

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First, we would like to express our utmost gratitude to the entire Political Science Department for its unwavering support and encouragement of Paideia. Once more, the department has proven the power of faculty-student collaboration by instilling us with the courage to pursue our vision for this year's volume.

Dr. Jean Williams, thank you for always advocating on our behalf and for ensuring we had all the resources we needed to produce Paideia.

Dr. Matthew Moore, thank you so much for allowing us to use your Suggestions for Writing Papers as one of our central tools for editing.

Dr. Shelley Hurt, your enthusiasm and valuable advice helped us institutionalize and routinize the infrastructure of Paideia.

To the co-founders of the journal, we appreciate all of your guidance and support throughout the journal-making process. Joi Sullivan, thank you for providing us with the necessary knowledge and materials for getting the second volume of Paideia off the ground. Katie Magnus, thank you for your continual support and assistance throughout the entire process.

Kristin Ventresca, your unrivaled efficiency and thoroughness were crucial in bringing all components of the journal together in a timely manner.

Andrea Nash, thank you for connecting us with alumni, students, and faculty members. Your promptness, encouragement, and calmness were always welcome signs of relief during our times of stress.

Thank you to the Political Science Alumni Advisory Board for your generous support. We would like to thank Arthur Goldiner in particular for always making yourself available for our questions.

Student authors: congratulations on being published in an academic journal. Your work was outstanding and we look forward to your continued successes in the future.

Featured Cal Poly Political Science Alumni, thank you so much for taking the time to share your experiences with Paideia. Your stories have served as inspiration and motivation for current Cal Poly students.

We would like to extend a special thanks to Cal Poly's Graphic Communication Department, specifically Dr. Lorraine Donegan for her continued guidance and advice. Monique Martinez, your patience, reliability, and willingness to tackle challenges head on were critical in the successful production of the journal.

Finally, we would like to thank Dr. Anika Leithner, the faculty advisor for Paideia. Your confidence and trust in us inspired us to pursue our vision for Paidiea, no matter how daunting it seemed. We would also like to thank you for the countless emails you sent out on our behalf.
