

BIG FISH

Meet Dave. He is the lead door host, or “bouncer” at SLO Brew, but is also a great friend of mine. Dave is tough as nails and great at his job but also is a quintessential example of the phrase “don’t judge a book by its cover”. He has the largest heart of anyone I know, and even walked me to my car one of the first late nights I worked to make sure I got home safe. This is an environmental portraits series of Dave being Dave.

Much of my work could be characterized as being a blend of art photography and photojournalism. I have really used photography as a viewfinder for not only thinking more critically about the world around me but also for giving a voice to people’s stories through my images.
