increasing savings. The free workshop will be June 6 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Community Room of the City-County library.

ECOSLO and HopeDance presents “Living More with Less,” a hands-on workshop using on ideas and solutions for increasing savings. The free workshop will be June 6 from 7 to 9 p.m. at the Community Room of the City-County library.

Summer Mustang Agenda Items: c/o Josie Miller

Announcements

Cal Poly graduation will be June 14. Ceremonies will be held throughout the day. Mustang Daily congratulates this year’s graduates.

Cal Poly Health Services presents Free Anonymous HIV Screening. Tests will be done weekly. Appointments made only by phone. The test, “Ora-Sure” is 98% accurate. For more information, call 756-1211.

HUMAN DEVELOPMENT CAREER OPPORTUNITIES IN THE SAN FRANCISCO BAY AREA

- Children's Creative Learning Centers, Inc. (CCLC)

A professional high quality child care company is now recruiting for teachers and head teachers.

CCLC offers:
- Excellent Benefits (401K, Dental, Medical, Sick & Vacation, Maternity Leave, Child Care Discounts, Professional Development & Education Reimbursements),
- Competitive Salary ($1600 - $1800 per month)
- High Quality and Professional Work Environment
- NAEYC Accredited Centers
- Opportunity for Advancement

For more information about CCLC please contact us at (408) 732-2500 or fax your resume to (408) 732-2774

A professional high quality child care company is now recruiting for teachers and head teachers.

A professional high quality child care company is now recruiting for teachers and head teachers.

A professional high quality child care company is now recruiting for teachers and head teachers.

A professional high quality child care company is now recruiting for teachers and head teachers.

A professional high quality child care company is now recruiting for teachers and head teachers.

A professional high quality child care company is now recruiting for teachers and head teachers.

A professional high quality child care company is now recruiting for teachers and head teachers.

Muscle Mustang regrets an error in the May 30 article about the Cal Poly sports complex. The article incorrectly stated that San Luis Obispo’s city budget includes $3 million to go toward the complex. The $3 million is marked for playing fields in the city, not necessarily for Cal Poly’s proposal. The article also incorrectly attributed a quote from city councilman Dave Romero to San Luis Obispo resident Harold Segal. Romero actually said, “Every neighborhood is going to have complaints about noise and traffic.” Additional, two seminars will take place Friday evening. At 6 p.m., Lev Teitelbaum will speak on “Sexuality and Spiritual Growth.” Then, at 7:30 p.m., Charles Moore will speak on “Spirituality and Grace.” Also, the center will present a dance and potluck beginning at 7:30 p.m. Friday. Goza, a percussion ensemble, will provide live music for the event. Admission to the potluck and concert will be $5 for the general public. “Yoga is really gaining in popularity,” Post said. “We want more people to learn about it and know about it.”

Relax: Yoga Centre celebrates five-year anniversary, offers free classes

By Matt Leizer Daily Tall Press

Offering free classes through Sunday, the San Luis Obispo Yoga Centre celebrates its fifth anniversary and shows its gratitude to local supporters this week.

“It is really just a big thank-you,” said Yoga Centre Manager Kathryn Post. “We want to emphasize that we are really building a community here and it is nice to see that.”

The Yoga Centre opened on June 7, 1992, after co-founders Peter Sterios and Lynn Watkins met and, with the help of volunteers and donations, created a headquarters for San Luis Obispo’s then chaotic yoga scene.

“It is good to reflect on what it was like before the center was open,” Sterios wrote in a Yoga Centre brochure. “Classes were in little rooms scattered around town, the boom box from the aerobics class next door shaking the walls, canceled classes when teachers were sick, no workshops.”

Sterios, Watkins and their helpers took a month to turn the upstairs room at 967 Monterey St. into a peaceful center for yoga learners.

“This place feels really good,” Post said. “You feel it when you walk up. It’s not like an aerobics studio. There is really a tranquility and peace here.”

“This center is more representative of yoga as it is described by Post and Richard Manuputy, a Yoga Centre instructor.

“Yoga gets you in tune with your own body,” Post said. “It is very focused and self-empowering and transformative. It gives you a chance to get focused in on your breathing and your body.”

Manuputy explained further.

“It is a process of internal awareness and awakening,” Manuputy said. “In short, it signifies union, specifically of all the powers of the body, the mind and, ultimately, the soul. This process is accomplished by disciplining the intellect, the mind, the emotions and the will.”

Post, who has practiced yoga for two years, said the calming and relaxing aspects of the practice are perfect for the type of lifestyle led by many Cal Poly students.

“It keeps you very limber, all of your joints and muscles,” Post said. “It is very good for students, sitting all day in front of their computers or whatever. It is very different than a regular workout, but boy does it work you out.”

The Yoga Centre offers regular classes seven days a week, including beginner classes from 5:30 p.m. to 7 p.m. Wednesday and from 10:15 a.m. to 11:45 a.m. Saturday. In addition to free classes this week, the center will also present free seminars as part of its celebration.

On Saturday, Shiva Rao, a Santa Monica, Calif., yoga instructor and UCLA faculty member, will present three yoga workshops. One from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m. on Saturday, will be for beginners and two will be for intermediate students, from 2:30 p.m. to 4:30 p.m. Saturday and from 10:30 a.m. to 12:45 p.m. Sunday.

Additionally, two seminars will take place Friday evening. At 6 p.m., Lev Teitelbaum will speak on “Sexuality and Spiritual Growth.” Then, at 7:30 p.m., Charlie Moore will speak on “Spirituality and Grace.”

Also, the center will present a dance and potluck beginning at 7:30 p.m. Friday. Goza, a percussion ensemble, will provide live music for the event. Admission to the potluck and concert will be $5 for the general public.

“Yoga is really gaining in popularity,” Post said. “We want more people to learn about it and know about it.”

Oops! Correction from Friday’s Daily

*(hey, we’re only human). Mustang Daily regrets an error in the May 30 article about the Cal Poly sports complex. The article incorrectly stated that San Luis Obispo’s city budget includes $3 million to go toward the complex. The $3 million is marked for playing fields in the city, not necessarily for Cal Poly’s proposal. The article also incorrectly attributed a quote from city councilman Dave Romero to San Luis Obispo resident Harold Segal. Romero actually said, “Every neighborhood is going to have complaints about noise and traffic.”
Students in service program paint smiles on elderly faces

By Jaime Borasi
Daily Staff Writer

Volunteers found a drab blue house with dull chipped paint in need of a facelift when they arrived on Johnson Street Saturday morning.

After a weekend of work they stood Sunday afternoon to reflect upon the freshly painted bright blue house that glistened like new.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

More than 25 volunteers from SCS and the Society of Civil Engineers (SCE) volunteered Saturday and Sunday from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. to scrape, repair and paint until the 56-year-old home of San Luis Obispo resident Dorothy Williams, 79, was finished.

"She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.

"For her to be able to come home to a great, brand new blue house and be excited," she said. "She's a senior not able to financially beautify her home," said event director and Cal Poly political science junior Lori Dias. "We're here so she knows that people in this city love her and that the community is concerned about her.
OPINION

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Speakers gave a history lesson, not a bash session

Editor,

Just the thought of someone calling this cowardly man — Khalid Muhammad — the leader of anything sends a chill up my spine. And before anyone jumps to conclusions and says that I am of a different race other than black or Chirono because of my views, I will tell you now that you are wrong because I am a minority. And of what descent...who cares?

Secondly, I wasn't at the little "shin dig" that Khalid Muhammad and his lap dogs decided to throw. I decided to get as far away as I could for fear of catching whatever nasty little bug that bit him yesterday and give his hateful ceremony another whirl?

Well, let me clarify a little detail: STUPIDITY and COWARDICE are two different things my friends. And if he is as lucky as I'd like him to be, maybe next time he will be put out of his misery.

In fact an analogy can be used to further clarify my point. Think of the most beautiful material you have ever seen. Now, naturally, it isn't perfect. It has its flaws, but you learn to deal with them because the rest of the material is so beautiful. This represents society. Now, take the sharpest pair of shears or scissors you have ever seen and imagine the blades are filthy. The represen­tates hate. And it is trying to cut up society, you and me. That is going to hurt and we have all witnessed or received a cut from something sharp before. In fact, it might cut so deep that we can't even see the fiber that we have all woven together called society.

So in closing I ask you to consider this: my wise grandmother once said, "What you don't know could make a whole other world." So before you come out and speak hate or show that you are a coward, go out and explore. If you come back and decide that it stinks, well tough. That's life. Deal with it. Don't bring entire races and religions into the battle that you are trying to start just because you got a little scared at a few things you saw. That would be cowardly. And definitely don't call yourself any type of repre­sentative, especially of me. I have enough problems remembering where I parked my car to conjure up reasons to hate entire peo­ple like him. But that isn't what I came to talk about.

I want to apologize if the speakers insulted anyone, but what they said was true in their own words, they have that right. Maybe they were crude and wouldn't be here still. "(These people) refer­ring to non-minorities.)"

Furthermore his childish name calling accomplishes nothing, unless blowing the "Mr. Intelligent" act that he puts on that when he speaks was his main intent. And even if that was his intent, I give him a four out of 10. He probably wouldn't be able to spell the word Zionist even though he used it in his little "performance."

Secondly, I would like to warn everybody to stay clear of people such as these that claim that they are lovers of God, but preach hate. Whether they are black, white, male or female they paint a serious threat to the fiber that we have all woven together called soci­ety.

In fact an analogy can be used to further clarify my point. Think of the most beautiful material you have ever seen. Now, naturally, it isn't perfect. It has its flaws, but you learn to deal with them because the rest of the material is so beautiful. This represents society. Now, take the sharpest pair of shears or scissors you have ever seen and imagine the blades are filthy. The repre­sents hate. And it is trying to cut up society, you and me. That is going to hurt and we have all witnessed or received a cut from something sharp before. In fact, it might cut so deep that we can't even see the fiber that we have all woven together called society.

In fact an analogy can be used to further clarify my point. Think of the most beautiful material you have ever seen. Now, naturally, it isn't perfect. It has its flaws, but you learn to deal with them because the rest of the material is so beautiful. This represents society. Now, take the sharpest pair of shears or scissors you have ever seen and imagine the blades are filthy. The repre­sents hate. And it is trying to cut up society, you and me. That is going to hurt and we have all witnessed or received a cut from something sharp before. In fact, it might cut so deep that we can't even see the fiber that we have all woven together called society.

In fact an analogy can be used to further clarify my point. Think of the most beautiful material you have ever seen. Now, naturally, it isn't perfect. It has its flaws, but you learn to deal with them because the rest of the material is so beautiful. This represents society. Now, take the sharpest pair of shears or scissors you have ever seen and imagine the blades are filthy. The repre­sents hate. And it is trying to cut up society, you and me. That is going to hurt and we have all witnessed or received a cut from something sharp before. In fact, it might cut so deep that we can't even see the fiber that we have all woven together called society.

In fact an analogy can be used to further clarify my point. Think of the most beautiful material you have ever seen. Now, naturally, it isn't perfect. It has its flaws, but you learn to deal with them because the rest of the material is so beautiful. This represents society. Now, take the sharpest pair of shears or scissors you have ever seen and imagine the blades are filthy. The repre­sents hate. And it is trying to cut up society, you and me. That is going to hurt and we have all witnessed or received a cut from something sharp before. In fact, it might cut so deep that we can't even see the fiber that we have all woven together called society.

In fact an analogy can be used to further clarify my point. Think of the most beautiful material you have ever seen. Now, naturally, it isn't perfect. It has its flaws, but you learn to deal with them because the rest of the material is so beautiful. This represents society. Now, take the sharpest pair of shears or scissors you have ever seen and imagine the blades are filthy. The repre­sents hate. And it is trying to cut up society, you and me. That is going to hurt and we have all witnessed or received a cut from something sharp before. In fact, it might cut so deep that we can't even see the fiber that we have all woven together called society.

In fact an analogy can be used to further clarify my point. Think of the most beautiful material you have ever seen. Now, naturally, it isn't perfect. It has its flaws, but you learn to deal with them because the rest of the material is so beautiful. This represents society. Now, take the sharpest pair of shears or scissors you have ever seen and imagine the blades are filthy. The repre­sents hate. And it is trying to cut up society, you and me. That is going to hurt and we have all witnessed or received a cut from something sharp before. In fact, it might cut so deep that we can't even see the fiber that we have all woven together called society.

In fact an analogy can be used to further clarify my point. Think of the most beautiful material you have ever seen. Now, naturally, it isn't perfect. It has its flaws, but you learn to deal with them because the rest of the material is so beautiful. This represents society. Now, take the sharpest pair of shears or scissors you have ever seen and imagine the blades are filthy. The repre­sents hate. And it is trying to cut up society, you and me. That is going to hurt and we have all witnessed or received a cut from something sharp before. In fact, it might cut so deep that we can't even see the fiber that we have all woven together called society.

In fact an analogy can be used to further clarify my point. Think of the most beautiful material you have ever seen. Now, naturally, it isn't perfect. It has its flaws, but you learn to deal with them because the rest of the material is so beautiful. This represents society. Now, take the sharpest pair of shears or scissors you have ever seen and imagine the blades are filthy. The repre­sents hate. And it is trying to cut up society, you and me. That is going to hurt and we have all witnessed or received a cut from something sharp before. In fact, it might cut so deep that we can't even see the fiber that we have all woven together called society.

In fact an analogy can be used to further clarify my point. Think of the most beautiful material you have ever seen. Now, naturally, it isn't perfect. It has its flaws, but you learn to deal with them because the rest of the material is so beautiful. This represents society. Now, take the sharpest pair of shears or scissors you have ever seen and imagine the blades are filthy. The repre­sents hate. And it is trying to cut up society, you and me. That is going to hurt and we have all witnessed or received a cut from something sharp before. In fact, it might cut so deep that we can't even see the fiber that we have all woven together called society.

In fact an analogy can be used to further clarify my point. Think of the most beautiful material you have ever seen. Now, naturally, it isn't perfect. It has its flaws, but you learn to deal with them because the rest of the material is so beautiful. This represents society. Now, take the sharpest pair of shears or scissors you have ever seen and imagine the blades are filthy. The repre­sents hate. And it is trying to cut up society, you and me. That is going to hurt and we have all witnessed or received a cut from something sharp before. In fact, it might cut so deep that we can't even see the fiber that we have all woven together called society.

In fact an analogy can be used to further clarify my point. Think of the most beautiful material you have ever seen. Now, naturally, it isn't perfect. It has its flaws, but you learn to deal with them because the rest of the material is so beautiful. This represents society. Now, take the sharpest pair of shears or scissors you have ever seen and imagine the blades are filthy. The repre­sents hate. And it is trying to cut up society, you and me. That is going to hurt and we have all witnessed or received a cut from something sharp before. In fact, it might cut so deep that we can't even see the fiber that we have all woven together called society.

In fact an analogy can be used to further clarify my point. Think of the most beautiful material you have ever seen. Now, naturally, it isn't perfect. It has its flaws, but you learn to deal with them because the rest of the material is so beautiful. This represents society. Now, take the sharpest pair of shears or scissors you have ever seen and imagine the blades are filthy. The repre­sents hate. And it is trying to cut up society, you and me. That is going to hurt and we have all witnessed or received a cut from something sharp before. In fact, it might cut so deep that we can't even see the fiber that we have all woven together called society.

In fact an analogy can be used to further clarify my point. Think of the most beautiful material you have ever seen. Now, naturally, it isn't perfect. It has its flaws, but you learn to deal with them because the rest of the material is so beautiful. This represents society. Now, take the sharpest pair of shears or scissors you have ever seen and imagine the blades are filthy. The repre­sents hate. And it is trying to cut up society, you and me. That is going to hurt and we have all witnessed or received a cut from something sharp before. In fact, it might cut so deep that we can't even see the fiber that we have all woven together called society.

In fact an analogy can be used to further clarify my point. Think of the most beautiful material you have ever seen. Now, naturally, it isn't perfect. It has its flaws, but you learn to deal with them because the rest of the material is so beautiful. This represents society. Now, take the sharpest pair of shears or scissors you have ever seen and imagine the blades are filthy. The repre­sents hate. And it is trying to cut up society, you and me. That is going to hurt and we have all witnessed or received a cut from something sharp before. In fact, it might cut so deep that we can't even see the fiber that we have all woven together called society.
fairness will depend on the grade they are earning. "A big effort needs to be made to have the questions as objective as possible."

There is a website (http://www3.pair.com/web EVALUATION/) that contains teacher evaluations from Cal Poly students, but the results are unofficial and are not validated. It is the project of Shawn Robinson, a Cal Poly student who displays the evaluations of students who fill out his questionnaire online, not the results of the official in-class evaluations.

"Some faculty didn't like the idea (of the website), because they thought it was basically a place to 'bag' on them," Robinson stated via e-mail. He explained that students could submit comments freely without thinking of how they could harm a teacher's reputation before he revamped the site. Now written comments can only be displayed with the teacher's permission. Teachers can also display their own comments on the site. "It seems to be going well, but of course there needs to be more involvement, so that there are more evaluations," Robinson said.

While some majors have very few evaluations available on the site, at this time there are 130 for computer science, 96 for math, 31 for architecture and 19 for English.

Teachers at Cal Poly are required to conduct evaluations one quarter per year in at least two classes that are representative of the type of classes they normally teach. Some teachers conduct them more frequently for their own benefit and can choose not to make the results of the additional evaluations official.

The evaluation forms are standard for all departments in the Colleges of Agriculture, Business and Engineering. In the colleges of Architecture and Environmental Design, Liberal Arts and Science and Math. The various departments generate their own form from a committee of faculty members.

Evaluation results are not given to the teachers until they have posted the grades for the quarter.

"I didn't know that about Planned Parenthood."

Services are available at no cost to you if you qualify for the state-funded Family PACT program. Planned Parenthood has always been committed to birth control and sexuality counseling, as well as a full range of reproductive health care services for women.

- Birth Control
- Treatment for Sexually Transmitted Infections
- Pregnancy Testing
- Gynecological Exams
- Pap Tests
- STD Testing
- Mobile Services
- Counseling

Planned Parenthood
410 Mission Street, San Luis Obispo • 805-549-9446
415 East Chapel Street, Grover Beach • 805-925-8917

The GoFromSanDiego to Eureka, Santa Barbara to South Lake Tahoe (or anywhere in between) in grand style. Aboard our cars you can relax, listen to music, munch a snack or just take in the scenery. Amtrak California trains are comfortable and roomy with lots of space to stash your stuff. And there's no easier or more economical way to get where you want to go.

Amtrak California
A partnership between CATtrans and Amtrak

Fares subject to change. Other restrictions may apply. Call 1-800-USA-RAIL.
AMATEUR DANCE ATTENTION AT&T Cash Prizes
EXOTIC DANCERS ATTENTION AT&T Cash Prizes

11:AM TO 2:AM 7 DAYS A WEEK

AMATEUR DANCE CONTEST

Free Admission
11am - 6pm or
1/2 price admission from 6:30pm - 2am

ALWAYS HIRING DANCERS. MAKE $$$. APPLY IN PERSON.

Spearminth Rhino
Santa Maria, 505 S. Broadway
Santa Maria # 349-9535
Santa Barbara, 22 E. Monticito
Santa Barbara # 568-1620

ENTZI from page 1

According to Entzi, about 20 people have either turned in their applications or set up interviews for executive staff positions.

"We copied (between) 70 to 100 exec staff applications and they've all been taken," she said.

One of the first orders of business for the new president will be an assessment of all the programs and services that ASI sponsors.

"It's something I really want to focus on," Entzi said.

Other hot topics which Entzi would like to start addressing as early as this summer include mass transit, housing and the multi-million-dollar sports complex.

"The aim is to make sure that the money that's going into these areas is being used efficiently, that there isn't waste," Entzi said. Another aim is to "try to improve the quality of the program (or) the quality of the service."

One of Entzi's main campaign promises is to provide more money for campus clubs, regardless of whether or not they are coded. A coded club, according to the ASI Treasurer's Handbook, is a club that is registered with ASI and eligible for an ASI subsidy. However, all activities regarding coded clubs have been frozen for the past couple of years because of a lack of criteria to determine eligibility, Entzi said.

Entzi is hoping to fulfill this promise with money gleaned as a result of the assessment.

"I think by doing these assessments and really looking at ASI and really looking at where our money has been going, I think we can maybe find some areas that student clubs can get money from," Entzi said. "I don't believe in the belief that there is at least some mismanagement and funds going on in the various programs that ASI supports.

"I'm not saying that it's thousands and thousands of dollars, but I think that if you look at each program and each area in ASI, I think you can find small amounts from these areas... and small amounts could then lead to the bigger amounts. It's between hundreds of dollars and thousands of dollars," she said.

Entzi gave printing costs and travel expenses as two kinds of waste that these programs are allegedly generating. She claims she's not so much the expenses themselves that are wasteful, but the excessive amounts spent in these areas.

"I'm really thinking about what money could be saved," she said. "It's about trying to go to one more company or get one more bid to try to get a lower price of whatever it is that we need to pay for.

Instead of doing four-color posters, do a three-color poster and instead of printing 10,000 copies, print 8,000," she said.

If the assessments prove that there is money that can be used for student clubs, it would be pooled and the clubs would then be able to apply for it.

First, however, a club would have to complete a form describing how the funds would be used, how many students would benefit from this money and whether or not the club has made any attempts to raise money on its own. The forms would then be evaluated either by ASI's finance committee or a group of representatives from the various departments that constitute ASI.

As for working with McShane, Entzi said she sees him as someone she can turn to for advice

"He's a good resource and someone I can definitely talk to," she said.

Entzi sees herself as different, not better, than McShane.

"We're different people," she said, adding that her administration is going to start several of its own projects as well as build on what's already there.

One of these projects is a resource book for clubs which will include how to apply for money, how clubs would get checks from the business office, how to get the most out of being an ASI club and the policies that will be in effect.

Regarding her job as ASI President next year, Chris Makalintal, a board of directors representative from the College of Engineering, suggested that Entzi "stay in touch with the relationships between the exec staff and the board.

See ENTZI page 7

From page 1

What's the only number to use for all your collect calls that could instantly win you cool stuff (like hip Planet Hollywood jackets and packs of 24 free movie passes) every hour, every day?

a) d b) d c) d d) 1 800 CALL ATT e) HELLO-d

For all your collect calls — even local.

1-800 call ATT

No purchase necessary. Must be a legal US resident age 18 or older. Calls will be accepting and 500 winners will be selected randomly between 4/28/97 and 6/30/97. This competition is open only to residents from states (1) where games are lawful Planet Hollywood is not liable for taxes up $25. OK. Odds of winning depend on number of entries received. For official rules and free entry instructions, call 1-800-787-3313, and where prohibited. ©1997 AT&T
Without Investigating Advertisements

directors to make a very cohesive working relationship."

Fax resume 408-394-3399, Biondo

Instructor for College math class,

No Banking or Credit Information

NEED IT TYPED?

(mil. students) tel 408-393-1501

SOMETHING!

Classified Advertisin

graphic Arts Building, Hoorn 226 Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, CA 93407 (805) 756-1143

According to Rob Bryn, neighborhood services manager for San

Malibu; or Simi Valley,

Venture, Camarillo,

MATTRESS & BED

Available Summer Quarter - 6/30/98

Room: $250, $350, $450.

Summer Work

Campus

SUMMER JOBS

Live-In Counselors to Teach:

SUMMER JOBS

Four year old. Housekeeping

SUMMER JOBS

349-9535 or visit us at the

SUMMER JOBS

Kerrolyn Camps is seeking bright,

SUMMER JOBS

¾ Yard Near GUS Call 543-2136

in the following activity areas:

SUMMER JOBS

SUMMER JOBS

SUMMER JOBS

Pain Your Heart Out"

this year's event, had only good

To celebrate the city's 10th anniversary,

According to Mike Lenting, Crossing Guard,

CITIZEN DOG

MISTER BOFFO

MARK O'HARE

CAMPUS CLUBS

SHAH

SALES

OPPORTUNITIES

DRUG TESTING?

Paul NAYEC approved, child care

Phone: 408-732-2774. On campus

GIRLS

Looking for extra roommates? Earn

Anchettes Comedy Dance!

Cash Prizes $$$

GRADUATE

is a hard worker and that she was

PAINT

from page 3

The goal will still be to make the "Back off, Dewey! He wasn't being sarcastic—'good eye' is a figure of speech."

I "This is just the prototype."

me and Caris."

"The deal ones will be much smaller, made out of plastic, and sold by

IN THE BLEACHERS

by Steve Moore

MARK O'HARE

DRIVE ME IN

"I thought they were a person."

"I thought I was a person."

"You only thought I was a person."

CITIZEN DOG

by Joe Martin

"We do things for the community and people do stuff for us too," he said. "So, this is an opportunity for us to pay back the community for things they have helped us out with."
Kidd, Priess signed - Rest of baseball team awaits draft

By Jennifer Cornelius

While most of the college baseball players await Tuesday's major league baseball draft, Mustang second baseman Scott Kidd and catcher Matt Priess have already signed contracts with major league teams. Kidd, who was the Big West batting champion and named to the All-Big West first team, signed with the New York Yankees, and is already in Florida playing in a shortened season for a class A-ball team.

Priess has signed with the San Francisco Giants and will leave for Scottsdale, Ariz., for mini-camp following finals. He will then head to Spokane, Wash., to play for the Salem-Kaiser Volcanoes in a shortened season for their A-ball team.

Priess said he was in contact with scouts immediately following their final playoff loss to Cal State Fullerton. They negotiated a contract, but Priess couldn't sign until the team got word if the team was going to regionals. As soon as they learned that Cal Poly had not earned a regional berth, Priess signed.

Priess said that other teams had shown interest, but none had wanted to sign him early. Only Kidd and Priess were eligible to sign prior to the draft because they are fifth-year seniors. The other Mustangs must wait for the draft on June 3 and June 4.

Many of the other players are hopeful of playing in the minor and major leagues, but don't think they will be grabbed in the draft. Designated hitter Marty Camacho, who was named to the All-Big West first team, doesn't think he'll be drafted, but said he isn't really lusting over it. "If it happens, it happens...for me it's not really a big concern," Camacho said. Instead, Camacho is looking forward to a summer spent at home in San Diego.

First baseman Boyd Dodder, who hasn't been contacted by any teams, said he thought a team would have contacted him by now if he were going to be drafted, but he stays optimistic about the possibilities.

Dodder has thoughts of following left fielder R.J. Radler, who has signed with the Sioux Falls team of the Independent League. The Independent League teams are around the equivalent of an A-ball team and have no major league affiliation. However, many players sign contracts with major league teams through play in the independent league.

Third baseman Steve Baldmeier and left fielder John Arnold also have plans to try the independent league. Baldmeier said he has heard different things about being on teams' lists for the draft but hasn't heard anything for Arnold, who is only a junior, has decided to forgo his senior season of play and try the independent league. He hopes to sign with them sometime next week.

Assistant coach Mark O'Brien said that one other player that may have a good shot in the draft is shortstop Boyd Taber Maier. O'Brien said that the Cardinals organization may be the next stop for Maier. Maier is currently in Omaha, Neb., at the College World Series with head coach Ritch Price conducting a clinic for kids.

With all these players heading to different leagues and teams, the Mustangs will have totally new look next year. There will be no returning members of the starting lineup next season, except for some of the pitchers.

The 62-round draft begins Tuesday.