MAY DAY PICNIC

Poly's May Day picnic at Atascadero Beach was what might be termed a roaring success. The day was warm and quiet—an ideal day for a picnic, and, as the May Day committee had chosen well when they picked the spot for the picnic, success was assured from the start.

By ten o'clock the gang had arrived and festivities began. Horseshoe stakes were set up and immediately put to use. The much talked-of baseball game between Company A and Company B took place and after eleven hard-fought innings the Dorm Company left the field with the heavy end of a 7-6 score. Some of the Freshmen, in a violent endeavor to acquire a coat of tan, donned bathing suits and soon had their wildest ambitions realized. The Ags opened up a soda pop stand under a nearby bridge and did a rushing business.

About one o'clock Lumley and "Fat" who had charge of the culinary department, informed us that it was time to "come an' get it" and, owing to the morning's activities, no one lacked an appetite.

The onion stew was great, as was the coffee. Dessert consisted of two flavors of ice cream, which provided an artistic touch to the meal.

Immediately after chow the inter-class track meet took place under the able leadership of "Doug."

The Seniors emerged winners with 26 points chalked up for them. The Juniors came second with 23 points, the Freshies third with 13 points and the Sophs came out just above the board with a score of 1.

The first event, the 50-yard dash for boys, was easily won by Bundy. Lumley came in second and Gings, running for the Sophs, scored the only point annexed by that class.

The 50-yard dash for the girls was won by Margaret Word. Rae Mayhall came in second and Rosalind Venema finished third.

The sack race was won by the Mills Bros. Inc., a hard combination to beat. Martensen and Eveleth won second place, in this event, for the Juniors and D. Wimmer and Clements took third place for the Seniors.

The next event, the shoe race, was won by the Freshie, Griffin. He had a decided advantage over the rest of the contestants, however, owing to the fact that he wore oxfords which allowed a quick change. Dieffe, the Seniors' old standby, came in a close second and Marty took third place for the Juniors.

The clam race, another unusual athletic endeavor, was won by E. Patchett for the Seniors. Read came in second and Marty finished third.

The barnyard golf tournament was won by the Juniors who nosed out the Seniors in the final frame. The winning combination was composed of Martensen and Chet, Davis.

The last event on the program, the relay, was easily won by the Seniors. This team was composed of Bundy, Annin, Lumley, and Wimmerr.

Martensen finished the day as high point man with Bundy a close second.

By this time the sun had gotten well down toward the western horizon so the finishing touches were put on the end of a perfect day at the soda pop stand and a well satisfied crowd of Polyites headed back for San Luis Obispo.

OUR SCHOOL PLAY

Action, romance, mystery, and not a dull moment in the whole play! What more would you want than to see a production of this sort—and put on by your fellow students? Yes, "Seven Keys To Baldpate" has all these characteristics that make up a live play and it's to be the best amateur play ever shown in San Luis Obispo.

For instance, take Hubert Patchett (Wm. Hallowell Magee) as one of these modern authors, full of high spirits using his imagination to the limit—for the sake of pleasing these hair-raising book hounds or theatre lovers who are willing to contribute to his royalty. Well, that's what Hubert does—in the play; and you will be surprised to find out how talented he is!

Then, there's Belle Tommasini (Mrs. Rhodes) eager for the fray, making use of her vamping ways and succeeds in getting engaged to Mayor Cargan alias Eddie Oldham. Leave it to Belle, she's quite an actress.

Can you imagine Burton Bundy (Elijah Qulmby) working like mad taking care of an inn and being the husband of Margaret Word (Mother Qulmby)? The latter is always there with a fine swinging step and Don Eveleth will now have a chance to see what his future years may be like.

There is one girl in this school who is full of business, and that is Dorothy Miller. She takes the part of Mary Norton, a newspaper reporter, and may it now be said there is nothing that she can overlook. She even keeps tap on Leslie Oldham who portrays Jim Cargan, mayor of the town.

Teeming with life, we have Bernhard Preuss, who, for the time being forgets a little of that farming stuff and takes up the work of a secretary for the mayor. His name in the play is John Bland.

Ah, now we have her, quick in every part—Rosalind Venema. Blondes are well forgotten when she plays the part of Myra Thornhill, an accomplice of Lew Max, who we could call a crook. Ernest Patchett is as full of fight as ever and shows that he can portray other characters besides German tailors. We now have him president of a street car company.

Alive as never before do we find Harold Truesdale, alias Peters, the hermit. It really is wonderful how he takes this part and it hard to conceive him living such a solitary life.

But this beats all, Walter Lumley a crook! Say, that King City wind of his will blow him anywhere and now it has landed him to take this part of Lew Max.

Ready in a trice we have Ernest Hodges (Jake Kennedy) who, much to his gulore, is chief of police. We all know Hodges, and when he says, "Come along," you had better obey him or there will be one less in the family.

Then, when the play is being held with more than a languid interest, the owner of Baldpate (William Corbin) comes on the scene and somewhat clears up the plot. However, that isn't all, as it is mostly a mystery until the end.

Now, to put this play over, the whole student body must back it up by boosting it and selling tickets, if asked. The play is to be given at the Elmo Theatre, Thursday evening, May 22. Tickets will be seventy-five cents, entitling you to a reserved seat. Polytechnic has the reputation of doing things and doing them well, so let's keep it up!

SENIOR DITCH DAY

On Thursday morning, April 24, the bell for first period rang as usual but the members of the Senior Class were not at all interested. At about 8:30 o'clock they congregated at the home of Dorothy Miller. From there they proceeded to Pismo Beach where clam digging, swimming, and baseball were enjoyed. After this mirth some of the boys started up the well-known refrain, "When do we eat!" and there was no peace until the eats were served.

The merry throng went to the end of the beach where the committee had prepared a picnic lunch. Such a feed this was! There was salad, hot dogs, cake, candy, soda water and all the rest that goes with it. Not a thing was missing except room to store it all away. It was unanimously voted that the committee, consisting of Bundy, Truesdale, Hodges, and Preuss, be appointed to serve the next time eats were wanted, as they did such a fine job.

After enjoying the sunshine, for lack of energy to move, the class decided that a swim would finish the day. The party journeyed to Ontario Springs where a football game and a swim in the outdoor plunge were much enjoyed. About 4 o'clock they returned home, tired, but happy, and voted the day a great success.

Twelve Months of School

At a recent conference held in San Luis Obispo for the future of Polytechnic it was recommended that a twelve months' course in agriculture be provided. It was definitely brought out that Poly differs from Davis in that the latter is a school of college rank.

Following is a report given by the committee which is looking forward to the future of Poly:

"The California Polytechnic School should be maintained as a state institution of secondary vocational grade devoted to the teaching of agriculture and home making. It is understood that the term "agriculture" embraces all of those essential activities commonly included under agricultural engineering.

"A strong academic course should be maintained with those co-related between the academic and vocational subjects.

"The institution should be maintained on a twelve-months' basis, and the project method of teaching agriculture is recommended.

"Student labor should be used so that the student may, to a great extent, be able to finance himself.

"In order that the vocationally trained graduates may be properly employed, a close relationship should be maintained with agricultural organizations."

Mechanics Visit Shops

Last week Mr. Knott took his class to the Southern Pacific roundhouse to look over the machinery and railroad equipment. The whole afternoon was spent in this way and much interest was shown.

The students were given a chance to look over the locomotives, and different points concerning their operation and construction were explained to them. The large engine of the 3600 type, now used on the local grade, was inspected and proved to be of much interest, as it is the largest locomotive used on the coast division and the kind used on the Tehachapi Pass and in the mountain regions of the Southern Pacific Company.

GUESTS OF ROTARIANS

Boys' Week, through which we have just passed, was practically observed by every men's organization in the city. They took more interest in their younger sons and tried to bring about a closer relationship.

It happened that during this time Mr. Riccardi, our past director, was in San Luis Obispo working for the interests of the school. Being a Rotarian, he was expected at their weekly luncheon held at the Anderson Hotel. As sort of an honor to him, some Poly boys were invited to be at the luncheon to greet him and to hear what the local business men are doing to help the boys of the community.

The students who were there also had a chance to hear leading educational men of the state and who are especially interested in boys' work. Those invited to attend the luncheon were Bernhardt Preuss, Allan Mori, Prescott Reed, Fred Flugger, Hubert Patchett, Rudolph Reich, and William Corbin.

Doctor Addresses Assembly

The assembly of April 25 was opened with our reliable double piece orchestra composed of Leo Earl, saxophone, and Fred Flugger at the piano. After a few announcements as to the annual school picnic, Miss Chase introduced Dr. Kirland, who is a strong booster for San Luis Obispo and Polytechnic.

He spoke largely of the opportunities of which we should take advantage while at school and of our possibilities in the future. Another thing mentioned was that of the interest taken by the community in Polytechnic and they regard this as a civic duty. In all, his talk was very interesting, and in some parts he made very humorous comparisons.

Mechanics Visit Tanker

During these warm afternoons, there has been a tendency for some not to heat school. This was taken advantage of Tuesday by the Mechanics' Association. However, you cannot really call this a "ditch" as it was an educational tour and very interesting.

That afternoon the association journeyed down to Avila to go through one of the Union Oil Company boats. There were two in port, one being ready to leave for Vancouver; thus they were taken aboard the S. S. Coalinga. Here the group was put in charge of the chief engineer, Mr. Center, who in a very interesting way explained ever detail as if he had made the boat.

The students had a chance to see this type of a marine engine operated and of its construction. They were explained the different types of engines, boilers, their advantages and operation. In fact, it seemed as if Engineer Center did not overlook one detail and answered any questions that were asked.

After this, the boys were turned over to the captain, who briefly told of the operation of the ship and of recent facilities. The afternoon was well spent and much was derived from the trip. The only casualty that happened was that Lumley got lost in the kitchen.

High School Play a Success

Friday evening, May 2, the well-known comedy, "Come Out of the Kitchen," was given by the Senior Class of the local High School. It proved to be a big success, having a large audience in their favor.

The cast showed much talent and credit is given to the students taking part. It was a play that took a great deal of effort and it was readily seen that the required work was put into it.

A VACATION VISIT

Vacation means to some, rest; to others, work; and to many, just a relief from school work. This means that a few were glad to have a taste of home life again, and the rest were satisfied with the Dormitory. However, Eugene Churchill chose to take an educational trip to San Francisco Bay region where he visited many manufacturing plants, power plants, substations, and radio broadcasting studios.

In spite of the disinfecting and other quarantine discomforts, he had a pleasant trip to the northern city and was prepared to absorb all the knowledge he could. Eugene arrived in Oakland Friday night and all the next day was spent on the University of California campus, which seemed to be in its height of glory with blooming flowers and buds.

Monday, Churchill crossed the bay to San Francisco where he made acquaintances with the different industrial leaders, who gladly issued him permits to visit any of their plants or gave good reasons why they could not be visited. The shipbuilders were the only ones who really refused this request.

The only plant visited in San Francisco was the Bush street sub-station of the Great Western Power Co. The engineering offices of that company are located in this building. Here Eugene met many experts with whom he became very friendly.

One thing in particular that Churchill wanted to see was a Bessemer converter in operation. So he journeyed back across the bay and to San Leandro to a noted tractor company only to find that the converter was not being used. Though this was some disappointment, he kept up hope and found his way to the Pacific Diesel Engine Co. There he saw the machine shops where the castings are made into parts for two hundred to one thousand horsepower engines.

Probably the most interesting part of the trip was a visit to the Claremont substation of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. This station receives electric power from the Pitt River plants at 110 kilo volts where it is stepped down to 60 kilo volts and distributed underground to the East Bay cities. It is considered the most up-to-date substation on the coast and is modern in every detail. In fact, they even have radio communication to their power house on the Pitt River. All the switches are remote control and the switchboard is equipped with lamps to show just what lines are in use. The former eliminates all danger to the operator as the switch he handles is only 34 volts, while the 34-volt motor handles the 110-kilo volt switch.

Another station and plant of the Pacific Gas and Electric Co. visited was the one at First and Grove Streets, Oakland. This power plant has two upright turbine generator units, each standing about 40 feet high. A third unit is a horizontal turbine generator at 11 kilo volts and stepped down to 4-kilo volts. In the switching house there are a number of control panels for "tying-in" on other lines and plants. There are also three large motor generator sets for generating direct current for street car and elevator service. Many more things of interest were seen at this large plant, but space prevents telling about them.

At the Madsen Lamp Co. in Oakland, Eugene saw nearly 200 girls at work feeding the automatic machinery which make up the lamps such as we use in our homes. This plant turns out 40,000 lamps every day. The filaments are wound by hand, but nearly all the other work is done by the above-mentioned machines.

Other plants of interest visited were: The Richmond oil refinery of the Standard Oil Company (which would be a whole article in itself to tell about); the Purox Company, where pure oxygen is made by the electrolysis of water; the Victor X-Ray Corporation, and the Radio Broadcasting Studio of the Oakland Tribune.

In all, it was a most valuable trip and the knowledge gained is priceless. Churchill is indebted to Mr. Knott for rapid transportation to and from the industrial center of the Pacific Coast.

Poly Chatter

Just because a girl smiles at you, Eunice, is no reason for your thinking she's trying to flirt with you. She may think that your face is funny.

"The way to keep the greatest things in life is to give them away. The singer his voice, the poet his song, the artist his imagination, the strong man his muscle, and every man his personality. Success does not operate apart from personality."—Carlyle Henry Holcomb.

Since when has Voltz taken to carrying around roses? Did you notice him the other morning in the study hall?

"The youth who would succeed, and in the process develop a strong character, must learn to grapple first with the tough problems, the disagreeable things in his day's work until he had formed the habit of always starting in the morning with the most difficult or unpleasant duty of the day that is ahead."—New Success.

We'll say Hurton Bundy plays in hard luck. After he had fixed up his motorcycle real nice and everything, along came his brother and wrecked the darned thing again. It seems to us that he would get rid of the motor. Everyone knows that his girl doesn't like it.

Many people think that Alfred Young's little love affair is his first. Say, listen, he has had several others. One of the fellows found out about this during vacation, so it comes from an authentic source.

At any rate, Jesse James never raised a hood and tightened a spark plug and charged $3.85.

Why was it that both Dorothy Hoare and Hubert Patchett were late for school the other morning?

The only time pedestrians have the right-of-way is when the ambulance is taking them to the hospital.

We can always tell when Mr. Agosti is feeling happy, as his melodious singing is always heard above the quietness of the study hall.

Former Students Here

Alden Davis, Class of '22, returned to San Luis during the spring vacation and gave the school the once over. He claims that the school looks the same and trusts that Poly will do better during baseball season, as that was his favorite sport while attending here. He is now going to the Southern Branch, University of California.
 Another visitor was Elmer Griffin, a former student, and now a resident of Ventura.

Athlete Moves Two Feet
It almost makes me laugh
So wonderful the treat;
To see an athlete run a mile,
And only move two feet.

His Dream
Two friends were exchanging compliments regarding their respective girl friends.
"I hope you're not suffering from any hallucination that your girl is a raving beauty," sneered the elder.
"I sure am," replied the younger Petersby, "and I'm going to continue to hug my illusion."

Suspicious
She: "Isn't it a nuisance, dear? Mother sent me a recipe for some wonderful floor polish, but I've mislaid it."
He (tasting soup suspiciously): "Are you sure you mislaid it, darling?"

Why Not?
"Did you mail those two letters I gave you, Norah?"
"Yes'm, at the post-office. But I noticed that you'd put the two-cent stamp on the foreign letter and the five-cent stamp on the city one."
"Oh, dear, what a blunder!"
"But I fixed it all right ma'am. I just changed the addresses on the envelopes."

Cure of In-Fat-Nation
In answer to an advertisement of a new patent on "How To Get Rid of Fat," a very fleshy lady sent in one dollar for the required information. The answer she received was as follows: "To get rid of fat, throw it into the garbage can."

Their Ends
Mr. Smith: "So your son goes to the California Polytechnic School? How is he making it?"
Mr. Haas: "He isn't. I'm making it and he's spending it."

Discovered
Mrs. Peteler came rushing to her husband when he arrived home the other evening.
"Oh, Tiny," she cried, as she panted for breath, "I dropped my diamond ring off my finger and I can't find it anywhere!"
"It's all right, dear," said he, "I came across it in my trousers pocket."

Father (not versed in science) to son who is "listening in": "What's this thing?"
Son: "Oh that's the 'B' battery."
Father: "Is that where you get your honey-comb coils?"

She: "Are you sure it was a year ago today we became engaged?"
V. Wimmer: "Yes, I looked it up in my check book."

Drummers, March!
The Sunday school teacher had been telling her class about the benefits of being good. At the end of her discourse she turned to a bright-eyed little Miss and asked:
"Where do good little girls go?"
"To Heaven," was the prompt reply.
"And where do the bad girls go?"
"To the depot to see the traveling men come in."

"My college certainly turns out fine men."
"When were you graduated?"
"I wasn't; they turned me out."

"Father," said the dutiful and blushing daughter, "what shall I say to Captain Robinson if he insists on pressing his suit?"
"Say," said the Colonel. "Why, tell him with my compliments that I think it's about time he did. I never saw a soldier with such baggy trousers in my life!"

Sign Here
Charles N. Langmuir tells of the sales methods of a Japanese agent who had written 350 applications in a year. He was a laconic individual of the monosyllable variety. At a New York Life meeting he once explained his system as follows:
"I go out into the country in my little car.
"I see Japanese boy in field.
"I say, 'Come here.'
"I say, 'You carry life insurance policy?'
"He say, 'No.'
"I say, 'You darnfool, sign here!'"

Harnater: "How'd you get the puncture?"
Carroll: "Ran over a chicken with pin feathers."

Don Fulwider: "Yes, lint on the lungs from chewing the rag."

Sinclair: "I think a train has just passed."
Helle: "How can you tell?"
Sinclair: "I can see its tracks."

Clerk: "We can't pay you the twenty-five dollars on this check until you are identified."
Jimmy Warford: "That's hard luck! There's only one person in this town who can identify me—and I owe him twenty."

(Sung to the tune of "My Rosary")
The socks I darn for thee, dear heart,
Mean quite a pile of work for me.

ATHLETICS

BASEBALL

Arroyo Grande

On April 23, the Poly baseball nine took on the Arroyo Grande High School. The game was played at Poly field.

The result of this game was 3 to 0 in favor of the Arroyo Grande boys. They had a good aggregation of ball players.

The Poly team played perfect ball in the field. Every man played his position and played it well. When they were at bat they did not fare so well. The Arroyo Grande pitcher held them to two hits. These were made by Hammond and Reynolds.

The loss of the game can be credited to the lack of hits by the Poly players, and to the fact that the umpire did not know how to say "Ball."

Poly vs. San Luis HI

On April 29 Poly had another game with the local high school. This game was very similar to the preceding games with the San Luis fellows. The score was 9-3, and if our team had put forth more effort the score would have been higher.

Sinclair pitched to Reynolds and played a good game. He struck out six men and allowed only five hits. The lineup was:

Poly vs. Arroyo Grande

On April 30 the Poly nine went to Arroyo Grande to get revenge for what they did while up here. However, they failed to do this. Our team returned having been defeated for the second time by the Arroyo boys.

The loss of this game was the result of the numerous errors made by the Poly boys. Oldham made three, two of which Arroyo scored on, and E. Patchett made two errors. However, the latter did not change the results of the game.

On the other hand, some excuses may be made for these errors, as their field was in very poor condition. Besides, it not being level and having plots of grass, there were many squirrel holes. Because of these and the small rocks on the field, it kept a fellow busy looking where he was going.

Still, Poly's two runs were made on errors also. Thus, of the six runs made none were really earned. A good score for this game would have been 0-0. In detail the game was:

Poly vs. Paso Robles

Saturday, May 3, was an ideal day for baseball and Poly journeyed over to Paso Robles to take on the high school there. This game was one of the big ones of the season for our home team.

Poly played a very pretty game—until the eighth inning. Sinclair pitched a perfect ball and everyone backed him up. However, at this critical moment, something went wrong. It seemed that everyone went on the blink at the same time, making several errors.

Sinclair blew up and the Red and White team made five hits off of him. With this, and the several errors made in the field, the game was gone. Paso Robles made six runs that inning, making them a total of eight to Poly's three. Poly failed to make a score the next inning. The score cards follow:

Polytechnic—	A. B. R. H. O. A. E.
E. Patchett 2b	4 1 0 4 2 0

Tentative plans are in progress for a game with the College of the Pacific next Saturday at King City.

This game is a semi-final for the conference championship and, should the plans go through, Poly will sample some real college baseball.

Championship Bouts

Those interested in athletics at Stanford University are bound to have that institution represented at the Olympic Games to be held near Paris and to take place in some events. Not long ago boxing championships were decided in a series of three round bouts, one for each class. Before this, a series of preliminary matches were held to select the best men in each class.

The winners of each class were awarded gold medals, being donated by previous boxing champions of the school. This boxing team will represent Stanford in the Olympic games try-outs which will be held later.

Mr. Slusher Resigns

Although Mr. Slusher resigned last January as business manager of Poly, he did not turn over the business to his successor until last week. He has administered the business affairs of the school for the past two years and has given up the position to put time to personal business interests in San Luis Obispo. Mr. Atkinson, who has been assistant for over half a year, will take up the duties.

Mr. Slusher has been a faithful worker for the school and many are sorry to see him leave. The students wish him the best of success in his business enterprise and trust that he will still boost for Poly.

Dorm Doings

Nearly all of the members of the Dorm Club are suffering from Spring fever. The favorite indoor sport is sleeping. Pfeiffer complains that it is hard to "get 'em up" in the morning. Capt. Deuel even has trouble in getting the buglers up in time for breakfast.

Vernon Langenbeck spent the week-end at Oceano. Oceano must be prevailing for Vernon grows sadder week by week.

A crowd of Dorm boys went on a fishing expedition to Avila last Sunday. The mere fact that they failed to catch any fish did not bar them from having a most enjoyable time.

Ernest Hodges went to Paso Robles last week-end with the Wimmer boys. A number of the fellows went over to Paso Robles last Saturday to the baseball game.

We wonder why Don has been returning home so early in the evening of late?

There has been a great decrease in the sale of stew at the dining hall this week.

Carlos Baemeister's Ford still runs—occasionally.
