Landslide victory: Baseball defeats University of San Diego 17-8, 8
Up in flames: TV not to blame for stupid antics, 4

Monday, February 5, 2001

Mustang DAILY

Volume LXV, Number 78, 1916-2001

Design students make their boats float

By April Pack
MUSTANG DAILY STAFF WRITER

Cal Poly architecture students now row, towed their cardboard boats, not so gently, down the Rec Center pool on Saturday.

It was all part of the Cardboard Regatta, a boat competition in which students competed with handmade cardboard boats. The boats were made to hold the students, who towed them across the pool in the race.

"This is a real design problem because the students are dealing with minimal materials," said Henry Weisenthal, one of two architecture professors who directed the event. "This is also a construction problem because they have to learn how to use the materials correctly."

Each of the 14 participants was given only three materials to work with in constructing a boat for the race. They were given two sheets of cardboard (4 feet by 6 feet), brown paper tape and polyurethane waterproofing.

"It is amazing how different the designs were even though they were given the same amount of material," Weisenthal said.

The students only had one week to work on the project, and the only was to issue a $10,000 felony arrest warrant for the San Luis Obispo Superior Court.

An 18-year-old female escaped rape in her Steen Glen apartment Saturday morning after she kicked the attacker and notified police.

Police arrested Thomas Hayes, 19, of Agua Hills for attempted rape, burglary and unlawful sexual penetration, according to a San Luis Obispo Police Department press release.

The female, whose name could not be released, was awakened at 3:40 a.m. on Saturday by Hayes as he attempted to rape her, according to the press release. She kicked him in the groin and then locked herself in the bathroom.

Hayes allegedly left the female's room, and the victim ran to a pay phone where she notified police of the attempted rape, according to the press release.

Security personnel at Steen Glen stopped Hayes and retained him until the police arrived, according to the press release.

An 18-year-old female escaped rape in her Steen Glen apartment Saturday morning after she kicked the attacker and notified police. Police arrested Thomas Hayes, 19, of Agua Hills for attempted rape, burglary and unlawful sexual penetration, according to a San Luis Obispo Police Department press release.

The female, whose name could not be released, was awakened at 3:40 a.m. on Saturday by Hayes as he attempted to rape her, according to the press release. She kicked him in the groin and then locked herself in the bathroom.

Hayes allegedly left the female's room, and the victim ran to a pay phone where she notified police of the attempted rape, according to the press release.

Security personnel at Steen Glen stopped Hayes and retained him until the police arrived, according to the press release.

[Image: COLLIN HESTER/MUSTANG DAILY]

Architecture sophomore Gaylen Herman paddles to victory in her boat for the Cardboard Boat Regatta at the Rec Center pool Saturday. Thirty-four architecture design sophomores designed boats made of cardboard, brown paper tape and polyurethane waterproofing.

Suspect in horse theft in custody

MUSTANG DAILY STAFF REPORT

The man suspected in the September horse theft from Cal Poly's rodeo grounds turned himself in Thursday.

According to a University Police press statement, Steven Pati, 31, of Tehachapi in Kern County turned himself in to the Kern County Sheriff's Department after being contacted by University Police.

Pati is the suspected thief of four rodeo horses stolen on Sept. 27, all of which had been recovered by Oct. 14 after being sold. The total value of the horses was $45,000, according to the University Police press statement.

Following the thefts, the University Police investigation continued until enough evidence had been gathered for the San Luis Obispo Superior Court to issue a $10,000 felony arrest warrant against Pati.

Pati is charged with four counts of felony grand theft of horses and one count of felony possession of stolen property.

As of Friday's press statement, Pati is expected to either post bail or be transported to San Luis Obispo County.

The case has been sent to the San Luis Obispo County District Attorney's office for review and prosecution.

Students spin issues on radio

By Raul Vasquez
MUSTANG DAILY STAFF WRITER

By Raul Vasquez
MUSTANG DAILY STAFF WRITER

It has been said by some that most of today's college students are apathetic about politics, and that most students just don't care. But two Cal Poly students are trying to shatter all those stereotypes.

Political science seniors Paul Herman and Eddie Drake co-host a weekly political talk show called "Spin Cycle" Saturdays from 6 to 7 p.m. on 1340 AM KGBW.

"We call it 'Spin Cycle' because we take an issue and spin it, and we try to convince the audience to agree with our viewpoints," Drake said.

The show features an open discussion of current national political news and events, and people are encouraged to call in with their opinions.

"The goal of the show is to get people, especially college students, to raise their voices and start paying attention to what's happening around them," Herman said.

What makes the show even more interesting is that the two co-hosts have opposing political views. Herman is a Republican and Drake is a Democrat.

The duo have been known to yell at each other on the air for 10 minutes, according to Drake.

"That's the beauty of the radio show," Herman said.

An 18-year-old female escaped rape in her Steen Glen apartment Saturday morning after she kicked the attacker and notified police.

Police arrested Thomas Hayes, 19, of Agua Hills for attempted rape, burglary and unlawful sexual penetration, according to a San Luis Obispo Police Department press release.

The female, whose name could not be released, was awakened at 3:40 a.m. on Saturday by Hayes as he attempted to rape her, according to the press release. She kicked him in the groin and then locked herself in the bathroom.

Hayes allegedly left the female's room, and the victim ran to a pay phone where she notified police of the attempted rape, according to the press release.

Security personnel at Steen Glen stopped Hayes and retained him until the police arrived, according to the press release.

[Image: DANIEL GONZALES/MUSTANG DAILY]

[Image: see REGATTA, page 2]

By Banielle Foxett
MUSTANG DAILY STAFF WRITER

"It has only been open since 1996, yet it has already seen some of the Central Coast's finest performances - both musically and theatrically. From its modern exterior to its complex inner operations, the Performing Arts Center has become an integral part of the Cal Poly campus.

Yesterday the community had the opportunity to experience areas of the PAC usually only seen by performers and PAC employees.

From 1 to 5 p.m., the Christopher Cohan Center was open for a self-guided tour of the behind-the-scenes activities and intricacies of the center.

"This is a good way to introduce the facility to the community," said Nancy Godde, theater operations manager.

"This might get people excited about attending a show."

The Christopher Cohan Center includes a concert hall with 1,282 seats, the pavilion and a 170-seat recital hall. The 497-seat Cal Poly Theater and the Christopher Cohan Center together make up the Performing Arts Center.

The annual tour of the Christopher Cohan Center included a look at ticketer, sound engineering, the lighting control system and spotlight operations. Visitors were also able to climb up into the chandelier and down into the orchestra pit and trap room.

[Image: see PAC, page 2]
REGATTA
continued from page 1

beneath the stage. The chandelier is approximately five stories above the main auditorium floor, and it houses spotlights used to illuminate the stage.
Many non-technical rooms in the PAC were open, including the dressing rooms and the Colburn Moore Green Room, named after the silent screen star. People were also able to see a wall signed by many of the performance groups that have come to the PAC such as the casts of "The Nutcracker," "Cars," "Swing" and "Circus." Shirley Horonik of Nipomo came to the tour because she has been to many performances at the PAC. "This is a fantastic center," she said. "I am very impressed with it, so I wanted to see it all." Visitors were able to learn interesting facts about the PAC operations. For example, the spotlights in the following room ban at one-sixth the height of the sun," said spot Opener Trent Hopen.
Production Coordinator Eli Zahala revealed that hidden underneath the stage are many rows of seats that can be moved up to the main floor depending on how the stage is configured for a particular performance. House managers were available to explain their duties, discuss how they prepare the center for an event and talk of their reasons for putting on such a tour. "We hope to give the community and hopefully a student, a chance to see what operations are like backstage," said Chris McBride, outreach services manager. "Hopefully when people are sitting in the audience, they are wondering what is going on backstage." Higher Movement Dance and Drum troupe performed in front of the PAC at 11:40 pm. The event was co-hosted by local radio stations KOTB and KXTZ.

NEWS

Disney park opens with scare

ANAHEIM (AP) — A smoking electrical panel triggered a fire alarm, prompting an evacuation of Disneyland's newest attraction.

"The alarm went off in the new California Adventure section and the Fire Department was called to the scene," said police Sgt. Hector Hidalgo.

"No one was hurt during the 7:30 p.m. emergency. The California Adventure ride, previewed by park hotel guests and season passholders, reopened later, and will officially open Thursday. Disneyland proper remained open throughout.

Employees evacuated a move theater and simulation ride when smoke came up a ventilation system and began clouding an IMAX giant screen.

Magicians experiencing the "SpaTn" over California" hang-gliding film were ushered out. There were no flames, said Disneyland spokesman Ray Gomez.

"We called the Fire Department as a precaution," Gomez added.

The computer-controlled panel is in the basement of the theater. An amplifier connected to the panel overheated and caused the smoke, he said.

"SpaTn over California" has about 90 seats which elevate and move side to side to give the viewer a simulated hang-gliding ride.

RAPE
continued from page 1

ing to the press release. Hayes was arrested and taken to the San Luis Obispo County Jail. Sgt. Brown of the police department said the female's door was open, but he did not know how Hayes entered the apartment complex.

Brown wasn't sure if the suspect or the victim was a Cal Poly student. The incident is still under investigation, according to the press release.

EL CORRAL BOOKSTORE
MONTHLY

ASK OUR FRIENDLY SALES ASSOCIATES FOR MORE DETAILS

General Merchandise

Sweatshirt

sale price $19.99

Has the dreary weather gotten to you yet? Get a Lansport screen print basic crewneck sweatshirt for a sale price of $19.99 to beat the cold. Reg. $22.99

School Supplies

Charpakt Ad

markers 20% off

Old markers dried up?

Get a bunch of new Charpakt Ad markers and save 20% off! Available in a wide range of colors.

ALL SPECIALS SERVED DAILY.

Mon. - Thurs 7:45am - 6:00pm

Friday 7:45am - 4:30pm

Saturday 10:00am - 3:00pm
Woodstock's Pizza It's Out of this World!

Gourmet Toppings Extra: ~

Student Special
15% off EXTRA LARGE
1 or more topping Pizza

Extra Large, Large or Medium
one or more topping Pizza

Mustang Daily
Monday, February 5, 2001

News

POLYWEEK

Monday Feb. 5
12 - 5 PM
"ROOTS" ART EXHIBIT, Club 221.
University Union (Through Thursday)
TICKETS ON SALE, Bob Marley
with Shaggy. Mustang Ticket Office.

Tuesday Feb. 6
NOTHING LISTED

Wednesday Feb. 7
NOTHING LISTED

Thursday Feb. 8
10 - 11 AM
"RAGG," UU Hour. University Union.
8 PM
DANCE PERSPECTIVES, Orchesis
Dance Company, Cal Poly Theater.
8 PM
CHINESE LESSONS, Chinese
Cultural Club. Cal Poly Theater.

Friday Feb. 9
8 PM
DANCE PERSPECTIVES, Orchesis

Deaf DC student stabbed to death
in college dorm

WASHINGTON (AP) — A student found dead in his dorm room at Gallaudet University, a school for the hearing-impaired, was stabbed to death. District of Columbia police said Sunday.

Benjamin Warner, 19, of San Antonio, Texas, had multiple stab wounds to the head and body, and police spokesman Sgt. Joe Gentile.
He was found Saturday morning in a fourth-floor dorm room of Coppwell Hall. That is the same dormitory where freshman Eric F.
Plunkett, 19, of Burnsville, Minn., was found beaten to death in a first-floor room Sept. 28.

Police Chief Charles Ramsey said there is no evidence of a link between the two deaths, but investigators are looking into the possible that there could be a connection.

Security was tight at the campus
Sunday. University police checked student IDs and wrote down the license plates of vehicles entering the campus.

A fellow student originally was charged with second-degree murder in the Plunkett case, but the charges were dropped the next day.

DISTRICT of COLUMBIA police said at the time that two freshmen had a dispute that erupted into a physical fight that led to the beating death of one of the male students.

At the urging of police, the university beefed up security over the weekend. Visitors and students

El Corral Bookstore
A nonprofit organization serving Cal Poly since 1985
www.elcorralbookstore.com

What are those random pictures that are sometimes run on the front page?

Sometimes the stories we have for the front page do not necessarily have the opportunity for good photographs. In these cases, we take "wild art" shots and use them without stories.

Even though there may be photos available for a story we may be running, we always try to find the most interesting pictures possible. People sitting at a board meeting, or a group posed in front of a sign, for instance, are not our favorites - they are quite boring, in fact.

What we like to do with our photographs is allow them to tell a story on their own. Often, we go out and take shots of people on campus doing unusual things, or doing normal things in unusual ways.

These are then run with a caption to help you appreciate what is going on.

These "human interest shots" can tell a story that we are not going to actually write about, but are interesting nonetheless.

Wild art lets us capture student life in and around campus in ways stories never could.

Have a question about campus? Ask Adam. E-mail him at aadam@calpoly.edu.
Ask yourself if your time is really worth it

How many of you have been in this situation: you’re driving and lost in thought or listening to music or talking with a friend and going a little slow when your serenity is interrupted by a guy honking his horn and yelling at you with his middle finger flashing out the window. It’s happened to me a few times, and that’s my complaint.

Why is everyone in America so important? I’ve been in fast food restaurants, and if the order of five burgers, three fries and three Cokes takes longer than five minutes, someone is frustrated. I’ve driven with some snarly people who care like nobody’s business during traffic. It seems as if the slightest inconvenience sets someone off. Impatience isn’t confined to waiting either; it also appears when someone gets upset over small matters. I would estimate millions of roommates have gotten upset over doves or eating habits or music. Americans seem to want things the way they were NOW.

Who knows why this happens? Some people have probably learned that if they are important, they’ll get their way. I’ve used this tactic, buying some poor high school girl to get me my Whopper because my stomach was growling. Others probably have put up an extra minute of honking, thinking that wanted time in a checkout line is lightweight. Some people feel things should be done their way, or it’s just plain wrong. Others are high-strung, only able to go one speed—light speed.

What’s sad is that this impatience is ingrained in our culture. Businesses need everything done by yesterday. Computers, planes and media are all pressured to deliver faster and faster. This constant hurry is stressful, at least to me. Sometimes I wish I lived in a Latin culture, where things move a little slower and people take their time. I lived in Mexico last summer for a month and a half and no one seemed to mind waiting in long lines for the metro or for their food. As Americans, it is easy to learn the habit of impatience.

“So what?” you say. This is the question I want you to ask yourself: Is this really worth getting upset over? Think about it; is waiting an extra minute or two for your food worth getting irritated over? Is driving the speed limit something worth yelling about? I don’t think so. Cut anger over something that is a real shame. Pound your fist over injustice, racism, violence or disrespect, not a slow computer or printer. Be patient with your roommate’s music and dirty laundry. Remind yourself of all the annoying habits you might have.

I’m not saying don’t stand up for yourself, just be calm and talk things over with people instead of trying to intimidate them with fire coming out of your mouth and eyes. Talking with your friends and reaching compromises is a good and healthy thing.

Seeking to save time is always wise. But road rage isn’t necessary. None of us like it when someone gets angry over a little mistake. Just ask yourself, is it worth it?

Andrew Paulsen is a history senior.

Opinion
Flaming idiots imitate ‘Jackass’

A 13-year-old boy was critically injured, with burns covering much of his body. He received his injuries when his friend poured gasoline on him and set him on fire. They wereimitating a stunt they had seen on the MTV series “Jackass.”

We need to consider the fact that this boy is in critical condition. But let’s not immediately find a scapegoat, because there isn’t one. That boy, or someone like him, would have imitated the same stunt from another television show, movie or commercial. “Jackass” is not to blame. I have seen the show’s television rating in the corner of the television screen, and the straightforward warning that begins every program.

We can turn with fury and frustration toward MTV, a network that seems bent on catering to both the beat and worst instincts of teen-agers, or we can look at the real problem and make sure parents know what their children are watching. “Jackass” is one of the funniest and dumbest shows I have ever seen. The reason it’s so fascinating to the audience is because it captivates viewers by showing stunts that not even adults would do.

In “Jackass,” Johnny Knoxville goes one step beyond MTV’s popular prankster Tom Green in doing life-endangering stunts in the service of real-life comedy. He often gets his friends to do things like riding a bicycle into brambly bushes. But it only turns helpful when someone gets hurt, especially when they are watching. We try not to care about the well-being of that person, we are simply humored when someone falls in public. It raises some questions about the culture of our50 society. Is this the kind of thing that we are encouraged to watch?

Most people wouldn’t stick a needle in their arm, or put their head on the step of the escalator. The next thing I know, I’m running away from the person who looks at me with shock and disgust. It’s not that we can’t care about the well-being of that person, it’s that we can’t care about ourselves either. Is this the kind of thing that we are encouraged to watch?

Andrew Paulsen is a history senior.

Letter policy
Columns, cartoons and letters reflect the views of their authors and do not necessarily reflect those of Mustang Daily. Mustang Daily reserves the right to edit letters for grammar, profanities and length. Please limit length to 350 words. Mustang Daily encourages comments on editorial policy and university affairs. Letters should be typed, signed with major and class standing, Preference is given to e-mailed letters. They can be mailed, faxed, delivered or e-mailed to mustangdaily@hotmail.com.

Opinion
Flaming idiots imitate ‘Jackass’

A 13-year-old boy was critically injured, with burns covering much of his body. He received his injuries when his friend poured gasoline on him and set him on fire. They were imitating a stunt they had seen on the MTV series “Jackass.”

We need to consider the fact that this boy is in critical condition. But let’s not immediately find a scapegoat, because there isn’t one. That boy, or someone like him, would have imitated the same stunt from another television show, movie or commercial. “Jackass” is not to blame. I have seen the show’s television rating in the corner of the television screen, and the straightforward warning that begins every program.

We can turn with fury and frustration toward MTV, a network that seems bent on catering to both the beat and worst instincts of teen-agers, or we can look at the real problem and make sure parents know what their children are watching. “Jackass” is one of the funniest and dumbest shows I have ever seen. The reason it’s so fascinating to the audience is because it captivates viewers by showing stunts that not even adults would do.

In “Jackass,” Johnny Knoxville goes one step beyond MTV’s popular prankster Tom Green in doing life-endangering stunts in the service of real-life comedy. He often gets his friends to do things like riding a bicycle into brambly bushes. But it only turns helpful when someone gets hurt, especially when they are watching. We try not to care about the well-being of that person, it’s that we can’t care about ourselves either. Is this the kind of thing that we are encouraged to watch?

Most people wouldn’t stick a needle in their arm, or put their head on the step of the escalator. The next thing I know, I’m running away from the person who looks at me with shock and disgust. It’s not that we can’t care about the well-being of that person, it’s that we can’t care about ourselves either. Is this the kind of thing that we are encouraged to watch?

Andrew Paulsen is a history senior.

Mustang Daily is a student-run newspaper that reflects the views of its authors and does not necessarily reflect those of Mustang Daily. Mustang Daily reserves the right to edit letters for grammar, profanities and length. Please limit length to 350 words. Mustang Daily encourages comments on editorial policy and university affairs. Letters should be typed, signed with major and class standing, Preference is given to e-mailed letters. They can be mailed, faxed, delivered or e-mailed to mustangdaily@hotmail.com.
Flextronics International is a thriving leader in the electronics manufacturing industry. Our innovative engineering, advanced electronics and logistical services enhance the technology of industry-leading original equipment manufacturers (OEM) worldwide. If you have the energy and drive to join a fast-growing team recognized by Forbes and Business Week as a "Top 100" company, we're looking for key players to succeed and grow with us!

Manufacturing Process Engineer
Manufacturing Test Engineer
Industrial Engineer

Come by our booth and hear about many other opportunities with Flextronics! Flextronics is an EOE.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Spring C.3 Class</th>
<th>Humanities 402</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>VALUES AND TECHNOLOGY</td>
<td></td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

This class meets Mon. and Wed. from 2 to 4

For more information contact Dick Simon, Chair of Humanities at rsimon@calpoly.edu

---

Letter to the editor

I never saw the dark side of my friend
Editor,
The events that happened last Monday in San Jose, where 19-year-old Al Degman was arrested by the San Jose Police Department hours before he was to detonate homemade bombs at De Anza College, have left me speechless. Never in my wildest dreams could I have pictured Al doing something like this; he was always polite and quiet. Where was this dark and sad side of him hiding all these years? To students here at Cal Poly, Al Degman is probably just another product of a dysfunctional family or perhaps a product of the social-climatic environment that he grew up in. But to those people who knew him in high school, the events have left us totally shocked. He was always joking around, too could never really take him too seriously. But deep inside he was living a second life, a life filled with hatred and rage that, on Wednesday afternoon, he was planning to set loose on 14,000 of his fellow students.

Sometimes I stop and think this is just a prank, a joke, or perhaps just a bad dream, and that everything will be OK for Al. However, the evidence tends to point otherwise. It leaves me thinking if I should take the joke he used to tell more seriously. Should I have done something different?

He was quoted as saying the following on one of his Web sites: "The World is full of bullies... coming at people for the stupidest things. Would you still do that if you knew that quiet kid who used to taunt you was in real life capable of doing something like this."

Ricardo Garcia is an aeronautical engineering sophomore and member of Independence High School's class of 1999.

---

Participation in the campus diversity plan
We recruit, employ, train, compensate, and promote without regard to race, religion, creed, color, national origin, age, gender, sexual orientation, marital status, disability, veteran status or any other basis protected by applicable federal, state or local law.

Deloitte Consulting

Winter Recruiting dates to remember:
TONIGHT: Deloitte Consulting Information Session
6pm-8pm Veranda Cafes A & C

| 2/13/01: | Resume Submission Deadline for On-Campus Interviews (See Career Center for Details) |
| 2/22/01: | Career Symposium |
| 3/08-01-09/01: | On-Campus Interviews |

Leadership like ours depends on people who dream this big.
Barak, Sharon battle out final days before election

JERUSALEM (AP) - An angled and depleted Israeli electorate faces a final showdown over a likely election, one not enhanced by a spark this week between Prime Minister Ehud Barak and his rival for a final peace deal with the Palestinians, and the hawkish frontrunner Ariel Sharon, who won a boost Sunday when he was endorsed by Israel's ultra-Orthodox bloc.

The deck seems heavily stacked in favor of Sharon, a 72-year-old general who promises to slash the four-month Palestinian uprising and cease fire - no one has. He has led in all the polls for weeks by about 20 points - a massive spread in a country that for decades has been deeply divided more or less down the middle.

Sharon received more good news when newspaper reports Aishkenazi ultra-Orthodox parties, composed of Jews of European background, published announcements from the religious leadership calling on people to vote for him. A victory for this ex-general in Tuesday's election would be an astonishing rehabilitation for a man whose leadership hopes were widely considered dashed when a govern­ment commission indelibly blamed him for a 1982 massacre of hundreds of Palestinian refugees in Beirut, Lebanon, and forced him to resign as defense minister.

It would also appear to slam the brakes on the current peace process. Sharon has made clear that he opposes Barak's offers to the Palestinians and would withdraw them in favor of less ambitious interim deals emphasizing security for Israelis.

Sharon has been vague about his plans. However, he is said to be weighing who has opposed the land-for-peace idea and has been a leading patron of the Jewish settler movement. A Sharon plan leaked to Israeli media last month envisioned giving the Palestinians no more land - but also building no more settlements.

Barak has predicted a peace accord within reach despite the recent set­back - but he has also warned that the Palestinians don't soften their demands will forgo efforts to reach an agreement and unilaterally redraw the map, damaging some settle­ments and keeping others.

Many observers believe that who­ever wins will have difficulty main­taining a majority coalition in the fractured parliament, and that gener­al elections for prime minister and president within a year.

---

Don't e-mbarrass
yourself on Valentine's Day!!!

Be cool. Run a Mustang Daily Valentine's Day Ad
Call 756-1143

Spring C3 Class
Humanities 361
MODERNISM

This class meets Mon. and Wed. from 10 to 12 Spring quarter, and satisfies GEB C.3. The course is broadly concerned with the art, architecture, literature, and philosophy of the modern period, and will be team-taught by Bruno Giberti, Architecture; Harry Hellenbrand, Dean of the College of Liberal Arts; Paul McBirnie Philosophy and Chris Kupers, Humanities.

For more info, contact any of the individual faculty members, or call 756-1143. Chair of Humanities at rsimon@calpoly.edu.

---

Get on the bus and ride!
NEW & IMPROVED ROUTE 9

LATE NIGHT SERVICE!

Extended to South Higuera & SLO Airport!!

NORTHERN COUNTY TO S.I.O.

---

Nokia Broadband Systems is a worldwide leader in OSl solutions and was the first supplier to offer an ATM (Asynchronous Transfer Mode) based multi-service, Digital Substitution (one Access Multiplexer (DSLAM) in the commercial marketplace. We have the following opportunities available in our Petaluma, CA office.

- Component Engineer
- Logistics Coordinator
- Manager, DSL Product Management
- Manager, ISDN Product Management
- Manager, New Product Introduction
- Manager, Payload Design Engineer
- Manager, Engineering, BB Access Networks
- Product Manager IP Access Nodes
- Project Manager
- Quality Manager
- Regional Software Quality Engineer
- Senior Hardware Engineers
- Senior Manufacturing Engineer
- Senior Technical Writer
- Software Test Engineer
- Strategic Supply Manager
- System Marketing Manager
- Systems Integration Manager
- Technical Writers

When you join Nokia, your health care coverage, melissa and dental, and 401(k) begin on your very first day of employment. We provide many additional benefits and a competitive pay that is a leader in the field.

To apply, please apply on-line at www.nokiacareers.com and click on the Broadband Systems icon.

Nokia is a first opportunity employer that provides equal employment opportunity.
BASEBALL
continued from page 8
It's been a great weekend and a great first month to the season.
Ritch Price
Cal Poly head coach
Stadium's first home run - San Diego shortstop Josh Harris hit a solo shot off reliever Nathan Choppe to lead off the seventh inning.
Harris' home run tied the game at five, and in the bottom of the eighth, game the nation's last underfur­ ted team.
A year ago, UCLA was at risk of missing the NCAA tournament when it came to Stanford late in the season and beat the nation's No. 1 team in overtime.
"It's funny how UCLA seems to struggle, but when they come here they play well," said Stanford guard Casey Jacobsen, who led with 18 points but was hassled into 4-of-18 shooting. "They're a completely different team when they play us versus what we see of them on TV."
The Bruins (13-3) certainly didn't look much like the team that fell behind by 20 points at halftime to Cal. Or the team that lost five straight to Cal at Los Angeles State. Northridge earlier this season.
"Stanford has caught us in consective years at bad times," explained UCLA coach Steve Lavin, who was greeted by chants of "Win, Puckin' no" before Saturday's game.
"It's funny how UCLA seems to struggle, but when they come here they play well," said Stanford guard Casey Jacobsen, who led the Cardinal with 17 points but was hassled into 4-of-18 shooting. "They're a completely different team when they play us versus what we see of them on TV."

TENNIS
continued from page 7
Cappello has assumed much-needed leadership roles on the team, which has sparked the competitive spirit that the men need.
"We're pumped for every match," he said.
Men's tennis will next battle Texas Tech and UC Riverside on the road Feb. 16 and 17.

UCLA looks to turn around season after Stanford upset
Mustang Daily Tuesday, February 5, 2001 7
STANFORD, Calif. (AP) - Once a standard for supremacy, UCLA has needed big upssets the past two years at top-ranked Bruins to avoid the nadir of mediocrity seasons.
On Saturday, the untanked Bruin's were coming off a 29-point loss at California when they toppled the No. 1 Cardinal 79-73.
The unlikely hero Saturday for the 11-time NCAA champion Bruins was nearly unstoppable from 3-point range on a Friday night.
Its school-record 20-game winning streak is finished and the focus now shifts to winning the Pac-10, where the Cardinal lead Arizona by a half-game and the Bruins by a game.

Attention Students
Nomination boxes are located at:
- Bookstore
- Lighthouse
- Library
- Women's Center
Nominations must be received by Friday, February 9, 2001

Classified Advertising
Graphic Arts Building, Room 226 Cal Poly, San Luis Obispo, CA 93407 (805) 756-1143
Men's tennis demolishes Westmont

By Erica Tower

Cal Poly men's tennis showed no mercy in Saturday's season opener against Westmont.

The men swept the Warriors 7-0, proving that this year's team is both confident and strong.

"The guys competed really well," said Chris Etpright, men's tennis head coach. "Overall, Brandon's play really stood out."

Senior Brandon Fallon, who played both No. 1 singles and No. 1 doubles for the Mustangs, defeated Colin Magloire 6-4, 6-0.

"That was a great win," Etpright said.

Last season, Brent Masi, who played No. 1 singles for Cal Poly, lost to Magloire 7-6 in the third set after a hard-fought battle, making Fallon's win a little sweeter.

"All the guys are playing well right now," said red-shirt freshman Mike Marques, who crushed Erik Varsakahan 6-2, 6-2 in the No. 5 position. "I really feel like we're more of a team this year, and that that has showed in our play."

Senior John Cappello, who beat Mike Liestid 6-1, 6-3, also sees a change in the attitude of his teammates.

"Everyone wants it (the Big West title) but had this year," he said. "This team is really strong, and we're looking forward to competing well with a lot of good teams."

Rounding out the singles lineup for the Mustangs was sophomore Brian Kent in the No. 2 position, who defeated Shea Mercado 6-2, 6-2; freshman Nick Carles at No. 4, who dominated Sidd Jens 6-1, 6-0; and freshman Steve Mercado at No. 6, who shut out Ed Grees 6-0, 6-0.

"It was a great feeling to get our first home win of the season," Mercado said. "This team is really committed to each other and everyone has a 'give it all you've got' attitude."

Mercado also said that Fallon and Kent dominated San Francisco State, 62-7, for the first home win of the season, and that the Mustangs moved up to 7-0 in the Big West Conference. "Our team is young but strong, and we're looking forward to competing well with a lot of good teams."

Men's basketball

Cal Poly earned its first Big West Conference victory with a 82-79 overtime win against Idaho Saturday night.

Chris Byrkhendel and Watende Favors led the Mustangs with 20 points each, as Cal Poly improved its record to 7-12, 1-7 in conference.

Women's Indoor Track

In Reno, the Cal Poly women's indoor track and field team kicked off their season with a strong performance at the Wolf Pack Invitational.

Part Debebe set the pace for the Mustangs with a first-place finish in the 3000 meters. Stephanie Brown finished second in the shot put after missing last season due to injury.

Swimming

UC Irvine swept both the men's and women's teams on Friday at Mont Pool. The men fell 165-5 to 136-6, and the women lost 168-6 to 126-0.

Matt Patone and Matthew Lawson had victories for the Mustangs, and Mary Thomas and Stacy Peterson paced the women's team.

Women's Basketball

In Stockton on Sunday, Cal Poly fell to the University of the Pacific Tigers 69-57. With the loss, Cal Poly's record dropped to 8-12 overall, 2-5 in the Big West Conference.

Long Beach State jumped out to a 21-point lead in the second half and held off two Cal Poly rallies to defeat the Mustangs 80-70 in New York.

The Mustangs shot 49 percent from the field for the game, while Cal Poly shot 42 percent.