LOS ANGELES (AP) — Gray Davis was elected California governor Tuesday, driving Republicans from the office they have held since Davis’ former boss, Democratic Gov. Jerry Brown, left nearly 16 years ago.

Davis, considered the long-shot Democrat earlier this year, beamed during a victory speech in downtown Los Angeles and told ecstatic supporters: “This has been a long journey.... I'm a long-time resident of this state, declaring; “The issues, but you are a worthy opponent. I would just like to wish him well and I know you wish this state well over the next four years, and hope that everybody understands that as partisan as politics may be, it is more important that we all work together to make this state all that it can be.”

An exit poll based on interviews with voters as they left precincts across the state said Davis picked up more than enough support to beat Lungren.

With 62 percent of precincts reporting, Davis had 2,665,820 votes, or 57 percent, to Lungren’s 1,816,015 votes, or 39 percent.

Gray Davis: Democrat.

Dan Lungren: Republican.

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Barbara Boxer defeated Republican challenger Matt Fong for the U.S. Senate Tuesday, capping a roller-coaster re-election campaign in which the liberal Democrat successfully painted Fong as too conservative for California’s mainstream electorate.

Boxer, an outspoken feminist and California’s ranking liberal, decisively outpolled Fong among moderates, according to exit polls. She was strongly supported by women, organized labor, African-Americans and Latinos. Boxer and Fong were splitting the Asian-American vote.

Capps holds edge over Bordonaro

Results from Santa Barbara were not expected to be available until early morning. "I want to recognize also that our first results are because of the votes in San Luis Obispo County," Capps said.

LOS CAPPs: Will finish term.

LOS CAPPs: Was holding a slight lead over Republican Tom Bordonaro in the race for U.S. representative. Capps had accumulated 52.2 percent of the votes, and Bordonaro had 48.1 percent.

"From the bottom of my heart, thank you very much each one of you who voted," Capps said. "Let’s not let the cynicism take hold. Let’s stay involved in politics.”

Due to computer difficulties in Santa Barbara County, ballots from San Luis Obispo were the only results that were released by press time.

Boxer, a former congresswoman, said the results were not surprising because she had carried the state in 1992.

The race for mayor wasn’t nearly as close, and Settle looks forward to setting election night settled and embarking on his next term.

"I anticipate wins for City Council candidates John Ewan and Jan Marx and look forward to getting them on the council," Settle said. "I’m looking forward to our first full-day work session.”

Ewan and Marx were leading the race to fill the two seats left empty by Dodie Williams and Bill Bodman.

With all of the precincts reporting, Ewan was leading with 55.7 percent of the votes and Marx was securely capturing the second seat with 44.3 percent.

虽然结果尚未最终确定，但Settle认为这是一个充满希望的开始。他预计在下一次选举中会取得胜利。

O'Connell keeps his Senate seat for 2000

O'Connell was at Cal Poly Tuesday to meet the students and hand out pamphlets in the University Union. "We don't take anything for granted," he said.

Kick in the ass

We've got it easy. Our parent's generation experienced real horror in World War I, and then there were the horrors of World War II. All we have to contend with is graduating from college and being kidnapped by an unexploded land mine or AM radio truck. We fall asleep without worry about the spread of Communism or the threat of nuclear war. Instead, we worry because we've got it easy we have no dreams or ambitions.

Because we all know tomorrow will be no different from today. We'll just become more efficient at slipping uninterruptedly into the next. We have reached the calm after the storm. Life has become atonatic, each day slipping away with no storm in sight. What this nation needs is something that will rally behind us, a national hero. President Kennedy, speaking before a joint session of Congress on behalf of "a great nation," said to Glenn, "We are very proud of you." President Clinton was on the launch pad last Thursday and made a couple of speeches before and after the fact. He could have landed off the launch pad in Florida. Funny thing though, nobody really cared. Thirty-seven years ago Glenn was treated to ticker tape parades and sailing through the streets of every great city in the nation.

Last week, John Glenn returned to space. The last time he went up, NASA tied his has to an intercontinental ballistic missile and said with fingers crossed, "Enjoy the ride." After orbiting the Earth three times, Glenn crashed into the Atlantic Ocean, and climbed out of his capsule a national hero. President Kennedy, speaking on behalf of "a great nation," said to Glenn, "We are very proud of you." President Clinton was on the launch last Thursday and made a couple of speeches before and after the fact. He could have landed off the launch pad in Florida. Funny thing though, nobody really cared. Thirty-seven years ago Glenn was treated to ticker tape parades and sailing through the streets of every great city in the nation.

There's something strange. We aren't interested in what the president has to say. There's something wrong when people don't get excited about our national mission to space. It's a big deal to leave our atmosphere, orbit the Earth, and conduct scientific experiments in the most hostile environment known to man.

But the American public were proud of them. They rallied behind the idea of beating the Russians to space. You wouldn't find the same level of excitement about the space program, or attempting to duplicate the credit its heroes deserved. Today, many people have called into question the necessity of space exploration and are challenging NASA's decision to send an aging hero back up. Communists all of them.

At age 77, Glenn has proven that he still has the "right stuff." Despite Chuck Yeager's criticism of his latest mission being simply a publicity stunt for NASA, I'd argue that the trip was exactly the kick in the pants we all needed. His return to space sends a message to all, young and old, that dreams can become reality.

Can't our generation create heroes of our own? Our generation needs to take hold of the torch and start making some heroes of our own.

We need a new breed of heroes. We need some new hot-shot to push the envelope, to shatter the limits of technology, to insinuate ourselves into doing something that has never been done before, to boldly go where no man has gone before.

Closing the gap

Editor:

Recent information distributed by the California Faculty Association (CFA) and printed in the press warrants clarification. The California State University is offering an across-the-board five percent salary increase for faculty this year; the same increase budgeted by the state for our faculty and accepted by every other union except one. By offering six percent next year, the CSU is addressing the salary lag between our faculty and those at comparable institutions. I have committed in writing to close that gap over the next three years.

The other main issue is merit pay. Compensation should be based at least in part on performance. All other comparable institutions in the U.S. have a merit pay system. Our completely new proposal incorporates even more faculty participation in awarding merit pay. We have a responsibility to the people of California to be accountable for the job we are doing, and merit pay is critical to that.

‘Staking’ out the rodeo is not the answer

Editor:

Because of the new complex, the rodeo arena and sheep unit, race track and a part of the horse unit are being uprooted to make way for new construction. The rodeo arena and the sheep unit were supposed to be rebuilt in new locations. The sheep unit is well on its way, but the rodeo arena plans keep getting delayed. Graduating and leveling was scheduled to begin Monday. However, sometime over the weekend an anonymous person pulled up the survey stakes. This will cost the rodeo unit another $1,000 or more including a delay of at least four days to re-survey the land. My question is: What was accomplished by pulling up the stakes?

It is very hard to communicate to someone who will fight you for every belief that you hold dear. It is even harder to communicate with your nemesis when he or she acts with the mentality of a fourth grader.

Stewart leaving Padres for assistant GM job

TORONTO (AP) — Dave Stewart, who as pitching coach helped lead San Diego to the World Series, is leaving the Padres to become assistant general manager with the Toronto Blue Jays.

The move, announced Tuesday, returns Stewart to a team where he pitched from 1993 and 1994. The franchise is now clouded by uncertainty, its budget a question mark and its lease with the Skydome in limbo.

Stewart, however, said he liked Toronto as a city and viewed the new job as ideal for learning the management skills that will help him move up the front-office ladder.

"None of those questions were even a topic for me coming here," Stewart said of the Jays' off-field problems. "My biggest concern was turning to learn the job of a general manager.

"I don't know what our budget's going to be, but it may not be in that area," Stewart said.

Toronto's ace, Roger Clemens, is under contract to Toronto for next season, but there is speculation he might seek to be traded to a contender if the Blue Jays fail to strengthen their roster during the offseason.

"As things stand now, Roger Clemens will be here," Stewart said. "But things change."

the same goals," Cowell said. "They all want to excel, they all want to be All-American, even though we're young. The quality of the team is so much better than we've had in the past at an early stage."

The roster, which is heavy on freshmen, includes returning senior David Wells (165 lbs.), who is No. 2 in the nation and was named All-American last year. No. 3-ranked senior Mike French (197 lbs.), as well as No. 12 heavyweight junior Gal McGee (255 lbs.).

There is a noticeable void, however, with the absence of Craig Welk, who graduated last summer. Welk led the team last year with 25 regular season wins and placed first, along with French, in the Pac-10 championships. He also joined Wells, McGee and former teammate Brian Bowles in representing Cal Poly at nationals last year.

Cowell said Welk will be missed. "I'd like to have had his experience back this season," he said. "You could rely on him. Every time he'd go into a match, you'd probably have a save." Welk, he added, "He was our main go-to guy, our hardest worker. He always pumped the team up. Not him coming in and saying, 'Hey, let's do a little, but hopefully not too much.'"

The team also lost Bowles, who completed his eligibility last year. However, despite the losses, Cowell has only positive projections for his largely fledgling team.

"I think we're going to be just as good or better as an overall team than last year," Cowell said. "For the 157-pound weight class, Cowell has high hopes for redshirt freshman Antonio Buenosol and freshman Jaime Garza.

After a year's absence from the team, junior James Gross is returning to the team at 141 pounds. Senior Danny Long and sophomore Cedric Hamron are also going to be important at that weight level.

Cowell also has high expectations for redshirt freshman Steve Strange, at the 157-pound level. "He was a big-time recruit for us," Cowell said. "He leads the nation, he apparently holds the record for the most high school wins ever. He's going to try to get into the lineup and that will be a help for us." At the 157-pound level, Cowell said junior Ismail Abdullah stands a good chance.

"Mike's really good," Wells said. "He is a really good leader." The challenge matches, which determine this season's lineup, will be held Friday night at the Rec Center. Wells said he is excited about the projected lineup.

"The team looks pretty tough," he said. "It's hard to tell this early, but pretty good, they're probably going to show a lot of people up." "I think we're pretty talented," he said. "They all have the ability to beat almost anybody." Cowell is equally confident in the team.

"If we progress through the season the way we have the capabilities to," Cowell said, "I think there's a lot to be accomplished. I think we're a possible Pac-10 championship team, maybe a top eight team in the United States. I'm very positive." Junior Joey Hart (184 lbs.) agreed with his coach.

"I'm most positive that we'll move up," Hart said. "We still have a lot to show for ourselves. Our work ethic is awesome — we're so far ahead of where we used to be. The coach is working us a lot harder and the guys are responding. They love it." Hopefully for the Mustangs, all the bold predictions will hold true. The team will definitely be challenged this season as its schedule includes 10 of the top 20 teams in the country.

In the first home meet of the season, they take on the No. 1 team, Oklahoma State, on Dec. 18 in Mer Gom. Wells said he looks forward to playing in the newly-renovated gym because he thinks it will draw more people to the matches.

"The more people there are," he said, "the more excited I am to wrestle."

Campus Dining's Recycling Recognized

Campus dining is saving the world one cardboard box at a time, according to the California Integrated Waste Management Board (CIWMB). The Board recognized Cal Poly Campus Dining as a Waste Reduction Awards Program (WRAP) winner for the fourth year in a row. With the honor of receiving this award comes both local and statewide recognition.

That the business is deserving of this award is almost indisputable. Anyone who walk through a campus dining facility, on either side of the counter, could immediately see the recycling receptacles located from corner to corner.

For example, Campus Dining recycles all of their cardboard and much of their office and promotional literature. They use recycled paper for things such as computer printers, stationery, business cards, and multiple other printed items. Polystyrene, metal cans and plastic water bottles are all collected by Campus Dining for recycling purposes.

They also stand out in reusing items. Produce scraps are given to the student sustainable farm for composting. They also donate to county foodbanks and feeding programs whenever possible.

In the area of reducing needless production of paper goods, Campus Dining purchases recycled paper for use in their dining facilities and put to use any other recycled/recyclable materials whenever it is practical to do so. Such practices eliminate wasted paper goods.

The program has worked with these principles for years and will continue to do so, always looking for more ways to reduce, reuse, and recycle.

GOIN' NOWHERE: Mustang linebacker Osbaldo Orozco (No. 45) wraps up the ball carrier while a herd of Mustangs rush to get in on the tackle.

By Whitney Phaneuf

Mustang Daily

With a painted face and amplified spirit, Osbaldo Orozco leads the football team in tackles this year and is on track to break the school record.

The Cal Poly linebacker was the only four-tackles-shootout participant in 2003 and has 146 tackles in a season. Even with the disappointing season the Mustangs have had this year, Orozco has 86 tackles and three games remaining to break the record.

Despite the personal glory he would receive for breaking a school record, his teammate, noseguard Juan Gonzales, said Orozco does everything for the team.

"He's the most excited player I've ever seen. He really pumps everyone up," Gonzales said.

Defensive coordinator Sam DeRose said Orozco nightly gives credit to the people around him for his success and is considered to be a team leader by his peers.

"His enthusiasm for the game is picked up by other players," DeRose said.

Orozco said he has a good relationship with his teammates off the field.

"The guys on the team are some of the best friends I have. We share a lot of things I don't share with other people at school," Orozco said.

Orozco has always had a passion for football and dreamed of playing in college. He was recruited from Delano high school where he played on the varsity team for three years.

He also played Pop Warner football in junior high, where he suffered a dislocated shoulder. This incident made his parents try to discourage him from playing by not attending his games.

"During high school my parents worried about me playing football," Orozco said. "Now they won't miss a game."

Orozco has suffered some minor injuries since the dislocated shoulder, but nothing else to make his parents worry for his safety. He said they now see football as his means to getting an education, which they could not afford to pay for otherwise.

"If it wasn't for football, I wouldn't be here," he said.

Orozco was the first in his family to be born in the United States and his first language is Spanish. His parents and older brother emigrated from Mexico. With only an elementary school education, Orozco's parents were farm workers.

"They've worked hard to give me everything we've ever needed," he said.

Wrestlers will be young but strong

By Jen Stevenson

Mustang Daily

It's that time of the year for Mont Gym to be filled with sweaty, tumbling bodies, and plenty of grunts and groans.

The Cal Poly wrestling team is getting ready to roll out the mats in the newly-renovated gym next week.

The team starts the season Friday in the annual "Green and Gold" game.

The Mustangs lost some key wrestlers, but should still be one of the top teams in the nation if their younger players perform well.
