Internet speeds up student loan process

By Chris Hoffman
Mustang Daily

A few minutes of reading, some button clicks, and the money is one step closer to being in your hands. Financial aid counseling has hit the internet — and that means more convenience for students. First-time Stafford loan borrowers are mandated by law to attend a counseling session before receiving their first check. But what once required 50-minute seminars can now be done in a few minutes on the World Wide Web.

The online system, found at http://www.bankamerica.com/student-aid/counseling/, has been available at Cal Poly since fall 1997. It allows students to read three pages of text about their rights and responsibilities as borrowers and then take a quiz to prove their understanding.

The quiz consists of seven multiple-choice questions (for example, see LOANS, page 3)

If the shoe fits

SWOOSH: World Athletics salesman Joseph Ramirez opens a box of shoes for manufacturing senior Matt Brown to test out in the UU. A variety of vendors will set up displays in the plaza throughout the quarter.

Man to speak on atrocities in Iraq

Missionary worker flew in food and supplies to Iraqis despite facing US sanctions

By Jose Garcia
Mustang Daily

Guadalupe resident Dennis Apel has seen firsthand some of the harsh living conditions Iraqi citizens are facing as a result of United Nation Security Council-imposed sanctions. He’s bringing those tragic images to the Central Coast with his slide show presentation Friday at 7 p.m. in the San Luis Obispo County Library.

A seven-year trade embargo against Iraq continues to this day as a result of Iraq’s invasion of Kuwait in 1990.

Apel, who has already traveled to Iraq twice this year on humanitarian missions, will return from his second Middle East trip today. During Apel’s first trip in May with 82 other Americans, $4 million worth of medical supplies were delivered to Iraq. According to a story published in a local humanitarian-based magazine, HopeDance, Apel said approximately 300 children in Iraq are dying every day due to lack of medical supplies.

"On a human level, the sanctions are so utterly immoral that in my view, any political discussion becomes irrelevant," said Apel in the July/August edition of HopeDance. "There cannot possibly be any political justification for the level of suffering we are inflicting on these people."

Nobel Daniel, mechanical engineering junior, is an Assyrian-Christian who was utterly immoral that in my view, any political discussion becomes irrelevant," said Apel in the July/August edition of HopeDance. "There cannot possibly be any political justification for the level of suffering we are inflicting on these people."

"I wish I knew why the legislature didn’t explain," he said.

According to Swisher, since the decision to reduce the fee for undergraduates as well. He said that the legislature decided at the end of its 98 session to reduce it for undergraduates.

"I know why (why), the legislature didn’t explain," he said.

According to Swisher, since the decision to reduce the fee for undergraduates was finalized, lobbying began about reducing the fee for graduate students as well. He said that the legislature decided at the end of its 98 session to reduce it for undergraduates.

Ramirez said that the bill lowering the fee for undergraduates also gave CSU trustees $19.4 million. This money however, did not provide additional funds for instructional programs.

"It lowered the cost for students and their families to attend (school), but one thing to consider is that the Register to vote today

One vote counts. One of the most important one-vote decisions took place shortly after the American Revolution. It was one vote that made the difference in a hill that would have changed the official language of America from English to German.

Cal Poly students can register to vote in the UU today. The California State Student Association (CSSA) is holding a massive voter registration drive on campuses across the state.

Iraq continued from page 1

formed in Baghdad, Iraq in 1981, before the Iraqi-Iran war broke out. To this day, he said, when he or his parents attempt to call relatives in Iraq they don’t discuss political matters because Hussein’s intelligence network is known for tapping phone lines.

Aepel works as one of the coordinators for the Grasslands Catholic Workers outreach center which provides food and support to low income farm workers. He was contacted by a nationally-based peace group. Voices of the Wilderness, to help with the missions in Iraq. Voices of the Wilderness is spearheading the controversial relief efforts.

Iraq has easily granted visas to U.S. government officials have threatened the group with a million-dollar fine and up to 12 years in prison for its involvement in bringing medicines to hospitals in Iraq, a violation of the U.N./U.S.-imposed embargo on Iraq.

During Friday’s presentation Aepel will present slides from both of his overseas trips. One of the slides will show an Iraqi woman hanging over her child to Aepel. "She told him (Aepel) to take care of her sick baby," said Bob Fannon, publisher and editor of Hope/Dance.

"It was a real heart-wrencher." Friday’s slide show will be followed by a question and answer session aimed at changing the U.N. sanction policy.

Los Angeles

The idea behind the WWW loan counseling, according to Cal Poly loan specialist Ron Hurd, is convenient. Previously, students who needed their check on the first day of classes would have to come to Cal Poly ahead of time to attend counseling. But now, "you can do their entrance counseling from literally anywhere in the world," Hurd said. "It just makes it available 24 hours a day."

Students appear to appreciate the convenience of online counseling also. "I thought it was easy," said computer science junior Jamie Collins. "And nice." Over 2,500 students have already used the WWW counseling system in this academic year, compared to about 500 who have attended in-person workshops.

The one drawback, Hurd said, is that internet counseling lacks personal interaction. However, in-person workshops are still offered several times a quarter for those without internet access or to those who have completed the WWW system can ask person-to-person questions with the lending community. The in-person session is scheduled for this Thursday.

The online counseling is actually a free service from Bank of America, not Cal Poly. However, Hurd points out that students can use the counseling no matter who their lender is. "We happen to go through Bank of America," said Hurd, noting other lenders offer the service. "It’s a way for them to come in touch with us, and we were looking for something like this to offer that’s who’s we signed on with."

Although around 120 other schools use Bank of America’s online counseling, including five other California State Universities, some features of the system are unique to Cal Poly. After students complete the web session and the information is sent to Cal Poly, a computer program automatically matches up that information with data already in the Cal Poly system, releasing the hold on the check and e-mailing back a confirmation letter.

Student $55 at Work in McPhee University Union

Students, faculty and staff are cordially invited to celebrate with us during an Open House to be held for new Student Government Offices (UU 202) and Multicultural center (UU 217B) on October 1 & 2, 12 Noon to 2 p.m.

Please stop by for a tour of our new offices and see how student dollars have been used to enhance the McPhee University Union.
Students fall back on work, loans

World market, relaxed US restrictions, cause Asian students to reach for emergency aid

AUSTIN, Texas (U-WIRE) — The UT International Office has seen an increase in applications for work and financial aid this fall from students suffering from the Asian currency crisis following the removal of certain financial restrictions in June, UT officials said Monday.

The Immigration and Naturalization Service temporarily lifted work restrictions for certain F-1, or non-immigrant, student visa holders in June to help students facing financial hardship due to economic crisis in Asia.

INS work restrictions for F-1 student visa holders prohibits international students from working more than 20 hours per week during the school year, and international students are only allowed to work on campus, unless they apply through the INS to work off campus.

These restrictions were lifted after economic turmoil in Asia this summer created unstable financial situations in several Asian nations, causing exchange rates in many of those countries to fall. Cindy Barber, an immigration advisor, said she has seen an increase in on-campus work applications during the summer and at the beginning of the fall semester.

"I've seen an increase of students who want to work more than 20 hours a week," Barber said.

Seopjoo Hadiwijaya, a business junior who has an F-1 permit, said the Asian economic crisis has caused financial hardship for many students, including herself and friends.

"It's really bad right now," Hadiwijaya said. "Right now my parents cannot send me money because the exchange rate is so high."

Hadiwijaya has been working at the Learning Skills Center at a math and economics tutor about 25 hours per week to help pay for school.

"He told her that she might have to work more hours in the spring if the option is still available," Barber said.

"The increase in applications to have the F-1 work restrictions lifted, not all of the applicants have met the requirements needed to receive special status," Barber said.

The special student relief program applies only to international students whose financial support come from Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines, South Korea or Thailand.

Students applying for the relief must establish that they held F-1 student status prior to June 10 of this year when the INS lifted the work restrictions. They must also show continued economic hardship.

Hurricane Georges downgraded to tropical storm

Power out to 400,000 homes from Florida to Louisiana

PASCAGOULA, Miss. (AP) — The whirlwind that was Georges began to disappear from the weather map Tuesday, but its story was still a reminder that the entire storm-damaged swath from Alabama and the Florida Panhandle, through central Georgia and parts of South Carolina through Wednesday morning, The hurricane wind that ripped through the coast with gusts as high as 174 mph had dropped to 35 mph.

President Clinton declared the entire storm-damaged swath a disaster area and planned to visit as soon as recovery operations allowed. Power remained out to about 403,000 customers from Louisiana to Florida.

Barber said some advisors have received as many as one to three applications per day from students wishing to increase their work hours.

Another revision to the standard eliminates the requirement that international students be enrolled as full-time students.

However they must meet certain criteria to drop below a full course load, including meeting all student relief program requirements or being authorized for off campus employment.

Eligible students must also show that they are working more than 20 hours per week, Barber said.

"Right now my parents cannot send me money because the exchange rate is so high."

— Soepjoo Hadiwijaya University of Texas student

Barber said some advisors have received as many as one to three applications per day from students wishing to increase their work hours.

Another revision to the standard eliminates the requirement that international students be enrolled as full-time students.

However they must meet certain criteria to drop below a full course load, including meeting all student relief program requirements or being authorized for off campus employment.

Eligible students must also show that they are working more than 20 hours per week, Barber said.

"Right now my parents cannot send me money because the exchange rate is so high."

— Soepjoo Hadiwijaya University of Texas student

Barber said some advisors have received as many as one to three applications per day from students wishing to increase their work hours.

Another revision to the standard eliminates the requirement that international students be enrolled as full-time students.

However they must meet certain criteria to drop below a full course load, including meeting all student relief program requirements or being authorized for off campus employment.

Eligible students must also show that they are working more than 20 hours per week, Barber said.

"Right now my parents cannot send me money because the exchange rate is so high."

— Soepjoo Hadiwijaya University of Texas student

Barber said some advisors have received as many as one to three applications per day from students wishing to increase their work hours.

Another revision to the standard eliminates the requirement that international students be enrolled as full-time students.

However they must meet certain criteria to drop below a full course load, including meeting all student relief program requirements or being authorized for off campus employment.

Eligible students must also show that they are working more than 20 hours per week, Barber said.

"Right now my parents cannot send me money because the exchange rate is so high."

— Soepjoo Hadiwijaya University of Texas student

Barber said some advisors have received as many as one to three applications per day from students wishing to increase their work hours.

Another revision to the standard eliminates the requirement that international students be enrolled as full-time students.

However they must meet certain criteria to drop below a full course load, including meeting all student relief program requirements or being authorized for off campus employment.

Eligible students must also show that they are working more than 20 hours per week, Barber said.

"Right now my parents cannot send me money because the exchange rate is so high."

— Soepjoo Hadiwijaya University of Texas student
There’s too much special treatment

The handicapped, or at least the “so-called” handicapped have too much special treatment. With Cal Poly as possibly the area’s largest perpetrator of overzealous handicapped action, it’s a mystery to me why this campus still has “able” people, facilities and programs.

“Handicapped” people get the best parking spots, priority registration, note takers, sympathy when they’re late to class, etc. There’s too much authority renunciation, note takers, sympathy when they’re late to class, etc. There’s too much authority renunciation, note takers, sympathy when they’re late to class, etc.

Legitimately handicapped people, like those in wheel chairs and those who arrive too school on the short bus, should take full advantage of all services and programs this campus has to offer. Everyone else however, like the frat who sprained his joint, should not be eligible for anything above and beyond the typical overzealous concern they’re bailed with from super dramatized frat girls.

Seriously folks, anyone and their brother can fake special privileges from Cal Poly. Allergic to the sun? We’ll bring in a note taker so you don’t have to concentrate. As an added bonus, because of the severity of this recent educational phenomenon, you can score some drugs (I mean medication) that will be loads of fun Friday night. Of all the maladies going around, this whole ADD epidemic, really irks me. It’s a condition parents concocted to explain why little Johnny can’t sit still in class, nothing more.

If you can walk, crawl or limp to class you shouldn’t get special privileges. If you’re crazy, but not nuts enough to fit yourself wrapped up in a strait jacket, you shouldn’t be eligible for education enhancing drills or services and programs this campus has to offer. Everyone who arrives to school in the short bus, should take full advantage of all these in wheel chairs and those people, like those in wheel chairs and those who arrive too school on the short bus, should take full advantage of all services and programs this campus has to offer.

This is a serious case of depression. A little priority registration should clear it up right. Can’t stop staring at the hotwife in your English lit class? You must have attention deficit disorder. We’ll bring in a note taker so you don’t have to concentrate. As an added bonus, because of the severity of this recent educational phenomenon, you can score some drugs (I mean medication) that will be loads of fun Friday night. Of all the maladies going around, this whole ADD epidemic, really irks me. It’s a condition parents concocted to explain why little Johnny can’t sit still in class, nothing more.

I’m against people passing off minor inconveniences as critical dilemmas. I am currently interested in divulging these seemingly hidden secrets. I was reminded this morning what type of situation we have on our hands.

I witnessed a car accident on California Blvd. that was primarily due to the fact that the line of cars entering campus, stretched back to Taft St. by Seven-Eleven. Wonder if those two drivers feel their accident was unnecessary and preventable. I believe it was. You want solutions for the “parking crunch” (pun intended), here’s one for you.

I don’t know about me, but the worst thing my dad ever eaten was a halibut, which was cooked chicken fetus, baked in its shell."

Alan Dunton

Our voice

Our voice reflects the views of Mustang Daily. Our voice is determined by the editorial board, which includes all student editors of Mustang Daily. Columns, cartoons and letters reflect the views of their authors and do not necessarily reflect those of Mustang Daily.

Your voice

Mustang Daily encourages comments on editorial policy and university affairs. Letters should be typewritten, double-spaced and signed and include a phone number. They can be mailed, faxed, delivered or e-mailed to opinion@mustangdaily.calpoly.edu.

Mustang Daily is your newspaper for campus and community. We are here to serve you. Feel free to contact us with your comments, concerns, suggestions and ideas.

---

Look what I found under Jeffery's mattress!

What’s the worst thing you’ve ever eaten?

- “I don’t know about me, but the worst thing my dad ever eaten was a halibut, which was cooked chicken fetus, baked in its shell.”

- “Now stomach, it was soup. It was pretty gross.”

- “I tripped pretty much nowhere. And Rocky Mountain Oysters. Sea Urchin was pretty bad too, it tastes like raw sewage.”

- “It had potatoes, ketchup, local toast, eggs, syrup. I don’t remember everything it had in it. It’s one of those things you try to block out.”

- “I witnessed a car accident on California Blvd. that was primarily due to the fact that the line of cars entering campus, stretched back to Taft St. by Seven-Eleven. Wonder if those two drivers feel their accident was unnecessary and preventable. I believe it was. You want solutions for the “parking crunch” (pun intended), here’s one for you.”

- “I’m against people passing off minor inconveniences as critical dilemmas. I am currently interested in divulging these seemingly hidden secrets. I was reminded this morning what type of situation we have on our hands.

- “I don’t know about me, but the worst thing my dad ever eaten was a halibut, which was cooked chicken fetus, baked in its shell.”

- “Now stomach, it was soup. It was pretty gross.”

- “I tripped pretty much nowhere. And Rocky Mountain Oysters. Sea Urchin was pretty bad too, it tastes like raw sewage.”

- “It had potatoes, ketchup, local toast, eggs, syrup. I don’t remember everything it had in it. It’s one of those things you try to block out.”

- “I witnessed a car accident on California Blvd. that was primarily due to the fact that the line of cars entering campus, stretched back to Taft St. by Seven-Eleven. Wonder if those two drivers feel their accident was unnecessary and preventable. I believe it was. You want solutions for the “parking crunch” (pun intended), here’s one for you.”

---

There are alternatives to driving

So we have a parking problem. All are agreed. Unfortunately, there are only a hold few who know the true answers to these dilemmas. I am currently interested in divulging these seemingly hidden secrets. I was reminded this morning what type of situation we have on our hands.

I witnessed a car accident on California Blvd. that was primarily due to the fact that the line of cars entering campus, stretched back to Taft St. by Seven-Eleven. Wonder if those two drivers feel their accident was unnecessary and preventable. I believe it was. You want solutions for the “parking crunch” (pun intended), here’s one for you.

- “I don’t know about me, but the worst thing my dad ever eaten was a halibut, which was cooked chicken fetus, baked in its shell.”

We’re all against people passing off minor inconveniences as critical dilemmas. I am currently interested in divulging these seemingly hidden secrets. I was reminded this morning what type of situation we have on our hands.

There are alternatives to driving. I am currently interested in divulging these seemingly hidden secrets. I was reminded this morning what type of situation we have on our hands.

- “I don’t know about me, but the worst thing my dad ever eaten was a halibut, which was cooked chicken fetus, baked in its shell.”

- “Now stomach, it was soup. It was pretty gross.”

- “I tripped pretty much nowhere. And Rocky Mountain Oysters. Sea Urchin was pretty bad too, it tastes like raw sewage.”

- “It had potatoes, ketchup, local toast, eggs, syrup. I don’t remember everything it had in it. It’s one of those things you try to block out.”

- “I witnessed a car accident on California Blvd. that was primarily due to the fact that the line of cars entering campus, stretched back to Taft St. by Seven-Eleven. Wonder if those two drivers feel their accident was unnecessary and preventable. I believe it was. You want solutions for the “parking crunch” (pun intended), here’s one for you.”

- “I don’t know about me, but the worst thing my dad ever eaten was a halibut, which was cooked chicken fetus, baked in its shell.”

- “Now stomach, it was soup. It was pretty gross.”

- “I tripped pretty much nowhere. And Rocky Mountain Oysters. Sea Urchin was pretty bad too, it tastes like raw sewage.”

- “It had potatoes, ketchup, local toast, eggs, syrup. I don’t remember everything it had in it. It’s one of those things you try to block out.”

- “I witnessed a car accident on California Blvd. that was primarily due to the fact that the line of cars entering campus, stretched back to Taft St. by Seven-Eleven. Wonder if those two drivers feel their accident was unnecessary and preventable. I believe it was. You want solutions for the “parking crunch” (pun intended), here’s one for you.”

---

There are alternatives to driving

So we have a parking problem. All are agreed. Unfortunately, there are only a hold few who know the true answers to these dilemmas. I am currently interested in divulging these seemingly hidden secrets. I was reminded this morning what type of situation we have on our hands.

I witnessed a car accident on California Blvd. that was primarily due to the fact that the line of cars entering campus, stretched back to Taft St. by Seven-Eleven. Wonder if those two drivers feel their accident was unnecessary and preventable. I believe it was. You want solutions for the “parking crunch” (pun intended), here’s one for you.
Islam teaches equality
Cartoon depicts myths about Muslim women

I am deeply disappointed by the cartoon on page 4 of today's issue of Mustang Daily, in which Ms. Julie L. Longo attempts to depict that Islamic Laws are very strict and unjust for women.

I am not surprised to see a misleading cartoon, because as a Muslim and president of Muslim Students' Association (MSA) I have to face all the misconceptions of ill-treatment of women.

People often claim that Islam is the second religion in the world, and if we comb through the different sects of Christianity then Islam is the second largest religion in the world. Despite all the misconceptions of ill-treatment of Muslim women, they are the largest gender group of Europeans and Americans in the world today. The reason for that is very simple, Islam teaches equality and justice for the women and men and women should enjoy equal rights as men. But Islam opposes the "sameness" of the two genders. This issue is very simple and easy to understand.

Stand men and women are created equal, but they are not the same. Each individual enjoys equal rights with different duties and responsibilities. As for the women covering up their bodies, it is because Islam does not depict women as sex objects and does not allow anyone to judge her body appearance, but by her intelligence and wisdom.

It is true that in some countries women do not have equal rights. But it has nothing to do with Islam. If anything it is to be blamed for this injustice, it is the culture and level of literacy among the people who believe in it. Islam is the first religion to give women the right to inherit, all women are free to work, to do business and vote. We study European and American history we will find that women got this kind of freedom because of industrial revolutions or wars. And, it is not too long ago with American women got the right to vote.

Now, after glimping over women's rights in Islam, I would like to say a little bit about the Islamic laws in general: Islamic laws are always in favor of innocent individuals. For some people it may seem inhuman to cut the hands of a thief, or behead a murderer. But I am sure, for the victims of these crimes, this is the only right thing to do. Before we make up our minds about Islamic laws as being cruel or just, we must ask ourselves these questions: how many innocent people get killed everyday, how many girls become rape victims every hour and how many people lose their hard earned income every minute? We all know the reason for this rising crime rate is theuttoning for using your scriptures against you. Given the attitude of the right-wing hypocrites, I'll just be sure there are lots of companies.

Craig Metcalf is a psychology senior. He does not want anyone to pray for him.

Hypocritical hysterias thrive
Even bible verses point out that we should leave Clinton alone

As I was driving home the other day, I happened to pass a pickup coat which read "We still love you, America, and even looks at a Muslim. Islam is the fastest growing religion in the world, and if we comb through the different sects of Christianity then Islam is the second largest religion in the world. Despite all the misconceptions of ill-treatment of Muslim women, they are the largest gender group of Europeans and Americans in the world today. The reason for that is very simple, Islam teaches equality and justice for the women and men and women should enjoy equal rights as men. But Islam opposes the "sameness" of the two genders. This issue is very simple and easy to understand.

As a recovering Baptist, I couldn't seem to remember the exact Bible verse but I thought about the driver of the truck to pass judgment on our President. So it was when I arrived home that I removed my Bible from its place on the shelf and opened it up. After a brief dust-induced coughing I began to search.

The first verse I came across was Matthew 5:28, where Jesus says, "...anyone who even looks at a woman with lust in his eye has committed adultery in his heart." It is as easy to say looks at a girl and thinks "Wow, she's hot!" he's just as guilty as Clinton. So guys, how many times did you commit adultery yesterday? In the last five minutes! Going by this standard, no male has ever committed adultery: It's interesting to note that nothing is said about women looking at men, so all you ladies out there are apparently free to gawk away.

The next verse I found must be pretty important, because it's repeated three times. It is Luke 6:27. "Stop judging others, and you will not be judged. Stop criticizing others, or it will all come back on you. If you forgive others, you will be forgiven." Seems pretty straightforward to me.

The final passage of interest was John 8:1-11. This is the story of the woman the village leaders were going to stone to death for committing adultery. Jesus says, "...let those who have never sinned cast the first stone." I'm also pretty sure that the Bible says about women looking at men, so even not committed adultery. It's easy to say looks at a girl and thinks "Wow, she's hot!" he's just as guilty as Clinton. So guys, how many times did you commit adultery yesterday? In the last five minutes! Going by this standard, no male has ever committed adultery: It's interesting to note that nothing is said about women looking at men, so all you ladies out there are apparently free to gawk away.

The next verse I found must be pretty important, because it's repeated three times. It is Luke 6:27. "Stop judging others, and you will not be judged. Stop criticizing others, or it will all come back on you. If you forgive others, you will be forgiven." Seems pretty straightforward to me.

The final passage of interest was John 8:1-11. This is the story of the woman the village leaders were going to stone to death for committing adultery. Jesus says, "...let those who have never sinned cast the first stone." I'm also pretty sure that the Bible says about women looking at men, so even not committed adultery. It's easy to say looks at a girl and thinks "Wow, she's hot!" he's just as guilty as Clinton. So guys, how many times did you commit adultery yesterday? In the last five minutes! Going by this standard, no male has ever committed adultery: It's interesting to note that nothing is said about women looking at men, so all you ladies out there are apparently free to gawk away.

The next verse I found must be pretty important, because it's repeated three times. It is Luke 6:27. "Stop judging others, and you will not be judged. Stop criticizing others, or it will all come back on you. If you forgive others, you will be forgiven." Seems pretty straightforward to me.

The final passage of interest was John 8:1-11. This is the story of the woman the village leaders were going to stone to death for committing adultery. Jesus says, "...let those who have never sinned cast the first stone." I'm also pretty sure that the Bible says about women looking at men, so even not committed adultery. It's easy to say looks at a girl and thinks "Wow, she's hot!" he's just as guilty as Clinton. So guys, how many times did you commit adultery yesterday? In the last five minutes! Going by this standard, no male has ever committed adultery: It's interesting to note that nothing is said about women looking at men, so all you ladies out there are apparently free to gawk away.

The next verse I found must be pretty important, because it's repeated three times. It is Luke 6:27. "Stop judging others, and you will not be judged. Stop criticizing others, or it will all come back on you. If you forgive others, you will be forgiven." Seems pretty straightforward to me.

The final passage of interest was John 8:1-11. This is the story of the woman the village leaders were going to stone to death for committing adultery. Jesus says, "...let those who have never sinned cast the first stone." I'm also pretty sure that the Bible says about women looking at men, so even not committed adultery. It's easy to say looks at a girl and thinks "Wow, she's hot!" he's just as guilty as Clinton. So guys, how many times did you commit adultery yesterday? In the last five minutes! Going by this standard, no male has ever committed adultery: It's interesting to note that nothing is said about women looking at men, so all you ladies out there are apparently free to gawk away.

The next verse I found must be pretty important, because it's repeated three times. It is Luke 6:27. "Stop judging others, and you will not be judged. Stop criticizing others, or it will all come back on you. If you forgive others, you will be forgiven." Seems pretty straightforward to me.

The final passage of interest was John 8:1-11. This is the story of the woman the village leaders were going to stone to death for committing adultery. Jesus says, "...let those who have never sinned cast the first stone." I'm also pretty sure that the Bible says about women looking at men, so even not committed adultery. It's easy to say looks at a girl and thinks "Wow, she's hot!" he's just as guilty as Clinton. So guys, how many times did you commit adultery yesterday? In the last five minutes! Going by this standard, no male has ever committed adultery: It's interesting to note that nothing is said about women looking at men, so all you ladies out there are apparently free to gawk away.

The next verse I found must be pretty important, because it's repeated three times. It is Luke 6:27. "Stop judging others, and you will not be judged. Stop criticizing others, or it will all come back on you. If you forgive others, you will be forgiven." Seems pretty straightforward to me.

The final passage of interest was John 8:1-11. This is the story of the woman the village leaders were going to stone to death for committing adultery. Jesus says, "...let those who have never sinned cast the first stone." I'm also pretty sure that the Bible says about women looking at men, so even not committed adultery. It's easy to say looks at a girl and thinks "Wow, she's hot!" he's just as guilty as Clinton. So guys, how many times did you commit adultery yesterday? In the last five minutes! Going by this standard, no male has ever committed adultery: It's interesting to note that nothing is said about women looking at men, so all you ladies out there are apparently free to gawk away.

The next verse I found must be pretty important, because it's repeated three times. It is Luke 6:27. "Stop judging others, and you will not be judged. Stop criticizing others, or it will all come back on you. If you forgive others, you will be forgiven." Seems pretty straightforward to me.

The final passage of interest was John 8:1-11. This is the story of the woman the village leaders were going to stone to death for committing adultery. Jesus says, "...let those who have never sinned cast the first stone." I'm also pretty sure that the Bible says about women looking at men, so even not committed adultery. It's easy to say looks at a girl and thinks "Wow, she's hot!" he's just as guilty as Clinton. So guys, how many times did you commit adultery yesterday? In the last five minutes! Going by this standard, no male has ever committed adultery: It's interesting to note that nothing is said about women looking at men, so all you ladies out there are apparently free to gawk away.

The next verse I found must be pretty important, because it's repeated three times. It is Luke 6:27. "Stop judging others, and you will not be judged. Stop criticizing others, or it will all come back on you. If you forgive others, you will be forgiven." Seems pretty straightforward to me.
CAL POLY STUDENTS

ARE THE BRIGHTEST AND THE MOST SAVVY IN THE COUNTRY

ARE YOU REALLY?

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Course</th>
<th>El Corral Price Used</th>
<th>El Corral Price Buyback</th>
<th>Competition Cost</th>
<th>Competition Buyback</th>
<th>Net Cost to You</th>
<th>Net Cost to You</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>General Chemistry</td>
<td>$70.75</td>
<td>$43.75</td>
<td>$61.25</td>
<td>$30.00</td>
<td>$31.25</td>
<td>$31.25</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>20th Century World</td>
<td>$39.25</td>
<td>$24.75</td>
<td>$34.95</td>
<td>$15.00</td>
<td>$19.95</td>
<td>$19.95</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Management Information Systems</td>
<td>$51.75</td>
<td>$37.00</td>
<td>$49.00</td>
<td>$33.00</td>
<td>$16.00</td>
<td>$16.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Fundamental Financial Accounting</td>
<td>$66.50</td>
<td>$44.25</td>
<td>$59.00</td>
<td>$32.00</td>
<td>$27.00</td>
<td>$27.00</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Engineering Mechanics Statics</td>
<td>$63.41</td>
<td>$31.70</td>
<td>$61.95</td>
<td>$32.00</td>
<td>$29.95</td>
<td>$29.95</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Managerial Accounting</td>
<td>$66.50</td>
<td>$44.25</td>
<td>$54.50</td>
<td>$20.00</td>
<td>$34.50</td>
<td>$34.50</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Biology: Concepts &amp; Applications</td>
<td>$55.50</td>
<td>$36.75</td>
<td>$45.75</td>
<td>$20.00</td>
<td>$25.75</td>
<td>$25.75</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Calculus</td>
<td>$75.52</td>
<td>$50.75</td>
<td>$71.95</td>
<td>$40.00</td>
<td>$31.95</td>
<td>$31.95</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>Pre-Calculus</td>
<td>$58.50</td>
<td>$37.25</td>
<td>$56.95</td>
<td>$20.00</td>
<td>$36.95</td>
<td>$36.95</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Total Cost: $198.98
Total Savings: 21%

*These 9 titles are from the largest classes at Cal Poly. Both price and buyback surveys conducted on 9/23/98

WHERE WILL YOU PURCHASE YOUR COURSEWARE NEXT QUARTER?

El Corral Bookstore
Most youths have a designated driver

CHICAGO (AP) — A survey of teen drinking found good news and bad news — more than half of the youths ages 16 to 19 said they drank during the preceding month, but nearly two-thirds said they always appointed a designated driver.

Still, even the good news in Tuesday’s study had a twist: 80 percent think it’s fine to drink as long as there is a designated driver, and nearly half think that designated drivers can still drink.

“We’re not impressed on kids the fact that getting drunk can be dangerous,” said Dr. Richard Heyman, a Cincinnati pediatrician and chairman of the substance abuse committee at the American Academy of Pediatrics, which released the study.

The results mirror a much larger government-sponsored study of 51,002 high school students released in December.

The telephone survey, conducted between Aug. 24 and Sept. 3, has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

Both surveys found that teens generally drink to get drunk, with 16 percent reporting they consume more than six drinks each outing. Forty-five percent said they consume between two and five drinks at a sitting.

“They don’t stand around like an adult with their beer in their hand at a cocktail party. They take a six-pack,” Heyman said. “They are mind-altering drinkers.”

Other experts agreed.

“Teens have the unfortunate misconception that if they designate a driver, they can still drink as much as they like,” said Dr. Joseph R. Zanga, the academy’s president.

Only 2 percent think designated drivers can drink five or more drinks. Nineteen percent think one drink is acceptable for a designated driver, and 17 percent think two drinks is OK.

“We’re not impressing on kids the fact that getting drunk can be dangerous,” said Dr. Richard Heyman, a Cincinnati pediatrician and chairman of the substance abuse committee at the American Academy of Pediatrics, which released the study.

The results mirror a much larger government-sponsored study of 51,002 high school students released in December.

The telephone survey, conducted between Aug. 24 and Sept. 3, has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

Both surveys found that teens generally drink to get drunk, with 16 percent reporting they consume more than six drinks each outing. Forty-five percent said they consume between two and five drinks at a sitting.

“They don’t stand around like an adult with their beer in their hand at a cocktail party. They take a six-pack,” Heyman said. “They are mind-altering drinkers.”

Other experts agreed.

“Teens have the unfortunate misconception that if they designate a driver, they can still drink as much as they like,” said Dr. Joseph R. Zanga, the academy’s president.

Only 2 percent think designated drivers can drink five or more drinks. Nineteen percent think one drink is acceptable for a designated driver, and 17 percent think two drinks is OK.

“We’re not impressing on kids the fact that getting drunk can be dangerous,” said Dr. Richard Heyman, a Cincinnati pediatrician and chairman of the substance abuse committee at the American Academy of Pediatrics, which released the study.

The results mirror a much larger government-sponsored study of 51,002 high school students released in December.

The telephone survey, conducted between Aug. 24 and Sept. 3, has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

Both surveys found that teens generally drink to get drunk, with 16 percent reporting they consume more than six drinks each outing. Forty-five percent said they consume between two and five drinks at a sitting.

“They don’t stand around like an adult with their beer in their hand at a cocktail party. They take a six-pack,” Heyman said. “They are mind-altering drinkers.”

Other experts agreed.

“Teens have the unfortunate misconception that if they designate a driver, they can still drink as much as they like,” said Dr. Joseph R. Zanga, the academy’s president.

Only 2 percent think designated drivers can drink five or more drinks. Nineteen percent think one drink is acceptable for a designated driver, and 17 percent think two drinks is OK.

“We’re not impressing on kids the fact that getting drunk can be dangerous,” said Dr. Richard Heyman, a Cincinnati pediatrician and chairman of the substance abuse committee at the American Academy of Pediatrics, which released the study.

The results mirror a much larger government-sponsored study of 51,002 high school students released in December.

The telephone survey, conducted between Aug. 24 and Sept. 3, has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

Both surveys found that teens generally drink to get drunk, with 16 percent reporting they consume more than six drinks each outing. Forty-five percent said they consume between two and five drinks at a sitting.

“They don’t stand around like an adult with their beer in their hand at a cocktail party. They take a six-pack,” Heyman said. “They are mind-altering drinkers.”

Other experts agreed.

“Teens have the unfortunate misconception that if they designate a driver, they can still drink as much as they like,” said Dr. Joseph R. Zanga, the academy’s president.

Only 2 percent think designated drivers can drink five or more drinks. Nineteen percent think one drink is acceptable for a designated driver, and 17 percent think two drinks is OK.

“We’re not impressing on kids the fact that getting drunk can be dangerous,” said Dr. Richard Heyman, a Cincinnati pediatrician and chairman of the substance abuse committee at the American Academy of Pediatrics, which released the study.

The results mirror a much larger government-sponsored study of 51,002 high school students released in December.

The telephone survey, conducted between Aug. 24 and Sept. 3, has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

Both surveys found that teens generally drink to get drunk, with 16 percent reporting they consume more than six drinks each outing. Forty-five percent said they consume between two and five drinks at a sitting.

“They don’t stand around like an adult with their beer in their hand at a cocktail party. They take a six-pack,” Heyman said. “They are mind-altering drinkers.”

Other experts agreed.

“Teens have the unfortunate misconception that if they designate a driver, they can still drink as much as they like,” said Dr. Joseph R. Zanga, the academy’s president.

Only 2 percent think designated drivers can drink five or more drinks. Nineteen percent think one drink is acceptable for a designated driver, and 17 percent think two drinks is OK.

“We’re not impressing on kids the fact that getting drunk can be dangerous,” said Dr. Richard Heyman, a Cincinnati pediatrician and chairman of the substance abuse committee at the American Academy of Pediatrics, which released the study.

The results mirror a much larger government-sponsored study of 51,002 high school students released in December.

The telephone survey, conducted between Aug. 24 and Sept. 3, has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

Both surveys found that teens generally drink to get drunk, with 16 percent reporting they consume more than six drinks each outing. Forty-five percent said they consume between two and five drinks at a sitting.

“They don’t stand around like an adult with their beer in their hand at a cocktail party. They take a six-pack,” Heyman said. “They are mind-altering drinkers.”

Other experts agreed.

“Teens have the unfortunate misconception that if they designate a driver, they can still drink as much as they like,” said Dr. Joseph R. Zanga, the academy’s president.

Only 2 percent think designated drivers can drink five or more drinks. Nineteen percent think one drink is acceptable for a designated driver, and 17 percent think two drinks is OK.

“We’re not impressing on kids the fact that getting drunk can be dangerous,” said Dr. Richard Heyman, a Cincinnati pediatrician and chairman of the substance abuse committee at the American Academy of Pediatrics, which released the study.

The results mirror a much larger government-sponsored study of 51,002 high school students released in December.

The telephone survey, conducted between Aug. 24 and Sept. 3, has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

Both surveys found that teens generally drink to get drunk, with 16 percent reporting they consume more than six drinks each outing. Forty-five percent said they consume between two and five drinks at a sitting.

“They don’t stand around like an adult with their beer in their hand at a cocktail party. They take a six-pack,” Heyman said. “They are mind-altering drinkers.”

Other experts agreed.

“Teens have the unfortunate misconception that if they designate a driver, they can still drink as much as they like,” said Dr. Joseph R. Zanga, the academy’s president.

Only 2 percent think designated drivers can drink five or more drinks. Nineteen percent think one drink is acceptable for a designated driver, and 17 percent think two drinks is OK.

“We’re not impressing on kids the fact that getting drunk can be dangerous,” said Dr. Richard Heyman, a Cincinnati pediatrician and chairman of the substance abuse committee at the American Academy of Pediatrics, which released the study.

The results mirror a much larger government-sponsored study of 51,002 high school students released in December.

The telephone survey, conducted between Aug. 24 and Sept. 3, has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

Both surveys found that teens generally drink to get drunk, with 16 percent reporting they consume more than six drinks each outing. Forty-five percent said they consume between two and five drinks at a sitting.

“They don’t stand around like an adult with their beer in their hand at a cocktail party. They take a six-pack,” Heyman said. “They are mind-altering drinkers.”

Other experts agreed.

“Teens have the unfortunate misconception that if they designate a driver, they can still drink as much as they like,” said Dr. Joseph R. Zanga, the academy’s president.

Only 2 percent think designated drivers can drink five or more drinks. Nineteen percent think one drink is acceptable for a designated driver, and 17 percent think two drinks is OK.

“We’re not impressing on kids the fact that getting drunk can be dangerous,” said Dr. Richard Heyman, a Cincinnati pediatrician and chairman of the substance abuse committee at the American Academy of Pediatrics, which released the study.

The results mirror a much larger government-sponsored study of 51,002 high school students released in December.

The telephone survey, conducted between Aug. 24 and Sept. 3, has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

Both surveys found that teens generally drink to get drunk, with 16 percent reporting they consume more than six drinks each outing. Forty-five percent said they consume between two and five drinks at a sitting.

“They don’t stand around like an adult with their beer in their hand at a cocktail party. They take a six-pack,” Heyman said. “They are mind-altering drinkers.”

Other experts agreed.

“Teens have the unfortunate misconception that if they designate a driver, they can still drink as much as they like,” said Dr. Joseph R. Zanga, the academy’s president.

Only 2 percent think designated drivers can drink five or more drinks. Nineteen percent think one drink is acceptable for a designated driver, and 17 percent think two drinks is OK.

“We’re not impressing on kids the fact that getting drunk can be dangerous,” said Dr. Richard Heyman, a Cincinnati pediatrician and chairman of the substance abuse committee at the American Academy of Pediatrics, which released the study.

The results mirror a much larger government-sponsored study of 51,002 high school students released in December.

The telephone survey, conducted between Aug. 24 and Sept. 3, has a margin of error of plus or minus 4 percentage points.

Both surveys found that teens generally drink to get drunk, with 16 percent reporting they consume more than six drinks each outing. Forty-five percent said they consume between two and five drinks at a sitting.

“They don’t stand around like an adult with their beer in their hand at a cocktail party. They take a six-pack,” Heyman said. “They are mind-altering drinkers.”

Other experts agreed.

“Teens have the unfortunate misconception that if they designate a driver, they can still drink as much as they like,” said Dr. Joseph R. Zanga, the academy’s president.

Only 2 percent think designated drivers can drink five or more drinks. Nineteen percent think one drink is acceptable for a designated driver, and 17 percent think two drinks is OK.
Hundreds of people suffer from mysterious ailment, story claims

NASVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Hundreds of people living near or working at federal nuclear weapons plants and research facilities in 11 states are suffering an area of unexplained illnesses. The Tennessean reported Tuesday.

The 410 people interviewed by the newspaper have ailments including tremors, memory loss, fatigue, and a variety of breathing, muscular and reproductive problems. Their doctors cannot explain why they are sick.

No direct link has been established between the illnesses and the Department of Energy sites. The 410 people are not a scientific sampling and represent only a tiny percentage of the overall number of people who live near or work at the plants.

But doctors, scientists and lawmakers say it's large enough to warrant a comprehensive study to try to find the cause.

"Four-hundred people is a lot of people," said George W. Lucas, director of the environmental toxicology program at the National Institute of Environmental Health Sciences. "It's not just two or three. It is something widespread. At least the whole state should be set in motion in which a team of physicians can go in and look at things more systemically."

DOE was not aware that people living and working at the sites had similar, unexplained health problems, said Peter N. Brush, the agency's assistant secretary for environment, safety and health.

The agency has sponsored public meetings about health concerns at several sites in the past few years, but Brush acknowledged the department has not taken a comprehensive look and has no plan to do so now.

He said it is up to the ill people to make their plight known.

"If we're not aware of it, we can't work on it," Brush said.

"They need to take care of themselves medically and get (toxic release) information on the sites to take to their own doctors. Having done that, they need to bring it to our attention."

Scientists have been concerned for decades about radiation from nuclear production and its link to cancer. But to one has ever looked into non-cancerous illnesses.

During a 2 1/2-month investigation, the Tennessean found ill residents and workers at 13 DOE sites in Tennessee, Colorado, South Carolina, New Mexico, Idaho, New York, California, Ohio, Kentucky, Texas and Washington.

The six largest sites — Oak Ridge Nuclear Reservation in Oak Ridge, Tenn.; Hanford Nuclear Reservation, Richland, Wash.; Rocky Flats Plant outside Denver, Colo.; Savannah River Site, Aiken, S.C.; Idaho National Engineering and Environmental Laboratory, Idaho Falls, Idaho; and Los Alamos National Laboratory, Los Alamos, N.M. — employ about 61,000 people.

Impotence cream may become option to Viagra

WASHINGTON (AP) — Researchers are turning anti-impotence pills and injected medicines into rub-on creams and gels — part of an effort to make many drugs safer and easier to use by literally dissolving them through the skin.

Early testing shows the impotence cream Topiglan is a leading candidate in this effort to give patients targeted relief for many ailments, with fewer side effects.

"It's no-brainer," said Dr. Irwin Goldstein of Boston University, a lead investigator in studies of the impotence cream who expects many of today's medicines eventually to be applied to the skin. "It has a lot of use in lots of drugs."

Topiglan needs more studies, Goldstein contends, and is not for sale.

"It is really the turning point alternative for men who can't take the popular impotence pill Viagra — which sometimes causes dangerous side effects in men with heart disease, Goldstein said. Or, severely impotent men could use both treatments together.

Topiglan is made from a long-acting impotence drug called alprostadil that works very well, but has a problem: It must either be injected into the penis or inserted into a suppository, both painful.

A company based in Lexington, Mass., MacroChem Corp., invented a "skin enhancer," a chemical that lets potent drugs seep through the skin by opening a temporary window in skin's normally impenetrable barrier. That means patients can get much higher drug doses delivered straight to the site of disease.

By adding its skin enhancer, MacroChem created a cream that patients can rub onto the end of the penis.

MacroChem is now selling to 10 major drug manufacturers bidding for rights to sell Topiglan, said chief executive Avram Kaluff.

Monica Lewinsky interview with Oprah falls through

NEW YORK (AP) — Daytime television queen Oprah Winfrey said Tuesday that negotiations to bring Monica Lewinsky on her syndicated show fell apart over money.

"I was told that I did have it and then the conversation moved in a direction that I did not want to go," Winfrey said. "I do not pay for interviews, no matter what the payment is called."

Lewinsky's spokeswoman, Judy Smith, said she wouldn't comment on the aborted interview talks.

In a competitive television world, landing the first in-depth talk with the woman President Clinton had an affair with would be the year's biggest coup. After talking with Lewinsky's representatives, Winfrey said she was led to believe she was the only one.

An hour later, they called back and started talking about who owned the rights to sell a tape of the interview in international markets, Winfrey said in an interview with TV Guide.

"My feeling was giving up the rights was just someone else paying the check," she told the magazine.

"That was really the turning point."

Winfrey made the announcement of the non-interview on her show Tuesday.

"I was told that I did have it and then the conversation moved in a direction that I did not want to go. I do not pay for interviews, no matter what the payment is called."

— Oprah Winfrey talk-show host

Monica Lewinsky's storylines were outlined in Kenneth Starr's report to Congress in Clinton's videotaped grand jury testimony, but nothing did change her mind about the worthiness of the interview, Winfrey said.

She said she was interested in talking to Lewinsky because she could relate to her predicament.

"I think Monica's gotten a really bad rap," she said. "I've been 21 and I know what it's like to be 21. And an intern. In a situation where the president of the company acts like he likes you. So already my first question to Monica would be, 'How did this happen?"
S.F. oil spill threatens wildlife habitat

Pollution investigators trying to determine source of leak

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Cleanup forces rushed Tuesday to contain an oil spill that spread a 10-mile swatch just past one of the largest breeding sites for marine life on San Francisco Bay.

The Coast Guard dispatched four skimmer vessels to the site 10 miles off San Francisco. The Farallon Islands, a collection of barren rocks that are home to thousands of birds and animals, are located about 17 miles further west.

"This is a large concern to everybody," said Ed Hueber, manager of the Gulf of the Farallons Marine Sanctuary. The breeding season has just ended and birds and birds are "rafting," or forming large flocks that stay together so that birds can teach newborns how to feed themselves, he said.

"They are just sitting on the water," said Hueber, who feared the spill might go to the birds or the birds to the spill.

The Coast Guard coordinated Tuesday’s cleanup operations and searched for the source of the 2-mile-wide slick. Skimmers were sucking up "pockets of oil" but couldn’t tell how much was in the water, Coast Guard Lt. Richard Teubner said.

"We’re going to get it at everything we’ve got," said Teubner.

No one has taken responsibility for the spill, which was first reported by a vessel that moved through the area Monday.

Low visibility hampered helicopter surveys trying to get an overview of the situation.

State and federal pollution investigators were tracking shipping activity, and samples from the spill are being sent to federal oil Pollution Cleanup Fund laboratories for comparison with samples taken from ships in the area, Teubner said.

The Clean Bay II and other skimmer vessels will use a containment boom that works like a conveyor belt to vacuum the oil, but weather will dictate where it goes.

"It’s not on the shoreline right now," Teubner said. "It’s close enough that if there are any changes in the weather it could cause impacts on the wildlife and the shoreline."

Two years ago, the tanker Cape Mohican spilled at least 40,000 gallons of oil into San Francisco Bay during routine maintenance. Initially, that spill was estimated at just 8,400 gallons.

The Mohican spill stretched from the waterfront dock to the mouth of the San Francisco Bay, from Point Reyes to just north of Half Moon Bay. At about 120 miles of oil, California shoreline was affected.

Some 500 birds died and more than 4,000 were tinged with the heavy oil from the spill.

Many groves, gulls, loons, California brown pelicans and herons spawning beds were affected.

About 80,000 common murres, 15,000 Brants, common eiders, 40,000 Cassin’s auklets and 25,000 western gulls nest on the Farallons, as do half of the world’s storm-petrels — roughly 4,000 birds.

About 10 other seabird species breed on the islands, including tufted puffins, which are at the far southern margin of their range there.

Several hundred elephant seals, California sea lions and Stellar’s sea lions also breed there.

Authorities investigate rash of border shootings

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Four days, four shootings.

Not since 1994 have U.S. Border Patrol agents dealt with force against immigrants illegally crossing the border from Mexico into San Diego County.

Two migrants allegedly threatened agents with cars.

Agents contend self-defense against frustrated migrants. Mexican authorities allege excessive force by aggressive agents.

"One said that an agent wants to do is draw a weapon and use it. An agent would rather make apprehension or chase someone back across border," said Bill Strasserger, spokesman for the Western Division of the federal Immigration and Naturalization Service, which oversees the U.S. Border Patrol.

"It’s very unusual to have that many shootings, but it’s also unusual that we’ve had agents attacked that many times," he said.

In two of the cases, illegal immigrants allegedly threatened agents with fist-sized rocks, which litter the rugged terrain where 10-foot-high fences and concrete walls divide the border. In the other confrontations, migrants reportedly tried to run over agents with cars.

"This does reinforce the whole frustration of those attempting to come across due to the success of Operation Gatekeeper and shutting down traditional routes," Strasserger said.

Operation Gatekeeper is a federal program initiated along the San Diego County border four years ago.

The idea was to restrict the flow of illegal immigration by increasing border patrol and pushing migration to more dangerous routes to the east.

Mexican Consulate Luis Herrera, whose office is in San Diego, doesn’t blame Operation Gatekeeper, but he questions the Border Patrol’s policies on when to draw weapons.

"After three years of not having any shootings, we have had four in four days," he said. "We are concerned over the apparent use of excessive force. The situation must be reviewed carefully so hopefully we can avoid more shootings."

Madonna Road Shell
Free Car Wash
With Minimum 8 Gal. Fill-Up
Propane, Automotive Repair, Mini-Mart
204 Madonna Rd, San Luis Obispo, 543-1991

Slavery joke prompts UPN to delay sitcom

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Responding to criticism of a new UPN sitcom set during the Civil War, the television network said Tuesday it was delaying broadcast of an episode that includes a joke about slavery.

The Secret Diary of Desmond Pfeffer" will debut at 9 p.m. Monday with the second episode in place of the pilot.

"We have a duty as responsible broadcasters to take (critics’) concerns under advisement," UPN spokeswoman Patty McTeague said Tuesday.

Black activists condemned the comedy earlier this month. Pastor Ron Wright of the Emmanuel AME Church said it "desensitizes the pain and devastating suffering of slavery."

UPN President Dean Valentine responded then that the series would go on as scheduled, saying: "We have nothing to feel bad about. They can march up and down the street all they want to."

Olga McBride stars in the role of a black English nobleman who winds up as a servant and adviser to Abraham Lincoln. In the first episode, the title character is relaxing in the country when he is told: "The slaves haven’t been emancipated yet, Pfeffer. Get your feet off that table."

The change announced Tuesday means that viewers will see an episode in which President Lincoln engages in "telegraph sex" with a mystery woman. The pilot is under review by the network, Ms. McTeague said.

"UPN does not believe the entire era is "off limits" for comedy, she said. "We’re going forward with the series and would hope people would view it and judge for themselves."

September 30-October 1

Slavery joke prompts UPN to delay sitcom

Frances Parker captures giant squid

BODEGA BAY (AP) — At 25 pounds and 4 feet long, it’s one of the largest Dus调皮 eyes ever captured alive.

The marine-speak for big squid, which researchers hope will live in captivity long enough to study its habits, it appeared in good condition when the artifical lure he saw and would hope people would view it and judge for themselves."

"After three years of not having any shootings, we have had four in four days," he said. "We are concerned over the apparent use of excessive force. The situation must be reviewed carefully so hopefully we can avoid more shootings."

September 30-October 1

Electronics Festival
Save up to 20% on a selection of:

• Headphones
• Walkmans
• CD Holders
• Tape Holders
• Tape Recorders
• Calculators

EL CORRAL BOOKSTORE

2 big days of value
Drawings for free merchandise
in front of the Bookstore
Get 100 FREE minutes.
Then call anywhere in the U.S. for only 10¢ a minute.

Live off campus? Sign up for an AT&T One Rate® plan and your first 100 minutes are FREE.* Whatever your calling needs are, AT&T has a One Rate plan that's right for you.

AT&T One Rate® Plus: 10¢ a minute — one low rate all the time on state-to-state calls you dial from home. Whoever. Wherever. Whenever you call in the U.S. And just a $4.95 monthly fee.

AT&T One Rate® Off Peak: 10¢ a minute on your state-to-state, direct dialed calls from home from 7pm - 7am and all weekend long; 25¢ a minute all other times. And there's no monthly fee.*

Sign up with AT&T and get 100 minutes FREE.

Call 1 800 654-0471
and mention offer code 59917
or visit www.att.com/college/np.html

*Terms and conditions apply. Free minutes available while free offer is active and subject to change. First 100 minutes on AT&T One Rate plan. After free offer period, AT&T One Rate plan. $4.95/month fee, subject to change. Other rates apply to long distance calls. See AT&T.com/college for details. For AT&T One Rate plan. $4.95/month fee, subject to change. Other rates apply to long distance calls. See AT&T.com/college for details.
CLEVELAND (AP) — Mo Vaughn and the Red Sox stopped some painful postseason streaks.

Vaughn homered twice and tied a record with seven RBIs as Boston ended a 13-game postseason skid beating Cleveland 11-3 Tuesday in their AL playoff opener.

Nomar Garciaparra hit a three-run shot and Pedro Martinez pitched seven innings as Boston ended a slide that began on Oct. 25, 1996, when MoOKIE Wilson's grounder to first rolled through Buckner's legs at Shea Stadium.

That forced a World Series Game 7 which the Red Sox lost, and Boston (which hasn't won the World Series since 1918) was swept by Oakland in 1990 and 90, and then Cleveland in 1995.

This year's Red Sox insist that the past is just that, and they're not cursed by Babe Ruth's ghost or any other demons. And with Boston's trio of stars doing most of the damage, the Indians and 45,815 at Jacobs Field may believe them.

Vañgow homered twice and tied a career-high for RBIs and tie Edgar Martinez's record for RBIs in a postseason game.

Kenny Lofton hit a two-run homer and Jim Thome had a solo shot for the Indians, who with Wright taking the mound w're hoping to re-capture some of the magic that carried them to Game 7 of the World Series last year.

Wright, however, couldn't get out of the fifth inning. The 22-year-old right-hander, who went 3-0 in the postseason game, will start for the Indians against knucklehailer Tim Wakefield.

Lost in Tuesday's Los Angeles Times: "I remember intercepting a pass in my freshman year in high school and returning it for a touchdown and then someone hitting me in the knee late. That was it for my football career."

"But who wouldn't want to own a football team and be working with someone like Michael Ovitz? Me, wanting to be an entrepreneur, I look at Ovitz and he's already had that dream career."

Haynes added another element to his college career by running track for the last two years. "Track helped a lot for the broken leg," said Haynes. "It got me stronger."

According to head track coach Jerry Crawford, Haynes is a talented all-round athlete. "He has helped us as a long-jumper and occasionally 100-meter hurdle," said Crawford.

"As for what comes after graduation..."
Haynes runs to lead Mustangs

By Trisha Thorn
Mustang Daily

Martin Haynes is a man on the run. Ever since he first got involved in sports, he has been running on the soccer field or on the track.

At age seven, Haynes started playing soccer because it was a sport his dad also played.

When Cal Poly Soccer coach Wolfgang Gartner was looking to recruit another player, he liked what he saw in Haynes.

Haynes' skill earned him playing time in nine games in his first year at Cal Poly. He played well until he was forced to the sidelines after suffering a broken leg during a game against Santa Clara University.

Haynes was going up against Santa Clara's goalie when the goalie jumped up and collided with Haynes as he jumped in the air, breaking his ribs and fibula.

The injury required no pins and was able to heal on its own. However, it took a long time to heal and Haynes red-shirted his sophomore year to give his leg the time it needed.

Haynes made a comeback his junior year. He started for the soccer team scoring six goals in the 1997 season.

Senior FJ. Woolridge has played with Haynes for the last three years and said that he has gained 100 percent since coming back from his injury.

According to Woolridge, Haynes got his speed back last year. He has matured more as a player, and is more of a threat now.

Head soccer coach Wolfgang Gartner agrees that Haynes is a speedy player.

"Martin Haynes moves smooth and easy," said Gartner. "He is as fast as anyone around."

Not only is Haynes fast on the field, he is a leader in offensive moves as well.

Haynes leads this year's team with 12 career goals. After racking up four goals so far, he also leads the team in goals scored this season.

Haynes was recognized for his performance when he was named a 1998 Mountain Pacific Sports Federation player of the week for Sept. 6.

According to Haynes, this year's team looks pretty good.

"A lot of people have been playing together for awhile," said Haynes. "There's a good team flow personality-wise."

Haynes added that, "all the players have been relatively perfect teammates and friends."

Woolridge agreed, saying that Haynes is one of the favorite guys on the team.

"He's always in a good mood," said Woolridge. "A guy you like to be around."

Haynes also had praise for Gartner, saying he has been a great coach and give the team a lot of opportunities.

see HAYNES, page 11

Brown sets record, beats Astros, 2-1

HOUSTON (AP) — The Big Unit finally met his match in the Astrodome.

In a brilliant performance that would be expected more from 6-foot-7 Randy Johnson, San Diego's Kevin Brown struck out 16 and allowed just two hits in eight innings leading the Padres to a 2-1 victory over the Houston Astros in the opener of the best-of-5 division series.

Brown's strikeouts were the most ever in division series play and just one short of the Bob Gibson's postseason record, 17, in the 1968 World Series.

Brown's previous high was 11, which he did three times in his final 11 regular-season starts.

Johnson had been untouchable at home going 5-0 (the first four wins were shutouts) since the Astros acquired him from the Seattle Mariners on July 31.

Trevor Hoffman, who tied the NL record this season with 53 saves, allowed the unearned run on two hits in the ninth.

Bill Sperr led off with a double, and two outs later, Moez Alou hit an infield single that third baseman Ken Caminiti stopped, but threw well wide of first to allow the run to score.

San Diego's offense had struggled all September, but had nine hits in eight innings off the powerful left-hander to give Brown his first victory in five starts.

above: Martin Haynes battles with a San Diego State defender for the ball. Haynes scored his team high fourth goal of the year against the Aztecs.

left: Haynes looks to get the ball and lead the Mustangs upfield.

Dawn Kalmar/Mustang Daily

Dawn Kalmar/Mustang Daily

Dawn Kalmar/Mustang Daily