Statement of Confidentiality

The term “Confidential Information” means any information about the project that this team has learned as a result of participating in the project and that is also considered Intellectual Property (defined below).

The term “Intellectual Property” is defined as any and Inventions, Discoveries, or Innovations, and Copyrightable Works, and related patents, copyrights, trademarks, service marks, trade secrets and/or know how, which are developed, obtained, authored, conceived, and/or reduced to practice as a result of the project and the CP QL+ program, other than any pre-existing works. Upon receiving written permission from QL+, and if QL+ deems it appropriate subject to a royalty rate to be agreed upon by the Parties, University may use Intellectual Property for non-competitive commercial purposes; University shall provide a written request to QL+ for any such non-competitive commercial purposes.

Every party agrees that it will not distribute, disclose or disseminate any Confidential Information of the other party in any way to anyone, except only to its employees and contractors who need to know the Confidential Information and to its financial, legal or other advisors who are advising such party regarding the project, or as required by law, or as allowed through permitted uses. Each party agrees that its disclosure of Confidential Information to any employees, contractors and/or advisors who have such a need to know shall be limited to only so much of such Confidential Information as is necessary for an employee, contractor and/or advisor to perform his/her function and said disclosure shall only occur after each such recipient is made aware of the obligations of confidentiality hereunder. In consenting to the disclosure of Confidential Information to any third party, the disclosing party may require such third party to sign a confidentiality agreement.

All Confidential Information discussed in this report shall be and remain the property of QL+. All such Confidential Information, and any copies thereof, shall be promptly returned to the disclosing party upon written request, or, at the disclosing party's option and instruction, destroyed. Additionally, upon written request by the disclosing party, the receiving party shall certify in writing to the disclosing party that, to the best of the receiving party's knowledge, all originals and copies of any Confidential Information that were used or possessed by receiving party have been returned to a designated officer of disclosing party.
