Poly's online resources turning global

Students and faculty will be able to extend their resources to reach worldwide now that the California State University system joined a global alliance to create an online resource sharing system.

The Global Learning Objects Brokered Exchange alliance includes organizations from Australia, Canada, Europe, Japan and the United States. These countries are joining forces for "a shared vision of access to quality educational content," a CSU press release said. This content will include everything from information on art and humanities to online scientific simulations.

Jerry Hanley, vice provost and chief information officer for Information Technology Services said that by involving universities from around the world, students will have access to information that emphasizes different aspects than what Americans might emphasize.

"Students get a different perspective. It's equivalent to being an exchange student," Hanley said. "It's equivalent to being an exchange student," he said. Hanley used the example that a student needed to research information about the Aborigine culture. By using GLOBE, the student would be able to search Australian databases to possibly find information directly from the Aborigine people.

"The key characteristics of GLOBE are its focus on users, its international basis, and its commitment to applying standards and technologies to serve educational needs," Edward Walker, co-chair of Multimedia Educational Resources for Learning and Online Teaching said in a press release.

This compilation will be online, using federated search technologies that will search across multiple databases and libraries. The press release said that the system should be up and running within a year.

The ultimate goal of this operation is to make the process of finding information easier. See Global, page 2.

half hour endurance test and an acceleration test," said formula team leader and mechanical engineering junior Jason Schulberg. "Most of the time there are two drivers; one drives while the other makes changes in the car. The driver has to drive very conservatively for the endurance test and then the next person has to drive very fast."

While the teams train and test their cars, they also have to focus on their classwork. "It is a race against time," said Schulberg. "The formula team has to balance their studies and their racing in order to achieve good marks."

Schulberg continued that the pressure to perform well in races is high. "We are expected to achieve good results in the races. The team has to stay focused on their goals in order to succeed."

doms from Cal Poly, the rest are CDF interns and burn survivors. Being a volunteer counselor is a 10-day commitment for juniors. Fire Prevention Week continues all month with open houses at local fire departments that give fire demonstrations, fire extinguisher training and fire safety. "We stress to students for especially to check their smoke detectors and change the batteries twice a year since student housing is pretty run-down," said Brett McTigue, of the Oceano Fire Department. "We also recommend getting permanent wiring in your houses instead of having a bunch of electrical cords. The only time you should have power cords is at Christmas time."

Firefighter Ace Flans of CDF emphasized having dry brush removed from around houses since cigarettes get thrown into the brush can start a fire. "If you happen to catch on fire, CDF Primo Beach has some advice. "It's the same stuff you heard when you were kids: Stop, Drop, and Roll."

Parking added on Mount Bishop Road

Seventy-five temporary parking spaces have been added this quarter along Mt. Bishop Road (the road to Dairy Science). The temporary spaces were added to provide additional parking while a new parking lot at the Old Poultry unit is under construction. The new H-1 parking lot, on Mt. Bishop Road past ESupport, will provide additional 360 new spaces and will include emergency phones and lighting as well as bicycle lockers and racks. The new lot is scheduled to complete next spring.

"Simultaneously, users are faced with overwhelming challenges of learning about the data collections, interacting with the different databases and interfaces, and finally finding the relevant resources," Gerry Hanley, executive director of MERLOT, said in a press release. Making resource retrieval easier would be the key to GLOBES success, Gerry Hanley said.

Students attending a CSU can use this Web site as a hub for research on both national and international issues. MERLOT.org gives a sense of the kind of information that will be available to students and faculty. The alliance will meet twice yearly to make sure that outcome goals are achieved on time. The next meeting takes place in Japan in February 2005.

CAMPUS PROJECTS

QUARTERLY UPDATE -- FALL 2004

California Boulevard Extension

As part of Phase 2 of the Engineering III project, California Boulevard is being extended through campus to connect with Highland Drive. The project provides connection to major parking lots and moves circulation out of the campus core. Pedestrian walkways and bicycle paths on campus are being added and improved; the bike route will continue along California Boulevard. Construction is expected to be complete before the end of fall quarter.

Engineering IV

Phase 2 of the new Engineering complex will add 104,000 square feet of instructional space to the College of Engineering and will stand on the site northwest of Kennedy Library. Construction should begin in December, 2004 and be complete in September, 2006.

Student Housing North

The Student Housing North project will be completed over a five-year period, with phased delivery. The EIR and schematic design have been approved and the first phase should be available for occupancy in 2008. Brookwood Program Management has been chosen as the program manager and the design-build team will be selected in March of 2005. Visit the Student Housing North website for information about the project. Click on the Student Housing North icon, http://www.facilities.calpoly.edu

Parking added on Mount Bishop Road

Project Telecom is continuing throughout campus. The project is upgrading telecommunications (voice, data and video) systems in all state-owned buildings on campus. Purple and orange signs identify the sites of the current construction activity. The project should be completed during fall quarter. For further information, current building schedules, photos and other information, visit the Telecomm website: http://telecomm.calpoly.edu

Engineering III

Phase I of the 41 square foot Engineering III building at the northwest corner of the campus is complete. Phase 2 is expected to begin construction by late fall and will finish the interior work, exterior awnings, screens and landscaping, and add a new jet propulsion lab building.

Campus Sustainability

For information about sustainability on campus, visit the Building for Sustainability website at http://www.facilities.calpoly.edu click on the Sustainability icon. The website was developed to promote awareness of campus activities, projects, resources and activities that relate to sustainability on campus.

Building Permits Required for all Campus Projects

Facility Services would like campus departments to be aware that all construction projects - large or small - must go through the campus building permit process. A building permit is required for all departments, offices and student projects whether or not they are using their own resources. For a building permit application and more detailed information on the process, contact the Facilities Planning web site and click on Building Permits.

INDEPENDENCE, Mo.— An 11-year-old boy who told authorities he was upset about being bullied at school took off in the family car on an odyssey that ended more than 200 miles away on the other side of the state.

Wearing shorts and a T-shirt, the boy left his suburban Kansas City home early Tuesday, making his way onto Interstate 35 and driving 92 miles to Bethany, a northwest Missouri community in an area where he used to hunt with his father.

He stopped there at a convenience store for some chips and a soft drink, then drove off aimlessly, following several other highways before ending up 135 miles away in Callao in northeast Missouri's Macon County.

Sgt. Michael Johnston of the Macon County Sheriff's Department said he got a call about 11:30 a.m. from the Callao postmaster, who reported that a boy was locked out of his car and wanted to talk.

"He just wanted some help," Johnston said. "He was a very polite guy. He spoke highly of his parents. He spoke highly of his school. But he knew he was in trouble."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The true meaning behind the 'Vote or Die' campaign

Yesterday I read an article about P Diddy's "Vote or Die" campaign being an unaccusable tactic. The article said, "What if my friends don't vote — will Diddy kill them?" First of all, what's wrong with someone trying to encourage us to vote? And second, the writer's interpretation of those campaigning shirts is totally off.

Let's face it; there are many of us who'd rather not bother worrying about registering and voting. So who better to encourage us than celebrities like P Diddy. Oprah and Jennifer Aniston — people who are constantly in the public eye.

We should be honored that they even care about our voices because if you think about it, WE will be the ones affected in the long run. It's our future, not theirs.

And for those "Vote or Die" shirts, do you really think if you don't vote, Diddy will find you and kill you? If those shirts literally meant this, then for all those people who don't plan on voting — be afraid. Seriously though, the real meaning of the phrase "Vote or Die" is simple: your vote is — your voice is dead. How do I know this? I watched a special series of Oprah with the topic of voting.

So next time you see the shirt "Vote or Die" don't take it as a threat — take it as an encourage­ment for your voice to be heard! EB

Americanism: A disease that must be destroyed

I am writing in response to Simon Samano's commentary, "Re-thinking the American way of life" (Oct. 7).

Finally, someone has the guts to stand up to this cesspool of patri­on that is America. Finally, someone realizes the vast amounts of negatives that outweigh the positives, instead of mindlessly following the Pledge that was instilled in us as children. Finally, someone voices out someone other than himself.

It's not to say that I necessarily hate the people in America, but more the culture of Americanism that has infected them. This disease has perpetuated racism, generated oblivious pride and more than anything else, raised selfish­ness to a new level.

Americans buy environment­destroying SUV's for their annual trip to the mountains. They tell the homeless to "get a job." They are obsessed with tax cuts in order to hoard more of their money.

Our president, an Evangelical Christian, has stated that his "base" is the elite of America. I suppose he skipped the parts of the Bible where Jesus was com­passionate toward the poor; parts like the Four Gospels.

In short, Americanism is a disease that must be destroyed. It is plaguing our country. Kudos, Simon.

Lindsay Lohan's boobs cannot sing

For what would have been John Lennon's 64th birthday, Video Oasis is screening "When I'm 64," a collection on Lennon's artwork, in New York.

As someone who was raised in a family that appreciated the Beatles and John Lennon's legacy, I was thrilled to hear that an exhibit was going to be up. In my mind, his art was a huge part of his personality, musically and politically.

The artists who choose new media with which to create today, though not quite as legendary as Lennon, are following a very popular path. Often the quest is a tragic failure because it's hard to be true to the goals and the jocks.

Included in this immense list of recent "crossovers" is of course, J-Lo. Lindsay Lohan, Mariah Carey (debatable) and yes, believe it or not, Bob Guiney.

Don't know who Bob Guiney is? Neither did I until my REZ generation informed me that he was a "Bachelor" for ABC's infamous reality show and now he has an album called "3 videos" released on Wind-up records.

Surprisingly, his music is not bad. Taking advantage of the wonders of the Internet, I sampled each song and found his voice to be strong and present. However, I'm cheating by using him as an example because he wasn't technically an actor—just a sucker.

Sadly, I cannot continue to have positive comments as I move to Lindsay Lohan. When I saw her new video, "Rumors" on MTV, I simply decided she either has great genetics or a gmat plastic surgeon.

But my second observation was about her music. I didn't know if she wrote her own music because no one seems to care about that anymore, so it was nowhere to be found online. Her voice was so quiet and effects-ridden that I couldn't even tell what it really-sounded like.

Another shocking crossover is Minnie Driver. She recently released an album called "Everything I've got in my pocket." If you think the way I do about album titles, you'll have already established that her lyrics are pretty bad.

But her voice was soft and she didn't seem to be making music an excuse to strut in a video. However, I'm not prepared to talk nicely about Hillary Duff, however.

I'm not trying to put down artists who decide to change paths. On the contrary, I think it's probably really fun. But although it would be great to say, "No one seems to think that's weird but me. Then she danced on the roof of a club with about 10 other girls and a helicopter overhead. I did a double-take near the end. Was that Bosh Spice in her video? Somehow I wasn't surprised.

I admit Lohan's a reasonable actress, and pretty darn cute, but the jury is out on the music thing.

COACHES' CORNER
This week's spotlight on...

Cross country coach Mark Conover
Amanda Strachan

The Cal Poly men's cross-country team started its season off with a series of wins backing up a preseason poll that unanimously voted it to win the conference title.

In an interview with the Mustang Daily, coach Mark Conover shares some words of wisdom and reveals he's not just pushing for the win.

Q. — What do you enjoy most working with this year's team?
A. — I really enjoy the focus, dedication and commitment and it's paying off. For the men, we're ranked No. 1. For the women, we're ranked No. 20.

Q. — What's your biggest achievement with this group?
A. — I have two things that came within a four-year period. I made the Olympic team in 1984 and then I beat cancer four years later.

Q. — What are the biggest obstacles for this season?
A. — I don't really look at it as any other team being an obstacle. I think the biggest obstacle for this season is the mental outlook of the team. If they really want to make this commitment and achieve their goals, they have to do it, but the mind can be a great obstacle.

Q. — What's your biggest goal as a coach?
A. — Trying to teach people so that they can try to achieve to the highest level, which means trying to do well at the NCAA Division I level. And helping these people learn through the process so they can apply it to their daily lives. You can learn a lot about life in sport and how to live it from trying to be a successful cross country athlete in college.

Q. — If you're really mad how do your runners know?
A. — I never get really mad. I just try to get points scored and if there's an area where I think a point needs to be made they can probably detect it in my voice.

Q. — If there's one lesson you could instill in your runners what would it be?
A. — To persevere and continue on, to what I call, live the life. If you're going to make a commitment to something stick with it and don't cheat yourself out of that by doing things that go against allowing you to have that success. As a college student, when you are trying to be a top-level competitive athlete you really have to learn to budget your time.

Ivory saves the day defending final drive

Mustang corner back Karl Ivory nahs ended an interception on final drive as Cal Poly improves to 5-0, its best start since 1997

Mustang Daily Staff Report

Southern Utah had the tie in hand.

This one was going to overtime.

In a touchdown-scoring move, Ivory stole the ball out of Thunderbird Jerome Eason's hand in the endzone with 31 seconds left as Cal Poly hung on for a thrilling 24-17 victory over Southern Utah.

The interception kept the Mustangs undefeated moving to 5-0. Ivory returned his fourth interception of the year 23 yards and Cal Poly took a 21-17 lead on the play to run out the clock.

The Great West Conference game was Cal Poly's 11th straight home win and 9,026 in all Coliseum.

One of the phòng games was how the Thunderbirds handled quarterback Casey Rehner.

Rehner completed 28 of 39 passes for 297 yards and four touchdowns, but could not help the Thunderbirds score in the second half when Cal Poly's defense again took over.

Southern Utah had a 247-144 advantage in total offense in the first half, but finished with 386 yards. The Cal Poly defense had only given up just 258 yards per game before Saturday. The Mustangs gained 248 total yards and trailed in first down as well, 24-12.

Coach Ellerson again kept the fans guessing about who would start as quarterback. This time it was Anthony Garnett getting the call, his first collegiate start.

Garnett completed nine of 23 passes for 149 yards and one touchdown.

Southern Utah overcame a 14-3 first-half deficit with two second-quarter touchdowns and a 17-14 halftime lead.

But Garnett ran four yards for a touchdown with 3:54 remaining in the third quarter and Bympong Yoon added a career-long 40-yard field goal with 24 seconds left in the third period for Cal Poly.

The go-ahead touchdown was set up by a block of a Southern Utah punt. James Pryor blocked Jeremy Ward's punt and Aaron Hamilton recovered the ball and ran one yard to the Southern Utah 4-yard line. One play later Garnett scored to give the Mustangs a 21-17 lead.

Wide receivers Jonsell Russell and Darrell Jones each finished with three catches.

Jeremy Konaris led Cal Poly's ground game with 41 yards on nine carries and Geno Randle added 33 yards on 13 trips.

Defensive leaders for the Mustangs were safety Kerry Chicone with 12 tackles (seven solo) and linebacker Jordan Beck with eight (three solo). The Mustangs recorded four sacks, raising their season total to 21, and have 13 interceptions in five games.

At first it looked do-able.

After grabbing an early 1-0 lead Saturday night, the Cal Poly men's soccer team had the chance to get it in first win in four weeks, record its first victory in Big West Conference play this season, win its first home game and knock off UC Santa Barbara.

Then, on their way to winning 5-1, the Gauchos began to show they are undefeated, first in the Big West and the top-ranked team in the nation. The Mustang lead was the first thing that disappeared, just three minutes after its creation. The possibility for a win began to erode in the second half when UCSB went ahead.

By the time the Gauchos unshackled the lead to 3-1 in the 74th minute — before they scored two more goals within the following 10 minutes — any remaining hope had vanished among the fatigued Mustangs.

"The guys had a little bit let their guard down," Mustang coach Wolfgangartner said. "They were not doing anything anymore, they thought the game was over and it kind of is against that kind of team. There's always the potential for come back, but not tonight."

Cal Poly fell to 3-3-3 on the season, 0-2 in Big West play. Matthew Robinson scored for the Mustangs, but Gauchos Jonathan Davis scored twice and teammates Devyn McAthy, Tyler Rosenlund and Andrew Proctor also had goals, to give the Gauchos' seventh straight win over Cal Poly since 2001.

The Mustangs have gone 0-3-2 and scored twice since Sept. 12. Meanwhile, the Gauchos improved to 10-1-3, 3-0 in conference and may earn a No. 1 ranking in a major poll for the fourth straight week.

If that happens, it will perhaps give the hard-nosed Santa Barbara performance that went exactly to plans to rely on a deep bench to tire out the Mustangs' man-to-man defense and exploit Garnett's injury-depleted roster.

"Honestly, the game was run to run, run in the first half and then we knew that the second half would open up," Gauchos coach Tim VomSteeg said.

"They wore us down, that's true, because they had deep bench, we're hurting right now ... and they were substituting more than we can afford to," Garnett said.

The record, the statistics speak for themselves. The Mustangs were safety Kenny Chicone with 12 tackles (seven solo) and linebacker Jordan Beck with eight (three solo). The Mustangs recorded four sacks, raising their season total to 21, and have 13 interceptions in five games.
