ST. LOUIS — Mark McGwire ended his perfect season with a final moment of pertection. With another walk-off crowd­ surging and cheering his final at-bat on the final day of the season, McGwire crowned his day of the season, McGwire crowned his

McGwire's mark Monday when the Cubs berth. Statistics from that yame will be included in players' reyular season total, but it is unlikely Sosa could hit four home runs.

And to think that when this weekend

Perfect.

ROCKETS

Student Rick Barnes

Barnes said that except for the computer control device, the Kittinjier rocket is almost all student-made.

“We had to make the mold for it,”
he said, “and sand it down.”

The club also built a paraglider from scratch which will guide the rocket back to Earth after reaching its maximum altitude of approximately 6,000 feet.

The club has successfully landed
the paraglider using a remote control, but they hope to eventually use more advanced technology allowing the glider to land itself.

Many of the rocket’s other components, including software and data acquisition systems, were also made by Cal Poly students. Some parts, such as the nose cone and the launch tower, are still under construction. The club president, astroautical engineering senior Mike Minniear, hopes to launch the Kittinjier from Vandenberg Air Force Base within the next school year.

The Kittinjier will be the second rocket launched by the club. In May 1998, the club launched a 5-foot
rocket, donated by Arroyo Grande’s
Central Coast Aerospace Modeling
Society, which let the club test electronics and software. The rocket was launched from a site in Arroyo Grande.

One of the club’s projects, however, is on indefinite hold: the launching of experiments (such as taking measurements in weightless conditions) using surplus government
NIKE-Orion rockets from Vandenberg.

Although the club made progress on the project, including building a module to carry the experiments, work stopped about a year ago due to a lack of funds and equipment.

State Sen. Jack O’Connell proposed spending $200,000 of California’s 1999 budget to complete the project, but the idea was rejected by Gov. Wilson on Aug. 22. A spokesperson for O’Connell, Gavin Payne, said there is no immediate alternative to get the funds, but it might reappear on next year’s budget.

Minniear said that without additional funding, finishing the project would be “very, very difficult.”

The club’s annual budget is around $3,000, composed of dues and donations.

Meanwhile, Minniear said the club may take on other projects, such as submitting proposals to put experiments on the space shuttle, attempting to break the altitude record for a home-built rocket or eventually building a satellite.

Funding for future projects has yet to be considered.

There are no requirements for joining the club beside paying $15
dues, Minniear said, and all majors are welcome. Although, he estimates that 90 percent of the nearly 40 members are engineers, business and liberal arts majors are involved too.

“We have a lot of options,” Minniear said, explaining there’s more involved than just engineering.

“We’re pushing technology, pushing presentation skills, teamwork, leadership and management. We try to be like industry.”

Border agent shoots man after assault with a rock

Suspected illegal immigrant threatened agent, authorities say; third shooting in less than one week

SAN DIEGO (AP) — A Border Patrol agent shot to death a suspected illegal immigrant who threatened him with a rock, authorities said Sunday. It was the third time in less than a week that a Border Patrol agent shot at an undocumented immigrant.

A man believed to be in his 20s was shot at about 9 p.m. Saturday near the San Ysidro port of entry southwest of downtown San Diego.

U.S. Border Patrol spokesman Mario Villarreal said. He was not immediately identified. The agent, whose name was not released, had responded to a call to assist a fellow agent.

"Out of all indications...it appears to be that it was self-defense," Villarreal said.

The man captured by the border agent escaped during the shooting, he added.

Border Patrol agent in San Luis, Ariz., shot and killed a 23-year-old illegal immigrant who allegedly threatened that agent with a rock, authorities said.

And last week, an undocumented immigrant was shot and wounded by a Border Patrol agent in eastern San Diego County after he reportedly tried to run over the patroller with his car, an agency spokesman said.

The 20-year-old man, who was shot in the chest, was in fair condition at a San Diego hospital Sunday.

"The man finally shot over the weekend was among three people spotted on the United States side of the border..." Villarreal said.

"Rookie in general are not that uncommon in that area. We have a lot of vehicle damage by rock throwers," Villarreal said.

One measure, signed bill protecting Californians from unsolicited e-mail..." Gov. Pete Wilson said Sunday.

"Unfortunately, (e-mail) has ... created a whole new territory for the high-tech version of the door-to-door salesman."

"The advent of electronic mail has provided people throughout the world with an expedient and cost-effective means of communication...Unfortunately, it has also created a whole new territory for the high-tech version of the door-to-door salesman," Wilson wrote in an announcement that he signed the two bills.

"Together, these bills will protect Californians from the spam that clogs the arteries of the information superhighway," he said.

The right idea for the wrong reasons

Editor:

This is in response to the Opinion page article, "Bringing the Clinton controversy closer," by Michelle Bevin. Ms. Bevin has the correct idea, but for incorrect reasons. Perhaps the first error was making a comparison to Warren Baken. I understand the need for comparison and analogy. However, trying to help us identify with the situation was unnecessary.

Bill Clinton is the President of the United States. I hope that as citizens of this country, most of us could already identify with him and feel that the issue is close to our lives. Talking about "picketing the administration building" or "screaming and shouting in the U.U." is rather inflammatory and highly unlikely.

The only real Cal Poly that I remember was the Poly Royal riot of 1980. I do believe that Mr. Baken was uninvolved in causing that event.

Let's look at the facts. For Clinton to do what he did was about as stupid as a person could be. I'm not sure how he figured he could get away with having "sex" with Monica Lewinsky, but apparently he thought he could.

I only partially agree with your statement regarding Clinton's sex life and his ability to lead. Had Clinton not been caught, his sex life wouldn't have mattered (no one would have known and therefore not cared). However, because he was caught, his sex life now does matter. Why? Because it can be made into news and that means higher ratings and increased circulation.

To say that Clinton has an unwritten job "as moral leader of this country" is incorrect. Going back to the Constitution, Church and State are separate. (Perhaps for Thomas Jefferson's own political gain, but they are separate.) Morality, by definition, is a religious concept. To he moral, is to hold religious values. In no way should the President of the United States be this country's moral leader; it would be a mixing of church and state.

That is not to say that Clinton should not act morally, but he has no business setting anyone's moral agenda but his own. Do we really want politicians politicking our religion?

If Bill Clinton quits, it should be because he's been embroiling money or selling drugs. Those are high crimes and misdemeanors. Going through a mid-life crisis is not.

I'm currently reading a very interesting book, "The Final Days of Michael Hutchence." It's about the death of the INXS frontman. To those of you who know the story, he was the subject of tabloid tales. The book's author, Mike Ge, writes about why the news media feels the need to take a person, like Hutchence or Clinton, and totally blow out of proportion something they did.

Gee writes: "We're all voyeurs. We love to see what happens in other people's lives, mostly, because it makes us feel better about our own - and envy them. We live vicariously - as a race - through other people's sins of admissions and emission. More importantly - some of what you read is hardly distorted junk, exaggerated, blown out of context, and manipulated just the right side of legal. If you believe everything you read, hear or are told, then you are either extremely naive or a fool. Not much of this is ever put into headlines, simply become a topic of tabloid talk."

"Sex" with Monica Lewinsky is not a high crime. The President of the United States is not above the law. Before you form opinions on what happened to the White House, consider the source of information, whether it be from Judge Starr or Mr. Kendall. I appreciate Mr. Bevin's desire for a more moral nation. It would be wonderful if all of us could be more moral than we currently are. However, if you insist on bashing the President for his lack of morals, (and he certainly lacks morals), then lobby Congress to write that into his job description. Don't try to influence a campus over actions he committed for which there was no law broken or legal recourse.

If you push your moral agenda today, then the next time a President acts immoral, we will have a job stipulation to back up our desire to see him removed.

As a man with morals, lock down Bill Clinton's actions. As a clear thinker, I try to see the forest behind the trees (i.e. the big picture). As a Republican, I always look forward to lower taxes. As a voter, I enjoy the smell of election year politics, although I have had my quota for the year.

Oh yeah, if the opinion pages are going to be so righteous with morals, then perhaps it would be good idea to not publish articles (with a 1/2 page saved photo plus 1 others) about the newest Peep...er, Bikini Bar in town. That's like the pot calling the kettle black.

Nick Dolak a management information systems senior who never throws stones unless he's sure no one can throw them back at him.

"I wish him the best of luck," McGwire said. "I wish I could be in that position."

McGwire was scheduled to leave Sunday evening for his Southern California home to begin an offsea­son of relaxation and reflection. Asked if he'd be watching Sosa on Monday, he said: "I might be on the beach. Sorts."

After the game, McGwire was honored at home plate, then stepped inside where he handed his hat, batting helmet, uniform ankle guard and other knick knacks to baseball's Hall of Fame.

McGwire's 70th home run "felt a lot like No. 62." That one broke Roger Maris' 37-year-old single-season home run record. Sunday had a similar air of inevitability, that McGwire was going to do something special to end the sea­son.

He dumped a single into center field in the first inning, but in the third, with the count at 1-1, Expos rookie starter Mike Thurm an threw McGwire a curveball that came in low in the strike zone.

McGwire sent it soaring into the left field seats. The crowd boomed in the fifth when Thurm an walked him on a pitch over his head.

Even the walk was special because it was his 162nd of the sea­son, tying Ted Williams for second place on baseball's all-time list.

The only time a player has drawn more walks was 75 years ago when Babe Ruth drew 170.

"I wish him the best of luck," McGwire said. "I wish I could be here.

"I wasn't going to go right after him," Pavano said. "The way it turned out, he went right after me. I guess if you're going to give up a home run, you're going to give it up to him.

"I'm not going to bother looking at it any other way. I ended up giving up the last home run to the best home run hitter in history."

McGwire said it would take a couple of weeks to comprehend what he'd accomplished, that he would make few personal appearances and mostly stay out of the limelight.

"I can't believe I did it. Can you?" McGwire said. "It's absolutely amaz­ing. It blows me away. I think it's going to take longer for this whole season to sink in. I can't wait to get home and look at the tapes and read the magazines and newspapers.

Inside the Cardinals' clubhouse, his teammates kept saying the same thing again and again: SEVENTY HOME RUNS!

"I mean, that's impossible," catcher Tom Lampkin said.

Expos Manager Felipe Alou said: "Thank God the season's over, or he would hit 80."

Until this season, only two players — Ruth and Maris — had hit 60 in a sea­son. Now, McGwire has created a club that's a part of baseball history.

"I think it'll stand for a while," McGwire said of his record. "I know how grueling it is. I think it'll be broken someday. If I'm not playing, I'll be there. If I'm playing, I'm going to ask out to be there. I don't know if I want to break my own record. I think I'd rather leave it as it is. I think the magnitude will probably not be understood for a while."

THANKS, ASI!!

"FREE" CITY BUS RIDES AGAIN!

The city will be fully subsidized for Cal Poly riders once again during this new fiscal year (July 1, 1998 through June 30, 1999).

Many thanks go to the 1997-98 ASI Board of Directors for authorizing the allocation $49,600 of ASI money toward the City/University bus contract.

This money, along with the $12,500 from the university parking citation revenue funds, satisfied the contract obligation for bus services for the 1998/99 fiscal year.

Therefore, again this year, all Cal Poly students, faculty, and staff will be able to ride the city buses free of charge.

THANKS, ASI, for your generous contribution to the City/University bus contract.
Apple’s iMac is a ‘shot in the arm’ for an old format

SANDIEGO — For fans of Apple Computer Inc., even the name of the company’s latest computer, the “iMac,” has a special meaning. It sounds like a message from company co-founder, Steve Jobs: “I’m back.”

The iMac is a job well protected, the first big new product out the door since the charismatic entrepreneur returned to Apple last year. It debuted in stores on Aug. 15 and has sold solidly, giving a welcome financial lift to Apple, which for years has suffered from declining profits and muddled focus.

“We’ve been predicting that (Apple) will have the highest growth rate of any PC vendor” in this quarter and possibly the next, said Roger Kay, a senior analyst at International Data Corp. in Framingham, Mass.

The iMac is a Macintosh with an uncommon look: It’s a single piece, with rounded edges that echo the curves of Volkswagen’s New Beetle. It’s got a translucent red-colored casing that gives a view of the components inside. Its price is also unusual: $1,299.97, a bargain in the Macintosh world.

According to numbers released last week by PC Data Inc., a Reston, Va.-based market analysis firm, the Mac accounted for 7.1 percent of retail computer sales in August, making it the second-best-selling model for the month after Hewlett-Packard Co.’s Pavilion 635X.

Steve Baker, a senior analyst at PC Data, said the numbers should be understood in context: While other PC makers have a variety of new consumer models, Apple has only the iMac. “The PC market is driven a lot by promotion, and whatever the hot (models) in the market during a particular month tend to be the ones on top,” he said. Even so, “it’s very nice that Apple could get in the top five right off the bat.”

iMac. “The PC market is driven a lot by promotion, and whatever the hot (models) in the market during a particular month tend to be the ones on top,” he said. Even so, “it’s very nice that Apple could get in the top five right off the bat.” He added.

Apple’s stock is at its best position since 1995. Friday, it closed at $58.75, up 25 cents. By contrast, a year ago Apple’s stock was trading in the low 20s.

Yet even analysts who root for Apple’s success are they are still cautious about the legendary computer maker’s future. “Mac sales are a tremendous shot in the arm for Apple, even if the machine is slow and a bit cheesy,” wrote David Coursey, an industry analyst based in San Mateo, Calif., in an electronic-mail message responding to a reporter’s questions. “I am writing this on an iMac,” he added.

“The real problem, however, is all the excitement in the software world centers on Windows, and local Mac software companies — Macromedia, Adobe, Claris — have been hammered,” he wrote. “I want things to be different — but unless software companies can be convinced to help, this is a great platform. No matter how much I love it,” Coursey added.

down strike.

Troy Henry said the touchdown was due to the lack of coverage on the play.
I had a post, and the receiver, he has a ten-yard corner and what happened was I was supposed to keep the post skinny
and make a streak. When Benjamin Winter, the z, went for the corner, the cornerback got him instead of going with me
and left me wide open.

Again, both teams started to get good drives going, but penalties kept the teams from gaining any positive ground. St.
Mary's finished the half with seven penalties for 55 yards and Cal Poly ended with four penalties for 35 yards.

The first half came to a close with the score at 7-7.

The Mustangs came out in the second half and put together their first solid scoring drive. The Mustangs effectively used the run to march down the field, throwing in a few passes to mix up the play. Their opening drive ended with Chad Henry rushing into the end zone on a one-yard quarterback sneak. After kicker Alan Belke's point after, the Mustangs took the lead 14 to 7.

The Mustangs said their improved play in the second half was due to their concentration on the game and the realization that they had a good chance of coming out with a victory.

"We just eliminated mistakes," offensive lineman Scott Hering said. "We just kept with the same thing, running up the middle pounding them and we got it growing.

"We knew coming into halftime we had a lot of good football ahead of us,"
head coach Larry Welds said.

The Mustangs appeared to be taking control of the game in the third quarter when St. Mary's strong safety Lenny Walls intercepted Chad Henry's sideline pass and ran it back 55 yards for the touchdown. Fortunately for the Mustangs, Walls took off his helmet in the end zone during his celebration and was slapped with a 15-yard unsportsmanlike conduct penalty.

With the ball back on the 47-yard line,
St. Mary's kicker Raul Mikkio missed the 34-yard point after attempt, making the score 14-13. The quarter ended at the same score, with the Mustangs putting their first solid score together.

Five plays into the fourth quarter, the Mustangs upped the score 21 to 15 on Keith Harter's 10-yard sideline pass from Chad Henry and Belke's point after.

St. Mary's next possession went three-and-out, and the Mustangs began their next scoring drive at their own 10-yard line.
Nine rushing plays later, Cal Poly found the endzone on Warren's 10-yard run.
Putting the score at 28-15.

Cal Poly's strong defensive play forced St. Mary's to go three-and-out again and the Mustangs took over possession in their own 46-yard line. They put together six solid rushing plays, capped off with a Craig Young rush over the right guard for a 29-yard touchdown. Belke's point after put the Mustangs up for the final score, 35 to 13.

After the game, the Mustangs were happy to get their first mark in the win col­ umen.

"The first win feels real good," Young said. "It's been making us a little restive, We made a lot of mistakes, shot ourselves in the foot a lot (in previous games). We did the same in the first half but luckily in the second half we pulled together and came out with a good victory.

"In the second half we just executed
the way we're supposed to and we put some points on the board," Young added.

The Mustang defense is what kept them in games this year, and it was a restau­
ration to their victory on Saturday.

"The defense always takes care of their job and they just played hard," Hering said. "On offense, we did a good job. We got the ball moving, ran the ball, did what we wanted to do all season, and finally got it done."

Many Mustangs said that the first win is just a starting point for the rest of the season.

"It feels wonderful to get that first win," Chad Henry said. "It's like getting a money off your back. We've been working hard all this time trying to get a win on the board and we've been short three times.
It's really frustrating when you know you have a good team. Hopefully we can build some momentum off this win, go on and maybe win seven more and try to make a run for the playoffs.

While the first win is finally in the books, there is still a lot of football to be played.

"We still got a long way to go," Welds said. "It's not a complete package. It's got to get better before it goes worse."
Prairie View finally wins, 80-game losing streak ends

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP) — It was a great day for Prairie View ADAM — the streak is over!

Prairie View ended its NCAA-record 80-game losing streak with a 14-12 win over Langston in Oklahoma City when a 2-point conversion attempt was stopped at the goal line with H seconds left.

It took officials 15 seconds to untangle the players and make the call, and when they did, the Panthers rushed the field, hugged each other, jumped for joy and basically tried to figure out what else to do after a win.

"The only thing that went through my mind was, it was over. It was over," said linebacker Steve "Mighty" Gamer, who made the streak-ending tackle. "All the players and make the call, and when 2-point conversion attempt was stopped in the final D 4-6. The Swedes won their semifinal against Spain by capturing the doubles Saturday.

"It's something I never dreamt about, it never felt like anything like this before," Nargiso said. The Americans, with stars Pete Sampras, Andre Agassi and Michael Chang declining to play, lost for the first time at home in 19 Davis Cup matches. They last lost in the United States in 1987 when France defeated Germany on 2-3/2 victory in Hartford, Conn.

"It's something I never dreamt of and neither did our players," U.S. captain Tom Gullikson said. U.S. swept Friday's opening doubles matches, with Gaudenzi beating Jan-Michael Gambill 6-2, 7-6 (7-3), 7-6 (6-4) and Davide Sanguinetti topping Marvin 7-6 (7-3), 6-4, 7-6 (10-5).

US loses at Davis Cup

MILWAUKEE (AP) — The United States tumbled out of the Davis Cup on Saturday, far more a victim of its own second-tier lineup than the optimistic Italian opponents.

In the clinching doubles match, Italy's Diego Nargiso and Andrea Gaudenzi squandered two match points in the third set, before rallying for a 6-4, 7-6 (7-3), 5-7, 2-6, 6-3 victory over Justin Gimelstob and Todd Martin.

Italy, which took an insurmountable 3-0 lead in the best-of-5 match, will play Sweden in the final Dec. 4-6. The Swedes won their semifinal against Spain by capturing the doubles Saturday.

Mustangs squash Gaels for first win

By Mark Hartz
Mustang Daily

There’s an old saying that goes, “Third time’s a charm.”

Well, for the Cal Poly football team, that must be a charm. The Mustangs won their first game of the season last Saturday with a victory over St. Mary’s 15-13.

Not only did the Mustangs get that elusive win to boost their record to 1-3, but senior running back Antonio Warren broke Lou Jackson’s all-time rushing record when he hit 3,134 career yards. Warren finished the day with 144 yards and one touchdown.

“I was so happy for him,” junior wide receiver Tom Henry said. “I knew he was about to do it so the coach told me he just needs one more yard to get it. He did it and it was on the touchdown run that he got it. I ran up and got the ball from the referee and I said, ‘Rot, rot, rot, I need this ball he just broke the record...’ He handed it to me and I was all excited about that I was so excited for him.”

Warren was quick to place his success on the play of his offensive line. “The o-line just had the fire in their eyes and the desire in their game. They just got out there and started blowing people off the ball left and right,” he said. “Anytime you have that, you have huge holes.You can walk through them.”

However, the Mustangs were slow to start. St. Mary’s took an early 7-to-0 lead with Eric Billeci’s 24-yard touchdown reception with less than two minutes elapsed in the game.

St. Mary’s quarterback Chad Thomas then connected with Billeci on a post pass for the second touchdown of the game.

That first touchdown was a result of a mistake by the Mustang defense. “Third time’s a charm,” head coach Xavier Lanier said. “We just eliminated mistakes. We just kept with the same thing, running up the middle pounding them and we got it going.” — Scott Herzing, offensive lineman MUSTANG DEFEAT STRONG AGAIN: Andy Sverchek (No. 94) and Osvaldo Orozco (No. 45) apply pressure to St. Mary’s quarterback Chad Thomas. The Mustangs have played outstanding defense all season long.

“Bring the Gaels to the Mustangs’ 24 yard line. Thomas then connected with Billeci on a post pass for the score.”

The first quarter ended 7-to-0 with neither team being able to put together effective drives aside from the first touchdown. Both teams had trouble connecting on the deep passes, as each quarterback overthrow their receivers. The quarterbacks finished the quarter a combined 9-13.

In the second quarter, Mustangs’ defensive back Kiko Griffin intercepted Thomas’ sideline pass. Two plays later, Mustangs’ quarterback Chad Henry hit receiver Troy Henry on a post pass for a 31-yard touchdown strike.

Cubs, Giants will get ‘wild’ tonight

Wildcard game

The Chicago Cubs and San Francisco Giants will play a one-game playoff to determine the National League wildcard berth. The game at Wrigley Field begins at 4:45 p.m. on ESPN.

RUSHING INTO THE RECORD BOOKS: Antonio Warren rushed for 144 yards against the Gaels and became Cal Poly’s all-time career rushing leader.
