CAED Names New Assistant Dean for Advancement

The College of Architecture and Environmental Design recently named Linda Kristenson as the new assistant dean for advancement. Kristenson began her new position earlier this month after spending seven years as the director of corporate and foundation relations in Cal Poly's University Advancement Division, and three years as the director of development for Cal Poly's College of Engineering. She replaces Tanya Kiani, the former director of advancement for the CAED, who moved to the College of Agriculture, Food and Environmental Sciences.

Organic farm opens 7th annual produce program

It's time once again for the Cal Poly Organic Farm's Fall & Winter Community Supported Agriculture Program Season to begin. The 26-week season runs Sept. 18 through March 12, offering a mouthwatering weekly selection of farm fresh organic vegetables, fruits and eggs to subscribers. True veggie fans can sign up for a weekly full share harvest box that feeds four to five people for $650, or a weekly half-share harvest box that feeds two to three people for $468. Subscribers can pick up their harvest boxes weekly at the farm, located on Mt. Bishop Road.

Preface and SLO County Reads set fall events

PREFACE and SLO County Reads 2006 are encouraging Cal Poly students, faculty, staff, alumni and all San Luis Obispo county residents to participate in community book discussions, events, and a presentation by Alice Sebold, author of "The Lovely Bones." Community events include a workshop on dealing with sexual assault, a discussion on faith traditions about life after death led by local clergy and faith leaders, and more. For more information visit <http://preface.calpoly.edu>

Music Department announces 2006-2007 concerts

The Cal Poly Music Department's 2006-2007 season has something for everybody, with programs to suit musical tastes ranging from classical to jazz. The department is even sponsoring the four-day California Wind Band Festival in March. Patrons who buy season tickets to four events will receive a 10 percent discount; a 15 percent discount is given for tickets to five or more events. For more information call ext. 6-2406 or visit <http://music.calpoly.edu>.

Two Faculty receive annual Distinguished Scholarship Award

Cal Poly has named a professor and an associate professor to receive the university's Distinguished Scholarship Award for 2005-06, the third year for this award program. Aerospace Engineering Professor Daniel Biezad and History Associate Professor Andrew Morris were recognized for outstanding accomplishments in their research endeavors. They were honored at commencement ceremonies June 10 and were honored during the university's Fall Conference General Session on Sept. 18.

Cal Poly names 2005-2006 Distinguished Teachers

Cal Poly has named one professor from the college of Engineering and two professors from the College of Liberal Arts to receive this year's highest teaching award. Associate Professor Yarrow Nelson of the Civil and Environmental Engineering Department, Professor Michael Miller of the Art and Design Department and Mary Armstrong of the English Department are the recipients of a 2005-2006 Distinguished Teaching Award.
